Mr. Richard Allen, whose portrait we publish this week, first saw the light of day in the township of Mono, the banner township of Dufferin, of which county he is at present the able and popular Warden. Mr. Allen was born on the 14th day of January, 1848, and is therefore just entering upon his 43rd year. In contradistinction to the average young man of the time he has always thought "there is no place like home," and has passed his entire life upon the farm where he now resides. While his schoolmates and the companions of his youth have wandered all up and down creation," Richard has been content to sit quietly under his own vine and fig tree and take advantage of opportunities as they arose round and about the old homestead. While others have have been struggling, with more or less success, among strangers, perhaps under a foreign flag, he has been unconstitutionally but steadily rising in the esteem of his neighbors, in the confidence of his fellow electors. Four years previous to the formation of Dufferin county Mr. Allen entered upon the stormy path that leads to fame or failure—municipal politics. That he was elected a councillor four times in succession proves that he was not a failure, and that he has attained at least a modicum of fame is shown by the fact that he now occupies the Warden's chair in the Dufferin county council. Nor is this all, on more than one occasion the name of Richard Allen has been prominently mentioned in connection with the representation of Cardwell in the Dominion House of Parliament. After serving an apprenticeship as township councillor, Mr. Allen, at the earnest solicitation of friends, entered the field for the township in opposition to Squire Wilson. Victory, however, did not perch upon his banner on that occasion, the Squire being an opponent whom a battery of beige guns and the Chililian navy could scarcely defeat in those days. In 1889 he again ran for the township, having for an opponent Mr. Samuel Ewing, whom he defeated by the handsome majority of 325. Since that time he has invariably been returned without opposition, an honor which he appreciates and which is well merited. His record as an administrator of township affairs is an enviable one, and in the county council he is ever found battling for the right. He is an advocate of the strictest economy consistent with the proper conduct of public business. At the recent sitting of the county council his career as an honorable and capable municipal officer was fittingly crowned by his unanimous election to the wardenship of Dufferin. He is by descent an Irishman, and, what is more to the point, a staunch Conservative, and these, with his other virtues, place him in the front rank among the rising young men of this section. Incidentally it may be mentioned that he has been appointed returning officer for the pending election in Cardwell. THE SUN joins with his many friends in wishing him continued prosperity, domestic happiness and the brilliant career in local, provincial or Dominion politics for which his energy, ability and uprightness eminently fit him.

THE PRIZE ESSAY.

That Won the Flag for the Orangeville Public School.

Below will be found Master John McK. Kearns' essay on "the patriotic influence of hoisting the flag." This essay won the large Union Jack offered by the Empire for Dufferin county.

THE ESSAY.

There is something in the idea of hoisting the flag on our schools that stirs up in our hearts a sensation undefinable, strangely thrilling, and exultant to a degree heretofore unknown.

We have been taught from our earliest infancy to love the "dear old flag" but, when we see it floating in all its majesty from some lofty pinnacle, our blood tingles to our finger tips, and we are filled with a desire to do and dare. 'Tis as in younger days we would talk about an approaching holiday with indifferent calmness, but, on hearing the first sound of a drum, or the martial strains of a band, we were filled with enthusiasm, and felt as though we were the heroes of the day.

We are quite confident as we look upon the Red, White and Blue, the emblems of courage, purity and truth, our ambition will be to stand like good soldiers and resist manfully anything that would in the most remote way menace the safety of our country or our laws. We shall think of the British blood that has been shed in defending our nation's flag.

We, as young Canadians, are expected to grow up in defence of those rights and privileges that were bequeathed to us from over the sea. The influence of our nation's flag can never be told, it will be like the waves of the sea, going on and on down to the generations yet unborn as it has come to us from the "Act of Union" in the year 1707, in which the crosses of St. George and St. Andrew, and later in the year of our Lord 1800, the cross of St. Patrick, were blended into the "Union Jack," which was adopted as the national flag.

When we remember such names as Nelson, Wellington, Havelock, Clyde, and scores of others who fought and bled in honor of the British flag, we feel in-

We trust to feel that we are ever under the liberal government of our sovereign, and, when we think of what great Master Century, we place foremost the ever-onward, ever-upward of our prosperity and development of our new Canada with its nature of wonderful hoarded up in its earth as yet unexplored, its millions of commerce, rolling from Atlantic to Pacific coast, its mighty rivers and beautiful lakes, why should we not become a powerful people?

The boys of to-day are the men of tomorrow, and if our ever-onward is to be kept bright as in the days of yore, we must infuse into our lives the spirit of our forefathers that impelled them to do and die for the honor of their country and their homes.

If then, Queen Victoria, mistress England's greatness to no open Bible, let us never forget that it is "righteousness that exalteth a nation."

Britannia the pride of the ocean,
The home of the brave and the free,
The shrine of the patriot's devotion,
A world offers homage to thee.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Powell Martin, of Toronto, is in town.

Rev. A. C. and Mrs. Watt were in town on Friday.

Dr. Bare, M.P.P., for Dufferin, was in town last week.

Mr. Thos. Hamilton, of Grand Valley, was in Orangeville on Friday.

Mr. George Hodgins, of Raglin, will shortly move to his farm in Amaranth.

Miss Mackintosh, of Guelph, formerly of this town, is the guest of Miss Minnie Lynch.

Mrs. Hetherington, of Brampton, is paying a visit to her daughter, Mrs. J. M. Smith, of this town.

The many friends of Mrs. R. Perfect, of the Perfect house, Springbrook, will regret to learn that she is dangerously ill.

Miss Styles, of Kemble, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Jas. May, returned home yesterday accompanied by her sister, Mr. Ed Styles.

TARBERT.

The persons who were sick with the measels are raddilly recovering.

We hear a great many rumors of parties now, but as it happens we do not see many of them. Hurry up, young folks.

Mr. Jacob Thompson is going to have a sale of his farm stock and implements some time during this month. Mr. Thompson has leased his farm.

On Thursday evening last a certain young man took a well known young lady out for a drive. They had only gone a little way when they got stuck in a snow bank and had to turn back. Better wait till the roads are broken before you try another drive.

CAMILLA.

E. J. Cobean, our energetic merchant, has fully recovered from an attack of la grippe.

Our hotelkeeper, Mr. Morrison, has been absent for a few days at the funeral of his sister, who lived in Vaughan township.

Last Sabbath was Sacrament Sunday in the Presbyterian church and Rev. G. Ballantyne gave a very eloquent and touching address.

Where has the Debating Society gone to? Has it outlived its usefulness? Perhaps it is best to let its early sleep be undisturbed. Peace to its ashes.

Mr. Bowes had a splendid sale here last Monday. It was well attended and bidding was brisk, especially on the cattle. Mr. Jos. Reid showed himself to be the coming auctioneer of this district.

HOCKLEY.

A dance was held at W. H. Moffat's, near Glen Cross, a few evenings ago, and the boys and girls enjoyed themselves immensely.

A council of the Canadian Order of Chosen Friends was organized here on Saturday last, and we are pleased to say it starts off in a flourishing manner. With fifteen charter members, it seems there is no possibility of it breaking down, and our wish is that it may continue to flourish. The following officers were elected:—Dr. Island, past councillor; Samuel Fleming, councillor; John Hackett, treasurer; John Bower, recorder. Grand Organizer Hill instituted the council.

The Dominion elections are soon coming off and the great banner township is ready to do its duty once more, as it has done so many times in years gone by. Our own Jimmy Snell is going before the convention, is he? Well Jimmy stands a good chance of being the man; so does R. S. White, W. L. Walsh, and William Stubbs. If Mr. Reeve Allen wasn't warden the political situation would be greatly changed. Mono will not have anything to do with such squirts as Lennox of Barrie or Willoughby of Toronto.

THE CANADA PRESBYTERIAN.—The Canada Presbyterian, a large sixteen page family paper, published every Wednesday, has been before the public for nineteen years. During that time it has secured for itself the confidence and esteem of thousands of readers in every Province in the Dominion. It is now in its twentieth volume. All the departments that have made the paper valuable in the past will be continued; and a series of able articles on the stirring religious questions of the day, by prominent writers in Europe and America, will form a special feature the present year. Knoxonian, whose racy papers have been so attractive a feature in the past, continues to write regularly; and the list of Canadian contributors, has been greatly increased. It will be the constant aim of the conductors of The Canada Presbyterian to make it a welcome visitor to the family circle; and its comprehensive pages old and young will ever find interesting, pure and profitable reading. The Canada Presbyterian, in its enlarged form, is the same size as Harper's Weekly, and one of the largest journals of the kind on the continent.

We direct attention to the advertisement of The Rural Canadian, an old established, first-class journal which should be in the hands of every farmer in the Dominion. The book premiums offered to subscribers are this year unusually valuable. Write for list.

CARDWELL.

The Conservatives of Cardwell will meet at Mono Mills tomorrow for the purpose of nominating their standard bearer for the coming election. We hope the convention will be full well, and bring out the strongest man. At present the names of R. S. White, W. L. Walsh, James Snell, W. Stubbs and Barrister Willoughby are mentioned as likely candidates. Our next issue will have a full report of the proceedings

ORANGEVILLE CONSERVATIVES.

Met and Appoint Delegates to Attend the Convention at Fergus.

A meeting of the Orangeville Liberal Conservative Association took place in the town hall on Monday evening and a large number were present. The meeting was called for the purpose of preparing for the approaching elections and to appoint delegates to attend the Centre Wellington Conservative convention which was called for yesterday. After the transaction of minor business the following delegates were appointed: Mayor Walsh, F. C. Stewart, ex M.P.P. J. C. Fox, Wm. Judge, John Crozier, Dr. Lewis, Jos. Foster and A. A. Hughson.

The Conservatives are determined to redeem the riding and every legitimate course will be pursued to reach that end.

POLITICAL POINTS.

Montreal Reformers are disinterested and the Conservative standard bearer will have a walk-over.

Mr. W. A. McCallum has been again chosen as the Conservative candidate for Peel. He will be re-elected by an increased majority.

Mr. L. H. Clarke of Palmerston is the Conservative nominee for North Wellington. James McMullen, ex M.P., your political cake is dough.

The next issue of THE SUN will contain a full report of the Cardwell Conservative convention which is to be held at Mono Mills to-morrow (Friday).

When Lauriers government gets into power Sir Richard Cartwright will be the first United States Senator for Ontario! But that time hasn't come yet.

The Grits held a meeting at Shelburne on Friday last. Dr. Macdonald, ex-member for Huron and James McMullen, ex-M. P. for Centre Wellington, harranged the crowd for three hours, and their arguments bordered on annexation. Not much enthusiasm was displayed by the crowd, who repeatedly cheered for Sir John.

It is reported that Mr. Algie of Alton manufacturer of woollens, for years an active Conservative and nominator of Mr. White at the last election in Cardwell, will work with the Liberals and vote for their candidate in this contest. —Globe. Such claptrap talk as the above deserves to go unnoticed; but everyone who knows Mr. Algie can correctly estimate it.

The Toronto Evening Telegram foolishly believes that R. S. White's vote on the Jesuit and dual language bills "will settle his chances for nomination in Cardwell." If that idea holds good Sample, McMullen and Innes, who voted the same way as White, will be knocked higher than a kite in Centre North and South Wellington. By that way of doing business the Conservatives would win three seats here.

Between two parties the issue is clear. Sir John says—Reciprocity is good. Canada has been fair to the United States. It wants to be a neighborly neighbor, and is anxious to trade freely with the great Republic. The Conservative policy is a demand for reciprocity, tempered by the declaration that Canada will not sell its own future for the boon of partial free trade. Unhappily, the Liberal leaders have Americanized their party. Their speeches make Canada a Lazarus begging for bread at the gates of Dives. Their policy jars upon the self respect of Canadians, while Sir John promises reciprocity with honor to Canada.—Toronto Telegram.

Mrs. George Brown, of Black's Corners, died on Thursday, Jan. 29th, at her son's residence in Dundrum, where she was visiting. The corpse was taken home on Friday. The funeral took place on Sunday to the Orangeville cemetery. A large number of friends and acquaintances assembled at Mr. Brown's to pay the last tribute of respect to the deceased. She will be missed very much in her own home and in the immediate neighborhood.

CHARLESTON.

The directors of the Caledon Agricultural Society met here on Saturday, Jan. 31st, and it was decided to hold the fall fair here on the 1st and 2nd of Oct. next.

The spring fair will be held at Caledon East this year, that place having offered a bonus of $60. Accordingly the fair will be held there on Thursday, April 23rd.

A grand concert will be given at Charleston on Wednesday, the 18th inst., under the auspices of the Canadian Order of Chosen Friends. Messrs. J. H. Cameron and Jas Fox have been engaged for the occasion and they should be greeted with a full house.

We hear that Mrs. Vogan and family of Toronto, formerly of this place will remove here and take possession of the hotel at the expiration of Mr. W. J. Dwyer's lease. Mr. Dwyer intends removing to his own hotel at Hillsburg.

The township of Caledon, and society at large lament the death of James E. Bacon Esq., long a prominent figure in the social and political arena of that prosperous community. For several years the electors of his township conferred on him the honor by year after year electing him to the position of councillor of the municipality, the duties of which office he performed with a zeal and fidelity which secured the approbation of the entire community. In politics Mr. Bacon was a staunch Reformer. Deceased was born in the township 59 years ago, being the son of one of the original settlers. Mrs. Bacon, three sons and five daughters survive him. We heartily sympathize with the bereaved family and mourning ones. The remains were interred in the Forest Lawn cemetery Orangeville the funeral being largely attended.

MONO MILLS.

Who did Tom take to Orangeville on Tuesday night?

The great Conservative convention to settle the question as to who will be member for Cardwell takes place in our midst to morrow (Friday). How it will end is a mystery, even to those old and far sighted politicians. The aspirants are almost as many as the sands on the seashore. But we hope there will be no underhand work or wire-pulling. Mr. White made a good member and if we were betting we would take him.

A couple of weeks ago Mr. John Wilson's team ran away on the 5th line, Mono, and threw the gentleman out of the sleigh onto the hard road, rendering him insensible from some time. The frightened horses ran only a short distance when they stumbled and fell. Both were injured, but one much more seriously than the other. A mare, worth about $90, broke two of her legs and had to be despatched. This will be a serious loss to Mr. Wilson and all regret the accident. He is about all right again.

[illegible] will be [illegible] to the life of death.

Messrs. B. Moody, Thos. Hewitt and J. Dawson are the new band of musicians of St. Andrew's church.

Mr. George Blanchard, of Rosemont, is lying dangerously ill at the residence of his brother-in-law, Mr. J. Wilson.

On Wednesday of last week Mr. Jas Boucher's team ran away from Mr. Mosser's foundry and almost demolished the sleigh.

WANTED.—Strong boy to do general work; must be well recommended; steady job; for particulars apply at THE SUN office.

RECONSTRUCTION. — The high school board met for reorganization on Friday evening. The old officers were re-elected: Messrs. John Roberts, chairman; John Kearns, treasurer, and F. Irwin, secretary.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.—Our correspondents will confer a favor by sending their productions so as to reach this office not later than Tuesday night. By paying strict attention to the above correspondents will greatly oblige us.

FARM FOR SALE.—Mrs. F. McLaughlin, of Toronto, will sell that desirable fifty-acre farm in Caledon adjoining the village of Mono Mills, by public auction on Tuesday, Feb. 24, at 1 o'clock. For further particulars apply to Jas. Patterson, auctioneer.

ST. MARK'S LITERARY.—The Church of England Temperance Society held a meeting in the basement of St. Mark's church on Monday evening and the room was uncomfortably crowded. Pleasing music and interesting debates were the chief pieces on the programme.

BROKE HER WRIST.—While Mrs. Robt. McKeown was proceeding home from the Methodist Y. P. A. on Tuesday night she slipped on the sidewalk when a short distance from her residence York street, and broke her left wrist. The limb was set, and the injured lady is recovering.

LARGE FUNERAL.—The funeral of the late James E. Bacon, of Caledon township, took place on Friday to the Forest Lawn cemetery, and was very largely attended, nearly one hundred teams being in the cortege, showing the esteem in which the deceased was held by his many friends and acquaintances.

OYSTER SOCIAL.—The ladies of the First avenue Methodist church will give another of those delightful socials in the basement of the church on Tuesday evening next. During the evening oysters, cake, bread and butter and coffee will be served. As this is the last entertainment in aid of the organ fund, a large turnout is expected. Admission 10 cents.

DISSOLVED. — Messrs. Patterson & White, the well-known East Broadway implement men, have dissolved partnership. Mr. White will carry on the business, and Mr. Patterson will act as head agent for J. A. McMaster, manufacturer of the celebrated Turnbull binder. We wish Mr. White continued success, and we are sure Jimmy will make himself famous as hand pusher for the Turnbull.

DEAD.—We are sorry to have to chronicle the death of Mr. William Giles Lang, which occurred at his mother's residence, lot 22, con. 10, Erin, on Thursday last. Mr. Lang was well known in Orangeville, having resided here for some time. The young man, who was only twenty-five years of age, was studying for the ministry, and was for a time with Rev. A. Henderson. Everyone who knew him will regret to hear of his early death.

CREDIT SALE.—On lot 31, con. 1, township of Albion, on Monday, Feb. 23rd, at 12 o'clock sharp, a lot of valuable farm stock, implements, household furniture, etc., the property of Wm. Bible, will be sold by public auction. Terms—fat pigs and fowl and all sums under $10, cash at time of sale; over that amount nine months' credit will be given. As Mr. Bible has rented his farm everything will be sold without reserve. James A. Patterson, auctioneer

A NEW FAKE.—A gang of swindlers are now at work with a new wrinkle. They offer to paint the roof of your house for $5, and when they come for payment they present you with a bill for $65, adding to the contract 40 gallons of paint and oil at $1.50 per gallon, which you never thought of when making the bargain. You sign an agreement and you are caught. Remember these fellows affectionately, but avoid any business relations with them.

A GREAT POWER SCHEME.—THE SUN has been informed on excellent [illegible] Although the date for holding the convention was not decided upon until late in the afternoon of Saturday last, it proved to be quickly and effectually the opinion of the leaders of the party throughout the entire constituency that every polling division had its full complement of live delegates on hand.

President Hugh Roberts, of Erin, occupied the chair, and within forty-five minutes from the time he opened the meeting W. H. Hunter stood before the electors assembled as the choice of the convention, without a ballot and without a dissenting voice. The only other candidates seriously proposed were John MacGowan, ex M.P.P., of the township of Peel, and Dr. Groves, of Fergus. The former retired in favor of Mr. Hunter. It was then thought that a ballot would have to be taken between Mr. Hunter and Dr. Groves, but the latter gentleman, in a brief but enthusiastic address, said that Mr. Hunter would make an ideal candidate, and he accordingly retired in his favor. Upon motion of Dr. Groves, seconded by Mr. MacGowan, the meeting then declared Mr. Hunter the unanimous choice of the convention.

The scene that followed was one of wildest enthusiasm. Cheer upon cheer rent the air, and lusty lungs gave vigorous expression to the universal satisfactors that prevailed.

Mr. Hunter accepted the nomination in a vigorous speech, in which he announced his intention to use every legitimate effort within his power to inscribe the name of Centre Wellington upon the banner of victory for Conservative principles. Stirring addresses were delivered by Mr. MacGowan, Dr. Groves, Dr. Lewis, Mr. W. L. Walsh and Mr. Cross, of Peel, after which the organization of the party was put upon a satisfactory footing.

The Orangeville delegates present were: Mayor Walsh, F. C. Stewart, Dr. Lewis, J. C. Fox, A. A. Hughson, Joseph Foster, Wm. Judge and John Crozier.

The feeling of the meeting was such as to inspire confidence in the successful issue of the contest, and Mr. Hunter goes into the fight backed by the earnest wishes of his friends that upon the 4th of March he will be M. P. for Centre Wellington.

THE SUN'S SUPPLEMENT. — The Sun's supplement this week should be carefully read by every elector in the country. It contains the address of that grand old statesman, the Right Hon. Sir John A. Macdonald, to the people of Canada; also a report of the monster gathering at Toronto, at which Sir John Thompson, Minister of Justice, Hon. G. E. Foster, Minister of Finance, Hon. Mackenzie Bowell, Minister of Customs, and Hon. John Carling, Minister of Agriculture, delivered excellent speeches. There will also be found Sir Charles Tupper's speech at Kingston, the first since he left England. Both Tory and Grit should give the supplement a careful perusal.

AN INSANE MAN.—One of the passengers on the Friday morning train from Teeswater got off at the Orangeville station, and from his actions it was decided that he was an escaped lunatic. The station authorities telephoned for Chief Shields, who answered the message and interviewed the crazy man. The stranger had a bible with him and he would tear out the leaves, place some on the seat, stick them on his face, shoulders, etc. Soon telegrams came from Teeswater inquiring about the man, and when it was known he was here the chief was instructed to bring him back, as his parents, who live near Kincardine, were extremely anxious about him. The unfortunate man was taken home the same morning.

PATIENCE IS GOOD.—On Saturday last Chief Shields was informed that Mrs. Patience Harrison was suffering from the effects of delirium tremens, caused by continual drink. This is the woman Ald. Fiddis found lying on Church street the other night in a half-frozen condition. When the Chief came across the woman she was completely crazy and told him a pitiful story how a hundred men were trying to break into her house. Some, she said, were at the windows with spades, others were at the door with axes and others were placing dynamite around the house to blow it up. The poor creature told more such stories, and the chief suggested they go up to P. M. Pattullo to get warrants to arrest the supposed men. She agreed and they proceeded to the P. M.'s office. The latter wrote out a committal for two months, which Mrs. Harrison was to take up and give to Gov. Sutherland and remain there until the chief would bring her tormentors up. The scheme worked well. Patience unknowingly took her own committal and gave it to the jailer and now she is safely housed until the April showers fall.

GILLESPIE V. DOLAN.—A very interesting libel suit was tried at the Methodist Y. P. A. meeting on Tuesday night. Ald. Gillespie brought an action against Miss Dolan to recover $1,000 damages for publishing articles reflecting on his character in the society's paper, of which the defendant was editor and publisher. Each side had an array of witnesses, and such legal lights as Charles R McKeown, B.A., appeared for the defendant, and J. H. H. Huffman represented the greatly-wronged plaintiff. Miss Dolan, for the public benefit, of course, published or caused to be published that the plaintiff had a "second class clay pipe for sale at $4 per week; that his movements were erratic," etc. Dr. Fraser was judge, J. H Hughes, sheriff, and A. G. McKinney, court crier. A jury was chosen and the fun commenced. The plaintiff's counsel opened with a stirring address on his client's behalf. Mr. McKeown followed with an equally masterly speech. During the examination of the witnesses a great deal of amusement was created, and the crier was kept pretty busy keeping order. The jury returned at 11 o'clock with a verdict for Miss Dolan with costs, and that the plaintiff should marry the defendant.

THE PRIZE ESSAY.

That Won the Flag for the Orangeville Public School.

Below will be found Master John McK. Kearns' essay on "the patriotic influence of hoisting the flag." This essay won the large Union Jack offered by the Empire for Dufferin county.

THE ESSAY.

There is something in the idea of hoisting the flag on our schools that stirs up in our hearts a sensation undefinable, strangely thrilling, and exultant to a degree heretofore unknown.

We have been taught from our earliest infancy to love the "dear old flag" but, when we see it floating in all its majesty from some lofty pinnacle, our blood tingles to our finger tips, and we are filled with a desire to do and dare. The many friends of Mrs. R. Perkins, of the Perkins house, Springbrook, will regret to learn that she is dangerously ill.

TARBERT.

The persons who were sick with the measles are raddidly recovering.

We hear a great many rumors of parties now, but as it happens we do not see many of them. Hurry up, young folks.

Mr. Jacob Thompson is going to have a sale of his farm stock and implements some time during this month. Mr. Thompson has leased his farm.

On Thursday evening last a certain young man took a well known young lady out for a drive. They had only gone a little way when they got stuck in a snow bank and had to turn back. Better wait till the roads are broken before you try another drive.

CAMILLA.

E. J. Cobean, our energetic merchant, has fully recovered from an attack of la grippe.

Our hotelkeeper, Mr. Morrison, has been absent for a few days at the funeral of his sister, who lived in Vaughan township.

Last Sabbath was Sacrament Sunday in the Presbyterian church and Rev. G. Ballantyne gave a very eloquent and touching address.

Where has the Debating Society gone to? Has it outlived its usefulness? Perhaps it is best to let its early sleep be undisturbed. Peace to its ashes.

Mr. Bowen had a splendid mile here last Monday. It was well attended and bidding was brisk, especially on the cattle. Mr. Jos. Reid showed himself to be the coming auctioneer of this district.

A dance was held at W. H. Moffat's, near Glen Cross, a few evenings ago, and the boys and girls enjoyed themselves immensely.

A council of the Canadian Order of Chosen Friends was organized here on Saturday last, and we are pleased to say it starts off in a flourishing manner. With fifteen charter members, it seems there is no possibility of it breaking down, and our wish is that it may continue to flourish. The following officers were elected:—Dr. Island, past councillor; Samuel Fleming, councillor; John Hackett, treasurer; John Bower, recorder. Grand Organizer Hill instituted the council.

The Dominion elections are soon coming off and the great banner township is ready to do its duty once more, as it has done so many times in years gone by. Our own Jimmy Snell is going before the convention, is he? Well Jimmy stands a good chance of being the man; so does R. S. White, W. L. Walsh, and William Stubbs. If Mr. Reeve Allen wasn't warden the political situation would be greatly changed. Mono will not have anything to do with such squirts as Lennox of Barrie or Willoughby of Toronto.

THE CANADA PRESBYTERIAN.—The Canada Presbyterian, a large sixteen page family paper, published every Wednesday, has been before the public for nineteen years. During that time it has secured for itself the confidence and esteem of thousands of readers in every Province in the Dominion. It is now in its twentieth volume. All the departments that have made the paper valuable in the past will be continued; and a series of able articles on the stirring religious questions of the day, by prominent writers in Europe and America, will form a special feature the present year. Knoxonian, whose racy papers have been so attractive a feature in the past, continues to write regularly; and the list of Canadian contributors has been greatly increased. It will be the constant aim of the conductors of The Canada Presbyterian to make it a welcome visitor to the family circle; and its comprehensive pages old and young will ever find interesting, pure and profitable reading. The Canada Presbyterian, in its enlarged form, is the same size as Harper's Weekly, and one of the largest journals of the kind on the continent.

We direct attention to the advertisement of The Rural Canadian, an old established, first-class journal which should be in the hands of every farmer in the Dominion. The book premiums offered to subscribers are this year unusually valuable. Write for list.

Best and Appoint Delegates to Attend the Convention at Fergus.

A meeting of the Orangeville Liberal Conservative Association took place in the town hall on Monday evening and a large number were present. The meeting was called for the purpose of preparing for the approaching elections and to appoint delegates to attend the Centre Wellington Conservative convention which was called for yesterday. After the transaction of minor business the following delegates were appointed: Mayor Walsh, F. C. Stewart, ex M.P.P., J. C. Fox, Wm. Judge, John Crozier, Dr. Lewis, Jas. Foster and A. A. Hughson.

The Conservatives are determined to redeem the riding and every legitimate course will be pursued to reach that end.

POLITICAL POINTS.

Montreal Reformers are disinterested and the Conservative standard-bearer will have a walk-over.

Mr. W. A. McCallum has been again chosen as the Conservative candidate for Peel. He will be re-elected by an increased majority.

Mr. L. H. Clarke of Palmerston is the Conservative nominee for North Wellington. James McMillan, ex M.P., your politics is dough.

The statements of THE SUN will contain a full report of the Caledonia Conservative convention which is to be held at Mono Mills on Friday.

When Hunter's government gets into power Sir Richard Cartwright will be the first United States Senator for Ontario! But that time hasn't come yet.

The Grits held a meeting at Shelburne on Friday last. Dr. Macdonald, ex-member for Huron and James McMullen, ex-M.P. for Centre Wellington, harranged the crowd for three hours, and their arguments bordered on annexation. Not much enthusiasm was displayed by the crowd, who repeatedly cheered for Sir John.

It is reported that Mr. Algie of Alton manufacturer of woollens, for years an active Conservative and nominator of Mr. White at the last election in Cardwell, will work with the Liberals and vote for their candidate in this contest. —Globe. Such claptrap talk as the above deserves to go unnoticed; but everyone who knows Mr. Algie can correctly estimate it.

The Toronto Evening Telegram foolishly believes that R. S. White's vote on the Jesuit and dual language bills "will settle his chances for nomination in Cardwell." If that idea holds good Sample, McMullen and Innes, who voted the same way as White, will be knocked higher than a kite in Centre North and South Wellington. By that way of doing business the Conservatives would win three seats here.

Between two parties the issue is clear. Sir John says—Reciprocity is good. Canada has been fair to the United States. It wants to be a neighborly neighbor, and is anxious to trade freely with the great Republic. The Conservative policy is a demand for reciprocity, tempered by the declaration that Canada will not sell its own future for the boon of partial free trade. Unhappily, the Liberal leaders have Americanized their party. Their speeches make Canada a Lazarus begging for bread at the gates of Dives. Their policy jers upon the self respect of Canadians, while Sir John promises reciprocity with honor to Canada.—Toronto Telegram.

Mrs. George Brown, of Black's Corners, died on Thursday, Jan. 29th, at her son's residence in Duntroon, where she was visiting. The corpse was taken home on Sunday to the Orangeville cemetery. A large number of friends and acquaintances assembled at Mr. Brown's to pay the last tribute of respect to the deceased. She will be missed very much in her own home and in the immediate neighborhood.

Hunter. It was then thought that a ballot would have to be taken between Mr. Hunter and Dr. Groves, but the latter gentleman, in a brief but enthusiastic address, said that Mr. Hunter would make an ideal candidate, and he accordingly retired in his favor. Upon motion of Dr. Groves, seconded by Mr. MacGowan, the meeting then declared Mr. Hunter the unanimous choice of the convention.

The scene that followed was one of wildest enthusiasm. Cheer upon cheer rent the air, and lusty lungs gave vigorous expression to the universal satisfaction that prevailed.

—Mr. Hunter accepted the nomination in a vigorous speech, in which he announced his intention to use every legitimate effort within his power to inscribe the name of Centre Wellington upon the banner of victory for Conservative principles. Stirring addresses were delivered by Mr. MacGowan, Dr. Groves, Dr. Lewis, Mr. W. L. Walsh and Mr. Cross, of Peel, after which the organization of the party was put upon a satisfactory footing.

The Orangeville delegates present were: Mayor Walsh, F. C. Stewart, Dr. Lewis, J. C. Fox, A. A. Hughson, Joseph Foster, Wm. Judge and John Crozier.

The feeling of the meeting was such as to inspire confidence in the successful issue of the contest, and Mr. Hunter goes into the fight backed by a unanimous array of his friends that upon the 4th of March he will be M. P. for Centre Wellington.

CHARLESTON.

The directors of the Caledon Agricultural Society met here on Saturday, Jan. 31st, and it was decided to hold the fall fair here on the 1st and 2nd of Oct. next.

The spring fair will be held at Caledon East this year, that place having offered a bonus of $60. Accordingly the fair will be held there on Thursday, April 23rd.

A grand concert will be given at Charleston on Wednesday, the 18th inst., under the auspices of the Canadian Order of Chosen Friends. Messrs. J. H. Cameron and Jas. Fax have been engaged for the occasion and they should be greeted with a full house.

We hear that Mrs. Vogan and family of Toronto, formerly of this place will remove here and take possession of the hotel at the expiration of Mr. W. J. Dwyer's lease. Mr. Dwyer intends removing to his own hotel at Hillsburg.

The township of Caledon, and society at large lament the death of James E. Bacon Esq., long a prominent figure in the social and political arena of that prosperous community. For several years the electors of his township conferred on him the honor by year after year electing him to the position of councillor of the municipality, the duties of which office he performed with a zeal and fidelity which secured the approbation of the entire community. In politics Mr. Bacon was a staunch Reformer. Deceased was born in the township 59 years ago, being the son of one of the original settlers. Mrs. Bacon, three sons and five daughters survive him. We heartily sympathize with the bereaved family and mourning ones. The remains were interred in the Forest Lawn cemetery Orangeville the funeral being largely attended.

MONO MILLS.

Who did Tom take to Orangeville on Tuesday night?

The great Conservative convention to settle the question as to who will be member for Cardwell takes place in our midst to morrow (Friday). How it will end is a mystery, even to those old and far sighted politicians. The aspirants are almost as many as the sands on the seashore. But we hope there will be no underhand work or wire-pulling. Mr. White made a good member and if we were betting we would take him.

A couple of weeks ago Mr. John Wilson's team ran away on the 5th line, Mono, and threw the gentleman out of the sleigh onto the hard road, rendering him insensible from some time. The frightened horses ran only a short distance when they stumbled and fell. Both were injured, but one much more seriously than the other. A mare, worth about $90, broke two of her legs and had to be despatched. This will be a serious loss to Mr. Wilson and all regret the accident. He is about all right again.

There will also be heard the Charles Tupper's speech at Kingston, the first time he left England. Both Tory and Grit should give the deputment a careful perusal.

An Insane Man.—One of the passengers on the Friday morning train from Teeswater got off at the Orangeville station, and from his actions it was decided that he was an escaped lunatic. The station authorities telephoned for Chief Shields, who answered the message and interviewed the crazy man. The stranger had a bible with him and he would tear out the leaves, place some on the seat, stick them on his face, shoulders, etc. Some telegrams came from Teeswater inquiring about the man, and when it was known he was here the chief was instructed to bring him back, as his parents, who live near Kincardine, were extremely anxious about him. The unfortunate man was taken home the same morning.

Patience is Good.—On Saturday last Chief Shields was informed that Mrs. Patience Harrison was suffering from the effects of delirium tremens, caused by continual drink. This is the woman Ald. Fiddis found lying on Church street the other night in a half-frozen condition. When the Chief came across the woman she was completely crazy and told him a pitiful story how a hundred men were trying to break into her house. Some, she said, were at the windows with spades, others were at the door with axes and others were placing dynamite around the house to blow it up. The poor creature told more such stories, and the chief suggested they go up to P. M. Pattullo to get warrants to arrest the supposed men. She agreed and they proceeded to the P. M.'s office. The latter wrote out a committal for two months, which Mrs. Harrison was to take up and give to Gov. Sutherland and remain there until the chief would bring her tormenters up. The scheme worked well. Patience unknowingly took her own committal and gave it to the jailer and now she is safely housed until the April showers fall.

Gillespie v. Dolan.—A very interesting libel suit was tried at the Methodist Y. P. A. meeting on Tuesday night. Ald. Gillespie brought an action against Miss Dolan to recover $1,000 damages for publishing articles reflecting on his character in the society's paper, of which the defendant was editor and publisher. Each side had an array of witnesses, and such legal lights as Charles R. McKeown, B.A., appeared for the defendant, and J. H. H. Hoffman represented the greatly-wronged plaintiff. Miss Dolan, for the public benefit, of course, published or caused to be published that the plaintiff had a "second class clay pipe for sale at $4 per week; that his movements were erratic," etc. Dr. Fraser was judge, J. H. Hughes, sheriff, and A. G. McKinney, court crier. A jury was chosen and the fun commenced. The plaintiff's counsel opened with a stirring address on his client's behalf. Mr. McKeown followed with an equally masterly speech. During the examination of the witnesses a great deal of amusement was created, and the crier was kept pretty busy keeping order. The jury returned at 11 o'clock with a verdict for Miss Dolan with costs, and that the plaintiff should marry the defendant.

An effort was then made to have the next meeting of the council held at Shelburne, but it was fruitless, although the casting vote of the warden was necessary to strangle it. The vote stood:

SALEM.

One of the most enjoyable and most successful soirees of the season came off in No. 5 school house, Mono, on the 10th inst. Every item of the posters put out was rendered to the intense pleasure of a large and appreciative audience. Your townspeople lent their helping hands and voices with right good will, and met with an ovation of thanks and applause. Mrs. R. Endacott, Mrs. Leighton, and Miss Ford with their enthusiastic troupe of merry, active and pretty young ladies, carried the large assembly. The Henry family very kindly came to charm and were warmly received. Miss Conner was repeatedly encored. Misses Riley, Zimmerman, and Nellie Colling entertained with well rendered recitations; also Ida Leighton; to all these marks of appreciation were fully given. At intervals a trio of your town orchestra gave inspiring music delighting the listeners. More than once Mrs. Endacott and Miss Ford sang delightfully. Mr. M. Webb sandwiched the proceedings with readings Irish and ironical which affected as laughing gas. Mr. Mackenzie and friends were well received. Now and then throughout the entertainment the warden of the county and the township fathers were invited and gave words of cheer. Enthusiastic rendering of thanks to the numerous friends from far and near came last, and then the National Anthem was sung lustily and by all. The Orangeville club swingers entering into the Anthem, as if the FLAG hoisted upon their school grounds had already set an influence a going which shall yet be felt! The Rev. F. Burt was chairman and of course the wardens and ladies of St. George's church did their portion right famously.

A six-year-old lad named Rogers, whose father resides near here, amputated two of his fingers a few days ago while chopping turnips with an axe. The wounds were dressed by a physician, and the kid is recovering from the result of his carelessness—or something else lasiness. This should be taken as a warning.

The country is all agog with Dominion election talk. It is the feeling around here that Mr. W. H. Hunter should be the Conservative candidate for Centre Wellington, and if he is chosen he will pull a monster vote in East Garry. Sample isn't much use, anyway, and the sooner he is fired the better. W. H. is the man who can do it.

East Garafraxa can congratulate itself on having one of the best township councils in the province. Johnnie Preston jots down the minutes, Billy Marshall assesses your property and Jimmy Reid keeps his eagle eyes on the money.

Last Wednesday, the 21st ult., as Mr. and Mrs. Donald Gibson, of East Garafraxa, were returning from the Presbyterian induction services in Hillsburg they met with a very serious accident. As they were crossing the rail way on the 10th line the horses became frightened at the cars and ran away. The sutter struck a stone and upset, throwing them both out. Mr. Gibson had three ribs broken.

MONO CENTRE.

The council will meet here on Friday, March 13th.

Mr. Thos. Quigley will have a sale of his stock, implements, etc., shortly.

Last week Mrs. Robt. Skinner procured her legs and feet with an harness.

Hame Hunter has it that another party will shortly take place on the 3rd line.

Carpenter Gordon visited our public schools this week, and expressed everything in a favorable condition.

Mr. John Walker, of the 4th line, has purchased Mr. S. H. Simpson's farm and intends to move on it in spring.

A little stranger has arrived at Mr. Thos. Patterson's residence and health is flourishing but ma[illegible] to remain for some [illegible].

There was a cozy party at Mr. Robt. [illegible]'s, 3rd line, on Tuesday evening last week. A very enjoyable time was spent in parlor games, pleasant chat, etc.

The recent thaw has packed the snow considerably, and we may not fear another "blow up" unless we are favored with another snow storm; but the weather is so uncertain that we may be snowed in at any time.

Mr. Alfred Glover, who has been appointed assessor of the township, will commence his duties this week. We think the council made a very wise choice in selecting such a man as Mr. Glover, and we expect to see a model assessment roll this year.

Mr. John Sheera, of the 1st line, entertained a large party of young folks at his residence, on Wednesday evening last week. All heartily enjoyed themselves in a merry dance. Messrs. J. Turnbull, W. Magwood and J. Sheera, the well-known musicians, supplied the music.

Our village is a scene of great activity, our business men especially being unusually busy. Mr. Turnbull, our genial merchant, appears to be carrying on an extensive business, and we have no doubt but that in the near future he will be compelled to enlarge his already commodious store in order to meet the necessities which his rapidly increasing trade demands. The blacksmithing industry is well represented by Mr. Adam Noble and Mr. Robert Moore. Both these gentlemen are obliging citizens and we wish them every success. We notice Mr. Dickson, our boot and shoe man, is busily engaged, and though located but for a short time he appears to have proven himself a mechanic of no mean note. The private citizens are all enjoying a measure of health, and are collecting their thoughts and laying their plans for the future.

A Bag of Flour.

As a general renovating tonic and purifying family medicine useful at all times, it especially so in the spring, Burdock Blood Bitters is unequalled.

"It's like a bag of flour in a poor man's family," says Mr John Maunder, of Yorkville, Ont., the oftener you take B.B.B., the better you are."

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE—Common Pleas Division. Between Catharine Knox and Alfred Dredge, Plaintiffs, and David M Kinnon, by writ, W. D Matthews, now deceased, and Wilmot D Matthews, Edward Rogerson, Executors, and Faulkner C Stewart, made parties in the Master's Office, and Rachel McKinnon and Laura McKinnon by order of revivor, defendants.

Take notice of motion on behalf of the plaintiffs, before the presiding Judge in Chambers at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, for Tuesday the 24th day of February, 1891, at 10 A.M. or so soon thereafter as motion can be heard for an order for a new day and a new count, and directing a short foreclosure of the lands and premises in question herein, and dispensing with any further offer for sale of the said lands and for such further order as to the learned Judge may seem meet.

And upon and in support of such application will be read the proceedings in the action, the affidavits of Rachel McKinnon and James A. Mills filed and the exhibits therein referred to, the order for substitutional services of this notice and such further and other evidence as the plaintiffs may be advised to adduce.

Dated at Toronto this 5th day of February, 1891.

NEWS NOTES.

A young man named Ouseda tried a horse and rig from Smith Bros., Henry Brantford, on January 5th for marriage purposes, promising to return in four days. This he failed to do, and after some search the rig was found at Guelph, and Ouseda was arrested at Fergus.

It is doubtful whether countries which have a severe winter but once or twice in a quarter of a century do not suffer more during that exceptional season than those countries do which have mild winters only now and again, and are always prepared for the worst that General Winter can do. The suffering and deaths caused throughout Southern and Western Europe by the cold weather, which would seem anything but extreme to Canadians, appear appalling as described by the European papers. Doubtless there has been a good deal of exaggeration, but the truth is bad enough.

Sir John Macdonald's wife is a lady of whom perhaps our readers know but little. She was a Miss Bernard of Jamaica, but was educated in England. Sir John was made a baronet the same year in which he was married, and Lady Macdonald went from her quiet home to assume her difficult position in society, with great success. ### CANADA TO THE FRONT.

Not Behind the Rest of the World in the Importance of Discoveries for the Benefit of Mankind.

The civilized world has recently been deeply agitated over the announcement that Dr. Koch, an eminent German physician, had discovered a lymph for the cure of consumption. This discovery has been heralded throughout the world, and is looked upon as one of the greatest achievements of modern medical science. Of equal, if not greater importance, is a discovery made by a well-known Canadian druggist, which, while it does not pretend to cure consumption after the lungs have been affected, is offered with every confidence as a preventative of that disease. Medical testimony bears out the statement that more than two thirds of the cases of consumption occurring in this country annually, are of catarrhal origin. The trouble begins with a cold in the head, which the sufferer treats as a light matter, and too frequently neglects. This in time invariably develops into catarrh; the mucous membrane becomes thickened, inflamed and hardened, and there is a profuse discharge of watery and poisonous matter from the nostrils, or else the poisonous secretions become hardened. In either case the breath is inhaled over this poisonous matter, and produces baleful results. The inflammation gradually extends to the bronchial tubes, and thence to the lungs, which, already poisoned and weakened by the foul breath inhaled, are ripe for that dread disease—consumption, which ends in death. A remedy that will prevent these disastrous consequences must be regarded as a boon to mankind, and, as already stated, such a remedy has been discovered by a Canadian druggist. There is no case of cold in the head which it will not instantly relieve and permanently cure. Do not, for an instant, neglect a cold in the head, for, by its prompt treatment, you will prevent its developing into catarrh—the second stage on the road to the grave. If, however, catarrh has already developed, the use of this great remedy will prove equally beneficial, as it affords speedy relief, and will affect a certain cure, even in the most aggravated cases, if persistently used. It removes the secretions, frees the clogged nostrils, and sweetens the breath, stops the inflammation and thus saves the lungs and prevents the disease developing into consumption. This great discovery is known and sold throughout the country under the name of Nasal Balm. It is a positive and certain cure, and the thousands of testimonials in the hands of the proprietors prove that it is all they claim for it. It is sold by all dealers, and every sufferer from cold in the head or catarrh should use it.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Sudden transitions from heat to cold, or from raw inclement weather to oppressive climates, favor the development of manifold diseases, which may in most instances be checked and rendered abortive by an early resort to these purifying, regulating and strengthening Pills. This well-known and highly esteemed medicine affords a safe and easy remedy for almost every constitutional wrong which unhealthy climates, rapid changes, or dietetic errors, can engender, and effectually removes any weakness self-indulgent habits may have induced. In all conditions of the system bordering on disease such as are indicated by apathy, listlessness, and restlessness, Holloway's Pills will prove especially serviceable in begetting the vivacity of mind and body appreciated by both sound and sick.

Familiar Family Friends.

One of the best uses for fresh coal ashes is in the henhouse first, while fine and powdery, as a dust bath, and afterwards to go in with the fowl's droppings, removing offensive odor and absorbing ammonia when the mass begins to heat. Put the droppings into a barrel and sprinkle coal ashes on the surface. Towards spring mix several barrels together in a box, and with a sieve it can be made fine enough to drill readily, or be distributed in hills by old tablespoons good for nothing else.

NEWS NOTES.

A young man named Cornish, living a few miles east of the Soo, Ontario, disappeared, on January 6th, the morning after his marriage, expecting to return in a few days. This he failed to do, and after some search the ring was found at Gaylight, and Cornish was counted as forgon.

It is doubtful whether scientists which have a severe winter but once or twice in a generation of a century do not suffer more during that exceptional season than those countries do which have mild winters only now and again, and are always prepared for the worst that General Winter can do. The suffering and destitution caused throughout Southern and Western Europe by the cold weather, which would seem anything but extreme to Canadians, appear appalling as described by the European papers. Doubtless there has been a good deal of exaggeration, but the truth is bad enough.

Sir John Macdonald's wife is a lady of whom perhaps our readers know but little. The following brief sketch from last week's New York Ledger will, therefore, be read with interest no doubt by all:—"Lady Macdonald, wife of Sir Jno. is a brilliant woman, an experienced politician, and a fascinating hostess. She was a Miss Bernard of Jamaica, but was educated in England. Sir John was made a baronet the same year in which he was married, and Lady Macdonald went from her quiet home to assume her difficult position in society, with great success. She is tall and majestic in appearance, brilliant in conversation, and greatly admired in Canadian social circles."

A True Story.—The day before Christmas, the wife of a professor in a certain college in the suburbs of Boston going about that city in the worst of bad walking, saw directly before her, as she was walking the street, a blind man near the track of the electric cars, feeling his way carefully along by means of a stick. A car under full headway was rapidly approaching. Anxiously watching him, she perceived that the blind man was not conscious of his danger, and just at the last moment, making up her mind to a supreme effort, she dropped all her packages into the snow and slush, and, seizing him by the collar, pulled him back, just in time to see—the car, loaded with passengers, run off on the wrong switch, and to be confronted by an enraged switchman who had only been trying to move the switch so as to send the car to Cambridge instead of to some hundred other towns.

The Worst of all the Isms.

"Don't talk to me about your political 'isms,'" said a facetious old valetudinarian, "I tell you there's no ism on earth so bad as Rheumatism." The venerable sufferer was right. St Lawrence's gridiron or Quatimozin's pallet of fire was not more emphatically a bed of torment than the couch of the martyr to rheumatism. It is generally considered by the faculty one of the most obstinate as well as one of the most painful of maladies, and it certainly does resist all ordinary remedies with extraordinary pertinacity. Skill and science, however, in this age of progress, seem to master all opposition; and even this painful disease, entrenched among the muscles, and interknit, as it were, with the sinews and tendons of our frames, is compelled to yield to the curatives they have provided.

We have it on unquestionable authority—the testimony of patients themselves—that rheumatism, however deeply seated, may be cured by the regular and persistent application of Holloway's Ointment. This, we feel assured, will be welcome intelligence to thousands of sufferers, bed-ridden by the disease, or limping with stiffened joints along the pathway to the tomb. In a climate where the quicksilver sometimes makes a leap of thirty degrees up or down, the complaint is of course a prevalent one; and in our new settlements at the West, along the alluvial borders of our great rivers, in the beaslock swamps of the South, and in all low and damp locations, few persons reach the age of forty years without a rheumatic visitation. It is clear, therefore, that a preparation which will afford immediate relief, and effect eventually a thorough cure of the complaint, must be of especial value to the people of all countries. We cannot reasonably doubt, in view of the well-attested statements which have been laid before us, sustained as they are by circumstances within our own knowledge, that the Ointment referred to will affect that object; and among all the benefits which the discoveries of that celebrated physician ad philanthrophist have conferred upon mankind, this is certainly not the least important. Many an industrious tiller of the soil, whose services are needed in the field, is at this moment languishing on a bed of sickness; the hands that should guide the plough or grasp the space rendered powerless by Rheumatism. Many a toiler in every branch of productive labor is similarly situated; and we can imagine with what joy these sufferers would hail the means of immediate cure. To all such we feel justified in recommending this balsamic remedy, the application of which, with the aid of a few doses of Holloway's Pills to regulate the internal organs, would, we feel assured, restore them to health and usefulness.—Daily Argus.

PURE COD LIVER OIL

Among the merits which distinguish Slocum's Oxygenized Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil above all other preparations are:

1st. The excellence of its method of preparation.
2nd. Its freedom from disagreeable taste and odor!
3rd. Its fitness for immediate absorption!
4th. The thoroughness in which it retains permanently its good qualities.
5th. And the fact that Slocum's Oxygenized Emulsion is the only Cod Liver Oil amalgamation in the market in which the oil is not mixed with the Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda, or some other equally injurious foreign substance, and consequently rendered worse than worthless!

CANADA TO THE FRONT.

Not Behind the Rest of the World in the Importance of Discoveries for the Benefit of Mankind.

The civilized world has recently been deeply agitated over the announcement that Dr. Koch, an eminent German physician, had discovered a lymph for the cure of consumption. This discovery has been heralded throughout the world, and is looked upon as one of the greatest achievements of modern medical science. Of equal, if not greater importance, is a discovery made by a well-known Canadian druggist, which, while it does not pretend to cure consumption after the lungs have been affected, is offered with every confidence as a preventative of that disease. Medical testimony bears out the statement that more than two thirds of the cases of consumption occurring in this country annually, are of catarrhal origin. The trouble begins with a cold in the head, which the sufferer treats as a light matter, and too frequently neglects. This in time invariably develops into catarrh; the mucous membrane becomes thickened, inflamed and hardened, and there is a profuse discharge of watery and poisonous matter from the nostrils, or else the poisonous secretions become hardened. In either case the breath is inhaled over this poisonous matter, and produces baleful results. The inflammation gradually extends to the bronchial tubes, and thence to the lungs, which, already poisoned and weakened by the foul breath inhaled, are ripe for that dread disease—consumption, which ends in death. A remedy that will prevent these disastrous consequences must be regarded as a boon to mankind, and, as already stated, such a remedy has been discovered by a Canadian druggist. There is no case of cold in the head which it will not instantly relieve and permanently cure. Do not, for an instant, neglect a cold in the head, for, by its prompt treatment, you will prevent its developing into catarrh—the second stage on the road to the grave. If, however, catarrh has already developed, the use of this great remedy will prove equally beneficial, as it affords speedy relief, and will affect a certain cure, even in the most aggravated cases, if persistently used. It removes the secretions, frees the clogged nostrils, and sweetens the breath, stops the inflammation and thus saves the lungs and prevents the disease developing into consumption. This great discovery is known and sold throughout the country under the name of Nasal Balm. It is a positive and certain cure, and the thousands of testimonials in the hands of its proprietors prove that it is all they claim for it. It is sold by all dealers, and every sufferer from cold in the head or catarrh should use it.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Sudden transitions from heat to cold, or from raw inclement weather to oppressive climates, favor the development of manifold diseases, which may in most instances be checked and rendered abortive by an early resort to these purifying, regulating and strengthening Pills. This well-known and highly esteemed medicine affords a safe and easy remedy for almost every constitutional wrong which unhealthy climates, rapid changes, or dietetic errors, can engender, and effectually removes any weakness self-indulgent habits may have induced. In all conditions of the system bordering on disease such as are indicated by apathy, listlessness, and restlessness, Holloway's Pills will prove especially serviceable in begetting the vivacity of mind and body appreciated by both sound and sick.

CANADA TO THE FRONT.

Not Behind the Rest of the World in the Importance of Discoveries for the Benefit of Mankind.

The civilized world has recently been deeply agitated over the announcement that Dr. Koch, an eminent German physician, had discovered a lymph for the cure of consumption. This discovery has been heralded throughout the world, and is looked upon as one of the greatest achievements of modern medical science. Of equal, if not greater importance, is a discovery made by a well-known Canadian druggist, which, while it does not pretend to cure consumption after the lungs have been affected, is offered with every confidence as a preventative of that disease. Medical testimony bears out the statement that more than two thirds of the cases of consumption occurring in this country annually, are of catarrhal origin. The trouble begins with a cold in the head, which the sufferer treats as a light matter, and too frequently neglects. This in time inveriably develops into catarrh; the mucous membrane becomes thickened; inflamed and hardened, and there is a profuse discharge of watery and poisonous matter from the nostrils, or else the poisonous secretions become hardened. In either case the breath is inhaled over this poisonous matter, and produces baleful results. The inflammation gradually extends to the bronchial tubes, and thence to the lungs, which, already poisoned and weakened by the foul breath inhaled, are ripe for that dread disease—consumption, which ends in death. A remedy that will prevent these disastrous consequences must be regarded as a boon to mankind, and, as already stated, such a remedy has been discovered by a Canadian druggist. There is no case of cold in the head which it will not instantly relieve and permanently cure. Do not, for an instant, neglect a cold in the head, for, by its prompt treatment, you will prevent its developing into catarrh—the second stage on the road to the grave. If, however, catarrh has already developed, the use of this great remedy will prove equally beneficial, as it affords speedy relief, and will affect a certain cure, even in the most aggravated cases, if persistently used. It removes the secretions, frees the clogged nostrils, and sweetens the breath, stops the inflamation and thus saves the lungs and prevents the disease developing into consumption. This great discovery is known and sold throughout the country under the name of Nasal Balm. It is a positive and certain cure, and the thousands of testimonials in the hands of its proprietors prove that it is all they claim for it. It is sold by all dealers, and every sufferer from cold in the head or catarrh should use it.

The delay in beginning work on the World's Fair grounds and buildings is causing serious apprehension at Chicago, as the city is fairly overrun with men who have drifted there under the impression work would be plenty. ### No Shadow of Doubt [illegible] of B. B. B. is true. The evidence of its power and popularity is too overwhelming to confute, besides it is all home testimony, making it certain that B. B. B. will cure dyspepsia, biliousness, sick headache, scrofula and all blood diseases.

One of the best uses for fresh coal ashes is in the henhouse first, while fine and powdery, as a dust bath, and afterwards to go in with the fowl's droppings, removing offensive odor and absorbing ammonia when the mass begins to heat. Put the droppings into a barrel and sprinkle coal ashes on the surface. Towards spring mix several barrels together in a box, and with a sieve it can be made fine enough to drill readily, or be distributed in hills by old tablespoons good for nothing else.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Sudden transitions from heat to cold, or from raw inclement weather to oppressive climates, favor the development of manifold diseases, which may in most instances be checked and rendered abortive by an early resort to these purifying, regulating and strengthening Pills. This well known and highly esteemed medicine affords a safe and easy remedy for almost every constitutional wrong which unhealthy climates, rapid changes, or dietetic errors, can engender, and effectually removes any weakness self-indulgent habits may have induced. In all conditions of the system bordering on disease such as are indicated by apathy, listlessness, and restlessness, Holloway's Pills will prove especially serviceable in begetting the vivacity of mind and body appreciated by both sound and sick.

Familiar Family Friends.

THE family doctor's medicine should contain a bottle of Hagyard's Yellow Oil. Mrs. Hannah Hutchins, of Bronway, N. S., says: "We have used Hagyard's Yellow Oil in our family for six years, for coughs, colds, burns, sore throat, croup, etc., and find it so good we cannot do without it."

The first consideration for those who desire to pay more than a flying visit to a tropical country is climate, and in this matter there has been serious misconception heretofore. Jamaica, as a matter of fact, the climate of Jamaica is as healthy as that of any tropical country in the world, and more healthy than that of most. This is shown by the mean of the birth and death rate for the past five years. The mean birth rate has been 36.6 per thousand, the death rate, 22.22, of this latter, 1.75 died under one year of age. ### Newspaper Decisions.

1. Any person or persons who take a paper regularly from the post office, whether directed in his name or another's, or whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for payment.
2. If a person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and then collect the whole amount whether the paper is taken or not.
3. The courts have decided that refusing to take a newspaper or periodical from the post office or removing and leaving them uncalled for is prima facie evidence of intended fraud.

THE LITTLE RED SCHOOL-HOUSE.

Here gladly I am through thy walls ushered
Upon Memory's clear heights by the unpolluted,
Where the Blood of Childhood is channels distributed—
The little red schoolhouse that stands on the hill,

Within, the rude desks and the benches still There
The pictures on which shed the flames of our genius;
No view were complete that did not feel with him—
The genius of youth the world has n'er seen.

How she loved us, and how, when she pleased, she would scold us;
Without blunders and follies how patiently bore;
In our griefs to her heart how she'd fondly enfold us,
And, again, use the rod (if we yelledly) sore.

She taught us arithmetic, reading and writing,
And, instead of all, tried to teach us to spell;
Pronouncing and merits she made all inviting,
And spurred our ambition in deeds to excel.

But the little red schoolhouse we went to in childhood
Had sentiments surpassing all those the books gave;
We remember our playmates, the walks in the wildwood
With the girl that we loved, who made us her slave!

When "fun" we all had, on the cold winter mornings
When, booted and muffled, we started for school;
And hitched our small sleds, unmindful of warnings,
To the swift-gliding sleigh, disobeying the rule.

And how joyous we were when the spring-tide, returning,
Brought the songs of the birds with the Blossoms of May,
And the outdoor sports, which, all weariness spurning,
We played after school till the Night caught the Day!

O visions of joy unshadowed by sorrow—
Of Love, that new nothing save Love's fair young dream—
Of Hope, that saw only the gladsome to-morrow—
And Faith, that believed things are what they seem.

To gladden our hearts, the old trust renewing,
As again with the raptures of boyhood they thrill,
Even as when, in Life's morning, our tasks still pursuing,
We were happy and free, at the school on the hill!

A BAD COLD.

A man with a "bad cold" is an object of sympathy.

All right minded Christians will feel for him, no matter how ridiculous his swelled and shiny nose may look, and without regard to the fact that his voice is as inaudible and mandlin as that of a regular hued whiskey biber.

Nobody with the least portion of the milk of human kindness in his breast would laugh at his watery eyes or make unkind remarks when he blew his nose.

Everybody is liable to have a "bad cold."

The rich man as well as the poor man has to succumb to its baleful influence; and not all the money of the proudest millionaire in the land can purchase his exemption from it. And if it is any satisfaction to the laborer or rag picker to know that the Rothschilds, and the Vanderbilts, and Jay Gould, and Ward McAllister, and Queen Victoria have noses just as red and troublesome, when they have colds, as their brethren lower down in the scale of wealth and power, then they can have that satisfaction.

A cold in the head generally begins by sneezing.

You think if you could only sneeze, you should be relieved from that uneasy tickling in the nose and that heavy feeling in the head.

You go to the window, and you look at the sun, and you squint your eyes, and hold your breath, and then the covered sneeze comes—first one, then two, and then half a dozen in rapid succession.

Then your hankerchief comes into play, and for about five minutes you feel better. You retire to the fireside, and put on more wood, or coal, and wonder what does make it so cold this time of year.

By and by there is a "tight" feeling about your head and throat; every tooth in your jaw seems to have started out a little, and it appears to you that it would be a positive relief to take a mallet and drive them back into their places again.

There is a sensation down your back as if a mouse with very cold feet were chasing another mouse with still colder feet, just on the line of your spinal column, and a good fire is the only thing on earth you especially care for.

Food you do not want, and herb tea is already the vent thing to total despair and misery. Handkerchiefs are in demand, and a half dozen a day is a very moderate allowance. Blow, blow, is the order of the day, to say nothing of the order of the night.

You feel cross all over. You wish folks would look at you.

You are drowsy, and you want your feet on the fender, and a blanket over your your shoulders. Your teeth start out a little farther. You eyes are so weak you can hardly hold them open. Your head feels as if a ten horse power steam engine had been established there, and was in operation with all the steam on. Every hair on your cranium is sore—that is, if you do not wear a wig. Your limbs ache, and that old rheumatic twinge in your joints grows painfully troublesome.

You huddle up in your chair, and snuff hartshorn, and burn vinegar on a hot shovel, and bathe your sore throat in alcohol.

If you happen to be married, and have no regard for the feelings and the affections of those around you, you do stand to the degradation of eating onions stewed in sugar, or molasses, with peel from of the same aromatic vegetable on your wheat. All your friends laugh at you and your woeful air, and tell you not to make such a dreadful fuss about a little cold.

They tell you it's the fashion to have a cold; and then they quote that abominably trite saying, "then comes to work in an every occasion, "One might as well be out of the world as out of fashion," and then they hasten to tell you about their colds, and the colds of their children, and their neighbors—and so on—ah, you know just how it is. And before they get ready to stop, you feel as if you could strangle the whole lot of them without a throb of compunction.

That night you take a sweat, and wake up in the morning as limp and spiritless as a muslin dress in a thunder shower, and with a feeling of "Don't care whether school keeps or not," all over you.

GREAT MEN.

A senator from one of our new Western states, who had little experience in legislation, was asked by a brother senator, standing in a group of senators in the senate at Washington, "What were your impressions of the United States senate when you first came here?" He answered: "I wondered how I ever got here." "Well, continued the questioner, "what are your impressions now?" "I wonder how any of you ever got here."

George Francis Train says his good old grandmother used to tell him about the great men at Washington, but when he went down to Washington and saw the great men there, he concluded that his good old grandmother was humbugging him. With all due respect to our lawmakers, the thought sometimes comes up: Who are the really great men of our nation?

What place shall we give to the men who plan, build and direct our great great systems of transportation—to the men who keep the wheels of our great manufacturies moving—to the great merchants who gather from all parts of the earth the merchandise we use—to the men who direct those great monied institutions on which our prosperity so largely depends?

What place shall we give to the architects who plan and build these great American business palaces, twelve and fourteen stories high, now going up in Boston and other cities?

What place to the inventors of machinery that moves our railroad trains, our great ocean steamships, the wonderful looms of our factories, and prints, it may be, half a million copies of our newspaper in a single night?

What place to Ericsson, whose invention at a critical period of our war saved Norfolk Navy yard, Fortress Monroe, Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, and perhaps the unity of the nation? What place to the almost superhuman Edison? What place to the poets and writers who touch the hearts of millions? What place to the astronomers who measure the distances, size and orbits of the heavenly bodies?

Come to think of it, there are lots of great men outside the halls of legislation; and, while we would not detract from the fame of honest and wise statesmen, it may be quite well to instruct the youth in our public and private schools that they may become great men, and good men too, without going to Washington.

BELLS FOR THE SHEEP.

My experience for thirty years proves what I say. I have kept sheep all that time, a mile from home, beside a road continually travelled by dogs, and have never lost a sheep by them, while there is not another flock in this vicinity which has not been raided. When I hear of a case I have taken pains to ascertain if the sheep had bells on, which has not been the fact in a single instance. Fifty bells, costing not over $8 with straps and buckles complete, are enough for a hundred sheep, and about $2 a year will keep the bells good—in case you get the cow bell pattern, which are cast on a staple through which the strap passes, and not those cast with a shank, which passes through the strap, leaving a small part of the strap entire. The wear coming all the time in one place, the corners of the shank and the wire soon cut the strap off. This kind are hardly worth the trouble of putting on.

The plan of scattering poison broadcast to kill dogs which happen to be crossing the pasture, as well as birds, cats and other innocent animals, will not be done by humane men. Again, there is no barbed wire in the market that will stop my sheep; the wool protects the skin, and the wire springs enough to let the sheep through. The lower wire gives the most trouble, as it cannot be fastened down.

Stanley Books.

Stanley books are now as common as coughs and colds. To get rid of the latter use Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam, the best Canadian cough cure for children or adults. It cures by its soothing, healing and expectorant properties, every form of throat and lung trouble, pulmonary complaints, etc.

Neil McKinnon came very near losing his horses last night. As he, Will Watts and Harry Sullivan were driving to the station the cutter upset and threw them all out. The horses then started off down the track but missed his footing when crossing the railway bridge over the Credit and fell with his legs through the ties. After considerable trouble the horses was got out and drawn off and not much too soon as the train came along a few minutes afterwards. No great damage was done except to the cutter.—Hillsburg Sentor.

It is feared there will be much suffering and heavy losses of cattle in Nebraska and Dakota owing to Sunday's blizzard. Two persons were frozen to death near Rapid City, Dak.

R. E. Hamilton issues Marriage Licenses at Grand Valley.

WHY THEY DON'T MARRY.

There are three general means which bring marriage into disfavor (with women)—philanthropy, higher education and self analysis. The first has been a powerful factor in its subtle influence against marriage. The mental atmosphere is permeated with the idea of responsibility for another's happiness. Woman now feels herself accountable for the welfare of humanity, and through the exercise of that responsibility has found occupation for heart and mind; which has prevented absorption in her own affairs. Higher education has affected marriage, inasmuch as it has opened new avenues of employment for women, has fortified them for life as a whole, and has led them to regard marriage as an incident. It has given girls a communistic feeling which makes them prefer to teach where there are other teachers rather than to live on a hill-top and read aloud to their parents, or to retire to a farm or a tenement and bake and brew for their husbands. The higher education has separated marriage and motherhood. Almost all women love children, and would gladly use their knowledge for the delight and profit of a family, but they do not want the intervening marriage. Analysis has advanced from being a method in text-books to the study of one's self. The age is analytic. Once work was so constant that married women did not realize their loneliness or the want of appreciation which befel them. Now society and the middle class have leisure to examine their states of mental solititude, and to see just where husbands are wanting.

SWOLLEN LEGS IN HORSES.

Farm horses, at this season of the year particularly, are liable to what is generally termed stocked legs. It is not the season, however, that is directly accountable for this condition, but it is due to the fact that the horses are in sufficiently and irregularly exercised. By proper management, however, the legs can be kept as clean as at any other season of the year. Horses of a lymphatic temperament, with a coarse, beefy skin, are predisposed to this trouble, and, consequently, it is more difficult to keep them right than animals whose circulation is more active.

Apart from the unsightly appearance it gives rise to, certain ill results are likely to follow. If the legs remain swollen for some time, but the swelling eventually disappears, there is always a liklihood of the recurrence from trivial causes, each as a longer period of inactivity than usual, or a slight increase of food of a stimulating character. While the stocking is present, if the skin becomes inflamed, sores are apt to result that are difficult to heal, and from disorganizing the skin, give rise to permanent, and, more or less, unsightly blemishes. Permanent swelling occasionally remains in spite of every effort to remove it, which lessens a horse's value considerably in the market. Considering those unfavorable sequels, it is not to be wondered at that horse owners frequently become anxious to resort to measures to get their horse's legs into their natural condition. If a horse's vitality becomes a little lowered, and his circulation consequently sluggish, from over work, and it may be under feeding, and he is all at once thrown off work, considerable "stocking" is liable to occur where no exercise is given. In the treatment of this condition horse owners frequently pursue a wrong course in following the general practice of giving a purgative ball. During the winter season, physicking balls should be used with special caution, particularly in cases in which horses have sore throats or colds, or are in a debilitated condition from any cause. If it is really necessary to purge a horse in cold weather, great care should be exercised in keeping him thoroughly warm, other wise the irritation of the bowels that results from physic may become excessive, and either inflammation of those organs or excessive purging, is likely to result. Purging at any time is depleting, but it is particularly so in cold weather, especially if the discharge is profuse. It can not be repeated too often that the utmost care should be exercised in physicking in cold weather. When circumstances are such that horses have to be abruptly thrown off work, the diet should at once be modified. The most important change to make is the lessening of the amount of the grain ration, which should be at once cut down to one half the full working one, and if idleness is prolonged, even less will be sufficient. In horses that are partieularly predisposed to "stocking," if they have been hard worked a change of diet will not suffice to keep their legs clean. With them, if "stocking" is to be avoided, they must have some exercise, even if they have to be turned out in a yard to save trouble.—Canadian Live Stock and Farm Journal.

Levi Rogers has an old sow that can knock out Tanner every time. On Dec. 3, last while threshing, the sow by accident and unobserved, to any one was covered up between an old straw stack and a new one built that day. Search was made all over the farm for the missing animal but in vain, and nothing more was thought of her until Jan. 26, when Mr. Rogers thought he heard a grunt in the stack, and cutting into the middle the old lady walked out and commenced eating straw, not much the worse apparently after her 54 days fast.—Cardwell Sentinel.

THE CLIMATE OF JAMAICA.

The first consideration for those who desire to pay more than a flying visit to a tropical country is climate, and in this matter there has been much misconception concerning Jamaica. As a matter of fact, the climate of Jamaica is as healthy as that of any tropical country in the world, and more healthy than that of some. This is shown by the mean of the birth and death rate for the past five years. The mean birth rate has been 31.6 per thousand, the death rate, 22.38. Of this latter 4.75 died under the age of one year. Dismissed as to the curious of the island, from the high mountains of the interior to the rolling plains of the seaboard, the temperature is of course very varied. Near the summits of the hills it is a sub-tropical, temperate climate, ranging from 75° to 50°. At the sea level it ranges from 75° to 90°. Here there heat is tempered by a fresh sea breeze that blows all day and a cool land breeze that sweeps over the hot plains from the mountains all night. It is to the imprudent exposure to this cool breeze when heated by exercise that the danger of tropical fevers lies. It is so pleasant that new comers, who carefully avoid a draught at home, are tempted to enjoy a cause of refreshing coolness, forgetting the danger from the sudden check to the action of the pores. If the sun in the West Indies were as dangerous as it is supposed to be, the white male population must long ago have died out, for they walk and ride in the sun, play cricket all day and otherwise disport themselves after the manner of Englishmen, without any ill effects; but I do not think the example can prudently be followed by persons fresh from higher latitudes.

FACTS IN NATURAL HISTORY!

If you catch an animal in a steel trap every minute it stays there its meat is growing worse.

Although the virus from a wolf bite is not more virulent than that from the bite of a rabid dog, yet its action on the blood is much more rapid.

Some hunters will not eat the meat of a deer that has been run and worried by dogs, but only those which have been killed by what is called still hunting—that is, which are shot and killed, and so don't suffer much before they die.

It is believed that there is no reason why the African elephants should not be tamed and trained to the service of man. The Carthaginian army of Hannibal possessed some elephants, but they may have been imported by the Phœnicians from Ceylon. The natives of Africa nowhere care for capturing and domesticating wild animals.

It is a curious reflection on the intelligence of mankind that while animals easily learn our language we make no advance at all in learning theirs. One can not help hoping that some future generation of men may be sufficiently kind and patient to believe that what these dependent creatures have to say to us may sometimes be as important as what we have to say to them.

A Natural Filter.

The liver acts as a filter to remove impurities from the blood. To keep it in perfect working order use B. B. B., the great liver regulator.

I used two bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters for liver complaint, and can cheerfully say I am a well woman to-day.

MRS. C. P. WEARY, Upper Stanley, N.S.

ABUSES IN SHOEING.

Experiments have shown that if a hot shoe be pressed against the bottom of the foot it closes the ends of the tubes, and prevents the foot absorbing its natural fluids. Furthermore, by my experience I am qualified to state, and prove it, that corns, quarter-cracks, contracted feet, stumblers, interferers, knee hitting, over reaching, cutting quarters, bad breaking and loss of speed are caused by improper shoeing and bad fitting, which should be forbidden by all horse owners.

Other and common causes of poor feet are letting horses stand on plank floors, laid on an incline with spaces one inch apart. When a horse stands on such floor one side of the web of the shoe is liable to drop into the open space and cause the ankle to be twisted, which causes him to cut his ankle. Furthermore, letting the horse stand on a place that is not kept clean, the gases and acids produced by the decomposition of excrement cause injury. Any preparation that contains grease should not be used, as all common sense horsemen know that grease will fill the tubes of the foot and prevent it obtaining moisture as nature has designed for preserving the life of the foot. A horse's feet should be washed in warm water every time the animal comes in from a drive, and as soon as he reaches the stable. If this is not observed the foot is liable to become dry, hard, brittle and contracted; then the poor animal soon becomes lame.

THE GIRL WITHOUT A HEAD.

The time worn distinction between a man and an animal has always been that a man has a mind. The difference between a girl and an animal is that the girl has a head. What shall be said of the girl who has no head? Such a girl may be lamb like, or swan like, or fawn like (and these are lovely and gracious attributes), but she is simply a beautiful animal. She gets a little tiresome and commonplace as she grows older, and her physical perfections drop from her like leaves from a November tree. If it is wholly unavoidable for a girl to have no head, she should choose some other century than this to be born in. It is imperative that the Canadian girl of to-day should not only have a place in which to keep her brain, but this place should be large enough to permit its precious occupant abundance of room for exercise. I would rather be a Chinese woman and totter about on two pegs than be a so called civilized woman and suffer from so expansion at the upper and most important end.—Women and Daughters for February.

The convention convened by the Conservatives of Cardwell took place at Mono Mills on Friday, and never in the history of that once flourishing village was there so much enthusiasm displayed. Long before two o'clock—the hour for commencing proceedings—electors and delegates were busy discussing the merits of candidates likely to go before the convention. One hundred and twenty-five delegates were present from Mono, Caledon, Adjala and Bolton to choose their standard bearer for the good old constituency of Cardwell.

MECHANICS MASS MEETING.—The eighth annual ball of the mechanics of Orangeville took place in the town hall on Friday night, and was undoubtedly the most successful affair ever held under the auspices of that body. Dancing commenced about 9 o'clock, when over sixty couples "tripped the light fantastic toe." At 12 o'clock the gay dancers repaired to the old council chamber, where an excellent repast was awaiting them. Mr. J. Irving, of the Dufferin House, equalled all his previous efforts in the catering line. The interior of both halls presented a brilliant appearance, the decorations being most gorgeous. The happy party did not disperse until after 3 o'clock on Saturday morning. The gentlemen who so successfully conducted the affair are to be congratulated on the result of their efforts. The officers in charge were: Wm Laing, secretary; Jas. Riddell, treasurer; and Jones, Thos. Robinson and A. J. McLean, committee.

A BAD COLD.

A man with a "bad cold" is an object of sympathy.

All right minded Christians will feel for him, no matter how ridiculous he looks, and shiny-nose may look, and without regard to the fact that his voice is as bandidic and mandlin as that of a regular hard whiskey bibber.

Nobody with the least portion of the milk of human kindness in his breast would laugh at his watery eyes or make unkind remarks when he blew his nose.

Everybody is liable to have a "bad cold."

The rich man as well as the poor man has to succumb to its baleful influences and not all the money of the proudest millionaire in the land can purchase his exemption from it. And if it is any satisfaction to the laborer or rag picker to know that the Rothschilds, and the Vanderbilts, and Jay Gould, and Ward McAllister, and Queen Victoria have noses just as red and troublesome, when they have colds, as their brethren lower down in the scale of wealth and power, then they can have that satisfaction.

A cold in the head generally begins by sneezing.

You think if you could only sneeze, you should be relieved from that uneasy tickling in the nose and that heavy feeling in the head.

You go to the window, and you look at the sun, and you squint your eyes, and hold your breath, and then the covered sneeze comes—first one, then two, and then half a dozen in rapid succession.

Then your hankerchief comes into play, and for about five minutes you feel better. You retire to the fireside, and put on more wood, or coal, and wonder what does make it so cold this time of year.

By and by there is a "tight" feeling about your head and throat; every tooth in your jaw seems to have started out a little, and it appears to you that it would be a positive relief to take a mallet and drive them back into their places again.

There is a sensation down your back as if a mouse with very cold feet were chasing another mouse with still colder feet, just on the line of your spinal column, and a good fire is the only thing on earth you especially care for.

Food you do not want, and herb tea is already the most thing to total despair and misery. Hankerchiefs are in demand, and a half dozen a day is a very moderate allowance. Blow, blow, is the order of the day, to say nothing of the order of the night.

You feel cross all over. You wish folks would look at you.

You are drowsy, and you want your feet on the fender, and a blanket over your your shoulders. Your teeth start ot a little further. You eyes are so weak you can hardly hold them open. Your head feels as if a ten horse power steam engine had been established there in, and was in operation with all the steam on. Every hair on your cranium is sore—that is, if you do not wear a wig. Your limbs ache, and that old rheumatic twinge in your joints grows painfully troublesome.

You huddle up in your chair, and snuff horsehorn, and burn vinegar on a hot shovel, and bathe your sore throat in alcohol.

If you happen to be married, and have no regard for the feelings and the affections of those around you, you descend to the degradation of eating onions stewed in sugar, or molasses, with paid those of the same aromatic vegetable on your breath. All your friends laugh at you and your woeful air, and tell you not to make such a dreadful fuss about a little cold.

They tell you it's the fashion to have a cold; and then they quote that abominably trite saying that when comes to work

TO THE ELECTORS OF CARDWELL.

GENTLEMEN:—

Having been urged by a committee composed of the Liberals of this county, and also by a large number of individual Conservatives, who have determined in the present crisis to place their country before their party, to become the opponent of the policy of Unrestricted Reciprocity with the United States in the pending general elections of representatives to the House of Commons, I have, against my own personal interests, consented to concede to the request; feeling, as I do, that it is impossible to assume the responsibility of declining to take whatever part may be assigned me in a struggle on franchise with most or one to the country.

This contest will decide whether or not the farmers of this country will have thrown open to them a market at their doors, composed of sixty-three millions of people, who are among the continuous and greatest consumers of the world, or whether our national efforts will, in the future, as in the past, be confined to vain attempts to negotiate trade treaties with small and poor countries in the West Indies and in Asia.

Complete evidence of the overshadowing merits of Unrestricted Reciprocity is furnished by the attitude in 1879 of the men now in power. During the contest in that year, which resulted in the overthrow of the Liberal administration of the Honorable Alexander Mackenzie, no argument was so potent in accomplishing that downfall as the one then used by the present Ministry—that the cancelled "National Policy" would force free trade with the United States, in lieu of that which then prevailed, and which was by them termed the "log-headed policy of one sided trade."

Conscious will come, for the purpose means that if they have the benefit of the U. S. market by trapping it more, all inducements to direct their own flag will be removed.

Thus both site and country will be induced from every industry of our country, and an era of prosperity such as never has been witnessed before in our land, and such as never will be witnessed a second time, if Reciprocity, will dawn upon us, which will even cause our country to take that most secure place in the world, her natural, which so eminently fits her for.

Fearing that I could not, owing to the clamour of the time, successfully battle with my opponents, I also to present my views before every elector. I have taken this opportunity of explaining them at greater length than is customary in an address of this character.

Believing, therefore, that these views, if put to force, will advance the best interests of every individual in the country, I confidently ask for your support.

I am,
Yours most sincerely,

ELGIN MYERS.

CHARLESTON.

Rev. A. Wilson and Rev. H. Crozier, of Grand Valley, exchanged pulpits last Sunday.

Rev. A. Wilson preached the funeral sermon of the late Mrs. Bates in Knox church on Sunday the 8th.

Mrs. Wm. Bates, who has been ailing for many months back, died at her residence in this village, on Tuesday the 3rd instant. Her maiden name was Elizabeth Glassford. Deceased leaves a husband and four young children to mourn the loss of a devoted wife and affectionate mother. She had a kind Christian disposition, and was beloved by all her acquaintances. The remains were interred in the Charlestown cemetery on the following Saturday.

Some farmers will not let the meat of a deer that has been run and worried by dogs, but only those which have been killed by what is called still hunting—that is, which are shot and killed, and so don't suffer much before they die.

It is believed that there is no reason why the African elephants should not be tamed and trained to the service of man. The Carthaginian army of Hannibal possessed some elephants, but they may have been imported by the Phœnicians from Ceylon. The natives of Africa nowhere care for capturing and domesticating wild animals.

It is a curious reflection on the intelligence of mankind that while animals easily learn our language so make no advance at all in learning theirs. One can not help hoping that some future generation of men may be sufficiently kind and patient to believe that what these dependent creatures have to say to us may sometimes be as important as what we have to say to them.

ABUSES IN SHOEING.

Experiments have shown that if a hot shoe be pressed against the bottom of the foot it closes the ends of the tubes, and prevents the foot absorbing its natural fluids. Furthermore, by my experience I am qualified to state, and prove it, that corns, quarter-cracks, contracted feet, stumblers, interferers, knee hitting, over reaching, cutting quarters, bad breaking and loss of speed are caused by improper shoeing and bad fitting, which should be forbidden by all horse owners.

Other and common causes of poor feet are letting horses stand on plank floors, laid on an incline with space one inch apart. When a horse stands on such floor one side of the web of the shoe is liable to drop into the open space and cause the ankle to be twisted, which causes him to cut his ankle. Furthermore, letting the horse stand on a place that is not kept clean, the gases and acids produced by the decomposition of excrement cause injury. Any preparation that contains grease should not be used, as all common sense horsemen know that grease will fill the tubes of the foot and prevent it obtaining moisture as nature has designed for preserving the life of the foot. A horse's feet should be washed in warm water every time the animal comes in from a drive, and as soon as he reaches the stable. If this is not observed the foot is liable to become dry, hard, brittle and contracted; then the poor animal soon becomes lame.

THE GIRL WITHOUT A HEAD.

The time worn distinction between a man and an animal has always been that a man has a mind. The difference between a girl and an animal is that the girl has a head. What shall be said of the girl who has no head? Such a girl may be lamb like, or swan like, or fawn like (and these are lovely and gracious attributes), but she is simply a beautiful animal. She gets a little tiresome and commonplace as she grows older, and her physical perfections drop from her like leaves from a November tree. If it is wholly unavoidable for a girl to have no head, she should choose some other century than this to be born in. It is imperative that the Canadian girl of to-day should not only have a place in which to keep her brain, but this place should be large enough to permit its precious occupant abundance of room for exercise. I would rather be a Chinese woman and totter about on two pegs than be a so called civilized woman and suffer from compression at the upper and most important end.—Wives and Daughters for February.

REDEEM CENTRE WELLINGTON.

It is the duty of the farmers of Centre Wellington to vote for Mr. Hunter as their representative in the House of Commons. Mr. Hunter is a practical farmer himself, and would faithfully discharge his duties in the House. At the last general elections the riding was captured by the Grits, but now we are pleased to see the Conservatives are alive to the times and are determined to redeem the constituency. The Conservative standard-bearer is meeting with great success in his canvass, and his prospects of election are very bright indeed. Next week's SUN will have a portrait of Mr. Hunter, and we will have something further to say regarding his candidature.

CARDWELL, BE LOYAL!

On the 5th of next month the electors of Cardwell will be called upon to mark their ballots for R. S. White, the unanimous choice of the convention, a loyal supporter of Sir John Macdonald's Government, and a thorough Canadian, or Elgin Myers, the salaried official of the Mowat administration, and a follower of the Laurier-Cartwright-Wiman combination, whose trade policy, if carried out, would be the ruination of this country, and eventually lead to Canada being annexed to the United States. We have no fear of the result, as the electors of Cardwell are too intelligent to be caught by such claptrap talk as Sir Richard Cartwright's effusions are. Sir Richard Cartwright is the gallant knight who travels to Washington and tells the American congressmen how to coerce Canada into the Union; and when that time comes he is to be the first Senator from the State of Ontario. Will the electors of Cardwell strengthen this false statesman's position? No, we guess not. The yeomanry of that glorious old constituency are not made of that kind of stuff; they are loyal to the Conservative cause and will ever remain so as long as the great old leader, Sir John Macdonald, remains at the helm.

POLITICAL POINTS.

The Old Flag; the Old Leader; the Old Policy!

The Orangeville Liberal Conservative Association rooms are on the second flat of the McKim block.

McCallis for Peel, White for Cardwell, Hunter for Centre Wellington and Clark for North Wellington are candidates who should win.

The Brampton Banner was away off in its remarks on Cardwell last week. No hub bub, hornets' nests nor anything of the kind, Bro. Dick.

Sheriff Brodde is returning officer for Peel, Richard Allen for Cardwell, Thos. McManus for Centre Wellington and W. W. White for North Wellington.

Our esteemed friend, Fisher Monro, of the Cannington Independent, laid out the Conservatives of that town in the last issue of his paper for asking him to step outside of their meeting-place.

A week ago yesterday a number of Toronto bums paraded the streets flying the black flag, on which was written "bread or work." The paraders were smoking pipes and cigars, were well-dressed and looked far from being in a starving state.

The letter read at the West Durham convention the other day from Hon. Edward Blake, expressly stated that he was retiring from public life because he could not support the present policy and follow the present leader of the Reform party.

We hardly think Mr. Hunter can seriously entertain any very sanguine hope of success.—Fergus News-Record. Now, Messrs. Craig Bros. think again, but not so rashly. Mr. Hunter is sanguine of success, and, what's better, the electors back him.

The Centre Wellington Reform convention took place at Fergus on Friday, and, as everybody expected, A. Semple, ex M.P., was chosen as their candidate. Mr. Semple, the electors have arrived at the conclusion that you should drop M[illegible] after your name as Mr. W. R. Hunter intends to take your [illegible]

When we first heard that [illegible] had deserted the Conservative camp and took refuge under the Sou[illegible] Strip we would hardly believe it. If Bi[illegible] does as good work for Mr. Myers as he did for ex-Reeve Atkinson in the last Caledon elections he should be awarded a medal—for turning voters against the party for which he works.

Mr. R. S. White, the Conservative standard bearer for Cardwell, held a rousing meeting at Camilla on Tuesday night. For the Reform candidate, Mr. Myers, Wm. Algie, a Conservative deserter, was present, and, of course, "blew off" at a terrific rate. "Bill Bom bast's" presence at the meeting probably gained Mr. White more votes than a dozen campaign meetings would have.

Mr. Clarke, says the Mt. Forest Representative, the nominee of the convention, was being married in Guelph on the same day he was selected to defeat Mr. McMullen. His bride is a Guelph lady named Miss Small, and instead of a proposed honeymoon trip of three weeks to Florida, the bridegroom will come into the riding on Monday and court the electors, while the bride will, no doubt, remain at home and pretend to be jealous that even a seat in parliament has sufficient fascination for her young husband to attract him away from her side.

CARDWELL LOYAL!

R. S. WHITE THE UNANIMOUS CHOICE OF THE CONVENTION.

Willoughby Makes a Poor Showing—R. S. Wallace and Others Deliver Speeches—Complete Harmony Prevails.

The convention convened by the Conservatives of Cardwell took place at Mono Mills on Friday, and never in the history of that once flourishing village was there so much enthusiasm displayed. Long before two o'clock—the hour for commencing proceedings—electors and delegates were busy discussing the merits of candidates likely to go before the convention. One hundred and twenty-five delegates were present from Mono, Caledon, Adjala and Bolton to choose their standard bearer for the good old constituency of Cardwell.

Shortly after three o'clock President James Snell called for nominations, and the following persons were proposed: R. S. White, ex member; W. S. Willoughby, J. A. Ferguson, John Kelly, N. Clark Wallace, Dr. Lewis, J. S. Leighton, James Snell, Wm. Armstrong and James Duff.

After the nominations the candidates delivered speeches from the balcony of the hotel, the hall not being quarter large enough to hold the crowd. Messrs. White, Wallace, Armstrong, Duff, Dr Lewis and others made rattling speeches and all retired except Messrs. White, Willoughby and Snell. J. S. Leighton retired in favor of Mr. White.

The delegates adjourned to the hall for the purpose of selecting a candidate. The first ballot stood:

|---|---|
| White | 79 |
| Snell | 20 |
| Willoughby | 26 |

Mr. Snell retired and Messrs. White and Willoughby were matched. The second ballot was:

|---|---|
| White | 88 |
| Willoughby | 37 |

Mr. Willoughby dropped out, and Messrs. Snell and White were voted for. Two ballots were spoiled in this vote, which was:

|---|---|
| Snell | 29 |

From the above figures it will be seen that Mr. White was almost the unanimous choice of the convention.

Immediately after the result was announced Mr. Wm. Stubbs delivered dodgers informing the public that he would be an independent candidate for Cardwell in the coming elections. Whether Mr. Stubbs will commit political suicide remains to be seen.

CARDWELL.

Miss Nellie Burt is studying medicine in Kingston medical college.

Mr. H. Bracken, on Friday evening last, gave a charmingly arranged dance at his residence.

On the evening of the 11th inst. a large number of young people assembled at the residence of Robert Jackson, Esq. and presented his daughter, Miss Mary K. Jackson, with a beautiful album and toilet case. Miss J. is organist of Herald Angel church and her friends made the presentation. The address, which was read by Mr. W. E. Hall, ran as follows:

DEAR MISS JACKSON,—The members of Herald Angel church, to which we all belong, knowing that praise is one of the most valuable features of Divine worship, and that to praise God in comfort the organ formed a great and invaluable help, look back with pleasure upon the fact that you as organist have placed that help and comfort within their enjoyment for four years past. To show their appreciation, the congregation, with a few of their friends, wish to make you as their organist the present, now offered for your acceptance. Feel sure of our esteem for yourself and your office. Hoping to enjoy a continuance of work, and [illegible] our united praises may be acceptable to the Majesty of Heaven. For the congregation, we are, your fellow-Christians.

MAGGIE R. LEIGHTON,
EMMA M. BURT.
FREDERICK BURT, Clergyman.

Rev. Mr. F. Burt made a suitable reply on behalf of Miss Jackson, Miss E. M. Burt, Miss M. R. Leighton, Miss Sarah M. Hall, Miss Minnie Lynch, of Orangeville, Misses Leighton, Miss Duke, Miss E. Jenkins, Miss Mary A. Leighton, Mr. Hugh Bracken, Mr. James Jackson, P. M., Mr. Edward Jenkins, Messrs Dean and H. Craig of Sandhill, Mr. F. Hewson, Mr. J. Duke, Mr. James Leighton, Mr. M. J. Leighton, Mr. R. Jenkins, Mr. Wm Jackson, Mr. Mauson Hall, and others. After refreshments were served the many friends entered with joyous enthusiasm into the games and other amusement provided. Miss Sarah M. Hall, of Orangeville, sang during the evening. She has a rich voice of unusual sweetness, noble in quality and of high power throughout. Miss Mary Jackson sang with much purity and finish. Miss E. A. Leighton sang exquisitely; the instrumental solos on the organ by Cardwellites were splendid representations of musicians taste and refinement. Mr. Laidlaw of Streetsville, gave a recitation. Messrs. Joseph H. Jackson, J. Nicholson and others rendered funny songs to the immense delight of the audience, after which the company dispersed.

Local Intelligence.

Elections two weeks from to-day.

A pudding will take place in town on the 2nd of next month.

Remember the carnival at the Belmoral rink next Monday evening.

Mr. W. J. Price, boot and shoe maker, intends to remove to Manitoba shortly.

Ammon Hepburn and Lamont are on the war path, and we hope they will bring to a model roll.

It is said a new hardware store will open out in the building occupied by T. T. King, two doors east of the Garden house.

Last Thursday's cattle fair was very largely attended. Several drunken brawls took place in the afternoon and evening.

Dufferin spring assizes will be held in the court house here on Monday, 11th May. His Lordship Mr. Justice Street will preside.

Our thanks are due to Messrs. I. Suckling & Sons, the well-known music dealers of Toronto, for a handsome volume of national and patriotic Canadian songs; also a copy of the sacred song, "Abide With Me."

DANCERS TAKE NOTICE.—On Sunday last Rev. Father McPhillips, pastor of St. Peter's church, cautioned his flock against dancing during the season of lent. The rev. gentleman intimated he would make it his business to find out if any of his parishioners broke the rules of the church in this respect.

O. H. S. FOOTBALL.—The Orangeville high school football club has been reorganized for the season, with the following officers in charge: Mayor Walsh, hon pres.; A. Steele, B.A., pres.; Mr. Closs, vice-pres.; T. R. Parker, B.A., captain; S. M Brown, secretary; H. MacAdam, treasurer; T. Johnston, H. Cotton, J. Ewing, committee.

CARNIVAL.—Manager J. T. Smyth of the Belmoral skating-rink announces another gigantic masquerade carnival for Monday night, the 23rd inst. A large number of prizes will be competed for, and the event of the evening will be a three-mile race for a valuable tourney. Masquers will be admitted free, and a large attendance should be present.

HADDOCK GOT THERE.—Some time ago P. O. Inspector Hopkirk of Stratford asked for tenders for the transportation of her maj sty's mails between Orangeville postoffice and the G.T.R. station. A few days ago Mr. Joseph Haddock was informed that his tender was accepted. Mr. Haddock will undoubtedly give excellent satisfaction in his new field.

NEW P. O. RULES.—A desirable change in the regulations of the postoffice went into force on Monday. In the future the office will open at 8 o'clock a. m. and remain open until 6:15 p. m, when it will close until seven; the lobby will then reopen and remain open until 8.30. The wicket will be open immediately after the distribution of the Toronto mail.

DR. BUCKHAM DEAD.—Many old residents of Orangeville will regret to learn of the death of Dr. T. R. Buckham, which occurred at Denver, Col., on Saturday last. About a quarter of a century ago Dr. Buckham was in business in Orangeville, when he left for the United States to pursue the study of medicine. Deceased had been residing at Flint, Mich., for some time and was recognized as one of the leading doctors of that state. He is the author of many valuable works principally relating to medicine, and his book on "Insanity" is considered by leading doctors the best ever written.

C. O. F. CONCERT.—The concert given in the town hall on Thursday night last in aid of Court Gardiner, Canadian Order of Foresters, was very largely attended. His Worship Mayor Walsh discharged the duties of chairman in his usual good style. Solos by Misses Haun, Stewart, Pearson, Turnbull, Simpson and Mrs. Chapman and Messrs. Fax and Irvine were well rendered, as was a duett by Messrs. Donner and Irvine. Mrs. R. T. Haun gave a pleasing reading from Shakspeare. The Wright family brought down the house by their rendition of Mother England's Sons. H. C. K Bro. Ed. Towe was unable to be present.

U. C. B. S.—At the annual meeting of the Orangeville branch of the Upper Canada Bible Society held in the Methodist church on Dec. 4th it was decided to collect the subscription for the work during February, and in accordance therewith the collectors will set about their work at once. Those appointed for the West ward are Miss Bowles and Mrs. Dr. Smith; for the East, Mrs. Mercer and Mrs. Davidson; South, Mrs. Beswick and Mrs. Scott; North, Misses Kearns and Robb. Last year the total contributions amounted to [illegible]

Dancing commenced about 9 o'clock, when over sixty couples trripped the light fantastic toe." At 12 o'clock the gay dancers repaired to the old council chamber, where an excellent supper awaited them. Mr. J. Irving, of the Dominion House, equalled all his previous efforts to the catering line. The interiors of both halls presented a brilliant appearance, the decorations being most gorgeous. The happy party did not disperse until after 5 o'clock on Saturday morning. The gentlemen who so successfully conducted the affair are to be congratulated on the result of their efforts. The officers in charge were: Wm Laing, secretary; Jas. Riddell, treasurer; And. Jones, Thos. Robinson and A. J. McLean, committee.

KILLED WHILE COASTING!

Eight-year-old Noble Smith Killed by a Horse while Sleighriding!!

One of the most sad and shocking accidents that has occurred in Orangeville for some years took place on the hill on east Broadway last Saturday morning. At about 11:15 o'clock a young lad named Noble Edgar Smith, aged years and ten months old, oldest son of Mr. John Smith, employed in McMaster's foundry, and several other boys were sleigh riding on the hill. Young Smith and another boy started down the hill on two sleighs after a team driven by John Shelton, a Mono farmer, had passed. The boys' sleighs travelled at a much more rapid rate of speed than the farmer's, and they accordingly turned to different sides of the road to pass. Just when the boys were passing Mr. Shelton's rig his team, which were young colts, jumped to the side of the road and young Smith's sleigh ran into them. One of the colts kicked, and before the unfortunate boy could be rescued his in several places. He was at once taken to his home near by, and Dr. Stewart was on hand in a few minutes; but one saw at a glance that the little sufferer was beyond human help. The unfortunate boy remained in an unconscious condition until seven o'clock in the evening, when death claimed him.

No blame can be attached to Mr. Shelton, who did not see the boy coming until the accident occurred.

The remains were interred in the Forest Lawn cemetery on Monday afternoon, the funeral being very largely attended.

As a result of the accident the town council will pass a bylaw at its next meeting prohibiting sleigh riding, snowballing and skating on the streets. The need of such a bylaw is admitted by all.

CAMILLA.

Blacksmith Doney is doing a rushing trade.

Mr. Aaron Patterson, who resided near here, died at 2 o'clock on Tuesday. He suffered great pain from a cancer in his face, but when the pain was at its height deceased never complained and quietly awaited his end. Deceased was in his 85th year. By his death the Conservative party has lost an untiring worker and staunch friend. His sorrowing family have the sympathy of the entire community.

Mr. White's meeting was held here on Tuesday night. The electors turned out in large numbers and were repaid for their trouble by hearing some great speeches. Mr. White who spoke at some length and Wm. Algie of Alton spoke for Mr. Myers. Mr. White had a few enemies in this vicinity, but when a renegade like Algie tried to induce them to vote the Reform ticket it turned them in favor of Mr. White. The Alton blow is making an ass of himself and is doing Mr. Myers a great deal of harm.

An instance of friendly feeling was exhibited at Camilla on Friday evening, when a delegation of the members and adherents of Burns' church, Mono Centre, waited upon Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Anderson to express regret at the loss of Mrs. Anderson's services as organist, she having removed to her new home. A very pleasant evening was spent, in the course of which a presentation of a Bible, Good Words, edited by Donald MacLeod, D.D., a hymnal, Burns' Poetical Works and the Pilgrim's Progress, accompanied by the following address, took place. The address was read by Rev. G. Ballantyne:

THE ADDRESS.

Mrs. Anderson.

DEAR FRIEND,—It is with no small degree of pleasure that we, as members and adherents of Burns' church, Mono Centre, have noticed your faithfulness and success as organist, in connection with our church, ever since the instrument was introduced. Not only have you been regularly in your place from Sabbath to Sabbath and at most, if not all, other meetings in the house of God, but you have also shown your willingness in the part you have taken to advance the interests of the congregation in various other ways as well. And since your efforts and diligence have been altogether voluntary and without remuneration, we cannot help feeling indebted to you, for we are all aware that the duties and responsibilities that rest upon those that fill such an important position are neither light nor free from anxiety. Realizing all this we cannot allow this opportunity to pass without manifesting in some tangible way our appreciation of what you have done. We have, therefore, decided to present you with this Bible and hymnal and these other volumes which accompany them. Wishing you and your husband much peace and happiness in your new home, and that success in this life which God in his wisdom may see best for you.

Signed in behalf of the congregation,
REV. G. BALLANTYNE, Pastor.

In reply Mr. and Mrs. Anderson expressed thanks in few but suitable words.

If you want money at the lowest rate of interest call on F. Irwin, over Endecott Bro's store, Orangeville.

TO THE ELECTORS OF CARDWELL.

GENTLEMEN,—

Having been tendered with the nomination of the Conservative party for the representation of Cardwell in the House of Commons, I beg respectfully to solicit your support at the polls on March 5th.

The issues of the contest are, in my judgment, the most momentous the people have been called to pronounce upon since 1867, involving, as they do, the very existence of the Confederation thus happily formed. Of these issues the trade question is by far the most important. On the one side you have the Liberal party advocating Unrestricted Reciprocity or Commercial Union with the United States, and proposed to accept the consequences such a policy inevitably involves, namely, direct taxation, discrimination against Great Britain, the adoption by Canada of the McKinley tariff, and the ultimate absorption of Canada by the United States. On the other side you have the Government ready to accept the widest measure of free trade with the United States compatible with the maintenance of British connection, with the retention by Canada of control of the tariff, and with the promotion of the material interests of our people. If honored with your confidence at the polls I purpose to support the latter policy. I will not consent to any scheme of reciprocity which involves direct taxation upon the people of Canada, because universal experience has proved that such a system always bears more heavily upon the poorer classes; nor will I consider by votes or vote any arrangement with the United States which discriminates against our Mother Land and hands over to Washington the regulation of our tariff. Subject to these limitations I am prepared to press for such a trade treaty with the United States as will give us a free market in that country for our barley and horses, our hay and eggs, and other products of the farm.

Another subject, more local in its application, I desire to commend to the attention of the electors. You will remember that three of the four townships comprising the riding of Cardwell liberally aided in the construction of the Toronto, Grey & Bruce Railway, Albion contributing $40,000, Caledon $45,000, and Mono $45,000. Towards the Hamilton & Northwestern Railway the township of Adjala gave $2,500. Since these railways were built the Dominion Government has adopted as a settled rule of conduct the policy of aiding the construction of local railways to the extent of $3,200 per mile, and as the people of Cardwell have to pay their share of the revenue thus employed, I think it but just and right that the municipalities which contributed so generously towards the Toronto, Grey & Bruce and other roads, and who received no Federal aid therefor, should now be granted a rebate or repayment on account of those subsidies. It was my privilege to attend a meeting on this subject in the town of Orangeville last December, when I pledged myself to use every effort to induce the Government and Parliament to recognize the claims of the municipalities. If elected on March 5th I will redeem that pledge.

There are other questions of interest and importance before the electors to which I will have occasion to refer in the meetings I am about to hold in the riding. Meanwhile, gentlemen, I beg respectfully to solicit your votes and influence as a supporter of the Government of that grand patriot, Sir John Macdonald, whose wisdom, foresight, capacity and courage have made Canada a prosperous and progressive people, and our country the brightest jewel in the British crown.

Your obedient servant,
ROBT. S. WHITE.
Cardwell, Feb. 17, 1891.

GOOSEVILLE.

Mr. John Hagans is suffering from the effects of a bad cold.

Mr. Wm. South, formerly of this place, who has been in Chicago for the past four years, is visiting his parents near here.

Mrs. Sinclair Terry sold her residence here on Monday to Mr Richard Longford for $102. Dick surely will not live alone, and the best thing he can do is keep a Terry here. Mrs. Terry and family leave this week for Brandon, Manitoba, where they join Mr. Terry. It is their intention to permanently locate near that place.

LAUREL.

The council of Amaranth met here on Saturday.

Mr. J. J. White, the champion implement agent of Orangeville, was here on Saturday.

The school-house of S. S. No. 10, 5th side-line, Amaranth, was burned to the ground at 3 o'clock on Thursday morning last. It was just a year ago that the trustees put in new seats and desks to the value of $68. The building was insured for $300. The origin of the fire is unknown. A temporary school-house is being rigged up near by, and until then the children have holidays.

On Friday Mr. James Johnston, father of our esteemed deputy-reeve, Mr. Wm. Johnston, and a boy went to put a halter on a colt. The animal reared up and came down on Mr. Johnston, knocking off the cap of his left knee and breaking the cords of his leg. Dr. Fraser of Orangeville attended the sufferer and we are pleased to say he is getting along as well as can be expected.

Mr. Jas. McMullen, ex M.P., for North Wellington, held a campaign meeting in the council hall on Friday night. The hall was crowded and Jim spouted off in great style. Of course the government of Sir John Macdonald was worse than useless (according to Jim's peculiar views) and should be turned out of power to make room for Cartwright, Laurier & Co. The Conservatives feel confident of redeeming North Wellington, and we hope they will not be disappointed.

Cash in the bend is shockingly prevalent at this season, and if permitted to run unchecked to obtain a result in earnest. Nerve Bean will instantly relieve the worst case. Try it.

CARDWELL.

Having been urged by a numerous element of the Liberals of this constituency, and also by a large number of individual Conservatives, who have determined in the present crisis to place their country before their party, to be free from the exigencies of the policy of Unrestricted Reciprocity with the United States in the pending general elections of representatives to the House of Commons, I have, against my own personal interests, consented to consider the request; feeling, as I do, that it is incumbent to assume the responsibility of endeavoring to take whatever part may be assigned me in a struggle so fraught with weal or woe to the country.

This contest will decide whether or not the farmers of this country will have thrown open to them a market at their doors, comprised of sixty-three millions of people, who are among the wealthiest and greatest consumers of the world, or whether our national affairs will, in the future, as in the past, be confined to vain attempts to negotiate trade treaties with small and poor countries in the West Indies and in Asia.

Complete evidence of the overwhelming merits of Unrestricted Reciprocity is furnished by the attitude in 1872 of the men now in power. During the contest in that year, which resulted in the overthrow of the Liberal administration of the Honorable Alexander Mackenzie, no argument was so potent in accomplishing that downfall as the one then used by the present Ministry—that the so-called "National Policy" would force free trade with the United States, in lieu of that which then prevailed, and which was, by them termed the "Jag-handled policy of one-sided trade."

Having secured power by this means, they now find themselves so bound hand and foot to the manufacturers, upon whom they levy their heaviest contributions for election expenses, that they are not at liberty to grant what they themselves, in 1878, admitted would prove to be so great a boon to the country.

It is true that, in order to avoid defeat at the hands of the electorate, who are determined to secure this benefit, that they affect to be making preparations to negotiate a treaty of free trade with the United States in "natural products alone, a pretense which is most effectually exposed by the first Minister of the United States, the Honorable James G. Blaine, who most emphatically states that no negotiations are on foot, nor would they for one moment be entertained; which latter declaration is unanimously concurred in by all the public men of the United States who have authority to speak on the subject.

To prove more conclusively, if possible, the hollowness of this pretence, Sir John Macdonald, in his address to the people of Canada, makes no reference whatever in favor of his supposed policy, nor have any of his Ministers up to the present date, so far as I have been able to discover, but their efforts have been solely confined to extolling the disorganized N. P.

In addition to this, during three successive sessions of Parliament, viz.: those of 1888-89 and '90, the present Ministers and their supporters have unanimously voted down resolutions of Sir Richard Cartwright's, favoring the opening up of negotiations for Unrestricted Reciprocity with the United States.

It becomes important, however, to point out the grossest betrayal of the farmers that has ever shaken crissed a political party, that is contained in this supposed proposition of the Government.

By their pretence of being favorable to free trade with that country in natural products alone, the Government indicate their willingness to hand over the farmers, bound and foot, to the manufacturing interests.

Most loyally, in 1876, and since, have the farmers supported the present Government, on the promise of protection to their products against foreign competition.

Now, in order to save offices, they boldly proclaim their willingness to expose the farmers to competition in every thing he produces, at the same time protecting the manufacturer to the extreme limit.

In other words, the farmer would, under their system, be bound to sell to the manufacturer, and other purchasers, for the lowest price that could be produced by competition, whilst compelled to give protection prices for everything he purchases from the manufacturer.

For the purpose of arousing their prejudice, and thus divert discussion from their true interests, the farmers are told that there are two insuperable objections to the adoption of U. R.

Firstly, that the revenue under that system would be insufficient to cover the annual expenditure, and, secondly, that the proposition is veiled treason. The absurdity of the latter cry is so manifest that it is only necessary to point out what the definition is, furnished by these gentlemen themselves, respectively, of loyalty and disloyalty. According to their own doctrine, exposing the farmer to competition in everything he has to sell, and protecting their own favorites, the manufacturers, to the highest limit, is loyalty; whilst the Liberal policy of placing both on equal footing is treason.

In urging this cry, the Ministerialists are unconsciously paying the highest possible tribute to the Liberal proposal, namely, that its benefits would be so great that it would lead to a demand for a political union.

Experience, however, teaches us that the reverse is the rule; that when the people are prosperous they are satisfied with their existing condition, and it is when they are in distress that a change is sought for.

Let every farmer ask himself whether or not, while dwelling under the British flag, if he gets $30 more for a horse, $10 more per head for his cattle, $1.50 more for a sheep, 5c. more per lb. for dressed fowl, 5c. more per dozen for his eggs, 30c. per bushel more for his barley, 40c. more for his oats and peas and $4 more per ton for his hay, and other prices in proportion for everything else he produces, he would feel, by reason of that, like rebelling against that flag.

It is only when people cannot obtain a great boon that they rebel, and not when they can obtain it without.

As to the revenue argument, it is an easy matter to show that by curtailing the expenditure within reasonable limits, the revenue and expenditure could easily be made to balance.

In a short time after this policy comes in force farms will begin to increase in value, by one-third, every intelligent citizen of Canada will begin to improve in circumstances, the exodus to a foreign land of our most promising from Alex. Steele, B. A., headmaster of the Orangeville high school, requesting the free use of the town hall for the literary society's annual entertainment which takes place next month. A by law was passed later in the evening granting the request.

Otto Henderickson sent a humorous communication and an account for $5 for taking care of Patience Harrison one cold night this winter. The Charity committee will investigate the case.

Deputy registrar Collier informed the council that certain lands in town were not registered, and asked the council to compel the owners to register same. As nobody knew the law on that point the mayor was instructed to look into the matter.

ACCOUNTS

from Geo. Buchanan, $2.50; A. G McKenzie, $3.18; J. Henderson, $1.25; Jas. Morrison, $27.00; H. Fischer, $4.65; Geo. Grey, $5.87; Wm. Harding, $1.46, were ordered to be paid. D. McDonald's account of $2.80 was referred to the T. P. committee.

REPORTS.

Reeve Lindsay read the Finance committee's report, which recommended the payment of an account; that the clerk's account, re assessment roll, was part of his duties and that it be not paid. Adopted.

Ald. Gillespie brought down a report from the F. & W. committee. It suggested that, in order to get a lower rate of insurance, seven hundred dollars should be expended in new appliances in connection with the waterworks, and those benefitted thereby should pay for it by a special tax, if the council has power to levy such. Ald. Adamson from the East evidently misapprehended the meaning of the report, and objected to its passing. It was left over until the next meeting.

Deputy-reeve Endacott introduced the T. P. committee's report, which recommended that another exit be made at the north side of the town hall, cost not to exceed $65. A long and nonsensical debate followed, during which the mayor called the press gallery to order (!). The report was finally adopted.

HALF-HEARTED ELECTRICITY.

Ald. Fiddis, chairman of the S. L committee, brought in a report that paralyzed some of the "boys." The committee were of the opinion that the street lamps were not up to the standard, and the contractor was not fulfilling his contract satisfactorily; a number of lamps have not the kind of globes specified in the contract, and nine lamps have broken globes; and that the clerk be instructed to find the cost of bringing an electrician to test the lamps and see if they are twelve hundred candlepower, as the committee thought they were not. Reeve Lindsay and Ald. Young wanted the report left over until the next meeting, but Ald. Fiddis, Yonmans and others couldn't see the point, so the report was adopted.

BY-LAWS.

The council went into committee of the whole on by-laws to grant the H. S. literary society the free use of the town hall, to amend town hall tariff by law and to change the order of proceedings. The first by-law was passed, but Ald. Ketchum's two by laws were laid over.

DARTS.

Ald. Gillespie gave notice that he will introduce a by law at the next meeting to stop coasting, snowballing and skating on the streets.

The new maps of the East and South wards of the town are completed.

Reeve Lindsay inquired if the auditors had completed their work. Nobody could answer.

The town hall caretaker has placed a "horse's iron shoe" over the chamber door in hope that it brings good luck and good sense too. (Hear, hear).

G. R. R. Cockburn, Conservative nominee and late member for Centre Toronto, sustained much more serious injuries when he fell from a street car the night of the big Conservative meeting there than at first supposed. His condition Thursday night was even regarded seriously, but he was better Friday, though still confined to bed.

Cardwell Reformers assembled at Mono Mills on Saturday, and picked out a man to be slaughtered on March 5th; and THE SUN regrets to find him in the person of Elgin Myers, Q.C., the unknown grown attorney and clerk of the peace for Dufferin. A Grit has about as much chance of representing Cardwell in the House of Commons as Sir Richard Cartwright has to become premier of Canada.

An Efficient G. T. Chairman—An Important F. & W. Report Received—The Press Gallery Called Down.

It was somewhere in the neighborhood of 8:45 o'clock when the civic servants of this town got down to business on Monday evening. Mayor Walsh was not on the "throne" when the menagerie opened and Reeve Lindsay was requested to take the chair. The reeve had just got comfortably seated when his worship arrived and took his seat. He apologized for being late and said politics had not detained him. Clerk Buchanan was out of town and Assessor Hepburn was requested to jot down the minutes.

After Deputy reeve Endacott read the minutes, which were adopted, his worship read

Reeve Lindsay and Ald. Young wanted the report left over until the next meeting, but Ald. Fiddis, Yonmans and others couldn't see the point, so the report was adopted.

BY-LAWS.

The council went into committee of the whole on by-laws to grant the H. S. literary society the free use of the town hall, to amend town hall tariff by law and to change the order of proceedings. The first by-law was passed, but Ald. Ketchum's two by laws were laid over.

DARTS.

Ald. Gillespie gave notice that he will introduce a by law at the next meeting to stop coasting, snowballing and skating on the streets.

The new maps of the East and South wards of the town are completed.

Reeve Lindsay inquired if the auditors had completed their work. Nobody could answer.

The town hall caretaker has placed a "horse's iron shoe" over the chamber door in hope that it brings good luck and good sense too. (Hear, hear).

G. R. R. Cockburn, Conservative nominee and late member for Centre Toronto, sustained much more serious injuries when he fell from a street car the night of the big Conservative meeting there than at first supposed. His condition Thursday night was even regarded seriously, but he was better Friday, though still confined to bed.

Cardwell Reformers assembled at Mono Mills on Saturday, and picked out a man to be slaughtered on March 5th; and THE SUN regrets to find him in the person of Elgin Myers, Q.C., the unknown grown attorney and clerk of the peace for Dufferin. A Grit has about as much chance of representing Cardwell in the House of Commons as Sir Richard Cartwright has to become premier of Canada.

CHARLESTON.

Rev. A. Wilson and Rev. H. Crozier, of Grand Valley, exchanged pulpits last Sunday.

Rev. A. Wilson preached the funeral sermon of the late Mrs. Bates in Knox church on Sunday the 8th.

Mrs. Wm. Rose, who has been ailing for some months back, died at her residence in this village, on Thursday the 5th instant. Her maiden name was Elizabeth Glassford. Deceased leaves a husband and five young children to mourn the loss of a devoted wife and affectionate mother. She had a kind Christian disposition, and was beloved by all her acquaintances. The remains were interred in the Charleston cemetery on the following Saturday.

MORTGAGE SALE
OF Valuable Farm Property
—IN—
The Township of Mono

UNDER and by virtue of the power of sale contained in a certain Mortgage, which will be produced at the time of sale, there will be offered for sale by public auction, on Saturday, the 14th day of March, 1891, at two o'clock p.m., at the QUEEN'S HOTEL, in the TOWN OF ORANGEVILLE, by James McQuarrie, Auctioneer, the following lands and premises, viz:

All and singular that certain parcel or tract of land and premises situate, lying and being in the Township of Mono, in the County of Dufferin, and being composed of the West half of Lot Number Twenty-six (26) and the West half of Lot Number Twenty-seven (27), in the Third Concession west of Hurontario street, containing 200 acres, more or less.

This property is situated about 3½ miles from Shelburne;

Mr. Hunter is a practical farmer himself, and would faithfully represent the farmer in the House. At the last general election the riding was captured by the Grits, but now we are assured by one the Conservatives are alive to the issues and are determined to redeem the constituency. The Conservative standard-bearer is meeting with good success in his canvass, and his prospects of election are very bright indeed. Next week's Sun will have a portrait of Mr. Hunter, and we will have something further to say regarding his candidature.

CARDWELL, BE LOYAL!

On the 5th of next month the electors of Cardwell will be called upon to mark their ballots for R. S. White, the unanimous choice of the convention, a loyal supporter of Sir John Macdonald's Government, and a thorough Canadian, or Elgin Myers, the salaried official of the Mowat administration, and a follower of the Laurier-Cartwright-Wilson combination, whose trade policy, if carried out, would be the ruination of this country, and eventually lead to Canada being annexed to the United States. We have no fear of the result, as the electors of Cardwell are too intelligent to be caught by such claptrap talk as Sir Richard Cartwright's effusions are. Sir Richard Cartwright is the gallant knight who travels to Washington and tells the American congressmen how to coerce Canada into the Union; and when that time comes he is to be the first Senator from the State of Ontario. Will the electors of Cardwell strengthen this false statesman's position? No, we guess not. The yeomanry of that glorious old constituency are not made of that kind of stuff; they are loyal to the Conservative cause and will ever remain so as long as the great old leader, Sir John Macdonald, remains at the helm.

POLITICAL POINTS.

The Old Flag; the Old Leader; the Old Policy!

The Orangeville Liberal Conservative Association rooms are on the second flat of the McKim block.

McCallis for Peel, White for Cardwell, Hunter for Centre Wellington and Clark for North Wellington are candidates who should win.

The Brampton Banner was away off in its remarks on Cardwell last week. No hub bub, horseshoeing nor anything of the kind, Bro. Dick.

Sheriff Brodley is returning officer for Peel, Richard Allan for Cardwell, Thos. McManus for Centre Wellington and W. W. White for North Wellington.

Our esteemed friend, Fisher Monro, of the Cannington Independent, laid out the Conservatives of that town in the last issue of his paper for asking him to step outside of their meeting-place.

A week ago yesterday a number of Toronto bums paraded the streets flying the black flag, on which was written "bread or work." The paraders were smoking pipes and cigars, were well-dressed and looked far from being in a starving state.

The letter read at the West Durham convention the other day from Hon. Edward Blake, expressly stated that he was retiring from public life because he could not support the present policy and follow the present leader of the Reform party.

We hardly think Mr. Hunter can seriously entertain any very sanguine hope of success.—Fergus News-Record. Now, Messrs. Craig Bros. think again, but not so rashly. Mr. Hunter is sanguine of success, and, what's better, the electors back him.

The Centre Wellington Reform convention took place at Fergus on Friday, and, as everybody expected, A. Semple, ex M.P., was chosen as their candidate. Mr. Semple, the electors have arrived at the conclusion that you should drop M.P. after your name as Mr. W. R. Hunter intends to take your place.

When we first heard that Ontario had deserted the Conservative camp, and took refuge under the Stars and Stripes we would hardly believe it. If Business as good work for Mr. Myers as he did for ex-Reeve Atkinson in the last Caledon elections he should be awarded a medal—for turning voters against the party for which he works.

Mr. R. S. White, the Conservative standard bearer for Cardwell, held a rousing meeting at Camilla on Tuesday night. For the Reform candidate, Mr. Myers, Wm. Algie, a Conservative deserter, was present, and, of course, "blew off" at a terrific rate. "Bill Bombast's" presence at the meeting probably gained Mr. White more votes than a dozen campaign meetings would have.

Mr. Clarke, says the Mt. Forest Representative, the nominee of the convention, was being married in Guelph on the same day he was selected to defeat Mr. McMullen. His bride is a Guelph lady named Miss Small, and instead of a proposed honeymoon trip of three weeks to Florida, the bridegroom will come into the riding on Monday and court the electors, while the bride will, no doubt, remain at home and pretend to be jealous that even a seat in parliament has sufficient fascination for her young husband to attract him away from her side.

CHOICE OF THE CONVENTION.

Willoughby Makes a Fine Speech—R. S. Walker and Others Re-River Speaker—Candidate Harmony Prevails.

The convention convened by the Conservatives of Cardwell took place at Mono Mills on Friday, and never in the history of that once flourishing village was there so much enthusiasm displayed. Long before two o'clock—the hour for commencing proceedings—electors and delegates were busy discussing the merits of candidates likely to go before the convention. One hundred and twenty-five delegates were present from Mono, Caledon, Adjala and Bolton to choose their standard bearer for the good old constituency of Cardwell.

Shortly after three o'clock President James Snell called for nominations, and the following persons were proposed: R. S. White, ex member; W. R. Willoughby, J. A. Ferguson, John Kelly, R. Clark Wallace, Dr. Lewis, J. S. Leighton, James Snell, Wm. Armstrong and James Duff.

After the nominations the candidates delivered speeches from the balcony of the hotel, the hall not being quarter large enough to hold the crowd. Messrs. White, Wallace, Armstrong, Duff, Dr Lewis and others made rattling speeches and all retired except Messrs. White, Willoughby and Snell. J. S. Leighton retired in favor of Mr. White.

The delegates adjourned to the hall for the purpose of selecting a candidate. The first ballot stood:

|---|---|
| White | 79 |
| Snell | 20 |
| Willoughby | 26 |

Mr. Snell retired and Messrs. White and Willoughby were matched. The second ballot was:

|---|---|
| White | 88 |
| Willoughby | 37 |

Mr. Willoughby dropped out, and Messrs. Snell and White were voted for. Two ballots were spoiled in this vote, which was:

|---|---|
| Snell | 29 |

From the above figures it will be seen that Mr. White was almost the unanimous choice of the convention.

Immediately after the result was announced Mr. Wm. Stubbs delivered dodgers informing the public that he would be an independent candidate for Cardwell in the coming elections. Whether Mr. Stubbs will commit political suicide remains to be seen.

CARDWELL.

Miss Nellie Burt is studying medicine in Kingston medical college.

Mr. H. Bracken, on Friday evening last, gave a charmingly arranged dance at his residence.

On the evening of the 11th inst. a large number of young people assembled at the residence of Robert Jackson, Esq. and presented his daughter, Miss Mary K. Jackson, with a beautiful album and toilet case. Miss J. is organist of Herald Angel church and her friends made the presentation. The address, which was read by Mr. W. E. Hall, ran as follows:

DEAR MISS JACKSON,—The members of Herald Angel church, to which we all belong, knowing that praise is one of the most valuable features of Divine worship, and that to praise God in comfort the organ formed a great and invaluable help, look back with pleasure upon the fact that you as organist have placed that help and comfort within their enjoyment for four years past. To show their appreciation, the congregation, with a few of their friends, wish to make you as their organist the present, now offered for your acceptance. Feel sure of our esteem for yourself and your office. Hoping to enjoy a continuance of work, and our united praises may be acceptable to the Majesty of Heaven. For the congregation, we are, your fellow-Christians.

MAGGIE R. LEIGHTON,
EMMA M. BURT.
FREDERICK BURT, Clergyman.

Rev. Mr. F. Burt made a suitable reply on behalf of Miss Jackson, Miss E. M. Burt, Miss M. R. Leighton, Miss Sarah M. Hall, Miss Minnie Lynch, of Orangeville, Misses Leighton, Miss Duke, Miss E. Jenkins, Miss Mary A. Leighton, Mr. Hugh Bracken, Mr. James Jackson, P. M., Mr. Edward Jenkins, Messrs Dean and H. Craig of Sandhill, Mr. F. Howson, Mr. J. Duke, Mr. James Leighton, Mr. M. J. Leighton, Mr. R. Jenkins, Mr. Wm Jackson, Mr. Manson Hall, and others. After refreshments were served the many friends entered with joyous enthusiasm into the games and other amusement provided. Miss Sarah M. Hall, of Orangeville, sang during the evening. She has a rich voice of unusual sweetness, noble in quality and of high power throughout. Miss Mary Jackson sang with much purity and finish. Miss E. A. Leighton sang exquisitely; the instrumental solos on the organ by Cardwellites were splendid representations of musicians taste and refinement. Mr. Laidlaw of Streetsville, gave a recitation. Messrs. Joseph H. Jackson, J. Nicholson and others rendered funny songs to the immense delight of the audience, after which the company dispersed.

DULCET.

[illegible] Mr. Hunter will be nominated [illegible] Grits will put up a candidate [illegible] will be a lively one. The Conservatives will place in the field [illegible] the 5th of next month.

Remember the concert at the Belmoral rink next Monday evening.

Mr. W. J. Price, horse and shoe maker, intends to remove to Markdale shortly.

Assessor Hughson Del Lement are on the rear park, and we hope they will bring in a model roll.

It is said a new hardware store will open out in the building occupied by T. T. King, two doors east of the Garden house.

Last Thursday's cattle fair was very largely attended. Several drunken brawls took place in the afternoon and evening.

Dufferin spring assizes will be held in the court house here on Monday, 11th May. His Lordship Mr. Justice Street will preside.

Our thanks are due to Messrs. I. Suckling & Sons, the well-known music dealers of Toronto, for a handsome volume of national and patriotic Canadian songs; also a copy of the sacred song, "Abide With Me."

DANGERS TAKE NOTICE.—On Sunday last Rev. Father McPhillips, pastor of St. Peter's church, continued his flock against dancing during the season of lent. The rev. gentleman intimated he would make it his business to find out if any of his parishioners broke the rules of the church in this respect.

O. H. S. FOOTBALL.—The Orangeville high school football club has been reorganized for the season, with the following officers in charge: Mayor Welsh, hon pres.; A. Steele, B.A., pres.; Mr. Cloes, vice-pres.; T. R. Parker, B.A., captain; S. M. Brown, secretary; H. MacAdam, treasurer; T. Johnston, H. Cotton, J. Ewing, committee.

CARNIVAL.—Manager J. T. Smyth of the Belmoral skating-rink announces another gigantic masquerade carnival for Monday night, the 23rd inst. A large number of prizes will be competed for, and the event of the evening will be a three-mile race for a valuable return. Marquees will be admitted free, and a large attendance should be present.

HADDOCK GOT THERE.—Some time ago P. O. Inspector Hopkirk of Stratford asked for tenders for the transportation of her maj sty's mails between Orangeville postoffice and the G.T.R. station. A few days ago Mr. Joseph Haddock was informed that his tender was accepted. Mr. Haddock will undoubtedly give excellent satisfaction in his new field.

NEW P. O. RULES.—A desirable change in the regulations of the postoffice went into force on Monday. In the future the office will open at 8 o'clock a. m. and remain open until 6:15 p. m, when it will close until seven; the lobby will then reopen and remain open until 8.30. The wicket will be open immediately after the distribution of the Toronto mail.

DR. BUCKHAM DEAD.—Many old residents of Orangeville will regret to learn of the death of Dr. T. R. Buckham, which occurred at Denver, Col., on Saturday last. About a quarter of a century ago Dr. Buckham was in business in Orangeville, when he left for the United States to pursue the study of medicine. Deceased had been residing at Flint, Mich., for some time and was recognized as one of the leading doctors of that state. He is the author of many valuable works principally relating to medicine, and his book on "Insanity" is considered by leading doctors the best ever written.

C. O. F. CONCERT.—The concert given in the town hall on Thursday night last in aid of Court Gardiner, Canadian Order of Foresters, was very largely attended. His Worship Mayor Walsh discharged the duties of chairman in his usual good style. Solos by Misses Haun, Stewart, Pearson, Turnbull, Simpson and Mrs. Chapman and Messrs. Fax and Irvine were well rendered, as was a duett by Messrs. Donner and Irvine. Mrs. R. T. Haun gave a pleasing reading from Shakspeare. The Wright family brought down the house by their rendition of Mother England's Sons. H. C. K Bro. Ed. Tows was unable to be present.

U. C. B. S.—At the annual meeting of the Orangeville branch of the Upper Canada Bible Society held in the Methodist church on Dec. 4th it was decided to collect the subscriptions for the work during February, and in accordance therewith the collectors will set about their work at once. Those appointed for the West ward are Miss Bowles and Mrs. Dr. Smith; for the East, Mrs. Mercer and Mrs. Davidson; South, Mrs. Beswick and Mrs. Scott; North, Misses Kearns and Robb. Last year the total contributions amounted to [illegible] the 25th of next month.

[illegible] both badly damaged a buggy belonging to Mr. Hunter, the demolition being duly apparent. The happy pair did not depart until about 5 o'clock on Saturday morning. The gentleman whose wedding occasioned the affair and of the footprints left on the roofs of their others. The officers in charge were: Wm Laing, secretary; Jas. Riddell, treasurer; Andrew Jones, Tim. Robinson and A. J. McLean, committee.

KILLED WHILE COASTING!

Eight-year-old Robie Smith Struck by a Horse while Sleighriding.

One of the most sad and shocking accidents that has occurred in Orangeville for some years took place on the hill on east Broadway last Saturday morning. At about 11:15 o'clock a young lad named Robie Edgar Smith, eleven years and ten months old, eldest son of Mr. John Smith, employed in McMaster's foundry, and several other boys were sleigh riding on the hill. Young Smith and another boy started down the hill on two sleighs after a team driven by John Shelton, a Mono farmer, had passed. The boys' sleighs travelled a much more rapid rate of speed than the horses, and they accordingly turned to different sides of the road to pass. Just when the boys were passing Mr. Shelton's rig his team, which was young colts, jumped to the side of the road and young Smith's sleigh ran into them. One of the colts kicked, and before the unfortunate boy could be rescued his skull was badly fractured in several places. He was at once taken to his home near by, and Dr. Stewart was on hand in a few minutes, but one saw at a glance that the little sufferer was beyond human help. The unfortunate boy remained in an unconscious condition until seven o'clock Monday evening, when death relieved him.

No blame can be attached to Mr. Shelton, who did not see the boy coming until the accident occurred.

The remains were interred in the Forest Lawn cemetery on Monday afternoon, the funeral being very largely attended.

As a result of the accident the town council will pass a bylaw at their next meeting prohibiting sleigh-riding, snowballing and skating on the streets. And the need of such a bylaw is admitted by all.

CAMILLA.

Blacksmith Doney is doing a rushing trade.

Mr. Aaron Patterson, who resided near here, died at 2 o'clock on Tuesday. He suffered great pain from a cancer in his face, but when the pain was at its height deceased never complained and quietly awaited his end. Deceased was in his 85th year. By his death the Conservative party has lost an unflinching worker and staunch friend. His bereaved family have the sympathy of the entire community.

Mr. White's meeting was held here on Tuesday night. The electors turned out in large numbers and were repaid for their trouble by hearing some great speeches. Mr. White who spoke at some length and Wm. Algie of Alton spoke for Mr. Myers. Mr. White had a few enemies in this vicinity, but when a renegade like Algie tried to induce them to vote the Reform ticket it turned them in favor of Mr. White. The Alton blow is making an ass of himself and is doing Mr. Myers a great deal of harm.

An instance of friendly feeling was exhibited at Camilla on Friday evening, when a delegation of the members and adherents of Burns' church, Mono Centre, waited upon Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Anderson to express regret at the loss of Mrs. Anderson's services as organist, she having removed to her new home. A very pleasant evening was spent, in the course of which a presentation of a Bible, Good Words, edited by Donald MacLeod, D.D., a hymnal, Burns' Poetical Works and the Pilgrim's Progress, accompanied by the following address, took place. The address was read by Rev. G. Ballantyne:

THE ADDRESS.

Mrs. Anderson.

DEAR FRIEND,—It is with no small degree of pleasure that we, as members and adherents of Burns' church, Mono Centre, have noticed your faithfulness and success as organist in connection with our church, ever since the instrument was introduced. Not only have you been regularly in your place from Sabbath to Sabbath and at most, if not all, other meetings in the house of God, but you have also shown your willingness in the part you have taken to advance the interests of the congregation in various other ways as well. And since your efforts and diligence have been altogether voluntary and without remuneration, we cannot help feeling indebted to you, for we are all aware that the duties and responsibilities that rest upon those that fill such an important position are neither light nor free from anxiety. Realizing all this we cannot allow this opportunity to pass without manifesting in some tangible way our appreciation of what you have done. We have, therefore, decided to present you with this Bible and hymnal and these other volumes which accompany them. Wishing you and your husband much peace and happiness in your new home, and that success in this life which God in his wisdom may see best for you.

Signed in behalf of the congregation,
REV. G. BALLANTYNE, Pastor.

In reply Mr. and Mrs. Anderson expressed thanks in few but suitable words.

CARNIVAL.—Manager J. T. Smyth of the Balmoral skating-rink announces another gigantic masquerade carnival for Monday night, the 23rd inst. A large number of prizes will be competed for, and the event of the evening will be a three-mile race for a valuable tourney. Masquers will be admitted free, and a large attendance should be present.

HADDOCK GOT THERE.—Some time ago P. O. Inspector Hopkirk of Stratford asked for tenders for the transportation of her majesty's mails between Orangeville postoffice and the C.P.R. station. A few days ago Mr. Joseph Haddock was informed that his tender was accepted. Mr. Haddock will undoubtedly give excellent satisfaction in his new field.

NEW P. O. RULES.—A desirable change in the regulations of the postoffice went into force on Monday. In the future the office will open at 8 o'clock a. m. and remain open until 6:15 p. m., when it will close until seven; the lobby will then reopen and remain open until 8.30. The wicket will be open immediately after the distribution of the Toronto mail.

DR. BUCKHAM DEAD.—Many old residents of Orangeville will regret to learn of the death of Dr. T. R. Buckham, which occurred at Denver, Col., on Saturday last. About a quarter of a century ago Dr. Buckham was in business in Orangeville, when he left for the United States to pursue the study of medicine. Deceased had been residing at Flint, Mich., for some time and was recognized as one of the leading doctors of that state. He is the author of many valuable works principally relating to medicine, and his book on "Insanity" is considered by leading doctors the best ever written.

C. O. F. CONCERT.—The concert given in the town hall on Thursday night last in aid of Court Gardiner, Canadian Order of Foresters, was very largely attended. His Worship Mayor Walsh discharged the duties of chairman in his usual good style. Solos by Misses Haun, Stewart, Pearson, Turnbull, Simpson and Mrs. Chapman and Messrs. Fax and Irvine were well rendered, as was a duett by Messrs. Donner and Irvine. Mrs. R. T. Haun gave a pleasing reading from Shakspeare. The Wright family brought down the house by their rendition of Mother England's Sons. H. C. K Bro. Ed. Town was unable to be present.

U. C. B. S.—At the annual meeting of the Orangeville branch of the Upper Canada Bible Society held in the Methodist church on Dec. 4th it was decided to collect the subscriptions for the work during February, and in accordance therewith the collectors will set about their work at once. Those appointed for the West ward are Miss Bowles and Mrs. Dr. Smith; for the East, Mrs. Mercer and Mrs. Davidson; South, Mrs. Berwick and Mrs. Scott; North, Misses Kearns and Robb. Last year the total contributions amounted to [illegible] John Smith, employed in McKinney's foundry, and several other boys were sleigh riding on the hill. Young Smith and another boy started down hill on two sleighs after a team driven by John Steelon, a Mono farmer, had passed. The boys' sleighs overtook the team, which were travelling at a much more rapid rate of speed than the farmer's, and they consequently turned off to different sides of the road to pass. Just when the boys were passing Mr. Steelon's rig his team, which was spirited, jumped to the side of the road and young Smith's sleigh ran into them. One of the colts kicked, and before the unfortunate boy could be rescued his [illegible]

SKULL WAS BADLY FRACTURED [illegible] in several places. He was at once taken to his home near by, and Dr. [illegible] was on hand in a few minutes. The boy saw at a glance that the little [illegible] was beyond human help. The unfortunate boy remained in an unconscious condition until seven o'clock Monday evening, when death relieved him of his sufferings.

No blame can be attached to Mr. Steelon, who did not see the boy coming until the accident occurred.

The remains were interred in the Forest Lawn cemetery on Monday afternoon, the funeral being very largely attended.

As a result of the accident the town council will pass a bylaw at its next meeting prohibiting sleigh-riding, snowballing and skating on the streets. What the wood of such a bylaw is admitted by all.

CAMILLA.

Blacksmith Doney is doing a rushing trade.

Mr. Aaron Patterson, who resided near here, died at 2 o'clock on Tuesday. He suffered great pain from a cancer in his face, but when the pain was at its height deceased never complained and quietly awaited his end. Deceased was in his 85th year. By his death the Conservative party has lost an unswerving worker and staunch friend. His surviving family have the sympathy of the entire community.

Mr. White's meeting was held here on Tuesday night. The electors turned out in large numbers and were repaid for their trouble by hearing some great speeches. Mr. White who spoke at some length and Wm. Algie of Alton spoke for Mr. Myers. Mr. White had a few enemies in this vicinity, but when a renegade like Algie tried to induce them to vote the Reform ticket it turned them in favor of Mr. White. The Alton blow is making an ass of himself and is doing Mr. Myers a great deal of harm.

An instance of friendly feeling was exhibited at Camilla on Friday evening, when a delegation of the members and adherents of Burns' church, Mono Centre, waited upon Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Anderson to express regret at the loss of Mrs. Anderson's services as organist, she having removed to her new home. A very pleasant evening was spent, in the course of which a presentation of a Bible, Good Words, edited by Donald Macleod, D.D., a hymnal, Burns' Poetical Works and the Pilgrim's Progress, accompanied by the following address, took place. The address was read by Rev. G. Ballantyne:

THE ADDRESS.

Mrs. Anderson.

DEAR FRIEND,—It is with no small degree of pleasure that we, as members and adherents of Burns' church, Mono Centre, have noticed your faithfulness and success as organist in connection with our church, ever since the instrument was introduced. Not only have you been regularly in your place from Sabbath to Sabbath and at most, if not all, other meetings in the house of God, but you have also shown your willingness in the part you have taken to advance the interests of the congregation in various other ways as well. And since your efforts and diligence have been altogether voluntary and without remuneration, we cannot help feeling indebted to you, for we are all aware that the duties and responsibilities that rest upon those that fill such an important position are neither light nor free from anxiety. Realizing all this we cannot allow this opportunity to pass without manifesting in some tangible way our appreciation of what you have done. We have, therefore, decided to present you with this Bible and hymnal and these other volumes which accompany them. Wishing you and your husband much peace and happiness for your new home, and that success in this life which God in his wisdom may see best for you.

Signed in behalf of the congregation,
REV. G. BALLANTYNE, Pastor.

In reply Mr. and Mrs. Anderson expressed thanks in few but suitable words.

If you want money at the lowest rate of interest call on F. Irwin, over Lindscott Bro's store, Orangeville.

FLAX-SEED EMULSION COMPOUND

BRONCHITIS

195 Lexington Ave.,
New York City, Sept. 23, 1890.

I have used the Flax-Seed Emulsion in several cases of Chronic Bronchitis, and the early stages of Phthisis, and have been well pleased with the results.

JAMES K. CROOK, M.D.

CONSUMPTION

Brooklyn, N.Y., Feb. 24th, 1890.

I have used your Emulsion in a case of Phthisis (tuberculosis) with beneficial results, where patient could not use Cod Liver Oil in any form.

J. H. DROGE, M.D.

NERVOUS PROSTRATION

Brooklyn, N.Y., Dec. 20th, 1890.

I can strongly recommend Flax Seed Emulsion as helpful to the relief and possibly the cure of all Lung, Bronchial and Nervous Affections, and a good general tonic in physical debility.

JOHN F. TALMAGE, M.D.

GENERAL DEBILITY

Brooklyn, N.Y., Oct. 20th, 1890.

I regard Flax Seed Emulsion as greatly superior to the Cod Liver Oil Emulsions generally prescribed.

Mr. Brown—I don't laff like that friend of yours, Mr. Smith.

Mr. Smith—Why not, sir? I think you are a very good judge of laff, my dear?

Mrs. Brown (with emphasis)—No, I do not.

Mrs. Pop—Tommy! Tommy! That is no way for you to talk. Even if your little playmate is wrong in what he says you should not call him a liar.

Tommy—Why not ma? I can lick him easy enough, an' he knows it.

—What's the matter here?" asked a stranger of a small boy, as he passed a large wedding party coming out of a church on Fifth avenue. "Nuthing but the tied goin' out," was the reply.

Friend (nothing the confused heap of goods of every description scattered promiscuously around the store).—Hello! what's happened? Been taking an inventory, had a fire, or are you going to move out? Merchant—That shows how little you know about store keeping. We have merely been waiting on a lady who dropped in for a paper of pins.

When cut in a day old it is a dwarf. When it is 240 years old it is a masterpiece.

The Step-Over Catalogue.—Passenger—Is this train good for a step-off? Yes'm. But it won't be good to get on again."

Mrs. Youngwife—Take another piece of the cake, dear.

Mr. Y.—Who made it, love?

Mrs Y.—The cook, darling.

Mr. Y.—Thank you, angel mine, I don't care if I do.

A Struggling Editor.—"We will run a store in connection with our paper, notice accordingly. We, editorially store, and our farm, and the rest only in business, and the post office, and our position as clerk of the town council, we hope to make enough money to keep the paper going.

Holloway's Pills.—Any, regardless sufferer aware of the purifying, regulating and gently aperient powers of these Pills, should permit no one to cloud his judgment or to warp his course. With a box of Holloway's Pills, and attention to its accompanying "Directions," he may feel thoroughly satisfied that he may safely and effectually release himself from his miseries without imparting his appetite or weakening his digestion. This most excellent medicine acts as a nervine and bodily tonic by aiding nutrition, and banishes a thousand annoying forms of nervous complaints. An occasional resort to Holloway's remedy will prove highly salutary to all persons, whether well or ill, whose digestion is slow or imperfect, a condition usually evidenced by weariness, languor, listlessness and despondency

The Men to Blame.—Ella Wheeler Wilcox laments the condition of her sisters, but she blames it on the men. She says: "Unfortunately, Men want their sweethearts to be brilliant and showy, and their wives to be domestic and practical. The girl who understands how to sew, cook, and nurse a sick child, does not attract single men, and the superficial belle does not satisfy her husband after marriage. Hence the prevalence of divorce. Either men must become more sensible before marriage, more resigned afterward, or mothers must begin to teach their daughters in their cradles the necessity of combining the useful with the ornamental, the practical with the entertaining qualities."

Knights of Labor.

The Knights of Labor also protect their members against financial difficulties, etc., Haggard's Yellow Oil protects all who use it from the effects of cold and exposure, such as rheumatism, neuralgia, lumbago, sore throat and all inflammatory pain. Nothing compares with it as a handy pain cure for man and beast.

A $750 COTTAGE,

or its equivalent in cash will be given to the person detecting the greatest number of errors, (words wrongly spelled or misplaced) in the December issue of "Our Homes." In addition will be given two cash prizes of $200 each, four of one $100, eight of $50, ten of $25, twenty five of $10, fifty of $5, and one hundred and fifty of $1, distributed in the order mentioned in rules and regulations, which will be sent with a copy of December issue on receipt of 15 cents in stamps. Special cash prizes given away almost every day during competition which closes February 1st, 1891.

There is a society sensation at Hillsburg. It was caused by a young man near Ballinafad backing out at the eleventh hour. He had been keeping company with a young lady; they had been "engaged;" the wedding day had been set, the young lady had made all preparations, when, at the eleventh hour, the young man sent word that "he had changed his mind." This ended the wedding, but, from the talk that's going, perhaps all is not ended. The disappointed young lady and the somewhat changeable young man, are both of respected families. It is supposed that the young man's love cooled.

Sick and Sluggish.

[illegible] Healthy vigour is [illegible] good blood and it [illegible] in the safest, surest and best way use Burdock Blood Bitters, strongly recommended by all who use it as the best blood purifier.

A robber in San Francisco tackled a grocer named King in his store on Saturday in the usual way, presenting a pair of pistols and ordering King to throw up his hands. The grocer instead threw a scale weight and felled the robber to the floor, after which he took the pistols and fractured the man's skull in seven places.

The composition of Collingwood council is thus given by the Bulletin:—5 Presbyterians, 4 Methodist, 4 English church, and 1 Roman Catholic; 5 are Englishmen, 3 are Scotchmen 3 Irishmen and 3 are Canadians. In politics 8 are Conservatives and 6 Reformers.

Napoleon's Head.

Napoleon's head was of peculiar shape, but that did not protect him against headache. Sick headache is a common and very disagreeable affection which may be quickly removed, together with its cause, by the use of Burdock Blood Bitters, the never-failing medicine for all kinds of headaches.

Mr. Edmund Wragge, of the G. T. R., has visited Owen Sound and announced that the company is prepared to build a line from Hepworth to that town if a sufficient bonus is granted.

WOMAN IN PARAGRAPH.

Women are proverbial liars.

No woman is born at heart who lacks charity.

Few women are good and liberal enough to pattern.

Man sometimes forgets a wrong; a woman never does.

Flattery will rip a woman's love where hers will fall.

The sweet of artistic dressing is to match the hair or the skin.

Of all the guardians and the most desirable is that of mother's wine.

The greatest jilts are in the world is a pretty mother who, for her first baby.

A woman can only be a friend to a woman whose her interests are not concerned.

Angel white, which is that many, creamy that with the tones of amber in it is becoming to every face.

Of all the fresh, clean covering that goes on a floor a neat-colored mottling is the truest and elegant.

White lilies, white lilacs, white violets and other exquisite blossoms are most effective in a white bowl or jar.

Things that proclaim their cost, like diamonds, rich silks, velvets and passementerie, appeal at once to a woman's dress.

Most men make their servants a present of their old clothes. Most women sell theirs to struggling, ragged, maid servants.

A man can choose and smile and be a villain, and a woman will kiss a sister and with the same lips defame her character an hour later.

The woman who uses mailing wax on her envelope invariably gives it first, and this double security makes the recipient contain "How continued."

The unmarried girl, she of the opera, wears cool and four-in-hand scarf, carries a silver rule in her breast pocket with which she measures the universe.

It is a mistake to make a completely equipped a mantelpiece or cabinet. Old blue and white Nankin china is not expensive, and a collection of this ware will give any interior artistic beauty.

Black eyes any woman pass thirty by deepening the lines in her face. Certain lines come with time and time forms character, but a woman is not obliged to advertise her age.

A tall, gaunt, angular, awkward woman will appear less so in clothing light and flowing, some soft, clinging material that will follow every movement, multiply lines and obliterate angles.

The carver has more things to contend with than the grindstone, the gravy and the joints. There are silver tips to go on the poultry and game, and mutton holders that can be applied to roast or boiled beef.

Receptacles for tea, such as bowls, pails and tubs, and picks, tongs and spoons as well, are made in plated silver warranted to last a generation, which curiously enough, the silversmith limits to thirty years.

A diamond bead necklace is the most costly thing in trade. The stones selected as to size and color are drilled through, and in the bead form cut. They may be strung together or alternating with pearls, rubies or asteria. Although very expensive on account of the work in piercing and cutting they are not very salable.

Women delight to have souvenirs of pleasant events, and to satisfy this longing have no scruples about appropriating little things. At public dinners, in club parlors and fashionable cafes, even in dining cars and on ocean steamers, spoons, forks, crests and other small pieces of furniture are quietly pilfered for remembrance.

The shoulders and hips are the natural points of support down. Here the drapery should fall, and here only buckles, buttons and clasps should be located. Little catches, fastenings and hooks down the front of a garment are stiff and meaningless; they break the nice lines of grace which give every one and poetry to a dress.

Appearances are often deceitful, yet they force the common basis of judgment, and the opinion prevails that the wives who persist in being known as Martha Robinson Fox are not domestically happy nor desperately in love with their husbands. They call it individuality, personal identity, etc., but for all that the loving and lovable wife is content to be known as Mrs. Fox or Martha R. Fox.

The most beautiful as well as the most odious virtues belong to woman. Stern devotion to what she considers duty will justify her in the destruction of a sister's peace of mind; her severity is inflexible; her justice is without mercy; her revenge is limitless; her integrity accepts of no favor and her enmity will pursue a rival to the grave.

It is a most remarkable fact that women doctors have less delicacy with their patients than men. Young girls are absolutely shocked, and it is from them that the lady physicians receive their severest criticism. Let a young lady receive treatment for the same or different illness from each sex and her preference will be the man every time. Ask her why, and the invariable answer will be that Dr Mary Matter of Fact is not nice. And not only that, but, as a class, they are less sympathetic, less considerate, less cheery than medical men.

Dull headaches, dimness of vision, partial deafness, constant hawking and spitting are a few of the symptoms of catarrh. Nasal Balm is the only certain cure known. Give it a trial.

CAUTION.

Holloway's Pills & Ointment

WHEREAS I AM INFORMED THAT one Joseph Haydock, of New York, is making and selling Pills and Ointment under the name of HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT, and that the same are being sold by certain persons in the British Provinces of America, to the detriment of the public, and also to my injury and loss.

Now, I declare the said Joseph Haydock has no authority whatever from me to use my name in any way. He is not my agent. He holds no power of attorney of mine, nor have I any connection with him whatever.

Persons publishing the said counterfeit Medicines of Joseph Haydock, or keeping for sale, or selling the same in any part of the British American Provinces, will be prosecuted according to law.

I have no agent in the United States, nor are my medicines sold there.

Every Pot and Box of my Genuine Medicine bears on the label the address 533 Oxford Street, London, and has affixed to each the British Government Stamp, with the words Holloway's Pills and Ointment engraved thereon.

The trade mark of my said Medicines are registered in Ottawa and also at Washington

Signed, THOMAS HOLLOWAY.

ERRORS OF YOUTH. Nervous Debility, Seminal Losses and Premature Decay, promptly and permanently cured by SPERMOZONE.

Does not interfere with diet or usual occupation and fully restores lost vigor and insures perfect manhood. Price $1 per box. Sold by all druggists. Sole Prop., Chas. H. RONGFELDS, Rossin House Block, King Street, Toronto.

A citizen of Owen Sound had judgment given against him in the Division court for 1 cent, one day last week, enabling him to sue to the tune of $9.75. It appears in settling an account heretofore he failed to fork over the cent because change could not readily be made, and he dared to assert legal and paid for the piping to boot as a result of his not directing the bill to the full as rendered. He laughingly said the Sun is not his first money experience, though it might not be his last.—Q. S. Sun.

All Men.

young, old, or middle-aged, who find themselves nervous, weak and exhausted, who are broken down from excess or overwork, resulting in many of the following symptoms: Mental depression, premature old age, loss of vitality, loss of memory, bad dreams, dimness of sight, palpitation of the heart, confusion, lack of energy, pain in the kidneys, headache, pimples on the face or body, itching or peculiar sensation about the scrotum, wasting of the organs, dizziness, specks before the eyes, twitching of the muscles, eyes blotched and shot where, tiredness, odpoots in the urine, loss of will power, tenderness of the scalp and spine, weak and flabby muscles, desire to sleep, failure to be roused by sleep, constipation, dullness of hearing, loss of voice, desire for solitude, excitability of temper, sunken eyes surrounded with unusual circles, oily looking skin, etc., are all symptoms of nervous debility that lead to insanity and death unless cured. The spring or vital force having lost its tension very function wanes in consequence. Those who through abuse contracted ignorance may be permanently cured. Send your address for book on all diseases peculiar to men. Address M. V. LUBON, 36 Front St. E., Toronto, Ont. Books sent free sealed. Heart disease, the symptoms of which are faint spells, purple lips, nervousness, palpitation, skip beats, hot flashes, rush of blood to the head, dull pain in the heart with beats strong, rapid and irregular, the second heart beat quicker than the first, pain about the breast bone, etc., can positively be cured. No cure, no pay. Send for book. Address M. V. LUBON, 36 Front Street East, Toronto, Ont.

OF
PURE COD LIVER OIL

Among the merits which distinguish Slocum's Oxygenized Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil above all other preparations are:

1st. The excellence of its method of preparation.
2nd. Its freedom from disagreeable taste and odor!
3rd. Its fitness for immediate absorption!
4th. The thoroughness in which it retains permanently its good qualities.
5th. And the fact that Slocum's Oxygenized Emulsion is the only Cod Liver Oil amalgamation in the market in which the oil is not mixed with the Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda, or some other equally injurious foreign substance, and consequently rendered worse than worthless!

All Pulmonary Disorders find Speedy Relief.
If you have any Throat Trouble.....Use it.
If you have Tightness of the Chest.....Use it.
If you have Difficulty of Breathing.....Use it.
If you have a wasting away of Flesh.....Use it.
If you have Weak Lungs.....Use it.
If you have Bronchitis.....Use it.
If you have Asthma.....Use it.
If you have Catarrh.....Use it.
If you have a Cold.....Use it.
If you have a Cough.....Use it.
If you are Feeble and Emaciated.....Use it.
If you have Consumption.....Use it.

THEY WHO USE IT---LIVE!

The approval my OXYGENIZED EMULSION OF PURE COD LIVER OIL has met with at the hands of the public is no doubt more or less due to the members of the medical profession, who have shown a preference in recommending its use in their daily practice.

If your druggist has not got SLOCUM'S OXYGENIZED EMULSION OF PURE COD LIVER OIL, and will not order it for you, do not take any preparation that contains Lime and Soda. In such case rather obtain of him the Pure Cod Liver Oil, which, though nauseous and repulsive to the taste, does not contain any foreign and injurious substance.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

This Great Household Medicine Ranks among the leading necessities of life. These famous Pills purify the BLOOD and act most powerfully, yet soothingly on the LIVER, STOMACH,
KIDNEYS AND BOWELS,
Giving tone, energy and vigor to the grand MAINSPRINGS OF LIFE. They are confidently recommended as a never-failing remedy in all cases where the constitution has become impaired or weakened. They are wonderfully efficacious in all ailments incidental to females of all ages; and as a GENERAL FAMILY MEDICINE, are unsurpassed.

HOLLOWAYS' OINTMENT

Its Soothing and Healing Properties are known throughout the World.
For the cure of BAD LEGS, Bad Breasts, OLD WOUNDS, SORES, SORES AND ULCERS,
It is an infallible remedy. If effectually rubbed on the back and chest as salt into meat, it cures SORE THROAT, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds, and even Asthma. For Glandular swellings, abscesses, Piles, Fistulas,
GOUT, RHEUMATISM
And every kind of SKIN DISEASE, it has never been known to fail.
The Pills and Ointment are manufactured only at 533 OXFORD STREET, LONDON,
And are sold by all Vendors of Medicine throughout the Civilized World; with directions for use in almost every language.
The Trade Marks of these medicines are registered in Ottawa. Hence any one throughout the British Possessions who may keep the American counterfeit for sale will be prosecuted.

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

A SURE CURE
For BILIOUSNESS, CONSTIPATION, INDIGESTION, DIZZINESS, SICK HEADACHE, AND DISEASES OF THE STOMACH, LIVER AND BOWELS. THEY ARE MILD, THOROUGH AND PROMPT IN ACTION, AND FORM A VALUABLE ADD TO BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS IN THE TREATMENT AND CURE OF CHRONIC AND OBSTINATE DISEASES.

Mr. Y.—Who wants it, long?

Mrs. Y.—The cook, darling.

Mr. Y.—There you, angel mine, I don't care if I do.

A SURPRISING EFFECT.—"We will run a score in connection with our paper" reads an advertisement. The wholesale house, and our farm, and the real estate business, and the post office, and our position as clerk of the town council, we hope will make enough money to keep the paper going.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—ANY dispepsia sufferer aware of the purifying, regulating and gently aperient powers of these Pills, should permit no one to dissuade him or to warp his course. With a box of Holloway's Pills, and attention to its accompanying "Directions," he may feel thoroughly satisfied that he may safely and effectually release himself from his miseries without impairing his appetite or weakening his digestion. This most excellent medicine acts on a nervous and bodily tonic by aiding nutrition, and banishes a thousand sinking forms of nervous complaints. An occasional resort to Holloway's remedy will prove highly salutary to all persons, whether well or ill, whose digestion is slow or imperfect, a condition usually evidenced by weariness, languor, listlessness and despondency.

THE MEN TO BLAME.—Ella Wheeler Wilcox laments the condition of her sisters, but she blames it on the men. She says: "Unfortunately, Men want their sweethearts to be brilliant and showy, and their wives to be domestic and practical. The girl who under stands how to sew, cook, and nurse a sick child, does not attract single men, and the superficial belle does not satisfy her husband after marriage. Hence the prevalence of divorce. Either men must become more sensible before marriage, more resigned afterward, or mothers must begin to teach their daughters in their cradles the necessity of combining the useful with the ornamental, the practical with the entertaining qualities."

Knights of Labor.

The Knights of Labor aim to protect their members against financial difficulties, etc., Hagyard's Yellow Oil protects all classes from the effects of cold and exposure, such as rheumatism, neuralgia, lumbago, sore throat and all inflammatory pain. Nothing compares with it as a handy pain cure for man and beast.

Special cash prizes given away almost every day during competition which closes February 1st, 1891. Address OUR HOMES Publishing Co., Brockville, Canada.

There is a society sensation at Hillsburg. It was caused by a young man near Ballinafad backing out at the eleventh hour. He had been keeping company with a young lady; they had been "engaged;" the wedding day had been set, the young lady had made all preparations, when, at the eleventh hour, the young man sent word that "he had changed his mind." This ended the wedding, but, from the talk that's going, perhaps all is not ended. The disappointed young lady and the somewhat changeable young man, are both of respected families. It is supposed that the young man's love cooled.

Dark and Sluggish.

If the liver is torpid, the entire system is out of order. Healthy action is necessary to keep the liver right. To secure good blood and a healthy system in the safest, surest and best way use Burdock Blood Bitters, strongly recommended by all who use it as the best blood purifier.

A robber in San Francisco tackled a grocer named King in his store on Saturday in the usual way, presenting a pair of pistols and ordering King to throw up his hands. The grocer instead threw a scale weight and felled the robber to the floor, after which he took the pistols and fractured the man's skull in seven places.

The composition of Collingwood council is thus given by the Bulletin:—5 Presbyterians, 4 Methodist, 4 English church, and 1 Roman Catholic; 5 are Englishmen, 3 are Scotchmen 3 Irishmen and 3 are Canadians. In politics 9 are Conservatives and 6 Reformers.

Napoleon's Head.

Napoleon's head was of peculiar shape, but this did not protect him against headache. Sick headache is a common and very disagreeable affection which may be quickly removed, together with its cause, by the use of Burdock Blood Bitters, the never-failing medicine for all kinds of headaches.

BEECHAM'S PILLS.—Any, especially sufferers aware of the purifying, invigorating and gently aperient powers of these Pills, should permit no one to cloud his judgment or to warp his course. With a box of Beecham's Pills, and attention to the accompanying "Directions," he may feel thoroughly satisfied that he may safely and effectually release himself from his miseries without imparting his opposition or weakening his digestion. This most excellent medicine acts as a mentor and bodily tonic by giving nutrition, and banishes a thousand nagging forms of nervous complaints. An occasional resort to Holloway's remedy will prove highly salutary to all persons, whether well or ill, whose digestion is slow or imperfect, a condition usually evidenced by weariness, languor, listlessness and despondency.

THE MEN TO BLAME.—Ella Wheeler Wilcox laments the condition of her sisters, but she blames it—on the men. She says: "Unfortunately, Men want their sweethearts to be brilliant and showy, and their wives to be domestic and practical. The girl who understands how to sew, cook, and nurse a sick child, does not attract single men, and the superficial belle does not satisfy her husband after marriage. Hence the prevalence of divorce. Either men must become more sensible before marriage, more resigned afterward, or mothers must begin to teach their daughters in their cradles the necessity of combining the useful with the ornamental, the practical with the entertaining qualities."

Knights of Labor.

The Knights of Labor aim to protect their members against financial difficulties, etc. Rheumatic Yellow Oil protects all classes from the effects of cold and exposure, such as rheumatism, neuralgia, lumbago, sore throat and all inflammatory pain. Nothing compares with it as a handy pain cure for man and beast.

There is a society sensation at Hillsburg. It was caused by a young man near Ballinafad backing out at the eleventh hour. He had been keeping company with a young lady; they had been "engaged;" the wedding day had been set, the young lady had made all preparations, when, at the eleventh hour, the young man sent word that "he had changed his mind." This ended the wedding, but, from the talk that's going, perhaps all is not ended. The disappointed young lady and the somewhat changeable young man, are both of respected families. It is supposed that the young man's love [illegible]

Back and Sluggish.

[illegible] Healthy [illegible] and right [illegible] good blood and [illegible] in the safest, surest and best way use Burdock Blood Bitters, strongly recommended by all who use it as the best blood purifier.

A robber in San Francisco tackled a grocer named King in his store on Saturday in the usual way, presenting a pair of pistols and ordering King to throw up his hands. The grocer instead threw a scale weight and felled the robber to the floor, after which he took the pistols and fractured the man's skull in seven places.

The composition of Collingwood council is thus given by the Bulletin:—5 Presbyterians, 4 Methodist, 4 English church, and 1 Roman Catholic; 5 are Englishmen, 3 are Scotchmen 3 Irishmen and 3 are Canadians. In politics 9 are Conservatives and 6 Reformers.

Napoleon's Head.

Napoleon's head was of peculiar shape, but that did not protect him against headache. Sick headache is a common and very disagreeable affection which may be quickly removed, together with its cause, by the use of Burdock Blood Bitters, the never-failing medicine for all kinds of headaches.

Mr. Edmund Wragge, of the G. T. R., has visited Owen Sound and announced that the company is prepared to build a line from Hepworth to that town if a sufficient bonus is granted.

The women who were making wax on Joe Shrimpe's windship gloss it first, and then quickly smoothed the surface with a camel's tooth.

The smallest girl, the of the group, which consisted of four women and myself, carried a silver rule in her breast pocket with which she measured the mixture.

It is a mistake to make a wax baby out of a complexion or a children. Old blue and white Nankin china, though expensive, and a collection of this ware will give any interior artistic beauty.

Black eyes may women past thirty by dropping the line in her face. Certain lines come with time and time forms character, but a woman is not obliged to advertise her age.

A dull, gauzy, angular, awkward woman will appear lost, as in a cambric. Light and shading, some soft, clinging material that will follow every movement, multiply lines and obliterate angles.

The carver has more things to contend with than the grandmam, the gravy and the joints. There are silver tips to go on the pointy tool graver, and many holders that can be applied to roast or boiled beef.

Receptacles for tea, such as bowls, pails and tubs, and picks, tongs and spoons as well, are made in plated silver warranted to last a generation, which curiously enough, the silversmith limits to thirty years.

A diamond bead necklace is the most costly thing in trade. The stones selected as to size and color are drilled through, and in the bead form cut. They may be strung together or alternating with pearls, rubies or sapphires. Although very expensive on account of the work in piercing and cutting they are not very salable.

Women delight to have souvenirs of pleasant events, and to satisfy this longing have no scruples about appropriating little things. At public dinners, in club parlors and fashionable cafes, even in dining cars and on ocean steamers, spoons, forks, crusts and other small pieces of furniture are quietly pilfered for remembrance.

The shoulders and hips are the natural points of support down. Here the drapery should fall, and here only buckles, buttons and clasps should be located. Little catches, fastenings and hooks down the front of a garment are stiff and meaningless; they break the nice lines of grace which give energy, ease and poetry to a dress.

Appearances are often deceitful, yet they form the common basis of judgment, and the opinion prevails that the wives who appear not to being known as Martha Robinson Fox are not domestically happy nor desperately in love with their husbands. They call it individuality, personal identity, etc., but for all that the loving and lovable wife is content to be known as Mrs. Fox or Martha R. Fox.

The most beautiful as well as the most odious virtues belong to woman. Stern devotion to what she considers duty will justify her in the destruction of a sister's peace of mind; her severity is inflexible; her justice is without mercy; her revenge is limitless; her integrity accepts of no favor and her enmity will pursue a rival to the grave.

It is a most remarkable fact that women doctors have less delicacy with their patients than men. Young girls are absolutely shocked, and it is from them that the lady physicians receive their severest criticism. Let a young lady receive treatment for the same or different illness from each sex and her preference will be the man every time. Ask her why, and the invariable answer will be that Dr. Mary Matter of Fact is not nice. And not only that, but, as a class, they are less sympathetic, less considerate, less cheery than medical men.

Dull headaches, dimness of vision, partial deafness, constant hawking and spitting are a few of the symptoms of catarrh. Nasalbalm is the only certain cure known. Give it a trial.

THE OLD RAIL FENCE.

Let others in their song rehearse
The beauties they may see,
And build a monument in verse
To that a fitting tie.
But I will raise my voice to sing
A lost without protest,
That much despised, old fashioned thing,
The homely old rail fence.

What would our dreams of childhood be Without its stately path?
And those what forms we used to see
Before Gentlemen's
The fields are there like great islands
The forested forests from thence,
But almost gone from out our gaze
We find the old rail fence.

The rapid march of progress has Heard the lamentable old;
It is the fate of thing that was,

The applicant scratched his head, and stood first on one foot and then on the other. Finally he drawled out: "My grandfather and my grandmother on my mother's side were Indians. My father's father was a Spaniard and his mother a Russian. I don't know what I am."

"What's your business?" asked Lieut. Barns.

And on no carved frame
A thousand jewels in a day,
Found by the old rail fence.

Arbutus, mullen, golden-rod,
Felt its protecting one,
And though with hands full home we trod,
We had a world to spare.
Life giveth, I know, so much to-day
The past to recompense,
But with sweet memories laid away,
I keep the rail fence.

IN THE CONGO FOREST.

The Congo forest, which Mr. Stanley was obliged to traverse in ascending from the Congo to Lake Albert, covers, as he estimates it, at least three hundred thousand square miles, and is of almost impenetrable density. Stanley's description of it would hardly arouse in even an adventurous reader a longing for African travel. He says: Take a thick Scotchish copse, dripping with rain; imagine this copse to be a mere under growth, nourished beneath the impenetrable shade of ancient trees, ranging from one hundred to a hundred and eighty feet high. Briers and thorns are abundant; lazy creeks meander through the jungle, and sometimes one sees the deep allleys of a great river. Imagine this forest and jungle in all stages of decay and growth, old trees falling, leaning perilously over, prostrate; ants and insects of all kinds, sizes and colors murmuring around; monkeys and chimpanzees above, queer noises of birds and animals, crashes in the jungle, as troops of elephants rush away, dwarfs with poisoned arrows securely hidden behind some buttress or in some dark recess, strong bodied aborigines with terrible sharp spears, standing poised still as dead stumps, rain pattering down on you every day in the year, an impure atmosphere, with its dreaded consequences of mortal illness, gloom through through the day, and darkness almost impalpable throughout the night. If you can imagine such a forest, you will have a fair idea of some of the inconveniences endured by us from June to December, 1887, and from June, 1888, possibly until December of that year, when I hope to say a last farewell to the Congo forest.

HOW WOMEN WALK.

Just one out of twenty-five women seen passing down a crowded street knows how to hold her body and how to lift up and set down her feet naturally. That is the result of long observation on the part of the writer, who, moreover, remarks that the one redeeming woman is but a passable walker.

Now, only that woman who goes in for athletic exercises, or has harkened to long lectures from the dress reformers ever takes thought as to her daily bearing in public and at home. It is sufficient that she is not hunchbacked or conspicuously ungraceful, and though she doesn't know it, all those long, flowing skirt draperies from waist to foot, hide for her a multitude of what might almost be deformities—ugly, unpleasing movements, that in a man go under the uncompromising terms of knock kneed, bow legged, splay footed, and so on, but in her are hidden, only obtrude by the uneasy steps, switching skirts and lift of shoulders, by the weak droop of shoulders, undignified bend of the head and poise of arms—all of which go to make up the irregular outlines of an ugly figure.

pay a tax on every article he has to sell? He has to pay the tax on the same, because that $65,000,000 must be raised. And so it is with a farmer, so it is with every one else; each man must be taxed in some way, and they are only deceiving the people who would have them believe that a change in the trade policy of the country is going to relieve any class from taxation. Every man must pay. Taxation may be lightened, or taxation may be made burdensome and oppressive, but every man must pay his tax. It is lightened when the taxpayer is allowed to choose his own time for payment, and when he is allowed to regulate the amount he has to pay according to his ability. It is burdensome and oppressive when it is collected remorselessly, whether his crops be good or bad, whether the farmer has made money or lost it, a direct tax is always oppressive and very seldom just, and yet it is a direct tax that the advocates of unrestricted reciprocity would introduce, but this they generally conceal from the people. If they would be honest, let them tell the farmer that they propose in doing away with the tariff to collect every year 10, 15 or 20 cents an acre on all his lands; that they propose to raise his house and to raise his stock, and charge him so much on the dollar for all he is worth. Let them tell the farmer that another assessor is to come around annually, authorized to make inquisition into his private affairs, and find out what he has that is taxable; how much he has made by his farm; how many horses he has; how many cows, how many sheep, how many pigs, and that following hard after the assessor comes the collector to demand in hard cash so much on every horse, so much on every cow, so much on his sheep and so much on his pigs, and then the farmer will have some idea of the bitterness he has in store when he gives up the easy customs tax, which he can regulate for himself, and takes upon him the galling yoke of a direct tax, which is regulated for him by an inquisitor of the government.

CHUNKS OF WISDOM.

It is safe to say that no girl ever went to a party without wearing something that was borrowed.

There is a coarse streak in every man that lives; it is bound to crop out if you know him too well.

The two ugliest things on earth are the man who looks like a girl and the girl who looks like a man.

Every man knows how mean he is himself, but is not absolutely sure about his neighbor; hence his fondness for gossip.

The woman who takes three hours to dress for a party may be vain, but she will never wear short hair or try to act like a man.

When a young man starts out to get a drink and passes an old drunkard on the way we wonder that he doesn't think of him.

When a woman pays another woman a compliment she speaks of her as having been good looking once, and then adds, "But, my, how she has changed!"

A slouchy woman who cannot make the best use of her clothes is apt to say that the woman who dresses well on a similar allowance did not come by her clothes honestly.

NOMINATIONS.

THE nomination of candidates for the House of Commons takes place to-day, and the appeals for political honors will have a chance to express their views on the leading questions of the day. The Cardwell nominations will be held in Aldon's hall, Mono Mills, and for Centre Wellington at Nassagaweya.

A FREE BALLOT.

KEEP steadily in mind that there can be no terrorism from Stewart officials in this election. The ballot is an absolutely secret one. There is no way of finding out how any man has voted, unless the voter reveals it himself. His identity cannot be established by any mark or number, as it can in the iniquitous Numbered Ballot in use in Provincial elections. No, few men who may fall under the yoke of the Provincial officials need fear them, either on or after election day. Each one is at liberty to mark his ballot as he chooses, without fear of detection or punishment.

The New York Press, of Sunday last, has the attractive heading as follows:—The Crisis is near—Canada's Destiny Soon to be determined—Success for the Liberals Means Annexation.

Sir John Macdonald's expounders of the latest move in the Cartwright-Wiman-Farrer Grit conspiracy has toured from one end of the country to the other on outburst of honest and just indignation.

"The Capture of Canada by Congress" is the heading of Wiman's latest circular bearing upon Canadian politics. It is a sequel to his North American Review article on "The Conquest of Canada." It is the U.S. version of the U.R. scheme.

Sir John Macdonald put in a great day's work on Saturday. He left London at seven in the morning, spoke twice at Stratford and once each at St. Marys, Guelph, Acton and Brampton, and then came on to Toronto. He spent Sunday quietly in the city, and left Sunday evening for Kingston, where he will put in a few days's hard work.

Mr. John McClary, the leading employer of labor in London, Liberal Commissioner under Mr. Mowat and of course a life-long Reformer, has declared himself strongly against unrestricted reciprocity. He says it would lead to the closing of his works and the discharge of every person in his service. Mr. McClary wrote to the London Advertiser but they refused to publish it.

Erastus Wiman is the modestest of men. He says that no nomination in Canada would tempt him, except Algoma, that great mineral district for which he believes he will be able to do so much. Has will be induced to decline, otherwise his tombstone will be one of the attractions for tourists next summer.—Toronto Telegram.

A GRIT DODGE

That Didn't Work Worth a Cent—The Electors Caught On.

The Belleville Grits apparently underrate the Caledon electors' judgment or they would not have passed such a sham "resolution" as appears below. It was an ingenious (?) scheme to keep Mr. Stubbs in the field in order to split the Conservative vote and let Mr. Elgin Myers take his seat in the Dominion House. Ingenious. It is almost needless to say everyone saw through the thing at a glance, and now the promoters of the gigantic scheme are greeted with a laugh of scorn which they well deserve. The resolution reads:

At a meeting of the Reform electors in polling sub-division No. 1, township of Caledon, it was moved by James Richardson, seconded by Duncan McGregor, that, owing to the Conservative party having such a large majority in this electoral district of Cardwell, it would be useless for the Reformers to contest the election with R. S. White, and further our interests would be best served by supporting the candidature of Mr. W. Stubbs, and thus endeavor to secure a plank in the Reform platform, namely, Reciprocity. Therefore we pledge ourselves to support Mr. Stubbs.—Carried unanimously.

Moved by Mr. Gloudenning, second by Mr. Griffin, That a copy of this be sent to Mr. Myers and a copy to Mr. Stubbs.—Carried.

J. C. McARTHUR, Chairman. Secretary.

THE HONOR ROLL.

Day by Day It Increases Until Its Voice Will Thunder at the Polls.

Every day brings in more names of leading loyal Reformers who can no longer consent to the annexationist drift of the present leaders of the Grit party. The following list is a small collection of those who have repudiated the party that can no longer receive the support of Canada's true citizens:

Hon. Edward Blake, who retires from public life because he cannot support the present Reform policy and follow the present Reform leaders.

Hon. Wm. McDougall has not only repudiated the fad, but has denounced the Grit gang of Unrestricted Annexationists.

Commodore Welch, of Prince Edward Island, one of the staunchest Liberals of the last Parliament.

C. N. Skinner, who was elected in St. John, N.B., at the last election as a Reformer and who is now running in the same city as a Conservative.

Mr. Silas Alward, M.P.P., St. John, N.B., a Reformer for 12 years, who openly and publically repudiates Unrestricted Reciprocity.

A. A. Stockton, M.P.P., H. A. McKeown, M.P.P., Reform members of the New Brunswick Legislature, who are stumping for the Conservative candidates.

Edgar Judge, Montreal, ex president of the Liberal club of that city.

Ex-Ald. Stevens, Halifax, late president of the Reform Association of that city.

Solicitor General Pugsley of New Brunswick.

Mr. Gordon Brown, Toronto, formerly managing editor of the Globe.

A. M. Smith, Toronto, a life-long Reformer, and a prominent member of the board of trade.

D Gunn, Toronto, a large exporter and commission merchant.

Mr Fogerty, the manufacturer, Montreal, an enemy of Sir John Macdonald, but supporter of his policy.

Mr Lemon, St. John, N.B., at last election one of the best stump orators of the Grits in New Brunswick.

Chiefs Johnathan and Hill, of the Six Nation Indians in South Brant.

W. C Silver, an influential business man of Nova Scotia.

Jos. Dempster, another Bluenose manufacturer, a short time ago a Reform stalwart.

Robert Taylor, a prominent Nova Scotian, who has come over to the right side.

Daniel Cronin, another prominent Nova Scotian, whose name is added to the honor roll.

Alex. Stephen, a leading business man down by the sea.

Ex-Ald. G F. Frankland, Toronto, president of the Dominion Stock Breeders' Association.

Ex-Ald. Thos. Downey, for a quarter century a leading Liberal of Toronto.

T. Kiely, one of the large furniture manufacturers of Canada.

James Bond, of West York, councillor West Toronto Junction, another quarter century Reformer.

J. Watt, of Toronto.

Ex-Warden of Lambton county, an out Reformer, who was nearly hoisted off the platform at a Grit convention for his inveighing against indirect taxation.

Fairbanks, at last election the candidate for Lambton, who is now the Conservative candidate, unless he should resign.

Wm. Yeo, for eighteen years a Grit from Prince Edward Island.

Wm. Elmes, Prince ton.

Wm. Ramsay, Kingston, one of the founders of the Young Men's Liberal club of Toronto.

Wm. McClary, London, a large furniture manufacturer, hitherto a staunch Liberal.

Alex. Cameron, a prominent man and a life-long Liberal, but cannot support the policy of the Grits.

Wm. Grier, Berlin, hardware dealer.

Wm. A. Green, Berlin, shirt manufacturer.

D Cameron, Petrolea, an old time Reformer, who denounced Cartwright and his policy at a large meeting in Petrolea on Wednesday night.

H L Jansen, ex-mayor of Berlin.

D Hubner, a prominent manufacturer of Berlin.

Dr W Welsh, a leading citizen of the Canadian Manchester.

H Krug, Berlin, a former Liberal manufacturer.

L J Breithaupt, Berlin, a leading leather dealer and life long Liberal.

W H Brouse, barrister, Toronto, who has never cast a Conservative vote in his life. He is a son of Senator Brouse.

George McLeod, St. John, N.B., formerly Grit M.P., for Kent, N.B., who contested St John against Sir Leonard Tilley in '82 and was president of the St. John Liberal Association last year.

Thos. Platts, St. John, N.B., an old time Liberal campaigner, formerly immigration agent for New Brunswick.

J B Snowball, ex M.P. for Northumberland, N.B.

Mr. Robinson, Reform M.P. for Northumberland county, N.B.

Surveyor General Tweedie, New Brunswick.

John Burchill, a Reform member of the New Brunswick Legislature.

[illegible]

[illegible] were elected same ticket with Attorney General [illegible]

Dr Atkinson, Carleton, N.B., who led the poll in the Grit interest at the local election, but cannot support U. R.

J K Osborne, Brantford, president of the board of trade, who speaks in the name of the Harris company, the great manufacturers of agricultural implements.

L T Whitehead, of the Brantford Carriage Company, a life-long Liberal, who cannot go U. R.

Ald Chas Green, Belleville.

Ex Ald. Harold, Belleville, a Reformer of olden time.

Capt Peneoche, Orillia, a Division Court official of the Ontario government, but notwithstanding loyal.

Major Norman, of Picton, a life long Reformer, who now speaks in favor of Sir John's policy at Conservative meetings.

John Scott, Owen Sound, a prominent cattle dealer of Grey county, up to this time a staunch supporter of the Liberal party.

Ald. Roche, Halifax, the most prominent wharf builder in Nova Scotia, who cannot vote U. R.

E. A. Wilson and James Reevey, Halifax, furniture manufacturers, former Reformers down by the sea.

E. L. Tansity, manager of the Halifax Stove company, and son of Mr. Fielding's strongest supporters.

Messrs. A. & W. McKinley, Halifax, wholesale stationers and bookbinders.

T. D. Galloway, clerk of the municipality of Wiarton, hitherto a prominent Reformer of Bruce.

James Stephens, ex-councillor, Winnipeg, until now a leading Grit worker, who will support the Conservative candidate on March 5.

Stephen Blake, ex reeve of the township of Logan, Perth county, who will cast his first Conservative vote for Mr. Hesson.

John Stuart, Hamilton, wholesale grocer, who cannot favor annexation in its disguise of U.R.

J. J. Stuart, Hamilton, whom the Grits asked to be a candidate in the present election.

Albert Ward, Hamilton, of Seymour, Ward & Eyrll, manufacturers, who will vote for the Conservatives.

Benj. Greening, Hamilton, like many others, is one who cannot support the Grit policy.

CATARRH CURES COLD IN HEAD

TO THE ELECTORS
OF
CARDWELL.

GENTLEMEN:—

Having been urged by a convention composed of the Liberals of this constituency, and also by a large number of individual Conservatives, who have determined in the present crisis to place their country before their party, to become the exponent of the policy of Unrestricted Reciprocity with the United States in the pending general elections of representatives to the House of Commons, I have, against my own personal interests, consented to accede to the request; feeling, as I do, that it is impossible to assume the responsibility of declining to take whatever part may be assigned me in a struggle so fraught with weal or woe to the country.

This contest will decide whether or not the farmers of this country will have thrown open to them a market at their doors, composed of sixty-three millions of people, who are among the wealthiest and greatest consumers of the world, or whether our national efforts will, in the future, as in the past, be confined to vain attempts to negotiate trade treaties with small and poor countries in the West Indies and in Asia.

Complete evidence of the overshadowing merits of Unrestricted Reciprocity is furnished by the attitude in 1878 of the men now in power. During the contest in that year, which resulted in the overthrow of the Liberal administration of the Honorable Alexander Mackenzie, no argument was so potent in accomplishing that downfall as the one then used by the present Ministry—that the so-called "National Policy" would force free trade with the United States, in lieu of that which then prevailed, and which was by them termed the "Jug-handled policy of one sided trade."

Having secured power by this means, they now find themselves so bound hand and foot to the manufacturers, upon whom they levy their heaviest contributions for election expenses, that they are not at liberty to grant what they themselves, in 1878, admitted would prove to be so great a boon to the country.

It is true that, in order to avoid defeat at the hands of the electorate, who are determined to secure this benefit, that they affect to be making preparations to negotiate a treaty of free trade with the United States in natural products alone, a pretence which is most effectually exposed by the first Minister of the United States, the Honorable James G Blaine, who most emphatically states that no negotiations are on foot, nor would they for one moment be entertained; which latter declaration is unanimously concurred in by all the public men of the United States who have authority to speak on the subject.

To prove more conclusively, if possible, the hollowness of this pretence, Sir John Macdonald, in his address to the people of Canada, makes no reference whatever in favor of his supposed policy, nor have any of his Ministers up to the present date, so far as I have been able to discover, but their efforts have been solely confined to extolling the discredited N. P.

In addition to this, during three successive sessions of Parliament, viz: those of 1888 89 and '90, the present Ministers and their supporters have unanimously voted down resolutions of Sir Richard Cartwright's, favoring the opening up of negotiations for Unrestricted Reciprocity with the United States.

It becomes important, however, to point out the gromest betrayal of the farmers that has ever charac erized a political party, that is contained in this supposed proposition of the Government.

By their pretence of being favorable to free trade with that country in natural products alone, the Government indicate their willingness to hand over the farmers, bound and foot, to the manufacturing interests.

Most loyally, in 1876, and since, have the farmers supported the present Government, on the promise of protection to their products against foreign competition.

Now, in order to save office, they boldly proclaim their willingness to expose the farmers to competition in every thing he produces, at the same time protecting the manufacturer to the extreme limit.

In other words, the farmer would, under their system, be bound to sell to the manufacturer, and other purchasers, for the lowest price that could be produced by competition, whilst compelled to give protection prices for everything he purchases from the manufacturer.

For the purpose of arousing their prejudice, and thus divert discussion from their true interests, the farmers are told that there are two insuperable objections to the adoption of U. R.

Firstly, that the revenue under that system would be insufficient to cover the annual expenditure, and, secondly, that the proposition is veiled treason. The absurdity of the latter cry is so manifest that it is only necessary to point out what the definition is, furnished by these gentlemen themselves, respectively, of loyalty and disloyalty. According to their own doctrine, exposing the farmer to competition in everything he has to sell, and protecting their own favorites the manufacturers, to the highest limit, is loyalty, whilst the Liberal policy of placing both on equal footing is treason.

In urging this cry, the Ministerialists are unconsciously paying the highest possible tribute to the Liberal proposal, namely, that its benefits would be so great that it would lead to a demand for a political union.

Experience, however, teaches us that the reverse is the rule, that when the people are prosperous they are satisfied with their existing condition, and it is when they are in distress that a change is sought for.

Let every farmer ask himself whether or not, while dwelling under the British flag, if he gets $30 more for a horse, $10 more per head for his cattle, $1.50 more for a sheep, 5c. more per lb. for dressed fowl, 5c. more per dozen for his eggs, 30c. per bushel more for his barley, 40c. more for his oats and peas and $4 more per ton for his hay, and other prices in proportion for everything else he produces, he would feel, by reason of that, like rebelling against that flag.

It is only when people cannot obtain a great boon that they rebel, and not when they can obtain it without.

As to the revenue argument, it is an easy matter to show that by curtailing the expenditure within reasonable limits, the revenue and expenditure could easily be [illegible] on reasonable [illegible] repayment. M[illegible]gages and [illegible] debentures purchased.

J. HERBERT M[illegible]

to a foreign land of our most promising Canadians will cease, for the palpable reason that if they have the benefit of the U. S. market by stopping at home, all inducements to desert their own flag will be removed.

Then fresh life and energy will be infused into every industry of our country, and an era of prosperity such as never has been witnessed before in our land, and such as never will be witnessed without Unrestricted Reciprocity, will dawn upon us, which will soon cause our country to take that stand among the nations of the world her national wealth so eminently fits her for.

Fearing that I would not, owing to the shortness of the time, decisively left us by our opponents, be able to place my views before every elector, I have taken this opportunity of explaining them at greater length than is customary in an address of this character.

Believing, therefore, that those views, if put in force, will advance the best interests of every individual in the country, I confidentially ask for your support. I am,

Yours most obediently,
ELGIN MYERS.

COPY OF A CURIOUS LOVE LETTER.

MADAM,—

The great love tenderness I have hitherto expressed for you is false, and I now feel that my indifference towards you increases proportionably every day, and the more I see you the more you appear ridiculous and an object of contempt and the more I feel disposed, inclined and finally determined, to hate you. Believe me, I never had the slightest inclination to offer you my hand and heart. Our last conversation has, I assure you, left a wretched insipidity, which has by no means possessed me with the most exalted opinion of your character. Yes, Madam, and you will much oblige me by avoiding me, and if ever we are united, I shall experience nothing but the fearful hatred of my parents added to an everlasting disgusting of living with you. Yes, Madam, I think sincerely—You need not put yourself to the smallest trouble or send or write me an answer. Adieu. And believe me that I am so averse to you, that it is really impossible that I should ever be.

Madam,
Your affectionate love till death,

To Miss M——— W. G.

There are two ways of reading this letter. Her father compelled his daughter to show him all letters sent to her. The unsuspecting father read it straightforward, but the daughter (having the clue) read it otherwise. Find the contrast or go to MACADAM'S for it.

Conversation after Marriage.

We had better decide now on the best place to do our trading. MACADAM'S, of course, for Tea, Sugar and Groceries, and I heard some people talking on the street say he had the largest, the best assorted and best value in Ladies' and Childrens' Boots and Shoes of any one in Town. We will put him down for our Boots and Shoes. Now, for Crockery. Well, we don't need to discuss that matter long. Why? Do you think MACADAM'S the best? Certainly I do; he is the only one who keeps an assortment worth looking at.

For further particulars and conditions of sale apply to KINGSTONE, WOOD & SYMON, Vendors' Solicitors, 18 King-st. West, Toronto.

ESSAY & McLEAN, Auctioneers, Orangeville.

Dated 3rd February 1891.

It is true that, in order to avoid defeat at the hands of the electorate, who are determined to secure this benefit, that they affect to be making preparations to negotiate a treaty of free trade with the United States in natural products alone, a pretence which is most effectually exposed by the first Minister of the United States, the Honorable James G. Blaine, who most emphatically states that no negotiations are on foot, nor would they for one moment be entertained; which latter declaration is unanimously concurred in by all the public men of the United States who have authority to speak on the subject.

To prove more conclusively, if possible, the hollowness of this pretence, Sir John Macdonald, in his address to the people of Canada, makes no reference whatever in favor of his supposed policy, nor have any of his Ministers up to the present date, so far as I have been able to discover, but their efforts have been solely confined to extolling the discredited N. P.

In addition to this, during three successive sessions of Parliament, viz.: those of 1888 89 and '90, the present Ministers and their supporters have unanimously voted down resolutions of Sir Richard Cartwright's, favoring the opening up of negotiations for Unrestricted Reciprocity with the United States.

It becomes important, however, to point out the grossest betrayal of the farmers that has ever charac erised a political party, that is contained in this supposed proposition of the Government.

By their pretence of being favorable to free trade with that country in natural products alone, the Government indicate their willingness to hand over the farmers, bound and foot, to the manufacturing interests.

Most loyally, in 1876, and since, have the farmers supported the present Government, on the promise of protection to their products against foreign competition.

Now, in order to save office, they boldly proclaim their willingness to expose the farmers to competition in everything he produces, at the same time protecting the manufacturer to the extreme limit.

In other words, the farmer would, under their system, be bound to sell to the manufacturer, and other purchasers, for the lowest price that could be produced by competition, whilst compelled to give protection prices for everything he purchases from the manufacturer.

For the purpose of arousing their prejudice, and thus divert discussion from their true interests, the farmers are told that there are two insuperable objections to the adoption of U. R.

Firstly, that the revenue under that system would be insufficient to cover the annual expenditure, and, secondly, that the proposition is veiled treason. The absurdity of the latter cry is so manifest that it is only necessary to point out what the definition is, furnished by these gentlemen themselves, respectively, of loyalty and disloyalty. According to their own doctrine, exposing the farmer to competition in everything he has to sell, and protecting their own favorites the manufacturers, to the highest limit, is loyalty, whilst the Liberal policy of placing both on equal footing is treason.

In urging this cry, the Ministerialists are unconsciously paying the highest possible tribute to the Liberal proposal, namely, that its benefits would be so great that it would lead to a demand for a political union.

Experience, however, teaches us that the reverse is the rule; that when the people are prosperous they are satisfied with their existing condition, and it is when they are in distress that a change is sought for.

Let every farmer ask himself whether or not, while dwelling under the British flag, if he gets $30 more for a horse, $10 more per head for his cattle, $1 50 more for a sheep, 5c. more per lb. for dressed fowl, 5c. more per dozen for his eggs, 30c. per bushel more for his barley, 40c. more for his oats and peas and $4 more per ton for his hay, and other prices in proportion for everything else he produces, he would feel, by reason of that, like rebelling against that flag.

It is only when people cannot obtain a great boon that they rebel, and not when they can obtain it without.

As to the revenue argument, it is an easy matter to show that by curtailing the expenditure within reasonable limits, the revenue and expenditure could easily [illegible]

Yours respectfully,

HUGHES BROS.

The great love tenderness I have hitherto expressed for you is false, and I now feel that my indifference towards you increases proportionably every day, and the more I see you the more you appear ridiculous and an object of contempt and the more I feel disposed, inclined and finally determined, to hate you. Believe me, I never had the slightest inclination to offer you my hand and heart. Our last conversation has, I assure you, left a wretched insipidity, which has by no means possessed me with the most exalted opinion of your character. Yes, Madam, and you will much oblige me by avoiding me, and if ever we are united, I shall experience nothing but the fearful hatred of my parents, added to an everlasting displeasure of living with you. Yes, Madam, I think sincerely—You need not put yourself to the smallest trouble or send or write me an answer. Adieu. And believe me that I am so averse to you, that it is really impossible that I should ever be.

Madam,

Your affectionate love till death,

THE WORLD OF FASHION.

STRAWBERRY AND FRUIT JUICES IN MAKING UP.

[illegible]

The idea of "making up" is extremely fantastic and suggestive of the ballet in the version of fairland tales, and yet such is the delicacy of exterior in most faces in this country that in the hands of brilliant lights their beauty seems faded, or is transitory. Particularly is this noticeable in houses of the theatre or opera, where the glare of the footlights increases the color of delicate women and dims the relieving orgs of the brilliant and refined youthful form.

The great beauties of Brevoss seem small much of their triumph to the secrets of the toilet, but, unfortunately so delicately were these secrets guarded that they were buried with their owners. But since it is every woman's humble duty and privilege to make the best of the beauty which she possesses, whether the Creator has endowed her with a greater or lesser share of charms, a little chapter on the "toilet" for ladies may be found some fair readers.

Some one who in the arts asserts that the appearance of the neck and arms is always most pleasing to another dress when they have been sponged with perfumed fluid water, thoroughly dried, and then lightly with a little powdered rice and orris root powder. While this is still damp a thick coating of powder is applied with a puff and left on until the hour arrives. It is then rubbed in thoroughly, but gently, the skin will seem wonderfully white, and traces of powder will be a disappointment.

The crowning tint of the lips is bestowed by moistening them with perfume, and when that [illegible]

[illegible] fair and natural a bloom, and one is so seldom encountered as rouge or paint. Just why it is so much more shocking to use a bit of color on the cheeks than any amount of powder on the face and arms and shoulders is a bit difficult to comprehend, but such seems to be the prevalent opinion among conservative women. The beauty vegetable is simply cut with a knife and left to drain the juice out for beauty's use. The liquid should be applied with a camel's hair brush and toned down after it dries with a coating of powder. But the woman who uses it must have such artistic manifestions and nicety of execution that even her most intimate friends will never fancy that she is "made up," or the whole process will result in disastrous failure.

A charming winter arrangement for your drawing room or any room with a sunny exposure, is to have double sashes, and between them, in the space left by the window sill, to place the boxes filled with growing plants. The boxes should be perforated to allow of drainage. When the plants require water, the boxes can be taken out and placed on a strip of oilcloth to drain. If it is possible to heat the apartment between the sashes by means of a few your little scrap of a greenhouse can be made to serve as a capital ventilator by being arranged in the following manner:—It is a well known fact that leaves of growing plants in a cold or warm air that passes through them, go to the inner sash to left open below and at the top, the ascending air current is purified before it spreads over the upper part of the room. So, in addition to the beauty and cheerfulness which you derive from flowers, they may also be of sanitary use. On very cold nights the boxes should, if in cold frames, be removed from the windows and placed in the room; otherwise the plants may be frost-bitten.

All sorts of lovely and beautiful floral designs are made for interior decoration to cover the ugly scars left over the register, about the place occupied by the stove and near the fireplace and steam coil. A novel grate ornament of recent design, likely to be popular, represents a cornucopia or horn-shaped basket of cream rush, dropped in artistic and natural fashion, and holding a trailing plant of artificial flowers. From the centre a hanging basket is pendent, and in this a natural plant can be kept green and beautiful. Then there are rush cabinets, which fit close to the chimney board and screen, the front resting on the fender. On side brackets there is room for potted plants, and the whole is made bright and pretty by artistic bits of colored silks. For brackets and corner tables there are boxes made of willow, rush and cane, with detachable pachepots.

The late Sioux war cost the United States $2,600,000.

[illegible] "How much do you make in this store?" asked the old lady.

"Eight dollars a week, madam," she replied.

"And are you live comfortably on that?"

"Well, you see, I make considerable outside."

"How?"

"I have a typewriter at home and I get from two to five dollars a week for copying. Then I drop a lady's hair when she goes to large dances. She is one of the Four Hundred, and one day she was talking with me at this counter and she liked the way my hair was arranged. You see I have a very great quantity of hair and so I wear it low, and as she thought I manage it prettily as well, and got to be her hair dresser. She said she would pay me if I would teach her how to do it. I offered to do it for her and I did so at her house. Since then she has sent for me quite regularly, and at each visit I make her I receive $5. I also make gentlemen's wigs and sell for drama manufacturers, and get $1.10 a dozen for them. I can finish a dozen in two evenings at home. I usually employ myself in this way when I have no typewriting to do. Altogether I make from $10 to $20 a week, and, as I have a sister that makes just as much, she and mamma and I are really laying up a nest egg for a rainy day."

"Yes," said the old lady, "but where do you get and get the time during all this?"

"Oh," responded the shop girl: "I don't mind any pastime, except Sundays, when we all go down to Hunter Island and take dinner with numerous sisters."

The old lady patted the shop girl's hand, kindly and smiled.

"You are a good young woman," said she. "I shall see you again. You deserve a good and rich husband. And who knows, perhaps you'll get one. We'll see, we'll see."—New York Sun.

Home Furnishings.

In furnishing a room it is wisest to begin with the wall-hangings. They should be chosen with reference to the light. An apartment which is dull or gloomy should be hung with yellow.

For a library with a northern exposure choose a plain canvas-finished paper in olive green tint. The border will probably be of ivy, picked out in two shades of red. The picture-rod is of oak and forms a most substantial finish. A dado of red India matting is edged with an oak chair rail. The wood work of the room is polished the lighter shade of red, and the carpet shows the two warmer tints combined with an intermediate shade of buff. White sash curtains screen the windows and outline on their delicately-sprayed surface the very curtains of crimson serge with their bands of deep red velvet. The furniture is of oak and the pictures are framed in silver finish.

A dainty bedchamber has all its appointments in blue and white. The bedroom suit is of white enamelled pine, and has, instead of the regulation [illegible], a long toilet [illegible] with an oval [illegible] mirror of [illegible] framed in white enamel. The window hangings are of blue, the small rocker bears a blue bow, and the only departure in the brown leaf sprays which trellis with the blue flowers spangling the creamy ground of carpet.

A new and pretty conceit is to use pale green in decorating a bath room. All the necessaries for the bathing apparatus of the family are made of green, and each pocket bears the owner's initial. A small cabinet with its compartment for medicines is enamelled white, and a gathered curtain of green art muslin swings before the shelves which hold non-poisonous remedies for simple ailments.

In house-furnishing there is just one thing to consider before cost, and that is fitness. No modest little parlor with its suggestions of comfort and daily use should be made the care of a white elephant, in the shape of a [illegible] chair which a man would [illegible] it. If one desires to keep a [illegible] troublesome animals, the [illegible] warrant the setting apart [illegible] show. In small homes comfort [illegible] have appearance and pay a [illegible] to the plunging of congenial [illegible]

A Lady of Normandy.

There is [illegible] picture of a lady of Normandy [illegible] should be found blithful in some tittings for our own high-stepping belles. A well proportioned, slender figure of graceful bearing, the features aquiline, complexion clear, eyes hazel, and help of chestnut hair worn in smooth plaits that fall over the shoulders to the waist. On her bridal day, these shining locks, bound only by a chaplet of jewels, flowed freely about her form, lying lightly against a robe "of good and doeskin scarlet"—for white was with the Norman not a color of mourning—but the matron confines the tresses which the bride suffered to fall loose. Yet her dress is still gay in color, a hooded robe of green of Ghent, the dropping sleeves knotted up lest they should trail upon the ground. Even so it is the ample cuffs hang from wrist to heel. The embroidered kerchief, too, is gathered in a loose knot to protect from soil its silver fringes, yet should such be spoken the dowdy overmuch chatterers have ventured to hint that the kerchief might well be discarded, as a garment savoring more of fashions past than present, but their mistress makes a sufficient answer that she sought in early youth to dress rather for warmth than appearance, nor be the first to shift apparel with the shifting humor of the day.

Why suffer from Catarrh and all its disagreeable symptoms when Nasal Balm will permanently cure you? Do not let dealers persuade you that they have other remedy is just as good, ask for Nasal Balm and take no other.

these are made for interior decoration to cover the ugly seam left over the register, about the place occupied by the stove and near the fireplace and steam coil. A novel quaint ornament of recent design, likely to be popular, represents a cornucopia, or horn-shaped vase, made of crash rush, draped in artistic stuff and enriched by a cropping plant of artificial flowers. From its centre a hanging basket to match, and in this a natural plant can be kept green and beautiful. Then there are rush cabinets, which fit close to the chimney board and screen, the front resting on the fender. On this bracket there is room for potted plants, and the whole is made bright and pretty by artistic bits of colored silks. For brackets and corner tables there are brass made of willow, rush and cane, with detachable sachepots.

[illegible] the [illegible] of [illegible] silks. He continues did that of her mother during the still small hours of old-fashioned courtship.

Knights of Labor.

The Knights of Labor aim to protect their members against financial difficulties, etc., Hagyard's Yellow Oil protects all who use it from the effects of cold and exposure, such as rheumatism, neuralgia, lumbago, sore throat and all inflammatory pain. Nothing compares with it as a handy pain cure for man and beast.

A $750 COTTAGE.

or its equivalent in cash will be given to the person detecting the greatest number of errors, (words wrongly spelled or misplaced) in the December issue of "Our Homes." In addition will be given two cash prizes of $200 each, four of one $100, eight of $50, ten of $25, twenty five of $10, fifty of $5, and one hundred and fifty of $1, distributed in the order mentioned in rules and regulations, which will be sent with a copy of December issue on receipt of 15 cents in stamps. Special cash prizes given away almost every day during competition which closes February 1st, 1891. Address OUR HOMES Publishing Co., Brockville, Canada.

The late Sioux war cost the United States $3,000,000.

In furnishing a room it is well to begin with the wall-hangings. They should be chosen with reference to the light. An apartment which is dull or gloomy should be hung with yellow.

For a library with a northern exposure choose a plain cream-finished paper to delicate buff. The border will probably be buff, picked out with two shades of red. The picture-rod is of oak and forms a most substantial finish. A dado of red India matting is edged with an oak chair rail. The woodwork of the room is painted the lighter shade of red, and the carpet shows the two warmer tints combined with an intermediate shade of buff. White sash curtains screen the windows and outline on their delicately-wrought surfaces the heavy curtains of crimson serge with their bands of deep red velvet. The furniture is of oak and the pictures are framed in silver finish.

A dainty bedchamber has all its appointments in blue and white. The bedroom suit is of white enamelled pine and has, instead of the regulation bureau, a tall [illegible] with six drawers. There is also a shoal [illegible] framed in white enamel. The window hangings are of blue, the small repeat bears a blue bow, and the only departure is in the brown leaf sprays which mingle with the blue flowers spangling the creamy ground of carpet.

A pure and pretty concept is to use pale green in decorating a bath room. All the new articles for the bathing apparatus of the family are made of green, and each pocket bears the owner's initial. A small cabinet with its compartment for medicines is enamelled white, and a gathered curtain of green art muslin swings before the shelves which hold non-poisonous remedies for simple ailments.

In house-furnishing there is just one thing to consider before cost, and that is fitness. No modest little parlor with its suggestions of comfort and daily use should be made the care of a white elephant, in the shape of a [illegible] chair which a man would [illegible] it. If one desires to keep a [illegible] troublesome animals, the [illegible] warrant the setting apart [illegible] show. In small houses co[illegible] above appearance and pay a [illegible] to the grouping of congenial bits [illegible]

A Lady of Normandy.

[illegible] picture of a lady of Normandy [illegible] probably be found blameless in some tastings for our own high-stepping ladies. A well proportioned, slender figure of graceful bearing, the features aquiline, complexion clear, eyes hazel, and hair of chestnut has worn in smooth plaits that fall over the shoulders to the waist. On her bridal day, the plaits locks, bound only by a chaplet of jewels, flowed freely about her form, lying lightly against a robe "of good and delicate scarlet"—for white was with the Norman an emblem of mourning—but the matron confines the tresses which the bride suffered to fall loose. Yet her dress is still gay in color, a hooded robe of green of Ghent, the drooping sleeves knotted up lest they should trail upon the ground. Even as it is the simple cuffs hang fresh wrist to heel. The embroidered kerchief, too, is gathered in a loose knot to protect from soil its silver fringes, yet should south be spoken the dame's overcoming chatelaines have ventured to hint that the kerchief might well be discarded, as a garment savoring more of fashions past than present, but their mistress makes a sadfast answer that she was taught in early youth to dress rather for warmth than appearance, nor be the first to shift apparel with the shifting humor of the day.

HE HAS SHOT HIS MAN

An Old Orangeville Boy Pulls a Gun in a Detroit Saloon.

Henry E. Hamilton Shoots a Young Man Named Mallory and Is Held on a Charge of Assault with Intent to Murder.

Orangeville has sent out a great number of young men, and to their credit be it said the majority of them have distinguished themselves in their respective callings. But now and again, perhaps once in a decade, we are called upon to report some wild escapade on the part of an Orangeville boy. Many of our citizens will remember Jesse Hamilton, son of the late Samuel Hamilton, who some years ago removed to Windsor, opposite Detroit. Jesse served his time at the printing trade in this town, and has for a considerable time been floating around between Windsor, Detroit, Toledo and Cleveland. So long as he worked at his trade he succeeded fairly well, and life passed smoothly as it does with the rest of us; but in an evil hour he embarked in the saloon business, and latterly has been located at 115 Gratiot avenue, Detroit. It might be a libel on the liquor trade to say that his downfall dated from the hour he engaged in the traffic, but be that as it may, he is now held by the Michigan authorities on a charge of assault with intent to murder. There are different versions of the affair, but the following report, condensed from the Detroit Free Press, is perhaps as authentic, and favorable to the unfortunate fellow, as any:

Wm. Mallory, a laborer, 22 years of age, was shot in the left breast at 1:20 on Friday afternoon, 6th inst., by Jesse K. Hamilton, in the latter's saloon, 115 Gratiot avenue. Mallory, who is inclined to be "tough," and plays somewhat as a pugilist, went into Hamilton's place, partially intoxicated, and engaged in a wordy war with the proprietor. Mallory made a menacing gesture with a plate at Hamilton, who was behind the bar, whereupon Hamilton drew a revolver, which was discharged when on a level with Mallory, who stood a few feet away. The bullet entered the breast, just below the collar bone, took a downward course and passed near the auxiliary artery. The revolver used was a five barreled English bull-dog, of 38-calibre. Mallory was taken to the emergency hospital, where the bullet was cut out, and the surgeons have hopes of his recovery. Hamilton was arrested on the street by a detective, and when seen in his cell by a representative of the Free Press made the following statement:

"This man Mallory has been into my place a number of times and tried to kick up trouble. He is a professional pugilist, and I am no fighting man at all, and have always tried to avoid quarreling with him. Christmas day he was so abusive to my bartender, Ed Austin, that he had to take hold of him and throw him out of the house. Another time he came in there and wanted to 'do up' Andy Travis, but I made him go away. Friday night he was in again and while we were scrubbing out raised such a disturbance that I had to rebuke him a number of times. To-day I was just arranging a lunch when he put in an appearance. He had been drinking and was very ugly. He made several offensive remarks to me and I told him to keep still, as I had no time to bother with such cattle as he. This seemed to make him very angry, and picking up a plate and a knife off the lunch table he shouted that he would brain me. I had passed around back of the bar, and he threw the plate at me with all his might. I whirled partially around, and drawing the gun, which I seldom carry, from my hip pocket, held it out in front of me, while holding it with both hands, intending only to make a bluff at him, when it went off. I don't know how. Billy never opened his mouth, but turned and walked out into the street, and I put the gun away in a drawer. I thought, as did Ed. Austin, that the bullet went into the wall, and never dreamed for an instant that I had shot Billy until Joe Manning told me while I was walking down Monroe avenue. I am sorry for Billy's sake as well as for my own that he is wounded, and I hope he isn't seriously hurt. Although it would probably have no effect in court, yet I swear before God that the shooting was entirely accidental."

Hamilton, who is a strapping big fellow of almost unvarying good nature, is a painter by trade, and has worked on a number of Detroit papers. His saloon is quite a resort for the lads who are "handy with their dukes."

Mallory says he went into Hamilton's to get a lunch, and Hamilton began abusing him. He took exception to this, and was leaving the place when Hamilton shot him.

Hamilton's record is not improved by the fact that his wife is suing him for a divorce in the Wayne circuit court, although that is in no way connected with the shooting.

Hon. J. M. Gibson, the Liberal candidate, was elected over Mr. Stinson, the Conservative who was unseated, at Hamilton on Tuesday by a majority of 676.

Sheriff Prendergast of Saginaw, Mich., arrived in Hamilton on Monday morning with a young colored woman named Eliza J. Hartwell, whom he took up to the asylum, left her in the hall despite the protest of Reynolds and slid out. He had brought her from Saginaw, where she was taken by her relatives in October last. Dr. Reynolds telephoned the police, and detectives detained the smart sheriff as he was about to depart on the 9 o'clock. Prendergast refused to take the woman back, and has consulted the United States consul.

Stanley Books.

Stanley books are now as common as coughs and colds. To get rid of the latter use Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam, the best Canadian cough cure for children or adults. It cures by its soothing, healing and expectorant properties, every form of throat and lung trouble, pulmonary complaints, etc.

Mr. Andrew Kaye of Whittington fell from a load of hay while in Orangeville a couple of weeks ago and broke his arm. He is now getting along nicely.

HUNTING FOR A POLICY.

PROVINCIAL INTERFERENCE.

The Ottawa Citizen well says that in nothing is the hollow hypocrisy of Grit professions more clearly manifested than in the open and flagrant manner in which the premiers of Ontario and Quebec are neglecting their public duties to participate in the Dominion elections. One of the great cries of the Grit party always has been that federal and provincial politics should be kept distinct, and Conservatives have shown practically that they agree to this principle by electing to the Local Legislature, in Conservative constituencies, Grits, who are otherwise good citizens—as instanced in the city of Ottawa. But how do the Liberals act up to their professions? Here we have Mr. Mowat calling the Ontario Legislature, at a late and inconvenient time of the year, and then immediately adjourning it until "after the fifth of March," in order that his adherents might take part in the grand patriotic effort now being made by the Grit party to hand Canada over to a foreign country! And in Quebec we have Mr. Mercier calling the Legislature together at an unusually early period, because, he represented, it was necessary that he should immediately have authority to borrow $10,000,000 to tide Quebec over the bankruptcy towards which he is hurrying her, and then coolly abandoning his proposed trip to Europe so that he might strike hands with Mr. Laurier in his effort to sever Canada from the Mother Country, and annex her to the United States. Never before have the Liberal leaders so openly and so shamelessly abandoned their so called principles, and thrown every pretence of decency to the winds, in their frantic attempt to climb into the treasury benches.

"The poverty in all our great centres of civilization, as well as throughout the landlord and mortgaged cursed frontiers, is, year by year, growing more terrible and more general. There have been 2,650 foreclosures of farm mortgages in Kansas during the past six months. In the city of New York there are over 150,000 people who earn less than 60 cents a day. Thousands of this number are poor girls who work from 11 to 16 hours a day. Last year there were over 23 000 families forcibly evicted in that city, owing to their inability to pay their rent. One person in every ten who died in New York in 1889 was buried in the potter's field. These are facts which may well give rise to anxious thoughts.—Detroit Sun

In the month of December last there were 23,050 men on the pay rolls of the C. P. R Company in Canada. The Liberal party fought against every step taken by the Government to build this railroad from the day the contract was signed by the syndicate till the day the last spike was driven at Craigs lachie. If they had had their little way, where would this army of workmen have been employed? They would have gone to the States. The Conservative National Policy kept them in Canada and all who supply them as well.

Erastus Wiman announces that he will, in the March number of The North American Review, give an answer to Sir John Macdonald's address to Canadians. The writing of this reply, the little undertaking as to failures in Canada and arranging for the instant passage of a bill through Congress favorable to the Canadian Liberal proposal of commercial union—not to mention passing around the hat for moral support—these seem to be about the only duties assigned to the leader of the foreign wing of the great International R form party. But that reply will profit the party nothing.

Napoleon's Head.

Napoleon's head was of peculiar shape, but that did not protect him against headache. Sick headache is a common and very disagreeable affection which may be quickly removed, together with its cause, by the use of Burdock Blood Bitters, the never-failing medicine for all kinds of headaches.

An exchange publishes the following interesting romance, and vouches for the truth of the story:—An original and remarkable mode of securing a husband was adopted by an Ontario young lady. Last autumn, when packing apples in her father's orchard, she placed a letter in the barrel among the fruit, describing her age and appearance, at the same time expressing a willingness to exchange the liberty of single life for the soft and silken bonds of matrimony, and inviting the person into whose hands the apples might come to address her if he was not already married. The barrel was purchased by a banker who lives a few miles from this place, and in due time the letter was discovered. Attracted by the description, and writing, and pleased with the novelty of the adventure, a correspondence was commenced and shortly after Christmas the young man returned from the east with a good looking and amiable young lady, who has shown by her ingenuity that there is more ways than one of procuring a husband.

THE HOG INDUSTRY

Would be Substituted by Unrestricted Reciprocity.

Lewis Wiple, Esq., Leamington, Ont.

DEAR SIR,—We learn with much pleasure that you are contesting South Essex in the interests of the present government. As the question of Unrestricted Reciprocity is a prominent platform of the Opposition, and as they hope to secure the farmers' vote in support of such a measure, we desire to say that in our opinion the hog industry, a very important one with your constituents, will be almost completely destroyed if Unrestricted Reciprocity, Commercial Union, or any class of legislation be enacted permitting the free import of American hogs or produce.

Three weeks ago we paid in Essex Centre $6.25 f.o.b. for dressed hogs or $6.43 Toronto. This week we unloaded two cars from this point, costing us $5.40, delivered Toronto—a difference of $1 03 per hundred. The average weights were practically the same, the hogs in both instances being of fine quality—selected lots as received from the farmer. We take it that 25 or 30 cents of this difference is owing to lower markets in Chicago, the balance is due to the uncertainty which is felt as to what may be the outcome of the appeal to the country March 5.

We believe packers (in common with leading business men) all over the province recognize that if there is a change of government, the immediate effect will be a general uneasiness in all trade circles—a particularly anxious feeling among holders of hog products—result ing in a general shrinkage of values in cured meats, and necessarily lower prices for hogs to farmers.

We have faith in the hog industry of our country. Given a fair chance to live, we think it will develop rapidly. We have before us a copy of statistics of crops in Ontario, under date November 10, 1890, and find this statement, page 13:

| | 1889. | 1890. |
|---|---|---|
| Swine (No. of hogs) | 835,469 | 1,140,559 |

The number of swine has taken a leap upwards since last year—305,090 hogs or 36 per cent.

Take $8 per hog for an estimate, and we have the value of this product to the farmers of Ontario, $9 724,472 The increase in one year (36 per cent.) being $2,444,720.

For the former free entry of American hogs or product means a stoppage of this development, a rapid reduction of the number of hogs raised and wanted, and a much lower price for what reach the markets. For the packer it means closing up his factory, discharging his employees, and letting the business which he has done be transferred to Chicago or other American centres.

We think the farmers of Ontario ought not to sacrifice a product which developed in value over $2,000,000 in one year. Yours, etc.,

D GUNN, FLAVELLE & Co.

SHELBURNE.

The thaw interfered with the masquerade carnival here on Tuesday evening.

Miss Greenwood left Shelburne on Tuesday for Manitoba.

Miss McKinnon, teacher in the public school, has been confined to her room through illness.

A $175 mare belonging to Wm. Adamson of Whitfield, had its leg broken by being kicked by another horse and had to be shot.

Miss Crosthwaite, a missionary from China, gave two lectures in the Primrose Presbyterian church on the evenings of the 22nd and 23rd of this month under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor society.

Rev. E. I. Hart, of Honeywood, occupied the pulpit of the Shelburne Methodist church last Sabbath. On Sunday, Feb. 22nd, the church anniversary services will be held, sermons to be preached by Rev. E. G. Hill, of Grand Valley.

Mrs. McClelland received a check from the Provincial Provident Association for $5,000, being the amount of insurance held in that society by her husband, the late T. J. McClelland, of Shelburne.

The A. O. U. W., and I. O. F. and C. O. F. societies' lodgeroom in the Berwick block is receiving a thorough cleaning and overhauling and being nicely papered. An organ has also been procured

A Reform meeting was held in the town hall on Friday evening last. Addresses were given by Messrs Jas. McMullen, M. P. for North Wellington, and Dr. Macdonald, M. P. for Bruce. Mr. Colwell Graham was chairman.

A meeting of the business men of Shelburne interested in a telephone trunk line was held in the council chamber on Friday evening last. Mr. W. C. Scott, of Sarnia, represented the company. It is proposed to run a line to Shelburne from Orangeville. The people of Shelburne made a proposition to furnish the poles, as the company would not put the line through without assistance. The offer made has since been accepted by the president of the company.

Pink Pills are not a patent medicine, but a remedy carefully prepared by an experienced physician for the cure of female complaints and nervous disorders. Try them.

$100 000 00 of private money to loan on Real Estate, at 6 per cent. interest yearly—good terms—by E. E. Hamilton, Grand Valley.

GRAND VALLEY.

A dressed hog was sold here the other day that weighed 618 lbs.

The Orange lodge which was to be held in Orangeville has been postponed for a couple of weeks.

On Sunday of last week Rev. Mr. Wilson of Charlemont and Rev. G. Crozier exchanged pulpits, when Mr. Wilson preached two able sermons.

The Presbyterian church's annual meeting was held a few days ago. New managers and collectors were appointed, and the returns indicate a large increase in membership.

The next division court sittings were fixed for Thursday the 5th March next, but as that is the day on which the Dominion elections will be held the judge has postponed the sittings to Friday the 13th March.

Jim McMullen has held political meetings here lately. He attempted to explain why he voted against the Orange incorporation bill, but could not do it very satisfactorily. The temperance people wanted to know how he would be on the temperance question and he could not agree with them.

While returning from a party which was held at Mr. John Nicholl's on Friday night last, Miss Maggie McDonald, who was in a cutter, had the misfortune to be thrown out of the rig and seriously injured by one of the horses of a runaway team which followed behind, stepping or striking her on the head. There is not as yet much improvement in her condition.—Star.

SHELBURNE.

John Mills, an old resident of Melancthon, died on Friday week. His funeral was the largest ever seen in that township.

Rykham and Lee, who were arrested here some days ago on the charge of housebreaking, and taken to Brampton, have been committed for trial.

Steps are being taken to secure telephone communication for Shelburne. The company stipulate that those interested purchase poles sufficient to reach from Orangeville to Shelburne, when the lines will be completed and phones supplied to subscribers. Subscriptions for the purchase of poles are being raised.

Dr Rolstin sustained a not very serious fracture of the left arm by being thrown from his cutter on Saturday last. He is going around and attending to his patients as usual.

Walter Wilson was driving Mr. A. B. Noble's delivery horse and sleigh down Owen Sound street Monday morning when one of the tugs became detached from the sleigh, the horse took fright, and in turning the corner of Main street ran a rapid pace the sleigh slid into Mr. R. J. Thomas' store window, demolishing the lower half completely. Walter was thrown off before the collision took place, and sustained no injury beyond a shaking up and a drenching in the slush. The horse broke loose from the sleigh.

MARSVILLE.

Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Beaham of Eramosa spent Sunday with Mrs. Beaham's parents, Mr and Mrs. John Wilson.

Our township council is composed of five persons, two of whom are Methodists, two Presbyterians and one Disciple; three are Canadians and two are Irishmen.

Mr. John Scott of the 13th con., had a great wood bee recently. In the evening a large number of young people joined in a merry dance, which continued until late in the morning.

The elections are going merrily along and Mr Hunter's own township is going to give him a grand majority. The people of this municipality don't want to see Uncle Sam over in this British country.

GRAND VALLEY.

Wm. Watts is seriously ill.

John Mitchell accompanied Walter Gordon to British Columbia.

Samuel Graham, sr., was kicked by one of his horses recently. He is recovering.

Tom Bird will pay his creditors 40 cents on the dollar.

Wm. Donaghy, of the 12th con., East Garafraxa, leaves for East Portland, Oregon, to-morrow.

A. W. C. Finlow, a Star printer, has gone to Vancouver, where he expects to find work plenty and wages away up.

The Orange tea meeting held at Waldemar on Wednesday evening last was largely attended. There must have been over 600 present. Nearly all the speakers announced in program were present and interesting speeches were delivered. The proceeds amounted to over $100.

Alex Connoly, who has been residing for the last three years in British Columbia, about 8 miles from Vancouver, returned to Belwood, his former home, a short time ago, and is taking back with him, and also a Patterson binder, which he purchased from Mr. Dan. McLellan, agent for Grand Valley and Orangeville.

Several Hamilton capitalists are considering the advisability of building a pipe line from that city to the gas well at Welland. The distance is 40 miles and the cost would be about $500,000. It is believed the project would be a paying one if many factories of the city could be supplied with the natural gas, and a committee will ask the board of works at its next meeting for permission to lay pipes through the streets of the city.

A FREE BALLOT.

KEEP steadily in mind that there can be no terrorism from Mowat officials in this election. The ballot is an absolutely secret one. There is no way of finding out how any man has voted, unless the voter reveals it himself. His identity cannot be established by any mark or number, as it can in the iniquitous Numbered Ballot to use in Provincial elections. No free man who may fall under the yoke of the Provincial officials need fear them, either on or after election day. Each one is at liberty to mark his ballot as he chooses, without fear of detection or punishment.

Grit party to hand Canada over to a foreign country! And in Quebec we have Mr. Mercier calling the Legislature together at an unusually early period, because, he represented, it was necessary that he should immediately have authority to borrow $10,000,000 to tide Quebec over the bankruptcy towards which he is hurrying her, and then coolly abandoning his proposed trip to Europe so that he might strike hands with Mr. Laurier in his effort to sever Canada from the Mother Country, and annex her to the United States. Never before have the Liberal leaders so openly and so shamelessly abandoned their so called principles, and thrown every pretense of decency to the winds, in their frantic attempt to climb into the treasury benches.

"The poverty in all our great centres of civilization, as well as throughout the landlord and mortgaged cursed frontiers, is, year by year, growing more terrible and more general. There have been 2,650 foreclosures of farm mortgages in Kansas during the past six months. In the city of New York there are over 150,000 people who earn less than 60 cents a day. Thousands of this number are poor girls who work from 11 to 16 hours a day. Last year there were over 23 000 families forcibly evicted in that city, owing to their inability to pay their rent. One person in every ten who died in New York in 1889 was buried in the potter's field. These are facts which may well give rise to anxious thoughts.—Detroit Sun

In the month of December last there were 23,050 men on the pay rolls of the C. P. R. Company in Canada. The Liberal party fought against every step taken by the Government to build this railroad from the day the contract was signed by the syndicate till the day the last spike was driven at Craigs lachie. If they had had their little way, where would this army of workmen have been employed? They would have gone to the States. The Conservative National Policy kept them in Canada and all who supply them as well.

Erastus Wiman announces that he will, in the March number of The North American Review, give an answer to Sir John Macdonald's address to Canadians. The writing of this reply, the little undertaking as to failures in Canada and arranging for the instant passage of a bill through Congress favorable to the Canadian Liberal proposal of commercial union—not to mention passing around the hat for moral support—these seem to be about the only duties assigned to the leader of the foreign wing of the great International R form party. But that reply will profit the party nothing.

An exchange publishes the following interesting romance, and vouches for the truth of the story:—An original and remarkable mode of securing a husband was adopted by an Ontario young lady. Last autumn, when packing apples in her father's orchard, she placed a letter in the barrel among the fruit, describing her age and appearance, at the same time expressing a willingness to exchange the liberty of single life for the cuff and silken bonds of matrimony, and inviting the person into whose hands the apples might come to address her if he were not already married. The barrel was purchased by a bachelor who lives a few miles from this place, and in due time the letter was discovered. Attracted by the description, and writing, and pleased with the novelty of the adventure, a correspondence was commenced and shortly after Christmas the young man returned from the east with a good looking and amiable young lady, who has shown by her ingenuity that there is more ways than one of procuring a husband.

cents of this difference in trying to lower markets in Chicago, the balance is due to the uncertainty, which is felt as to what may be the outcome of the appeal to the country March 5.

We believe packers (in common with leading business men) all over the province recognize that if there is a change of government, the immediate effect will be a general uneasiness in all trade circles—a particularly anxious feeling among holders of hog products—resulting in a general shrinkage of values in cured meats, and necessarily lower prices for hogs to farmers.

We have faith in the hog industry of our country. Given a fair chance to live, we think it will develop rapidly. We have before us a copy of statistics of crops in Ontario, under date November 10, 1890, and find this statement, page 13:

| | 1889. | 1890. |
|---|---|---|
| Swine (No. of hogs) | 835,469 | 1,140,559 |

The number of swine has taken a leap upwards since last year—305,090 hogs or 36 per cent.

Take $8 per hog for an estimate, and we have the value of this product to the farmers of Ontario, $9 724,472 The increase in one year ($36 per cent) being $2,444,720.

For the former free entry of American hogs or product means a stoppage of this development, a rapid reduction of the number of hogs raised and wanted, and a much lower price for what reach the markets. For the packer it means closing up his factory, discharging his employees, and letting the business which he has done be transferred to Chicago or other American centres.

We think the farmers of Ontario ought not to sacrifice a product which developed is raise over $2,000,000 in one year. Yours, etc.,

Several Hamilton capitalists are considering the advisability of building a pipe line from that city to the gas well at Welland. The distance is 40 miles and the cost would be about $500,000. It is believed the project would be a paying one if many factories of the city could be supplied with the natural gas, and a committee will ask the board of works at its next meeting for permission to lay pipes through the streets of the city.

A FREE BALLOT.

KEEP steadily in mind that there can be no terrorism from Mowat officials in this election. The ballot is an absolutely secret one. There is no way of finding out how any man has voted, unless the voter reveals it himself. His identity cannot be established by any mark or number, as it can in the iniquitous Numbered Ballot in use in Provincial elections. No free man who may fail under the yoke of the Provincial officials need fear them, either on or after election day. Each one is at liberty to mark his ballot as he chooses, without fear of detection or punishment.

A GRIT CANARD.

THE local Grit sheet created some amusement last week by parading before the public the name of Mr. John Gillespie as one of "these noble patriots" who would not support Conservative candidates. To include Mr. Gillespie among the alleged patriots is a gross insult to both Mr. Gillespie and the Conservative party. Instead of working to elect McMillan to North Wellington, Mr. Gillespie is a supporter of his opponent, Mr. L. H. Clarke, the Conservative standard bearer, who will be the next representative of that riding. By the way, patriots of Sir Richard Cartwright's stamp are not up to the standard, and if there is such a thing as one and class patriots the "Tory's" crowd should be included in that class.

Let the Liberals rejoice and be glad over the local victories of the party. A week hence they will have stopping enough to do and time enough to do it.

Mr. Farrer, too, in his new notorious pamphlet, dwelt on the fact that Sir John was now 75 years old. This is the first and last thing a Liberal politician seems to think of when considering the Canadian situation. It is not a thing they can be proud of either.

AN OHIO TRAGEDY.

Two Men Rendered Bad Vent Through Against a Solid Object.

DEFIANCE, Ohio, February 28.—Sylvester and Hector Butler expended here yesterday afternoon upon the streets very drunk with excited people. Last Saturday Superintendent Butler, of the public schools, discharged A. H. Hall, janitor of the General Building, throwing him through a hole in the ceiling. A year or more passed and Hall went before the school board Monday and made charges against Butler and three of the board members. He named a time at which he had seen Butler assault three teachers during one afternoon. William Wagner, the constant justice, corroborated the story. The testimony of two teachers proving that the representations were exaggerated, unknown and the matter was considered. Monday night an investigation was made and it was discovered that at the time named by the janitor Butler was several miles away. The indignant citizens warned Hall and Wagner to leave town, but they did not and Tuesday night no usual mob came to Hall's house. They claim they did not see Hall, but yesterday morning the body was found between the tracks of the Wabash railroad yards. His throat was cut from ear to ear and ten deep cuts crossed the breast. He had been heavily weighed by the man. A knife was found near the body. Wagner disappeared shortly after the finding and there is a rumor that his body is in the canal. The discovery has created the wildest excitement. Hall had many friends and they declare it is will to doubt, but there are those who are of the opinion that the death of all concerned has caused.

FRIENDSHIP V. HOSTILITY.

BEFORE THE SUN can make another appeal to the electors of Cardwell the world will know whether Cardwell has done its duty in standing by that venerable patriot, the Rt. Hon. Sir John A. Macdonald. The electors of that loyal constituency are very cautious who they choose to represent them in parliament; and this is one reason why they always have a representative who possesses more than the ordinary amount of intelligence. Mr. R. S. White, the unanimous choice of the convention, is not far in the rear of his predecessors, and during the sessions since he has been elected to parliament he has proven himself a capital member in every way. His work on the Banking Act alone should have a tendency to return him to parliament. His acquaintance with commercial matters that directly interest every voter in Cardwell, combined with his influence with the government, qualify him to faithfully represent the riding.

Electors, by all means send an influential man to voice your sentiments in parliament.

CENTRE WELLINGTON.

OUR candidate, Mr. W. H. Hunter, has been making a glorious fight in the western end of the constituency. If the reports from there are correct Centre Wellington will without doubt return to its allegiance to Sir John Macdonald on the 5th inst., provided Orangeville and East Garafraxa do their duty.

What is that duty? Is it not to stand by the man who has done more for this town than any other nonresident and almost as much as any resident and who has been to his own township more than a father?

There does not live to day a man who can breathe a word against the character of W. H. Hunter. There is no one who can fail to admire his boundless energy and his whole-hearted benevolence. What a power of good he would be to his constituency in a position like that which he aspires to now.

Andrew Semple has not done and never will do either in parliament or elsewhere a stroke to our advantage. For four years he has represented this constituency, but has never thought it worth his while to address his constituents or even to visit them excepting upon the occasion of the annual exhibition of agricultural society. The majority of his own supporters in this town saw him for the first time on Saturday last, while but half a dozen of them have ever heard him publicly discuss the questions of the day.

Mr. Hunter has many warm personal friends and admirers amongst his political opponents in Orangeville. When his candidature was first announced they expressed a determination to support him, and a great many of them doubtless will do so although some of those who were loudest in their talk for him and who ought in all decency to be with him are now bent upon his defeat.

To men of moderate views and independent judgment the candidature of William Henry Hunter must commend itself favorably. To them his strong personality, the uprightness of his life, both private and public, the pushing energy of his disposition and the desire to better the condition of all around him appeal as potent arguments in his favor.

Men of Orangeville and East Garafraxa, do honor to a man who is an honor to you, a man who will be a powerful advocate of your interests at Ottawa, a man who has always been more than a friend to your public interests, even in his private capacity. Roll up such a majority for him in his own home that he will forever have cause to know that there is in you a proper appreciation of honest worth and that whether the morning of the 6th of March shall dawn on him as M. P. for Centre Wellington or as plain William Henry Hunter, he will realize that his life work amongst you has not been in vain.

WIMAN'S CIRCULAR!

WHICH THE LIBERALS WISH HE HAD NEVER WRITTEN.

Partiwright or at Least Power to Discriminate Against English Goods in Favor of the United States.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—Mr. Erastus Wiman has written a letter to each member of the House in behalf of Canadian reciprocity. His effort has thrilled in obtaining written pledges from prominent men in the House that they will support a Canadian reciprocity resolution. These pledges are to be used as Liberal campaign documents in Canada.

The Wiman letter reads as follows:

324 Broadway, New York,
February 20, 1891.

DEAR SIR,—Most members of Congress would like to be able to say that they had voted for a resolution which shaped the policy of half a continent. Further, that they were in their high office instrumental in enabling the United States to exercise an influence which its great power, wealth and position entitle it to exercise on the continent of North America.

The opportunity to achieve this result is within the grasp of every member of Congress before the expiration of the present session, by the passage of the resolution in relation to Canadian reciprocity recommended by the Committee of Foreign Affairs. The unanimity of the desire of the business community for the passage of this resolution is seen in the number and quality of the petitions now being received from all parts of the country.

The last campaign which is going forward in Canada, prior to the parliamentary election on March 5, shows how important it is that the Liberal party should be encouraged by some intimation of favor on the part of Congress. Their efforts to secure power for the purpose of offering unrestricted reciprocity on this country, which implies a discrimination against English goods in favor of American manufactures, certainly merits some encouragement. The resolution recommended by the Committee of Foreign Affairs will have this effect and its early passage is most urgently requested.

Enclosed from the New York Independent sets forth some further facts in the matter.

(London Free Press.)

There is no country in the world that has made such rapid progress in what may be termed advanced agricultural methods as has Canada, especially Ontario. Colonel Fane, of Fulbeck Hall, Lincolnshire, England, who was appointed as a farm delegate to visit different parts of this country and report upon its condition and prospects as an agricultural centre, reported that he had inspected and enquired into the working of the agricultural schools, experimental farms, cheese-making and dairy appliances, and declares that Canada, especially Ontario, is far ahead of the mother country in these respects. Colonel Fane's observations whilst on this side of the Atlantic were not confined to Canada. He visited different parts of the United States, and became acquainted with the systems in vogue in that country. In fact, Col. Fane found the Canadian farmer occupying an enviable position as compared with that of any other that had come under his large field of observation, either on this continent or in Europe. Instead of being in the depressed condition represented by the Grit orators of this country, the Canadian farmer, according to this independent and high authority, is in the most prosperous condition of any other class, and is even further advanced in scientific agriculture than the bulk of the farmers in the United States, or the older countries of Europe.

THE Liberals are parading a curiosity in the shape of a manufacturer favorable to the U. S. This rara avis is Mr. Feodor Boas, of Montreal and St. Hyacinthe. The Liberals have got Mr. Boas to back his opinion in this present contest against the almost unanimous voice of the business men of the country. It is a good stroke of policy on the part of the Liberals and, no doubt, has considerable effect on the country audiences Mr. Boas addresses. But, is he not rather lonesome in the crowd in which he finds himself?

Vote for Hunter, the Farmers' friend.

SIR RICHARD CARTWRIGHT has written to a friend in Kingston, for publication apparently, denying in most emphatic terms that he is responsible for any act or statement of Mr. Farrer. This is all right as to Farrer. Sir Richard, however, is still responsible for advocating in Canada what the chief writer in Canada in favor of unrestricted reciprocity regards as the first bite of the cherry, the second being the political subjugation of Canada to the United States. Sir Richard does not deny this.

Local Intelligence.

Vote for Hunter and White.

The wood market still continues lively.

Another carnival is announced to take place at the Balmoral rink on Monday.

Look up Hughes Bros.' advertisement in this issue. It will pay you to read it.

The Fisk Jubilee singers will give a concert in the town hall on Friday evening.

In consequence of the elections taking place on Thursday THE SUN is issued Tuesday this week.

Election day, Thursday next 5th March. Go early to the polls, and mark your ballots for W. H. Hunter.

Monday evening a number of young people drove to Mr. Kouns's, 1st line west, Caledon, and enjoyed themselves by dancing until early Tuesday morning.

A large crowd enjoyed good skating on the ice at Balmoral rink Friday evening. The Citizens' band was present and played some lively selections.

A large number of friends gathered at Mr. Andrew Watson's residence, 2nd line, east Caledon, Monday evening and a very merry time was spent in dancing and other amusements.

Mr. Robt. Brett, brother-in-law of Chief Constable Shields of this town, died very suddenly at Bowmanville on Friday, the 13th ult. The funeral was the largest ever seen in that part of the country.

WOOD WANTED.—Those of our subscribers who usually pay for THE SUN in wood should take advantage of the sleighing.

CREDIT SALE.—Auctioneer Jas. A. Patterson will sell the farm stock, implements, etc., of Eli Southorn, Springbrook, on Monday, March 9th, at 12 o'clock, sharp. Everything will be sold as Mr. Southorn is giving up farming to devote his time to the brick-yard.

RECOVERING.—Mr. Wm. Marshall, implement agent, is recovering from the effects of an accident that happened to him a couple of weeks ago. He and Fred Elliott were engaged in a friendly wrestle and by some means his leg was twisted, fracturing one of the bones. Mr. Marshall is able to be out.

PRESENTATION.—Last Wednesday evening several teachers of St. Mark's Sunday school and members of the choir presented Miss Minnie Bennett with a set of beautiful china dishes, which were selected from S. Donner's magnificent assortment. Miss Bennett has been a member of both Sunday school and choir for several years, and as she is about to be married they thought it appropriate to present her with some token by which she could remember them.

TEACH THEM A LESSON.—Next Saturday a local horse-trader and a hitherto respectable citizen will parade before P. M. Pattullo and explain why they take delight in subjecting horses to the utmost cruelty. On Thursday night the two accused persons were caught in the act of unmercifully beating a poor, half-starved animal, from the effects of which it died. One of them was on its back, and the other battered it with a club. When the poor brute became exhausted and fell down it was dragged to its stable, where it laid in a couple of inches of water all night and died the following morning. During the past few weeks four animals belonging to the accused have died. P. M. Pattullo should not be afraid to do his duty, as a stop must be put to this inhuman treatment sooner or later.

CANADIAN PLANTS FOR CANADIAN PEOPLE.—We have received a copy of Webster Bros.' beautifully illustrated book of Canadian plants for Canadian people. They offer not only the latest novelties, but all that is desirable in plants for the garden or greenhouse, roses of all descriptions, hardy shrubs and climbers; in fact everything to meet the wants of a Canadian flower-loving people. Messrs. Webster have been established in Hamilton for a number of years, and their establishment, which is the largest of the kind in the Dominion, is specially equipped for the production of plants for distribution over the wide expanse of our country. They have a well earned reputation for careful packing and safe delivery even to the most remote points in the Dominion. A copy of this handsome catalogue may be had free on application.

NEARLY A CALAMITY.—On Saturday afternoon two young boys, Edward Leslie, son of Postmaster Leslie, and Wilfred Bowles, son of Turnkey Bowles, met with an adventure that they will not likely soon forget. The two boys hitched up Mr. Leslie's horse and drove to a friend near Alton. On the return journey they had to cross the T. G. & B. railway track. While nearing the track a special freight train was coming down, which the boys did not see until they almost reached the track. The horse became frightened and jumped, and the boys rolled out of the cutter. The engine was just on the crossing, and the horse turned and ran by its side. A car loaded with wood struck the animal and knocked it through the cattle-guard fence and totally demolished the cutter. The horse was badly cut and bruised, but, strange to say, no bones were broken. A V.S. attended to the animal's injuries, and it is thought it will be none the worse. How it escaped death is simply miraculous.

THE Liberals made much of the alleged uniform hostility of the people of Manitoba to the Conservative Government and its policy. They could not get candidates for all the Manitoba constituencies. Mr. Larivière, a Conservative supporter of Sir John Macdonald, is elected by acclamation.

Stamp out Annexation by voting for Hunter, Clarke and White.

LIBERAL papers are making much of the doings of disloyal Tories of forty years ago. These men have been attended to; what the country has to do with to day is the Farrers and Liberals of 1890 and their policy.

A YOUNG MAN KILLED.

Edward Dowdall Dragged to Death Under a Sleigh.

On Monday afternoon a young man named Edward Dowdall, 21 years of age, met with a fatal accident near Camilla. He was engaged in drawing wood to Orangeville and while descending a hill at a pretty rapid rate of speed near the above-named place the wood began falling forward and before the unfortunate young fellow could jump off he was knocked down in front of the sleigh. Meanwhile the horses increased their pace and young Dowdall was dragged underneath the sleigh. The roller of the tongue caught his clothing

AND DRAGGED HIM TO DEATH.

When the poor fellow was rescued he was still breathing, but his body was terribly bruised that those around him knew the end was near. He died a few hours after being rescued.

The sad accident has cast a gloom over the community and his relatives have the sympathy of everybody.

CONTEMPTIBLE, INDEED!

Party politics are carried to a contemptible extent in this locality. A week or so ago the Advertiser tendered for the Amaranth township printing for 1891. Its tender was the lowest by $11. Councillors Dudgeon and McVanel accordingly moved that the Tiger be awarded the contract. Tory Deputy reeve Johnston and Councillor Turner wanted a local Conservative paper to get the work, however, and moved an amendment to that effect, which carried, Reeve Wanabrough allowing his political bigotry to over rule his common sense and supporting the amendment. The ratepayers are thereby robbed of $11 by this arbitary action of its representatives, who appear to have no conception of what constitutes honor or the principles governing tendering. Of course, we can worry along without the work, although the loss of the contract may cut us down to two meals a day, and the ratepayers of Amaranth can congratulate themselves that it is only costing them $11 to ascertain just how much principle there is in three of their representatives.—Orangeville Advertiser.

Good gracious! What a crime the Amaranth council has committed—according to the above. The editor of our esteemed contemporary is out of his latitude when he gets as far as Amaranth. Let us see: Councillor McVanel. Why he has been out of municipal politics for the past two years and how in the world could he second such a resolution? The fact is THE SUN has been doing the township printing for a number of years and our work always gave entire satisfaction. Our tender was only $8 higher, not $11 as stated. Mr. Dudgeon, the mover of the first resolution is a Reformer, and he wanted his pet journal to get the contract before all the members of the council heard the tenders read. The ratepayers of Amaranth have an excellent council and it is very unlikely the township will be swamped by paying only a moderate price for their printing.

A FREE BALLOT.

KEEP steadily in mind that there can be no terrorism from Mowat officials in this election. The ballot is an absolutely secret one. There is no way of finding out how any man has voted, unless the voter reveals it himself. His identity cannot be established by any mark or number, as it can in the iniquitous Numbered Ballot in use in Provincial elections. No free man who may fall under the yoke of the Provincial officials need fear them, either on or after election day. Each one is at liberty to mark his ballot as he chooses, without fear of detection or punishment.

POLITICAL POINTS.

Let the Liberals rejoice and be glad over the local victories of the party. A great honor they will have singing enough to do and time enough to do it.

Mr. Farrer, too, in his new notorious pamphlet, dwelt on the fact that Sir John was now 75 years old. This is the first and last thing a Liberal politician seems to think of when considering the Canadian situation. It is not a thing they can be proud of either.

Mr. T. O. West, formerly of this town, but now of Calgary, N. W. T., is on the right track politically. A few days ago he was elected to the presidency of the young Liberal Conservative association of that place. Tom was always a keen politician, and he will soon be able to add M. P. to his name.

Ed. Farrer, chief editorial writer on the Toronto Globe staff, is Sir Richard Cartwright's right hand man. The traitor and the United States Senator from the State of Ontario are a great and well-matched team. Their association pick down's agree with the electors of this country.

Our Reform friends, says the Mt. Forest Rep., unused to organized opposition against Mr. McMullen, seem inclined to resent the honest efforts being put forth by the Liberal Conservatives to win back the riding for the Government to which it belongs. It is even safe to predict that they will be real mad over Mr. Clark's election on the 5th.

Mr. McMullen held a meeting at Damascus on Friday evening last. The township hall was filled with the largest crowd ever assembled therein. John McNabb, reeve of West Luther, filled the chair to the satisfaction of all present. Mr. McMullen spoke for over an hour, reciting his oft repeated tale and doing it well. Mr. Murphy, of Listowel, replied in the interests of Mr. Clarke, dealing some crushing blows. Mr. McMullen, in a well delivered speech, closed the meeting. Cheers were given for Mr. Clarke, Mr. Murphy and the Queen. After a vote of thanks to the chairman the meeting dispersed. The voice of the meeting was in favor of Clarke.—Arthur Enterprise.

In 1878 there were only about 24 furniture factories in Canada, now there are over 100. The people are now getting superior furniture at half the price it was ten years ago, thousands of men are being employed, consequently the farmer is benefitted by the better demand for his lumber and dairy products. One furniture firm at Grand Rapids, Mich., has enough furniture on hand to supply Canada for three years to come, and is anxiously awaiting the result of to-day's elections. If the Grits get into power not an article of furniture will be manufactured in the Dominion, and many thousands of men will be out of employment. But happily the Grits will never get there.

While the Grits are making the most of the "black flag" parade, which took place in the streets of Toronto a few days ago, they are not having all the best of the argument they are basing on it. In the Toronto police court on Saturday the man who carried the flag and the man who beat the drum were charged with being drunk, and it was shown that it was their habit to spend all the money they got for whiskey, leaving their wives and families to hustle for bread. One of them will work for his board for sixty days to come, while the other will put in a month unless his long-suffering wife can find or borrow enough to pay his fine.

Despite his advanced age, which points to the approaching end of his long term of public service, Sir John Macdonald, Canada's Tory premier, stands to day head and shoulders above all his political competitors in the Dominion. There are more eloquent orators, abler debaters, and keener controversialists, but for skill in mapping and carrying out a policy, for talent of organization, for a shrewd, accurate estimate of the public pulse and ability to stir the public heart and rouse enthusiasm, he is without a rival. Nor can national pride blind us to the fact that the ablest of our American statesmen would find in him an adversary very difficult to cope with.—Buffalo News.

The last and only plank of the late Liberal platform is shattered to atoms by Farrer's outspoken letter to Erastus Wiman, exposed at Windsor by Sir Charles Tupper. The exposure and ignominious collapse of the Cartwright-Farrer plot will bring a blush of shame to the cheeks of many Liberals yet undebauched and loyal, with whom Conservatives will sympathize at the disgrace of such a foul conspiracy. To vote for the Liberals under the lead of Farrer and Cartwright now would be to aid and abet treason. Liberals can best show their loyalty by following the example of Edward Blake and Gordon Brown. Thousands of Liberals all over the Dominion will vote for Canada by voting for Sir John's government, and teach the traitor leaders who betrayed their trust a lesson for all time.—Toronto World.

EVERYBODY KNOWS THE MAJOR.—Mr. William Parsons, a former Orangeville tinsmith, has been distinguishing himself on the stump, on up a stump, at West Toronto Junction. A few days since he appointed himself a delegation to wait upon and persuade Major (?) Pangse to lean his intellect to the Grits for the wedding during the campaign. The major (?) condescendingly consented to William's proposition, merely stipulating that the remnants should be returned after the fray. Once upon the boards the tinner fairly galvanized his audience; his swagger swayed the chandeliers; his military presence paralyzed the people. After murdering the Queen's English with his old-time eloquence, he hurled this shot into the enemies' camp: "During the Fenian raid I was lieutenant of a volunteer company, and there was only one coward in it and he was a Tory." Had Wm. been more than "forty miles from home" this gem might have elicited "loud and prolonged applause," but, unfortunately for the brave Bill, his record had preceded him and his wit proved pointless. When Wm. Parsons told that tale he was talking through his tile. Everybody here knows the major (?), and they know that he was not a lieutenant at the time of the Fenian raid. His jags was a simple (Simon) sergeant, and a tin-horn sergeant at that—more sound than sense; more fuss than fight; more conceit than his colonel, and the time has not yet come when such as he can sneer at the men who composed the Orangeville company of '66. Oh, no, William. The boys too well remember the time you were supposed to be in charge of a squad that in reality was a guard detailed to prevent your making a break for the backwoods in the event of an order being given to proceed to the front. In justice to this war scarred veteran it should be stated that he was subsequently gazetted captain, practically and later on he promoted himself and was dubbed "major." He was finally retired, or fired, for shouting "whoa!" when he should have sung "halt!" And this, in brief, is a true version of the major's (?) military manœuvres. His was indeed a glorious career. He should never come more as "cowardly Tories" and then apply for a pension. Beat!—COMMUNICATED.

CHARLESTON.

On Wednesday evening the 25th instant, the concert held in connection with C. O. O. F. proved to be a success. Mr. Jas Fax, of Toronto, made his first appearance here and acquitted himself bravely, his elaborate costuming and humorous manner kept the audience in convulsions of laughter. Mr. J. H. Cameron, of Toronto, an old favorite here, gave some amusing selections and was repeatedly encored. A pleasing feature of the entertainment was a beautifully arranged tableaux, "Rock of Ages." The subdued light, the expressive reading by Mr. Cameron, the gradual unveiling and lighting up of the statue and the delightful singing of the choir which was invisible, made a beautiful and impressive scene. Miss McKinnon presided at the piano.

A BENEFICENT DISCOVERY.

The Noblest Achievement of Science.

The iron horse, with its tireless strength, its pulses of vapor and its heart of flame, is a glorious exponent of the creative capacity of the human mind; and the metallic nerves through which intelligence courses over a continent prove by every flash of thought which traverses them that man possesses an attribute essentially grand, the power to annihilate space and time. But vast and important as have been the results of making steam and lightning the common carrier and messenger of the world, the discovery by which weak or impure blood can be invigorated or restored to new vigor and purity by means of internal and external remedies is of infinite value. The resources of vegetable chemistry as developed and applied by Thos. Holloway have proved equal to this mighty task. His famous remedies impart to the stream of life a disinfecting principle which frees the system from all impure and poisonous elements. The powers of chemistry are almost beyond calculation, and as he has brought them to bear on all the varieties of disease in these invaluable vegetable compounds known as HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT, they have accomplished their highest and holiest object.

Steam, as the great motor, is a subsidiary agent. Its usefulness consists, mainly, in conveying substantial benefits, with speed and certainty, to the fields in which they are to operate. It is simply the bearer of blessings, not their originator. Of all the weight which it carries over land and sea, there is perhaps none so precious as Holloway's remedies. It is scarcely a figure of speech to say that whithersoever it conveys them it flies with healing on its wings.

Under the influence of the Ointment, the skin, however disfigured by eruptions or cutaneous eruptions, becomes a labula rasa, pure, spotless, and transparent; and this erasure of blemishes is not accomplished by driving back disease into the vital recesses of the system but by neutralizing the morbid material which feeds it.

The Pills act upon the internal fluids and the organs which secrete them upon the sanatory principle. They destroy the morbid particles subjected to their chemical action indiscriminately on all alike, and neutralize an acid humor at the same time impart a mild and unmistakable electric action to the secretive apparatus of every body.

The sanction of governments, the patronage of princes, the approval of all Christian nations, the gratitude of pagan millions in the north of Europe, the twin curatives. In no region with which Europe has any commercial intercourse, where Holloway would not find his pills and home. Some estimate may be formed of the extent and variety of his fame by correspondence, from the best and most accomplished literati, are employed in conducting it. Yet is the result of a single circular that hits the world.

TO THE ELECTORS —OF— CARDWELL.

GENTLEMEN,—

Having been honored with the nomination of the Conservative party for the representation of Cardwell in the House of Commons, I beg respectfully to solicit your support at the polls on March 5th.

The issues of the contest are, in my judgment, the most momentous the people have been called to pronounce upon since 1867, involving, as they do, the very existence of the Confederation then happily formed. Of these issues the trade question is by far the most important. On the one side we have the Liberal party advocating Unrestricted Reciprocity or Commercial Union with the United States, and prepared to accept the consequences such a policy inevitably involves, namely, a direct taxation, discrimination against Great Britain, the adoption by Congress of a McKinley tariff, and the ultimate absorption of Canada by the United States. On the other side you have the Government ready to accept the widest measure of free trade with the United States compatible with the maintenance of British connection, with the retention by Canada of control of the tariff, and with the promotion of the material interests of our people. If honored with your confidence at the polls I purpose to support the latter policy. I will not consent to any scheme of reciprocity which involves direct taxation upon the people of Canada, because universal experience has proved that such a system always bears more heavily upon the poorer classes; nor will I sanction by voice or vote any arrangement with the United States which discriminates against our Mother Land and hands over to Washington the regulation of our tariff. Subject to these limitations I am prepared to press for such a trade treaty with the United States as will give us a free market in that country for our barley and horses, our hay and eggs, and other products of the farm.

Another subject, more local in its application, I desire to commend to the attention of the electors. You will remember that three of the four townships comprising the riding of Cardwell liberally aided in the construction of the Toronto, Grey & Bruce Railway, Albion contributing $40,000, Caledon $45,000, and Mono $45,000. Towards the Hamilton & Northwestern Railway the township of Adjala gave $2,500. Since these railways were built the Dominion Government has adopted as a settled rule of conduct the policy of aiding the construction of local railways to the extent of $3,200 per mile, and as the people of Cardwell have to pay their share of the revenue thus employed, I think it but just and right that the municipalities which contributed so generously towards the Toronto, Grey & Bruce and other roads, and who received no Federal aid therefor, should now be granted a rebate or repayment on account of these subsidies. It was my privilege to attend a meeting on this subject in the town of Orangeville last December, when I pledged myself to use every effort to induce the Government and Parliament to recognize the claims of the municipalities. If elected on March 5th I will redeem that pledge.

There are other questions of interest and importance before the electors to which I will have occasion to refer in the meetings I am about to hold in the riding. Meanwhile, gentlemen, I beg respectfully to solicit your votes and influence as a supporter of the Government of that grand patriot, Sir John Macdonald, whose wisdom, foresight, sagacity and courage have made Canadians a prosperous and progressive people, and our country the brightest jewel in the British crown.

Your obedient servant,

ROBT. S. WHITE.

A BENEFICENT DISCOVERY.

The Noblest Achievement of Science.

The iron horse, with its tireless strength, its pulses of vapor and its heart of flame, is a glorious exponent of the creative capacity of the human mind; and the metallic nerves through which intelligences courses over a continent prove by every flash of thought which traverses them that man possesses the attribute essentially grand, the power to annihilate space and time. But vast and important as have been the results of making steam and lightning the common carrier and messenger of the world, the discovery by which weak or impure blood can be vitalized or restored to new vigor and purity by means of internal and external remedies is of infinite value. The resources of vegetable chemistry as developed and applied by Thos. Holloway have proved equal to this mighty task. His famous remedies impart to the stream of life a disinfecting principle which frees the system from all impure and poisonous elements. The powers of chemistry are almost beyond calculation, and as he has brought them to bear upon all the varieties of disease in these invaluable vegetable compounds known as HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT, they have accomplished their highest and holiest object.

Steam, as the great motor, is a subsidiary agent. Its usefulness consists, mainly, in conveying substantial benefits, with speed and certainty, to the fields in which they are to operate. It is simply the bearer of blessings, not their originator. Of all the freight which it carries over land and sea, there is perhaps none so precious as Holloway's remedies. It is scarcely a figure of speech to say that whithersoever it conveys them it flies "with healing on its wings."

Under the influence of the Ointment, the skin, however disfigured by eruptions or excrescences, becomes a tabula rasa, pure, spotless, and transparent; and this cleansing of blemishes is not accomplished by driving back disease into the vital recesses of the system but by neutralizing the morbid material which feeds it.

The Pills act upon the internal fluids and the organs which secrete them upon the sanitary principle. They destroy the acrid particles subjected to their chemical action, as infallibly as an alkali neutralizes an acid; and at the same time impart a mild and constant electric action to the secretive and excretive machinery.

The sanction of governments, the patronage of princes, the approval of all Christian nations, the gratitude of pagan millions attest the worth of these twin curatives. In fact there is no region with which England or any country has any commercial intercourse where Holloway would not find himself at home. Some estimate may be formed of the extent and variety of his foreign correspondence, from the fact that sixty corresponding clerks, of which number sixteen are accomplished linguists, are employed in conducting it. He is the centre of a sanitary circle that belts the world.—Daily Republic.

TO THE ELECTORS OF CARDWELL.

Gentlemen:—

Having been urged by a convincing majority of the Electors of this constituency, and also by a large number of individual Conservatives, who have determined in the present crisis to place their country before their party, to become the exponents of the policy of Unrestricted Reciprocity with the United States in the pending general elections of representatives to the House of Commons, I have, against my own personal interests, consented to accede to the request; feeling, as I do, that it is impossible to assume the responsibility of declining to take whatever part may be assigned me in a struggle so fraught with weal or woe to the country.

This contest will decide whether or not the farmers of this country will have thrown open to them a market at their doors, composed of sixty-three millions of people, who are among the wealthiest and greatest consumers of the world, or whether our national efforts will, in the future, as in the past, be confined to vain attempts to negotiate trade treaties with small and poor countries in the West Indies and in Asia.

Complete evidence of the overshadowing merits of Unrestricted Reciprocity is furnished by the attitude in 1878 of the men now in power. During the contest in that year, which resulted in the overthrow of the Liberal administration of the Honorable Alexander Mackenzie, no argument was so potent in accomplishing that downfall as the one then used by the present Ministry—that the so-called "National Policy" would force free trade with the United States, in lieu of that which they proscribed, and which was by them termed the "lug-handled policy of one sided trade."

Having secured power by this means, they now find themselves so bound hand and foot to the manufacturers, upon whom they levy their heaviest contributions for election expenses, that they are not at liberty to grant what they themselves, in 1878, admitted would prove to be so great a boon to the country.

It is true that, in order to avoid defeat at the hands of the electorate, who are determined to secure this benefit, that they affect to be making preparations to negotiate a treaty of free trade with the United States in natural products alone, a pretence which is most effectually exposed by the fact Minister of the Interior, the Honorable James G. Bliaine, who most emphatically states that no negotiations are on foot, nor would they for one moment be entertained; which latter declaration is unanimously concurred in by all the public men of the United States who have authority to speak on the subject.

To prove more conclusively, if possible, the hollowness of this pretence, Sir John Macdonald, in his address to the people of Canada, makes no reference whatever in favor of his supposed policy, nor have any of his Ministers up to the present date, so far as I have been able to discover, but their efforts have been solely confined to extolling the discredited N. P.

In addition to this, during three successive sessions of Parliament, viz.: those of 1888 89 and '90, the present Ministers and their supporters have unanimously voted down resolutions of Sir Richard Cartwright's, favoring the opening up of negotiations for Unrestricted Reciprocity with the United States.

It becomes important, however, to point out the greatest betrayal of the farmers that has ever charac cried a political party, that is contained in this supposed proposition of the Government. By their pretence of being favorable to free trade with that country in natural products alone, the Government indicate their willingness to hand over the farmers, bound and foot, to the manufacturing interests.

Most loyally, in 1876, and since, have the farmers supported the present Government, on the promise of protection to their products against foreign competition.

Now, in order to save office, they boldly proclaim their willingness to expose the farmers to competition in everything he produces, at the same time protecting the manufacturer to the extreme limit.

In other words, the farmer would, under their system, be bound to sell to the manufacturer, and other purchasers, for the lowest price that could be produced by competition, whilst compelled to give protection prices for everything he purchases from the manufacturer.

For the purpose of arousing their prejudice, and thus divert discussion from their true interests, the farmers are told that there are two insuperable objections to the adoption of U. R.

Firstly, that the revenue under that system would be insufficient to cover the annual expenditure, and, secondly, that the proposition is veiled treason. The absurdity of the latter cry is so manifest that it is only necessary to point out what the definition is, furnished by these gentlemen themselves, respectively, of loyalty and disloyalty. According to their own doctrine, exposing the farmer to competition in everything he has to sell, and protecting their own favorites, the manufacturers, to the highest limit, is loyalty; whilst the Liberal policy of placing both on an equal footing is treason.

In urging this cry, the Ministerialists are unconsciously paying the highest possible tribute to the Liberal proposal, namely, that its benefits would be so great that it would lead to a demand for a political union.

Experience, however, teaches us that the reverse is the rule; that when the people are prosperous they are satisfied with their existing condition, and it is when they are in distress that a change is sought for.

Let every farmer ask himself whether or not, while dwelling under the British flag, if he gets $30 more for a horse, $10 more per head for his cattle, $1.50 more for a sheep, 5c. more per lb. for dressed fowl, 5c. more per dozen for his eggs, 30c. per bushel more for his barley, 40c. more for his oats and peas and $4 more per ton for his hay, and other prices in proportion for everything else he produces, he would feel, by reason of that, like rebelling against that flag.

It is only when people cannot obtain a great boon that they rebel, and not when they can obtain it without.

As to the revenue argument, it is an easy matter to show that by curtailing the expenditure within reasonable limits, the revenue and expenditure could easily be made to balance.

In a short time after this policy comes in force farms will begin to increase in value, by one-third, every industrious citizen of Canada will begin to improve in circumstances, the exodus

George Dunn, aged about 14 years, got caught in the machinery of Kerr & Harcourt's bobbin factory at Walkerton on Friday, and was instantly killed.

COPY OF A CURIOUS LOVE LETTER.

MADAM,—

The great love tenderness I have hitherto expressed for you is false, and I now feel that my indifference towards you increases proportionably every day, and the more I see you the more you appear ridiculous and an object of contempt and the more I feel disposed, inclined and finally determined, to hate you. Believe me, I never had the slightest inclination to offer you my hand and heart. Our last conversation has, I assure you, left a wretched insipidity, which has by no means possessed me with the most exalted opinion of your character. Yes, Madam, and you will much oblige me by avoiding me, and if ever we are united, I shall experience nothing but the fearful hatred of my parents, added to an everlasting displeasure of living with you. Yes, Madam, I think sincerely—You need not put yourself to the smallest trouble or send or write me an answer. Adieu. And believe me that I am so averse to you, that it is really impossible that I should ever be.

Madam,
Your affectionate love till death,
W. G.

To Miss M———

There are two ways of reading this letter. Her father compelled his daughter to show him all letters sent to her. The unsuspecting father read it straightforward, but the daughter (having the clue) read it otherwise. Find the contrast or go to MACADAM'S for it.

Conversation after Marriage.

We had better decide now on the best place to do our trading. MACADAM'S, of course; for Tea, Sugar and Groceries, and I heard some people talking on the street say he had the largest, the best assorted and best value in Ladies' and Children's Boots and Shoes of any one in Town. We will put him down for our Boots and Shoes. Now, for Crockery... Well, we don't need to discuss that matter long. Why? Do you think MACADAM'S the best? Certainly I do; he is the only one who keeps an assortment worth looking at.

Dated 3rd February 1891.

of the Honorable Alexander Mackenzie, an argument was so potent in demonstrating that downfall as the one then used by the present Ministry—that the cherished "National Policy" would force free trade with the United States, in lieu of that which then prevailed, and which was by them termed the "jug-handled policy" of one sided trade."

Having secured power by this means, they now find themselves so bound hand and foot to the manufacturers, upon whom they levy their heaviest contributions for election expenses, that they are not at liberty to grant what they themselves, in 1878, admitted would prove to be so great a boon to the country.

It is true that, in order to avoid defeat at the hands of the electorate, who are determined to secure this benefit, that they affect to be making preparations to negotiate a treaty of free trade with the United States in natural products alone, a pretence which is most effectually exposed by the first Minister of the Dominion, the Honorable James G. Blaine, who most emphatically states that no negotiations are on foot, nor would they for one moment be entertained; which latter declaration is unanimously concurred in by all the public men of the United States who have authority to speak on the subject.

To prove more conclusively, if possible, the hollowness of this pretence, Sir John Macdonald, in his address to the people of Canada, makes no reference whatever in favor of his supposed policy, nor have any of his Ministers up to the present date, so far as I have been able to discover, but their efforts have been solely confined to extolling the discredited N. P.

In addition to this, during three successive sessions of Parliament, viz: those of 1888-89 and '90, the present Ministers and their supporters have unanimously voted down resolutions of Sir Richard Cartwright's, favoring the opening up of negotiations for Unrestricted Reciprocity with the United States.

It becomes important, however, to point out the greatest betrayal of the farmers that has ever characterized a political party, that is contained in this supposed proposition of the Government.

By their promises of being favorable to free trade with that country in natural products alone, the Government indicate their willingness to hand over the farmers, bound and foot, to the manufacturing interests.

Most loyally, in 1878, and since, have the farmers supported the present Government, on the promise of protection to their products against foreign competition.

Now, in order to save office, they boldly proclaim their willingness to expose the farmers to competition in everything he produces, at the same time protecting the manufacturer to the extreme limit.

In other words, the farmer would, under their system, be bound to sell to the manufacturer, and other purchasers, for the lowest price that could be produced by competition, whilst compelled to give protection prices for everything he purchases from the manufacturer.

For the purpose of arousing their prejudice, and thus divert discussion from their true interests, the farmers are told that there are two insuperable objections to the adoption of U. R.

Firstly, that the revenue under that system would be insufficient to cover the annual expenditure, and, secondly, that the proposition is veiled treason. The absurdity of the latter cry is so manifest that it is only necessary to point out what the definition is, furnished by these gentlemen themselves, respectively, of loyalty and disloyalty. According to their own doctrine, exposing the farmer to competition in everything he has to sell, and protecting their own favorites, the manufacturers, to the highest limit, is loyalty; whilst the Liberal policy of placing both on an equal footing is treason.

In origin this cry, the Ministerialists were unanimously paying the highest possible tribute to the Liberal proposal, namely, that its benefits would be so great that it would lead to a demand for a political union.

Experience, however, teaches us that the reverse is the rule; that when the people are prosperous they are satisfied with their existing condition, and it is when they are in distress that a change is sought for.

Let every farmer ask himself whether or not, while dwelling under the British flag, if he gets $30 more for a horse, $10 more per head for his cattle, $1.50 more for a sheep, 5c. more per lb. for dressed fowl, 5c. more per dozen for his eggs, 30c. per bushel more for his barley, 40c. more for his oats and peas and $4 more per ton for his hay, and other prices in proportion for everything else he produces, he would feel, by reason of that, like rebelling against that flag.

It is only when people cannot obtain a great boon that they rebel, and not when they can obtain it without.

As to the revenue argument, it is an easy matter to show that by curtailing the expenditure within reasonable limits, the revenue and expenditure could easily be made to balance.

In a short time after this policy comes in force farms will begin to increase in value, by one-third, every industrious citizen of Canada will begin to improve in circumstances, the exodus

COPY OF A CURIOUS LOVE LETTER.

MADAM,—

The great love tenderness I have hitherto expressed for you is false, and I now feel that my indifference towards you increases proportionably every day, and the more I see you the more you appear ridiculous and an object of contempt and the more I feel disposed, inclined and finally determined, to hate you. Believe me, I never had the slightest inclination to offer you my hand and heart.

Our last conversation has confirmed me with the most exalted opinion of your character. Yes, Madam, and you will much oblige me by avoiding me, and if ever we are united, I shall experience nothing but the fearful hatred of my parents, added to an everlasting displeasure of living with you. Yes, Madam, I think sincerely—You need not put yourself to the smallest trouble or send or write me an answer. Adieu. And believe me that I am as averse to you, that it is really impossible that I should ever be.

Madam,
Your affectionate love till death,
W. G.

To Miss M———

There are two ways of reading this letter. Her father compelled his daughter to show him all letters sent to her. The unsuspecting father read it straightforward; but the daughter (having the clue) read it otherwise. Find the contrast or go to MACADAM'S for it.

Conversation after Marriage.

We had better decide now on the best place to do our trading. MACADAM'S, of course, for Tea, Sugar and Groceries, and I heard some people talking on the street say he had the largest, the best assorted and best value in Ladies' and Children's Boots and Shoes of any one in Town. We will put him down for our Boots and Shoes. Now, for Crockery... Well, we don'tneed to discuss that matter long. Why? Do you think MACADAM'S the best? Certainly I do; he is the only one who keeps an assortment worth looking at.

He is as loyal to the Old Man as ever, and would come over and vote for R. S. White in an emergency. He is the same old Tory and is much interested in this place, especially as a prominent candidate, for the Conservative party. ## A BENEFICENT DISCOVERY.

The Noblest Achievement of Science.

The iron horse, with its tireless strength, its pulses of vapor and its heart of flame, is a glorious exponent of the creative capacity of the human mind; and the metallic nerves through which intelligences courses over a continent prove by every flash of thought which traverses them that man possesses one attribute essentially grand, the power to annihilate space and time. But vast and important as have been the results of making steam and lightning the common carrier and messenger of the world, the discovery by which weak or impure blood can be vitalized or restored to new vigor and purity by means of internal and external remedies is of infinite value. The resources of vegetable chemistry as developed and applied by Thos. Holloway have proved equal to this mighty task. His famous remedies impart to the stream of life a disinfecting principle which frees the system from all impure and poisonous elements. The powers of chemistry are almost beyond calculation, and as he has brought them to bear upon all the varieties of disease in these invaluable vegetable compounds known as HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT, they have accomplished their highest and holiest object.

Steam, as the great motor, is a subsidiary agent. Its usefulness consists, mainly, in conveying substantial benefits, with speed and certainty, to the fields in which they are to operate. It is simply the bearer of blessings, not their originator. Of all the freight which it carries over land and sea, there is perhaps none so precious as Holloway's remedies. It is scarcely a figure of speech to say that whithersoever it conveys them it flies "with healing on its wings."

Under the influence of the Ointment, the skin, however disfigured by eruptions or excrescences, becomes a tabula rasa, pure, spotless, and transparent; and this erasure of blemishes is not accomplished by driving back disease into the vital recesses of the system but by neutralizing the morbid material which feeds it.

The Pills act upon the internal fluids and the organs which secrete them upon the sanitary principle. They destroy the acrid particles subjected to their chemical action, as infallibly as an alkali neutralizes an acid; and at the same time impart a mild and constant electric action to the secretive and excretive machinery.

The sanction of governments, the patronage of princes, the approval of all Christian nations, the gratitude of pagan millions attest the worth of these twin curatives. In fact there is no region with which England or any country has any commercial intercourse where Holloway would not find himself at home. Some estimate may be formed of the extent and variety of his foreign correspondence, from the fact that sixty corresponding clerks, of which number sixteen are accomplished linguists, are employed in conducting it. He is the centre of a sanitary circle that belts the world.—Daily Republic.

The absurdity of the latter cry is so manifest that it is only necessary to point out what the definition is, furnished by these gentlemen themselves, respectively, of loyalty and disloyalty. According to their own doctrine, exposing the farmer to competition in everything he has to sell, and protecting their own favorites, the manufacturers, to the highest limit, is loyalty; whilst the Liberal policy of placing both on an equal footing is treason.

In urging this cry, the Ministerialists are unconsciously paying the highest possible tribute to the Liberal proposal, namely, that its benefits would be so great that it would lead to a demand for a political union.

Experience, however, teaches us that the reverse is the rule; that when the people are prosperous they are satisfied with their existing condition, and it is when they are in distress that a change is sought for.

Let every farmer ask himself whether or not, while dwelling under the British flag, if he gets $30 more for a horse, $10 more per head for his cattle, $1.50 more for a sheep, 5c. more per lb. for dressed fowl, 5c. more per dozen for his eggs, 30c. per bushel more for his barley, 40c. more for his oats and peas and $4 more per ton for his hay, and other prices in proportion for everything else he produces, he would feel, by reason of that, like rebelling against that flag.

It is only when people cannot obtain a great boon that they rebel, and not when they can obtain it without.

As to the revenue argument, it is an easy matter to show that by curtailing the expenditure within reasonable limits, the revenue and expenditure could easily be made to balance.

In a short time after this policy comes in force farms will begin to increase in value, by one third, every industrious citizen of Canada will begin to improve in circumstances, the exodus

Write me no more letters, for it is really impossible that I should ever be so averse to you, that it is really impossible that I should ever be.

Madam,
Your affectionate love till death,
W. G.

To Miss M———

There are two ways of reading this letter. Her father compelled his daughter to show him all letters sent to her. The unsuspecting father read it straightforward; but the daughter (having the clue) read it otherwise. Find the contrast or go to MACADAM'S for it.

Conversation after Marriage.

We had better decide now on the best place to do our trading. MACADAM'S, of course, for Tea, Sugar and Groceries, and I heard some people talking on the street say he had the largest, the best assorted and best value in Ladies' and Children's Boots and Shoes of any one in Town. We will put him down for our Boots and Shoes. Now, for Crockery.... Well, we don't need to discuss that matter long. Why? Do you think MACADAM'S the best? Certainly I do; he is the only one who keeps an assortment worth looking at.

MONO MILLS.

Rumor has it that we are to have a fashionable wedding near here shortly. Guess who.

A prominent man in Mono has received a letter from Mr. H. Duggan, formerly of Mono Mills. Mr. Duggan has a good situation in Chicago, and is very much interested in the political turmoil in Canada. He is as loyal to the Old Man as ever, and would come over and vote for R. A. White in an emergency. He is the same old Tory and is much missed from this place, especially at a election and nomination, for his hotel was headquarters for the Conservative party. He was a keen observer of politics, and an able exponent with tongue or pen, of the side he espoused. Success to you, Mr. Duggan, is the wish of your host of friends in Cardwell.

On Sunday last one of the old pioneers of this township was called to his reward in the person of James Lewis, Jr., of this place, at the advanced age of 72 years. Deceased leaves a family of three grown up sons and a daughter, who are scattered over the continent, one being in Manitoba and another in California. Mr. Lewis was a half brother of the late Rev. Alex. Lewis, and was a prominent member of the Presbyterian church and a loyal supporter of Sir John Macdonald. He resided in Mono for forty or more years, and was esteemed by all who knew him. The immediate cause of his death was due to a paralytic stroke. The funeral took place to the Presbyterian church cemetery on Monday and was very largely attended.

For suppressions, female weakness, nervousness, etc., Dr. Williams' Pink Pills never fail. They have no equal as a blood to blood and nerve builder. Equally good for men and women.

"Jack the Ripper" murdered another woman in Whitechapel on Saturday. A sailor wearing blood stained clothes was arrested on suspicion, but the police don't believe he is the Ripper.

EAST LUTHER COUNCIL.

GRAND VALLEY, Feb. 23, 1891.

The Council met to-day at 9 o'clock a.m. as per adjournment of the 19th of January last. Members all present. Reeve in the chair.

The minutes of the last meeting were adopted as read, on motion of W. E. Scott and Wm. McClelland.

By-laws were duly introduced and passed, as follows:

To amend By-law 162, regulating the number of licenses in the township, changing the number from two to three. Amending By-law No. 187, relating to the board of health, by substituting the name of James Reich for that of Henry Mark, who declines to act as one of the members of the board. A By-law to cancel the dog tax and also one to appoint overseers of highways, fence viewers and pound keepers for the current year, as follows:

George R. the infant son of Mr. George Rounding died on Sunday the 15th inst. The parents have the sympathy of their friends.

The anniversary in connection with the Methodist church of this place was held here on Tuesday evening, and was well attended. After tea had been served a very interesting programme was rendered.

Messrs. Jas. Calhoun & Sons, general merchants, of Dundalk, have made an a signment for the benefit of their creditors. This is another example of the disastrous effects of the credit system.

A reward of $2,000 is offered for the conviction of the murderers of Township Treasurer Boslop of Ancaster.

Peter Sullivan, a Toronto laborer, was drowned in the bay on Thursday morning.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Self Help.—Prior to the discovery of these remedies an easy, ready and reliable remedy for outward disfigurations and inward complications was, practically speaking, unknown. No one need now be at a loss if they should unfortunately suffer from piles, ulcers, sores, tumors, boils, bruises, sprains, &c. Enveloping Holloway's medicines are very intelligible printed directions for using them, which should be attentively read and immediately followed by all who resort to his treatment. Sooner or later the sufferer will assuredly triumph over the worst diseases. This searching Ointment disperses all those malignant humors which aggravate diseases of the skin, prevent the cicatrization of ulcers, and excite inflammatory tendencies in the system.

FREE TRADE.

The world needs free trade, but the world don't want it. The reader will ask, "Why not want what it needs?" This is one of the many simple looking questions that baffles science to answer. It is evident the nearer the consumer gets to the producer the cheaper the goods; for every man through whose hands an article passes must be paid for handling it. The main objection to free trade is that the revenue would have to be raised by direct taxation, whereas it is now raised by indirect taxation. The tax in the fall would be much higher than it is at present, but people would be much better able to pay, since the store bills would be smaller on account of cheap goods. The cost of collecting the duty is great, and the consumer has to pay it or do without the goods. The duty on many articles of luxury is high, and as the wealthy must have luxuries they pay a large share of the revenue. It is the high duty that, together with the prime cost, deters the poor from buying, and therefore prevents them from buying luxuries. Were the duty off although small farms would have to pay more direct tax, yet they would be able to do so, since groceries, hardware, etc., would be much cheaper than they are at present. Reciprocal free trade with the States would necessitate free trade with Great Britain, for the Conservatives, I see, are bound not to discriminate against her. The logical conclusion is this: If there is a benefit in free trade with the States, we are willing to lose the benefit rather than cut the last cord of British connection. Up to date none of the American papers and none of the Canadian papers have defined the limits of reciprocity. Some American journals suggest commercial union. This means, as I understand it, the same duty on the same article in both countries as charged on foreign imports; that goods, the products of the field, the mine, or the sea, shall be free going from Canada to the United States and free from the States into Canada. In a bargain of this sort the Americans would fix the tariff, and Canada would have to acquiesce. The proposition will never be assented to by the Conservatives—it would bar out England.

JOHN IRELAND, Dragon.

CAUTION

Holloway's Pills & Ointment

WHEREAS I AM INFORMED one Joseph Haydock, of New York, is making and selling Pills and Ointment under the name of HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT, and that the same are being imported by certain persons in the British Provinces of America, to the detriment of the public and also to my injury and loss.

Now, I declare the said Joseph Haydock has no authority whatever from me to use my name in any way. He is not my agent. He holds no power of attorney of mine. I have no connection with him whatever.

Persons purchasing the said Pills and Ointment as Medicines of Joseph Haydock, or to any other, or selling the same in any part of the British American Provinces, will be prosecuted according to law.

I have no agent in the United States, and my medicines sold there are counterfeit.

Every Pot and Box of my Genuine Medicines bears on the label the address 533 Oxford Street, London, and has affixed thereon the British Government Stamp, bearing my name, HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT, engraved thereon.

The trade mark of my said Medicines is registered in Ottawa and also at Washington.

Signed, THOMAS HOLLOWAY.

ARCHIVES OF ONTARIO TORONTO

[illegible] for the sick and [illegible] over to you. M. Pearson is the wife of your host of friends in Cardwell.

The Sandy Bay one of the old pioneers of this township was called to his reward in a ripe old age of James Lewis, Jr., Esq., Mona, at the advanced age of 78 years. Deceased leaves a family of six grown up sons and a daughter, who are scattered over the continent, one being in Manitoba and another in California. Mr. Lewis was a half brother of the late Rev. Alex. Lewis, and was a prominent member of the Methodist church and a loyal supporter of Sir John Macdonald. He resided in Mona for fifty or sixty years, and was esteemed by all who knew him. The immediate cause of his death was due to a sudden stroke. The funeral took place to the Presbyterian church cemetery on Monday and was very largely attended.

For suppressions, female weakness, nervousness, etc., Dr. Williams' Pink Pills never fail. They have no equal as a blood to the and nerve builder. Equally good for men and women.

"Jack the Ripper" murdered another woman in Whitechapel on Saturday. A sailor wearing blood stained clothes was arrested on suspicion, but the police don't believe he is the Ripper.

George R. the infant son of Mr. George Rounding died on Sunday the 15th inst. The parents have the sympathy of their friends.

The anniversary in connection with the Methodist church of this place was held here on Tuesday evening, and was well attended. After tea had been served a very interesting programme was rendered.

Messrs. Jas. Calhoun & Sons, general merchants, of Dundalk, have made an a signment for the benefit of their creditors. This is another example of the disastrous effects of the credit system.

A reward of $2,000 is offered for the conviction of the murderers of Township Treasurer Heslop of Ancaster.

Peter Sullivan, a Toronto laborer, was drowned in the bay on Thursday morning.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Self Help.—Prior to the discovery of these remedies it was easy, ready and reliable remedy for outward disfigurations and inward complications was, practically speaking, unknown. No one need now be at a loss if they should unfortunately suffer from piles, ulcers, sores, tumors, boils, bruises, sprains, &c. Enclosing Holloway's medicines are very intelligible print directions for using them, which should be attentively read and immediately followed by all who resort to his treatment. Sooner or later the sufferer will assuredly triumph over the worst diseases. This searching Ointment disperses all those malignant humors which aggravate diseases of the skin, prevent the cicatrization of ulcers, and excite inflammatory tendencies in the system.

FREE TRADE.

The world needs free trade, but the world don't want it. The reader will ask, "Why not want what it needs?" This is one of the many simple looking questions that baffles science to answer. It is evident the nearer the consumer gets to the producer the cheaper the goods for every man through whose hands an article passes must be paid for handling it. The main objection to free trade is that the revenue would have to be raised by direct taxation, whereas it is now raised by indirect taxation. The tax in the fall would be much higher than it is at present, but people would be much better able to pay, since the store bills would be smaller on account of cheap goods. The cost of collecting the duty is great, and the consumer has to pay it or do without the goods. The duty on many articles of luxury is high, and as the wealthy must have luxuries they pay a large share of the revenue. It is the high duty that, together with the prime cost, deters the poor from buying, and therefore prevents them from buying luxuries. Were the duty off although small farms would have to pay more direct tax, yet they would be abler to do so, since groceries, hardware, etc., would be much cheaper than they are at present. Reciprocal free trade with the States would necessitate free trade with Great Britain, for the Conservatives, I see, are bound not to discriminate against her. The logical conclusion is this: If there is a benefit in free trade with the States, we are willing to lose the benefit rather than cut the last cord of British connection. Up to date none of the American papers and none of the Canadian papers have defined the limits of reciprocity. Some American journals suggest commercial union. This means, as I understand it, the same duty on the same article in both countries as charged on foreign imports; that goods, the products of the field, the mine, or the sea, shall be free going from Canada to the United States and free from the States into Canada. In a bargain of this sort the Americans would fix the tariff, and Canada would have to acquiesce. The proposition will never be assented to by the Conservatives—it would bar out England.

JOHN IRELAND, Dracon.

NASAL BALM
It is a certain and speedy cure for Catarrh in the Head and Headache in all its stages.
SOOTHING, CLEANSING, HEALING.
Instant Relief, Permanent Cure, Failure Impossible.
Many so-called Remedies are already advertised as Catarrh Cures, such as Snuffs, Powders, Liquid Injections, Douche Syringes, etc. If you have Catarrh, and should have any of these, or any other, symptoms, you have Catarrh, and should lose no time in ridding yourself of the disease. Catarrh Balm is warranted to cure, permanently and speedily, any case of Catarrh, however long standing, by a thorough cleansing of the nasal passages, and by restoring the lost sense of smell, taste, hearing and sight. Catarrh Balm is sold by all druggists, or will be sent, post paid, on receipt of price, one bottle for $1; or three bottles for $2.

"Jack the Ripper" murdered another unarm in Whitechapel on Saturday. A sailor wearing blood stained clothes was arrested on suspicion, but the police don't believe he is the Ripper.

George R. the infant son of Mr. George Bowding died on Sunday the 15th inst. The parents have the sympathy of their friends.

The anniversary in connection with the Methodist church of this place was held here on Tuesday evening, and was well attended. After tea had been served a very interesting programme was rendered.

Messrs. Jas. Calhoun & Sons, general merchants, of Dundalk, have made an assignment for the benefit of their creditors. This is another example of the disastrous effects of the credit system.

A reward of $2,000 is offered for the conviction of the murderers of Township Treasurer Bishop of Ancaster.

Peter Sullivan, a Toronto laborer, was drowned in the bay on Thursday morning.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Self Help.—Prior to the discovery of these remedies an easy, ready and reliable remedy for outward disfigurations and inward complications was, practically speaking, unknown. No one need now be at a loss if they should unfortunately suffer from piles, ulcers, sores, tumours, boils, bruises, sprains, &c. Enveloping Holloway's medicines are very intelligible printed directions for using them, which should be attentively read and immediately followed by all who resort to his treatment. Sooner or later the sufferer will assuredly triumph over the worst diseases. This searching Ointment disposes all those malignant humors which aggravate diseases of the skin, prevent the cicatrization of ulcers, and on its inflammatory tendencies in the system.

FREE TRADE.

The world needs free trade, but the world don't want it. The reader will ask, "Why not want what it needs?" This is one of the many simple looking questions that baffles science to answer. It is evident the nearer the consumer gets to the producer the cheaper the goods; for every man through whose hands an article passes must be paid for handling it. The main objection to free trade is that the revenue would have to be raised by direct taxation, whereas it is now raised by indirect taxation. The tax in the fall would be much higher than it is at present, but people would be much better able to pay, since the store bills would be smaller on account of cheap goods. The cost of collecting the duty is great, and the consumer has to pay it or do without the goods. The duty on many articles of luxury is high, and as the wealthy must have luxuries they pay a large share of the revenue. It is the high duty that, together with the prime cost, deters the poor from buying, and therefore prevents them from buying luxuries. Were the duty off although small farms would have to pay more direct tax, yet they would be abler to do so, since groceries, hardware, etc., would be much cheaper than they are at present. Reciprocal free trade with the States would necessitate free trade with Great Britain, for the Conservatives, I see, are bound not to discriminate against her. The logical conclusion is this: If there is a benefit in free trade with the States, we are willing to lose the benefit rather than cut the last cord of British connection. Up to date none of the American papers have defined the limits of reciprocity. Some American journals suggest commercial union. This means, as I understand it, the same duty on the same article in both countries as charged on foreign imports; that goods, the products of the field, the mine, or the sea, shall be free going from Canada to the United States and free from the States into Canada. In a bargain of this sort the Americans would fix the tariff, and Canada would have to acquiesce. The proposition will never be assented to by the Conservatives—it would bar out England.

JOHN IRELAND, Dracon.

MUSIC IN THE STREET.

Like motion lines in the heaven
Red glowed the sun long day;
No breeze from rythy forests
Had stirred over the way
Of speed and toiling thousands,
Pent in the walls of town;
And languidly, lax and stifling,
The night crept darkly down.

No zephyr from the ocean
Came flying, salt and sweet,
To fan the aching forehead,
Or cool the weary feet;
Old men and little children
And women, pale and worn, grass clippings, with a dash of clove and castor oil. The Ottawa customer had made the mixture rancid, but had not moved on it, as it were, to any great extent.

"Did you ever try yeast?" asked a caller one day after Mrs. Billus had measured her sufferings with that vinegar. "I have seen my mother put a small cake of yeast in here if it was too slow in making."

Then Mrs. Billus bought a cake of d y yeast, crumbled it into the mouth of the jug, and waited six months. At the end of that time she sampled the contents again.

The stuff tasted like a mixture of

HE MINDED HIS OWN BUSINESS.

"For cool self possession the demeanor of a man is hard to discount." This trait of the negro was illustrated in a recent trial in Invoice of a white man named Chambers for shooting another man. The most important witness was Frank Jenkins, negro, who was whitewashing a chicken coop only a few feet away when the general fuss began. When the lie was given the defendant went for his gun—"What did you do then?" asked the cross-examiner. Witness—"I just went on white-washing de chicken coop."—Cross-examiner—"But when the defendant went for his gun, he minded his own business." Chambers was acquitted.

BEATING A LAWYER.

One of the best guns of Allen, of Mississippi, says a Washington correspondent of the New York Tribune, was dropped the other night at Chamberlain's. Half a dozen congenial spirits were seated together at a table, and conversing and another led Allen to reel off half a dozen of stories. The last one was about his Topeka acquaintance, Bill Brown. Bill is an old farmer who owns half the weather around Allen's native city. A year ago he bought a young bull from a lawyer who is a shrewd fellow and known throughout Allen's district. "Brown wasn't quite sure of his bargain," said Allen, "so

MUSIC IN THE STREET.

Like nature born to the heavens
Bud glowed the live long day;
No bonnet from joy's fountain
That dwelled w'er the way
Of spent and toiling thousands,
Poured the waits of mirth;
And mysterious, hot and stifling,
The night crept darkly down.

No zephyr from the ocean
Came flying, salt and sweet,
To fan the aching forehead,
Or cool the weary feet;
Old men and little children
And women, pale and wan,
Stared hopeless through the twilight,
And so the dusk grew on.

And men were sick to curning,
And women sick to tears,
And infant faces puny
Were stamped with twice their years,
When suddenly and blithely
There woke a thrilling strain
That fell on every listener
Like sunshine after rain.

A band of strolling players,
They struck a merry waltz:
Who knows, in time and tune 'perhaps,
Were many and glaring faults?
But the angry brows grew softer,
The angry lips grew sweet,
And the children took to dancing,
To the music in the street.

"It rests a fellow somehow,"
Cried one poor lad who bore
No less a burden onward
Than he had borne before.
But his step was quick and buoyant,
His air was glad and free,
As down the street the measure
Thence kept him company.

Oh! God be praised for music,
That round our earthly cares
So often weaves the pleasant thoughts
Of angels unawares,
That cheats our souls of sorrow,
And gives to labor rest,
And stirs in every human heart
The dearest and the best.

The strolling band passed onward,
("Wait till the clouds roll by,")
The message left behind them,
To banish sob and sigh;
And softly from the ocean
A wind rose, salt and sweet,
And throbbed with pulse of vigor through
The faint and fevered street.

A FLAT FAILURE.

About two years ago Mrs. Billus bought a gallon of sweet cider and put it into a large jug, which she placed behind the kitchen range.

"I have no confidence in the vinegar we get at the store, John," she explained to her husband. "It's made of poisonous chemicals, or the washings of beer glasses, of that kind. I am going to make my own cider vinegar and I'll know it's pure."

"Do you think it will ferment properly if you keep it corked up tight like that?" inquired Mr. Billus.

"It's got to be kept corked if you want it clean," she replied. "Do you suppose I want all the dust of the kitchen settling in it? My mother used to make her own vinegar, and I don't think I've quite forgotten how she did it."

"All right," rejoined Mr. Billus. "It's your vinegar. Make it any way you please."

It was a warm place behind that range, and the cider went to work at once.

A few nights later Mr. Billus was aroused from his slumbers by a noise in the kitchen. He came down-stairs with a lamp in one hand and a revolver in the other, and found that the cider had blown the cork out of the jug and made a striking picture of a rising sun on the ceiling, besides spattering everything in its vicinity with a brownish yellow foam.

The next morning Mrs. Billus removed the traces of the catastrophe and tied a piece of cloth over the mouth of the jug in lieu of a cork.

"It will keep out the dirt and permit the cider to ferment without doing any mischief," she said. "It's working all right, John."

Several weeks passed away. Dust settled on the jug. Mrs. Billus could observe a somewhat sour odor as she hovered near the stove, and one day she lifted the jug out from its resting place, removed the cloth, poured out a tablespoonful of the contents, and tasted it.

It wasn't vinegar yet. Its usefulness as sweet cider was a thing of the past, but it wouldn't have answered at all for making pickles.

"It needs a little diluting," said a neighbor to whom Mrs. Billus stated the case one morning. "It's too strong."

Having read somewhere that rain water was the purest of all, Mrs. Billus filtered a quantity from the cistern, poured it into the jug, put the latter back behind the range, and waited patiently a whole month. Then she tasted her cider vinegar again.

It was somewhat sour, but more bitter than sour, and seemed to have a flavor of everything that had been stored in the kitchen for months. It was not vinegar yet, by several stages.

"My mother used to put a little molasses in her vinegar if it didn't turn just right," said another neighbor to whom Mrs. Billus related her troubles.

Mrs. Billus accordingly put a pint of Orleans molasses into the jug and awaited developments for six weeks before testing the merits of the molasses prescription.

The stuff now tasted like the juice of green olives, with a dash of alum and water. The Orleans molasses had made the mixture sweeter, but had not improved it, as it were, in any great extent.

"Did you ever try yeast?" asked a caller one day after Mrs. Billus had narrated her sufferings with that vinegar. "I have seen my mother put a small cake of yeast in hers if it was too slow in making."

Then Mrs. Billus bought a cake of dry yeast, crumbled it into the mouth of the jug, and waited six months. At the end of that time she sampled the contents again.

The stuff tasted like a mixture of muriatic acid and bilge water. It wasn't vinegar. That was clear.

"All it needs, Marie," solemnly observed Mr. Billus, one occasion when the subject was up, "is time. Give it time, my dear. Heavens and earth, Maria, you can't make vinegar in a day!"

Mrs. Billus looked at him sharply, but he seemed to be perfectly in earnest, and the topic was dropped.

At the expiration of another period of some months she tasted the contents of the jug again.

It wasn't as much like vinegar as it was a year and a half before.

"If you say anything more about giving that vinegar time, John Billus," she explained, "there'll be trouble."

"What's the matter with it my dear?" he inquired, blandly. "Isn't it sour enough?"

"No. It's bitter. And horrible. That's all it is."

"I think, Maria," he remarked, "that if you will remove the cloth from the top and give one good look down into the jug in your present frame of mind the stuff will either turn sour or evaporate.

Then he grabbed his hat and went forth into the howling, pitiless storm that raged outside.

* * * * *

More months passed away. About ten days ago Mrs. Billus inspected the vinegar again. It wasn't necessary to taste it. The smell was sufficient. Then she grasped that jug firmly by the handle, carried it with a quick, resolute step to the back alley, emptied out on a pile of ashes a vile, mold covered mess of greenish-brown liquid, broke the jug on the frozen ground, and went back into the house a changed woman.

Her first New Years resolution was a solemn and binding one never to try to make her own cider vinegar again, never, never, never as long as she lived.

HOW $100 GREW.

If a boy or a young man puts even a small sum at interest in a good saving institute, or wherever compound interest will be guaranteed, it will take care of itself—and take care of him in a good degree when he is near his sixties. Patience and compound interest are almost as good friends as industry. The following pleasant incident comes from the St. Louis Post Despatch:

"Some years ago a man entered the Boatmen's Saving Bank on Second street, in St. Louis, with a somewhat diffident air and looked enquiringly about him, as one not quite positive of of his bearings. He scrutinized the building closely, looked about the interior, and presently found his way to the cashier's desk.

"There used to be a bank here in the old time,' he said, 'called the Boatmen's Saving Institution. I suppose it is dead long ago; this bank of course has nothing to do with it?"

"It is the same bank," replied the cashier, "only the name is somewhat changed."

"Ah?" exclaimed the stranger with surprise. "Well, when the old institution started, I was one of the first depositors, but I only put in $100. I reckon after so many ups and downs, that it must have been wiped out long ago?"

"Who are you?" the cashier asked, and what is your name?"

"My name is Jefferies—"

"Thomas Jefferies?" cried the cashier.

"Yes, they called me Tom, then."

"Where have you been, Mr. Jefferies these long years, and why haven't you written us?"

"In California; and of course I thought the $100 was a dead duck, and it's only your sign that called me in now."

"Well, Mr. Jefferies, if you have been idle, said the cashier, taking down and opening a great folio, your hundred dollars has not; here it is. Your check on this bank to-day is good for $7,875. You have only to get some one to prove your identity and we will pay it over.

HE MINDED HIS OWN BUSINESS.

"You can't sell possession the dominion of Keep-it-hard-to-discover." This trait of the negro was illustrated in a recent trial in Inverness of a white man named Chambers for shooting another man. The most important witness was Frank Jenkins, negro, who was white-washing a chicken coop only a few feet away when the quarrel took place. When the lie was given the defendant went for his gun.—"What did you do then?" asked the cross-examiner. Witness—"I jes went on white-washing de chicken coop."—Cross-examiner—"But when the defendant went for his gun, and it looked as if some one was going to get hurt, then what did you do?" Witness—"I kept on white washing de chicken coop." Cross-examiner—"When the first shot was fired what did you do?" Witness—"Kept right on white-washing. It was none of my business; and wah I come from, in Kentuck, I learned not to interfere with gentlemen occupied in settling a question of honah. I jes' turned up one corner of de coop, and kept on white washing." Cross examiner—"Did you do anything when they removed the body?" Witness—"Yas, sah; kept on white-washing dat chicken-coop." Even the Justice was moved to smile on this uncommon display of a disposition to attend strictly to one's own business. This comes to us from America; and there is a lesson in it, which may be wholesome if taken with a grain of salt. If Frank Jenkins could have saved a life he ought to have left his hen coop and whitewash, and it may have been a passive selfishness which kept him from so doing. Yet if he kept clear of the quarrel because he had nothing to do with it, and had no gun, and the two white ruffians would probably have turned on him, he was wise to mind his own work. At any rate, in most cases, when we have no right nor reason to intermeddle, we had better go on with the chicken coop.

A NIGHT CLERK'S EXPERIENCE.

"Yes," said the night clerk of the Golden Eagle, "you see some mighty queer kind of people in this business, for fact."

"Don't say?" we replied with interest, inasmuch as even the reminiscences of a night clerk as a mitigation of boredom of a temporary sojourn in Sacramento was "better than nothing," as the Baptist old lady said when her pastor informed her that the Methodists would be sent to Hades for 1,000 years anyway.

"When people go off travelling they act different from what they do at home' continued the night clerk thoughtfully. "You don't notice it so much in the day time. You've got to be on the watch to see guests get off the reservation and have ghost dances."

"Do, eh?"

"That's what. Frinstance, there was a tall, thin, kinder sad looking chap put up here about three weeks ago, who was a high roller from 'way back. The very first night he got out on the Bad Lands and came back shouting. It took two porters and all the bell boys to get him up stairs to bed. The next night he went out to a chicken fight and licked a couple of hackmen on the way home. He was pretty warm, I tell you.

"Rather."

"The next night—it was 1 a. m.—he came in loaded, as usual. There was a theatrical troupe in town, and two of the actresses were about retiring as he passed up stairs whooping like a lot of Sioux chasing a sutler's wagon. He rapped on the actresses door, and as they wouldn't open it, of course, he blew cigarette smoke through the keyhole and yelled 'Fire!'

"Made a panic, didn't it?"

"That's no word for it. Looked like a sheet and pillow case party in an insane asylum. We read the riot act then but he put up a warm talk with the proprietor and squared it somehow. He was a velvet talker as sure as you're born. The night after that he coaxed me into a dice game and skinned a hundred and sixty outer me quicker'n a wink."

"Made his expenses, eh?"

"Exactly. Well, next morning he came down with his head swelled and his grip packed. He said that he hated to leave us, an he'd had such a quiet pleasant genial sort of time, but duty called him and he must away. So I made out his bill."

"Made it a pretty large one, too, didn't you?"

"'Bout the usual—but wait. I handed him his account, and what do you think he said?"

"Can't imagine.'

"Why, he said, 'Great Scott! don't you make a little reduction to clergymen?"

A chap en route for Boston, who was detained by a delay of three hours at Troy, said it was a Troy weight he had never seen in any tables.

Sunday school Teacher—Oh, Sandford, what are you doing in company with such bad boys?—Sandford—Teaching them how to pitch pennies for keeps.

We are told that "a word to the wise is sufficient," but the Welsh language seems to have more y's to the word than are absolutely necessary.

BEATING A LAWYER.

One of the best guns of Allen, of Mississippi, says a Washington correspondent of the New York Tribune, was dropped the other night at Chamberlain's. Half a dozen congenial spirits were seated together at a table, and one thing and another led Allen to reel off full a dozen of stories. The last one was about his Topsie constituent, Bill Brown. Bill is an old farmer who owns half the mules around Allen's native city. A year ago he bought a young bull from a lawyer who is a shrewd fellow and known throughout Allen's district. "Brown wasn't quite sure of his bargain," said Allen, "so every time the lawyer went that way he hedged so much that the lawyer grew extravagant in his praise."

"I tell you, Brown," said he, as he rode by the farm house, "that's the finest animal in the whole country. I'd ride any time two miles out of my way just to pass it in your meadow. I sold it to you for $75, but I reckon it's worth—"

"How much is it worth, cap'n?" said the farmer.

"Well, if I was selling it to day I wouldn't let it go for a cent less than $250. It's worth that and I congratulate you on shaving me neatly."

Bill Brown felt pretty good over the bull and every time he saw the lawyer talked about it, the lawyer always repeating that he would not sell it for less than $250.

The lawyer, in the meantime, had become counsel for a Mississippi railroad, and had to appraise and settle all difficulties for the corporation.

One day he sat in his office loafish Bill Brown came in, twirling his hat between his thumbs, and said in a wheedling tone:

"I reckon that 'air bull is good for a pert sum, cap'n."

"Certainly, Mr. Brown, certainly; $250 couldn't buy it of me if I still had it in my possession."

"Well, cap'n that 'air bull was run over by yer railroad las' night, an' I reckon you'll see that they pay me $250 for it."

THE SOUL STILL LEFT.

"This your first ocean voyage?" queried my friend, as he walked up to me just as I was boarding an outgoing steamer.

Admitted that it was.

"Then," he continued, "let me give you a little advice how to avoid that dread malady, seasickness. I hope you did not gorge yourself at the breakfast table."

"No; I only drank a cup of coffee."

"That was perfectly proper. Of course, when you get outside the harbor you will throw that up, but you will feel all the better for doing so."

"And then——"

"Then for dinner just eat a little soup. When you get on deck you will throw that up too; but never mind—it will only improve your condition."

"But," I protested, "if I am to eat nothing on the whole voyage but soup and coffee, I will die of starvation."

"Have no fear of that. For supper just drink a cup of coffee again. That will stay on your stomach all night. In the morning when you get up you will throw that up also. After doing so you will feel a little lump in your throat. Don't throw that up."

"Why?"

"Because," he answered, with a Platonic grin, "that is liable to be your immortal soul."

A CRUEL CREATURE.

The comedian on the stage had brought a laugh by some allusions to a boy's first shaving encounter with a barber, when the young man leaned over his girl and whispered:

"That's true to life, I can tell you."

"How do you know?" inquired the girl.

"How do you know?" he repeated in a whisper, "why, by experience, of course that was the way with me when I first got shaved."

"When was that?" she asked innocently.

"Oh! before I raised my moustache," he returned, moving uneasily.

"What moustache?" she queried, a little surprised.

"What moustache do you suppose?" he retorted, turning red.

"Why, Charlie," whispered the girl. "I never saw any moustache. Do you mean——"

"Never mind what I mean," hissed the young man through his front teeth, and became silent. There was lots of fun in the play, but Charlie never laughed again. He took the young woman home, but on the following Sunday night he went to see another girl.

J. Jay.—If we had the right cash to choose a part of a gold watch, and I had the first choice what part would you take? C. Keane—The balance, of course.

The Sun.
TO SHINE FOR ALL.
ORANGEVILLE, MARCH 12, 1891.

CENTRE WELLINGTON.

THE electors of Centre Wellington have decided to send Mr. Andrew Semple to Ottawa once more, but what benefit it will be to THE SUN fails to see. It was not the voice of Orangeville or East Garafraxa that told him to remain member for Centre Wellington, but the indifference of the Conservatives at the western end of the riding. Unlike the workers at this end of the county, the Conservatives up there did not trouble themselves about the voters' lists while their political opponents were always on the alert and got over two hundred Grit names on the lists, and in this manner Mr. W. H. Hunter was defeated by a majority of one hundred and fifty-seven. Mr. Hunter, although unsuccessful in this contest, has no reason to feel ashamed of his efforts to redeem Centre Wellington, as he fought an honorable fight and one that any man ought to be proud of.

NORTH WELLINGTON.

ALTHOUGH the Conservatives suffered defeat in North Wellington it is gratifying to know the electors of that constituency are getting tired of their notorious representative, James McMullen. At the last general elections Mr. McMullen had a majority bordering on four hundred votes, but now that big four hundred has been reduced to one hundred and sixty-nine. The cause of Mr. L. H. Clark's defeat is identical with that of Mr. Hunter in Centre Wellington—the voters' lists not being properly attended to. The township of Amaranth pronounced against the Grit candidate in unmistakable terms, and if the lists were what they should have been Mr. Clarke's plurality in that township would have been at least fifty more. The result, however, clearly shows that Mr. McMullen will soon have to look for another constituency or retire from parliamentary life. It is sincerely hoped he will choose the latter alternative.

CARDWELL.

The election of Mr. Robert S. White in Cardwell was a foregone conclusion, the reformers knowing very well that a supporter of Sir Richard Cartwright's policy could not possibly represent such an intelligent community as the electors of Cardwell are. Considering everything Mr. Myers fought a brilliant battle, but we think he hardly expected victory to perch on his banner.

At the bye election, a little over two years ago, Mr. White and Mr. W. Stubbs were the contestants, the former being elected by a majority of one hundred and forty one. Both gentlemen were Conservatives, therefore the battle was not fought on party lines. The fight last Thursday, however, was of an entirely different nature and demonstrated that the constituency of Cardwell was loyal to the Conservative cause. Mr. White has done much to retain the confidence of the electors and they did not forget him at the polls, rolling up, as they did, the magnificent majority of two hundred and forty nine.

We hope Mr. White will continue the same able representative and give the electors no cause for complaint.

ECHOES OF THE FIGHT.

The three Wellingtons will remain as they were.

The great Grit stronghold of Caledon gave Mr. Myers a majority of only 52.

Dr. Montague has been re-elected for the county of Haldimand. Coulter is away out of the race.

Hon. A. Mackenzie has retained East York by a majority of 26. McLean of the World came very nearly getting there.

Dr. Orton, ex-member for Centre Wellington, arrived in the county in time to mark his ballot for the Conservative candidate.

It is rumored that Bill Algie has given up politics for good. It takes something more than pedantry and cool cheek to influence voters.

The Grits felt jubilant when it was announced that Minister of Finance Foster was defeated. The tables were turned when the correct result was announced—Foster elected by 7 3.

Mr. John Gillespie, ex-Reeve of Amaranth, conveyed Clarke's voters to the Farmington poll in great style. Amaranth was solid for Clarke.

Mr. Hargraft, who won West Northumberland from Mr. Guillet, the former Conservative member, is the youngest member in the new House. He is only 26.

The Grits thought they had a big Gunn in Kingston to shoot Sir John Macdonald. The old man's magnificent majority of 500 indicates it was only a pop Gunn.

Sam Hughes, brother of J. L. Hughes, P. S. inspector of Toronto, made a gallant fight down in North Victoria. He reduced the Reform majority from 788 to 100.

The banner township of Mono has always been loyal to the Conservative cause and Thursday was no exception. A majority of 304 was rolled up for Mr. R. S. White.

The name of Mrs. Langford of Cameron, North Victoria, was through an error placed on voters' list, and probably for the first time in Canada a woman voted at the Parliamentary election. Her choice was Major Sam Hughes.

SIR JOHN SUSTAINED

The Policy of Sir John Macdonald Endorsed by the Electors of Canada.

VICTORY ALL ALONG THE LINE!

THE CHIEFTAIN'S TERRIFIC MAJORITY IN KINGSTON.

Conservative Candidates Elected in Every City but London—The Government Has a Majority of 35 to Start With.

THE great political battle has been fought and won and on the eventful 5th of March Sir John Macdonald's government was again returned to power with a majority of thirty five, which is increasing every day. The battle was very keenly contested and many thought the old man's time had come. But the electors of Canada, however, did not view the situation from that point; they were determined to show the world they still had confidence in their country and no foreign power, however great, could induce them to sever their connection with the British crown. The Conservatives had a hard fight, having to contest against the boodle of American millionaires and monopolists which was scattered broadcast throughout the land.

In East the Liberal candidate, Mr. Featherston, was elected over Mr. McCaila by a majority of 73. As an offset Halton went Conservative.

Sir John Macdonald's magnificent majority in Kingston was a stunner and will not soon be forgotten.

Full returns will be found on our fourth page, and next week we will have the official returns.

CAMILLA.

Charlie the four-year-old son of Mr. J. A. Hewitt, died a week ago Saturday. Mr. Hewitt has the sympathy of all.

We regret to hear that Mr. Sinclair Terry has removed to Dakota. What will Gooseville do for a mayor now?

We are very sorry, as is everybody around here, of the sad death of Mr. Ed. Dowdall, who was almost instantly killed by being dragged under a sleigh, as reported in last week's SUN. Rev. Father McPhillips officiated at the funeral.

The elections are all over at last, and Mr. White has been returned for Cardwell, notwithstanding Algie's efforts to elect a Grit. The banner township was always loyal to the conservative cause and this time was no exception, as White's big majority will show.

CHARLESTON.

Mr. Wm. Clark has sold his farm of 200 acres, lot 18, 1st con east, Caledon, to Mr. Jas. Armstrong, of Mono. Mr. Clark has removed to Orangeville.

Mr. Wm. B. Coutts, a well known resident of this village, died at his residence on Monday at the age of 42 years. His wife, a daughter of Mr. W. Phillips, and four children—two girls and two boys—survive him. The funeral took place on Wednesday afternoon to the Charleston cemetery, Rev. A. Wilson officiating.

We are sorry to have to announce the death of Mrs. Flora McKinnon, relict of the late Martin McKinnon, which took place on Sunday at the residence of Mrs. Rutledge in this village. She was 88 years of age. Deceased came to Canada in 1819, and settled in Vaughan township, county of York, where she resided until recently. Her remains were taken to Hamilton for interment.

MONO CENTRE.

The Mono township council will meet here on Friday.

Mr. Wesley Dynes, who has been visiting friends in this neighborhood for the past few months, left on Monday for Dakota.

Mr. Wm. Henry, of Cheltenham, is at present the guest of Mr. Joseph Henry of this place. Will is a jovial fellow and appears to be enjoying himself.

Mr. Thomas Flatt, was united in holy wedlock on Wednesday last week at Alliston to Miss Sarah Breedon of Sheldon. Both bride and groom are well known in this vicinity and will have the best wishes of a host of friends for long life of wedded bliss. They will shortly take up their residence in Adjala township.

A rather interesting political meeting was held here last week in the interest of Mr. Myers. Unrestricted reciprocity was flaunted before the electors by Messrs. Dodds and Myers, but Mr. Powell Martin knocked their arguments into a cocked hat. A great deal of crossing firing was indulged in much to the amusement of the audience.

GRAND VALLEY.

(Star.)

Many of the children in the village of late have been on the sick list.

Rev. Mr. Hill, who has been laid up with inflammation of the lungs during the past two weeks, is slightly improving.

The Select Templars gave a free supper to the members of the R. T. of T., in their hall on Wednesday evening last week. A good time was enjoyed.

The thaws of last week raised the water in the river and running streams around Grand Valley and many bridges were in danger from being carried away by the ice jams.

The citizens of Woodbridge gave N. Clarke Wallace a great send off on Friday night. R. S. White, M. P., for Cardwell, who was on his way to Montreal, remained over and participated in the celebration. Cheer upon cheer were given for the members of West York, Cardwell, Sir John and the Queen.

A short while ago the Belfountain Reformers passed a vote of "want of confidence" in Mr. Myers, their standard-bearer. THE SUN published the resolution and stamped it as a campaign dodge. After the ballots were counted on Thursday evening it was found the Grits voted to a man for Mr. Myers and gave their old majority of 105. The people were prepared for the result, consequently it was no shock.

Local Intelligence.

Rainy Sunday, 15th March.

Tuesday will be St. Patrick's day.

Mr. T. Donahoe has purchased T. T. King's grocery store.

New new scenery at Sill's Photo Gallery, the latest American style.

The Mono township council will meet at Mono Centre on Friday, March 13th.

The Tilsonburg Entered has enlarged its form from a four to an eight page paper.

Mrs. McKinnon, mother of Miss McKinnon, music teacher died at Caledon on Sunday.

The trustees of S. S. No. 10, Amaranth, are asking for tenders for the erection of a new building.

An employe of the McMaster barrel-ing machine works will receive a fortune amounting to $18,000 next May.

An adjourned meeting of the council was held in the chamber on Monday evening. No important business was transacted.

The Dominion express delivery rig ran away one day last week. Beyond strewing a pail of oysters on the road no damage was done.

The gasoline machine is out of order at the postoffice and the interior of the building is now illuminated by the "light of other days."

St. Mark's Temperance Society's concert on Monday week was well attended. The society will hold one more entertainment next Monday evening.

The many friends of Mr. R. T. Hann, manager of the Bank of Hamilton, will regret to hear that his youngest son, Walter Selwyn, died on Wednesday. The funeral will take place from the family residence, McCarthy street, at 4 P. M., on Friday, to the Forest Lawn cemetery.

PASSED HIS EXAMINATION.—We are pleased to notice that John W. Robb of this town has successfully passed his final examination, at the Philadelphia Dental college, taking the degree of D. D. S.

BROKE HIS LEG.—While Mr. Jas. Ramsey was walking down King street, Toronto, on Tuesday he slipped on the sidewalk and fractured one of his ankles. He arrived in town on the evening train and is now under the care of Dr. Smith.

FINED.—The two persons mentioned in last week's SUN as having ill treated a horse appeared at Saturday's police court. Chief Shields was the complainant and fully established a case. P. M. Pattullo fined each of them $5 and costs. This should serve as a warning to those who abuse dumb animals.

FRIDAY NIGHT'S CONCERT.—The Tennessean jubilee singers gave a first class concert in the town hall on Friday evening last under the auspices of St. Andrew's Y. P. A. The singing was excellent, but the attendance was smaller than it should have been. Those who remained away missed a treat.

GILCHRIST, KENT & CO.—Have closed their Petrolea store and removed the stock to Orangeville. It will be ready for inspection on and after Thursday, March 12th. Don't fail to see it. The stock is of the finest quality and will be sold at about half regular prices, having been bought at 56½ cents on the $.

DEAD.—We are sorry to hear that Mary, wife of Mr. Geo. C. Palmer and sister of the late Mrs. Perfect, died at her home in Rochester, N. Y., on Tuesday, from malarial fever. Mrs. Palmer was here on a visit about a month ago, and her death, which occurred just six days after her sister's, is a great shock to her friends and acquaintances.

WEDDING BELLS.—On Wednesday afternoon last the marriage of Mr. Henry Searle Brown, of Toronto, to Miss Tottie Pierce, took place at the residence of the bride's parents, Margaret street, Rev. A. Henderson, pastor of St. Mark's church, officiating. The happy young couple have left for their home in Toronto, accompanied by the best wishes of their many friends.

FISTIC ENCOUNTERS.—All day Saturday a farmer named Chambers was looking for a fight, but was unsuccessful in his efforts until after supper. He walked into one of the Broadway hotels and deliberately pasted an old resident in the mouth. Before he could make his escape he was knocked down by a stunning blow and then the boots were applied. Chief Shields was called and put a stop to the disgraceful exhibition.

FOSTER WINS.—The last masquerade carnival of the season took place in the Balmoral skating-rink on Monday evening. The centre of attraction was the deciding three-mile race for the silver tea urn. Joe Foster and Harry Hulse, who have each won two contests for the trophy, tied the scratch and started off at the beat of a drum. Before they had gone many rounds Joe let himself out and soon had a lap-and-a-half to spare. The race ended with Foster being the above distance ahead.

WEDDING.—A very pleasing event occurred on Tuesday last week, at 5 o'clock at the residence of Mr. J. M. Bennett, 1st avenue, the occasion being the marriage of his second daughter, Minnie B., to Mr. Walter Lief, of Orwold, Man. Rev. A. Henderson, M.A., performed the ceremony in the presence of a few invited guests. The bride was tastefully attired in a travelling dress of navy blue cloth. The young couple amid general congratulations left on the evening train for their home in the west.

[illegible]

[illegible] Rev. D. C. Hossack, pastor of St. Andrew's church, officiated at the grave, and Messrs. W. H. Hunter, R. Hewitt, Jas. Cooper, S. Corbett, Jas. Hewitt and Geo. Dunning acted as pallbearers. A husband and a family of seven—four boys and three girls—lament the death of a faithful wife and mother.

AMARANTH COUNCIL.

LAUREL, Feb'y 28th, '91.

The Amaranth council met at Laurel on the above date at the call of the Reeve. All the members present. The Reeve in the chair. Minutes of previous meeting were read and adopted.

Moved by E. Hamilton, seconded by J. Dudgeon, that leave be given to introduce a by law to provide for draining parts of the 4th, 5th, 6th, 9th and 10th concessions, and that be read a first and second time and numbered 238.—Carried.

By-law read a first and second time.

Moved by W. Johnston, seconded by J. A. Turner, that By-law No. 238 be published as directed by the Municipal Act for 4 weeks in the Orangeville SUN, the first of such publications to appear on Thursday, March 12th.—Carried.

Moved by W. Johnston, seconded by J. Dudgeon, that the Reeve issue his order for $36 in favor of the trustees of Shelburne, to pay for use of the town hall, Shelburne, as court room.—Carried.

The council then adjourned to meet as a Court of Revision on By-law No. 238 on Saturday, April 4th, at the usual hour.

M. G. VARCOE, Clerk.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—It is impossible entirely to prevent the noxious vapours which are given off in mines and tunnels, and those who, like miners and railway operatives, have to work day after day in such vitiated atmospheres, suffer in health and strength in consequence. The chest and liver often become clogged with the products of coal combustion, necessitating great attention to the health. No remedy is more valuable for miners and the like than Holloway's Pills, as they carry off all effete matter from the blood, and healthily stimulate the liver. They are also invaluable for active bowels and for all bilious complaints. The Ointment is a prime one remedy for bad sprains, ulcers and all manner of sores.

No Change in Centre Wellington.

GRANDVILLE & EAST GARAFRAXA ROLL UP BIG MAJORITIES FOR HUNTER.

Dominion Daily Sun Corrected to Date.

HIS BIG MAJORITY OF 400 DROPS TO 169.

THE elections have come and gone and our glorious Dominion is safe for the next five years at least. In Centre Wellington we had strong hopes of Mr. Hunter's election, but we were doomed to disappointment. The battle was fought in the most friendly manner and Mr. Hunter's cup protege are to be congratulated for the excellent work they did during the campaign. Orangeville and East Garafraxa were never better looked after by the Conservatives than they were at this election, and the large majorities they gave, even to so popular a man as Mr. Hunter, is simply astonishing. The Conservatives fought valiant battle and have no reason whatever to feel ashamed of their work. Up in the west end of the county the Grits raised certain cries against the Conservative candidate which were intended to swell their majority. These false cries, with the unstinted to voters' lists, placed the Liberal standard bearer. The Reformers attended to the lists and got every Reform name possible put on. The Conservatives, on the other hand, never troubled themselves about the matter and let things run recklessly on, and only for their apathy Mr. Hunter would be member for Centre Wellington to-day.

The vote is:

ORANGEVILLE.

| | Semple. | Hunter. |
|---|---|---|
| North Ward | 48 | 106 |
| South Ward | 38 | 149 |
| East Ward | 46 | 103 |

BROKE HIS NECK!

James Daniels, An Orangeville Carpenter, Falls from the Roof of a House and Dislocates His Neck.

Shortly after 1 o'clock Friday after noon James Daniels, a carpenter, fell from the roof of a cottage on Second street, and dislocated his neck, from the effects of which he died. It appears Daniels had been engaged to repair the roof of the building lately occupied by G. H. Galbraith, and at the time the accident occurred he was preparing to commence operations. The cottage is about fifteen feet high and for the convenience of the workmen a scaffold was built around the top so he could shingle the lower portion of the roof. Nobody saw the accident take place, but it is supposed deceased was on the roof and slipped down, his foot striking the scaffolding and making him turn half around. The poor fellow alighted on his head, in a frightful manner. He remained unconscious on the ground when he fell until Rev. A. Henderson, who was driving past in a cutter, happened to notice him. The rev. gentlemen lost no time in getting the unfortunate man into the rig and rapidly driving him to Dr. Henry's surgery. He was then taken home and his injuries attended to. From the first the doctor said it was impossible for the injured man to recover, owing to the great extent of his injuries. He lingered in a semi unconscious condition until Saturday evening, when the grim reaper moved him down. The body, from the shoulders down, was paralyzed from the time the accident occurred.

DISLOCATING HIS NECK

James Daniels, the victim of the accident, has resided in Orangeville for the past eight years, and ever since his arrival in town has had his share of troubles. He leaves a young wife and several small children totally unprovided for.

A charitably disposed citizen circulated a subscription on Saturday and in a few hours $40 had been collected for the bereaved family. There is some talk of holding a concert in aid of the fund, and if such takes place it will be well patronized.

Disappeared From Rockwood.

Last Fall Mr. Jesse Johnston, of Rockwood, suffered very much from boils. He says: "I got a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters and the effect was wonderful, the boils at once began to disappear and I was soon totally cured. B. B. B. is a natural foe to impure blood.

Mr. Charles Smith, of Moses Jaw, N. W. T., an old time resident of this town, is here renewing old acquaintances. Charley is looking well and reports things as flourishing in the North West.

MARSVILLE.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Thomas Moss, who died at her residence, in Waldemar, on Tuesday the 3rd instant, took place on Friday to Price's Corners cemetery and was largely attended. The deceased was only 33 years old. Mr. Moss will have the sympathy of all in his sore bereavement.

An instance of friendly feeling was exhibited here on Friday evening, the 27th inst., when a large number of friends waited upon Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McGowan to express their respect for them before the latter leave for Minnesota. A very pleasant evening was spent, in the course of which they became the recipients of some beautiful presents, accompanied by the following address which was read by Mr. W. Wilson:

DEAR FRIENDS,—The thought that you are about to separate yourselves from us, causes us no small degree of sorrow, and as the time which you are to spend here grows short, the thought becomes more impressed upon our minds that we are going to lose friends which we always held very near and dear. During the many long years you have spent here in Garafraxa, we have on all occasions found you to be genial, kind-hearted and always willing to assist and further every good cause. But since you have decided to go from among us, we can only hope that you may have as large a number of friends and well wishers in the far West as those you are leaving behind you in Garafraxa. But before we could think of you going away, we ask you to kindly accept this watch and chain, Mrs. Gowan this fruit stand, Martha this brooch and James and Albert these purses with their contents. We do not present those to you on account of their value, but as a slight token of our affection to you. It seems impossible to find words to express our feelings when we think that this may be the last time we will all meet here, but how thankful to God we should be when we think that he has prepared a heavenly home for us not far away where we may all meet and where there will be no sorrow and no more separation. We now wish you a safe journey and success and prosperity in your new home, and if we should never all meet here again we trust we will all meet you in Heaven.

Signed in behalf of your friends,
James McGowan,
John Wilson.

In replying Mr. McGowan became so overcome with emotion that he found it impossible to find words to express his feeling, however he kindly thanked his many friends for their kind interest taken in him and his family. A programme consisting of speeches and instrumental music was given, after which the young people took part in tripping the light fantastic till the wee sma' hours, when all parted for their homes, after wishing Mr. and Mrs. McGowan success and prosperity in their new home, feeling well satisfied with the evening's entertainment.

Mr. Hunter Makes a Very Good Showing, Forward Majority in 169.

As was expected, Cardwell has once more declared in favor of a supporter of Sir John's Government, and Mr. R. S. White was returned by a majority of 249 votes. Mr. White had to contend with great odds in this contest, numerous orders being issued disappointed reformers deserting from the Conservative ranks, the Third Grit stronghold, Caledon, created a sensation by giving Mr. Myers only 56 votes over Mr. White. The Liberal candidate had small majorities in three municipalities, Caledon, Adjala and Bolton, while the Conservative candidate carried Mono and Albion, the former by 304 and latter by 89. The "loyal men" cry and the trade question were worked for all they worth, and the former helped Mr. Myers considerably.

The vote stood as follows:

Mr. Matthew Anderson, of Keldon, met with a serious accident on Saturday last. He was engaged trimming off a tree that lay some feet from the ground when he fell and came in contact with the stump of a sapling having a sharp point, inflicting a terrible wound in the lower part of the abdomen. The sufferer was attended to by Dr. Rooney, of Shelburne.

On Friday evening, Feb. 27th, the following deputation from Shelburne Lodge No. 149, A.O.U.W., waited on Mrs. McClelland, widow of the late Rev. T. J. McClelland:—Major Douglas, Dr. Marshall, Wm. Hogg, Thos. Allen, M. W., and Wm. Collins recorder. The master workmen called on Bro. Marshall to read a letter of condolence and present Mrs. McClelland with a cheque for $2,000, being the amount of her late husband's insurance in the order. Mrs. McClelland thanked the members for their prompt manner in dealing with claims.

EMMA ABBOTT'S ASHES.

Her Body was Cremated after all, but the Fact Kept Secret.

The remains of Emma Abbott, the well-known prima donna who died last January, were cremated in Pittsburg, Pa., February 17 last. The fact was kept very quiet at the request of the mother of deceased and only became publicly known to day. The incineration took place in Samson's crematory. On February 14 three of Miss Abbott's executors arrived and arranged all details. On the morning of the 17th an elegant casket, addressed to Mr. Samson arrived from the West on the limited express and was taken directly to the crematory on Sixth avenue. The remains were immediately placed in the retort and in exactly one hour and fifteen minutes the incineration was completed.

At 4 20 o'clock that afternoon the ashes were placed in an ordinary urn and shipped on the Philadelphia express to New York city, where they were placed in a vault of the Safe Deposit Company, to await final interment in the family burying ground in Massachusetts. When the body was placed in the furnace it was robed in an elegant dress, made in Paris at a cost of $5,000. It was the singer's favorite costume and was made of heavy cream satin with lavender stripes and hand embroidered in gold. Miss Abbott had expressed a desire to be cremated in this dress.

None of the singer's relatives accompanied the remains to the city, the three executors being the only persons in attendance. They were in charge of W. F. Dunning of No. 67 Wall street, New York, Miss Abbott's legal adviser.

DON'T LOAF.—If you have no business of your own, don't loaf around the place of another. Nothing gives a business man a poorer opinion of a place than to see half a dozen loafers sitting or lounging around every time he goes in. The owner or proprietor may be too polite or forbearing to order you away, but inwardly he will wish you at the bottom of the sea. If he hires hands he expects them to work in business hours, and the man who hangs around a place of business, hour after hour, talking to the workmen, is never a welcome visitor to the proprietor. In this busy world there is work enough for all, and no man or boy should be content to be around and loaf.

ANOTHER ENGLISH SCANDAL.

The Wife of Earl Russell Prays for a Writ of Judicial Separation.

LONDON, March 2.—Lady Russell, wife of Lord Russell, has made application to the Divorce Division of the High Court of Justice, praying for a writ of judicial separation from her husband. The case has been entered for a hearing. The Earl denies the allegations made by his wife in her application and will stoutly contest the granting of the separation. The case excites much interest, not only because of the high social position occupied by the noble Earl and his wife, but also because they have been wedded but a short time, their marriage having taken place on the 6th of February last. Lady Russell is the daughter of the late Sir Claude Scott. Earl Russell, who succeeded to the earldom on the death of his grandfather, in 1878 is only twenty six years old. The outcome of the application is watched with much interest.

LONDON SENSATIONS.

The threatened divorce suit in which a member of the Ministry is cited as co-respondent is [illegible]. The counsel consulted advise that the case proceed. The prospective respondent is understood to be willing to have his character publicly vindicated. The allusions of the press to him have become so obvious and frequent that a clearing of his reputation is indispensable. The lady meanwhile is almost from society.

One Distinct Point.

One distinct point about Hagyard's Yellow Oil is, that it is just as good for external use. It is a cleanly, prompt and pleasant cure for rheumatism, colds, croup, sore throat, wounds, bruises, sprains, chapped hands, etc. No household should be without it.

Mrs. P. P. Coffey, of Omaha, wife of a mechanic, is said to have become sole heir to $75,000,000, left by a millionaire manufacturer named Joseph O'Neill, in Bradford, England. The deceased was Mrs. Coffey's father, who disowned her for her humble marriage.

DEAR SIRS—I was troubled by continuous and sick headache, and in fact felt very miserable until I tried B. B. B. I used seven bottles with Burdock Pills also, and they made me as well as ever I was. This was about two years ago, and I still enjoy the best of health.

MISS A. MCCULLOUGH, [illegible]

ARCHIVES OF ONTARIO
TORONTO

ple to Ottawa once more, but what honor. It will be THE SUN fails to see. It was not the votes of Orangeville or East Garafraxa that told him to remain member for Centre Wellington, but the indifference of the Conservatives at the western end of the riding. Unlike the the workers at this end of the county, the Conservatives up there did not trouble themselves about the voters' lists while their political opponents were always on the alert and got over two hundred Grit names on the lists, and in this manner Mr. W. H. Hunter was defeated by a majority of one hundred and fifty-seven. Mr. Hunter, although unsuccessful in this contest, has no reason to feel ashamed of his efforts to redeem Centre Wellington, as he fought an honorable fight and one that any man ought to be proud of.

NORTH WELLINGTON.

ALTHOUGH the Conservatives suffered defeat in North Wellington it is gratifying to know the electors of that constituency are getting tired of their notorious representative, James McMullen. At the last general elections Mr. McMullen had a majority bordering on four hundred votes, but now that big four hundred has been reduced to one hundred and sixty-nine. The cause of Mr. L. H. Clark's defeat is identical with that of Mr. Hunter in Centre Wellington—the voters' lists not being properly attended to. The township of Amaranth pronounced against the Grit candidate in unmistakable terms, and if the lists were what they should have been Mr. Clarke's plurality in that township would have been at least fifty more. The result, however, clearly shows that Mr. McMullen will soon have to look for another constituency or retire from parliamentary life. It is sincerely hoped he will choose the latter alternative.

CARDWELL.

The re-election of Mr. Robert S. White in Cardwell was a foregone conclusion, the reformers knowing very well that a supporter of Sir Richard Cartwright's policy could not possibly represent such an intelligent community as the electors of Cardwell are. Considering everything Mr. Myers fought a brilliant battle, but we think he hardly expected victory to perch on his banner.

At the bye election, a little over two years ago, Mr. White and Mr. W. Stubbs were the contestants, the former being elected by a majority of one hundred and forty one. Both gentlemen were Conservatives, therefore the battle was not fought on party lines. The fight last Thursday, however, was of an entirely different nature and demonstrated that the constituency of Cardwell was loyal to the Conservative cause. Mr. White has done much to retain the confidence of the electors and they did not forget him at the polls, rolling up, as they did, the magnificent majority of two hundred and forty nine.

We hope Mr White will continue the same able representative and give the electors no cause for complaint.

ECHOES OF THE FIGHT.

The three Wellingtons will remain as they were.

The great Grit stronghold of Caledonia gave Mr. Myers a majority of only 52.

Dr. Montague has been re-elected for the county of Haldimand. Coulter is away out of the race.

Hon A. Mackenzie has retained East York by a majority of 26. Maclean of the World came very nearly getting there.

Dr. Orton, ex member for Centre Wellington, arrived in the county in time to mark his ballot for the Conservative candidate.

It is rumored that Bill Algie has given up politics for good. It takes something more than pedantry and cool check to influence voters.

The Grits felt jubilant when it was announced that Minister of Finance Foster was defeated. The tables were turned when the correct result was announced—Foster elected by 7 3.

Mr. John Gillespie, ex-Reeve of Amaranth, conveyed Clarke's voters to the Farmington poll in great style. Amaranth was solid for Clarke.

Mr. Hargraft, who won West Northumberland from Mr. Guillet, the former Conservative member, is the youngest member in the new House. He is only 26.

The Grits thought they had a big Gunn in Kingston to shoot Sir John Macdonald. The old man's magnificent majority of 500 indicates it was only a pop Gunn.

Sam Hughes brother of J. L. Hughes, P S inspector of Toronto, made a gallant fight down in North Victoria. He reduced the Reform majority from 758 to 160.

The banner township of Mono has always been loyal to the Conservative cause and Thursday was no exception. A majority of 304 was rolled up for Mr R. S. White.

The name of Mrs. Langford of Cameron, North Victoria, was through an error placed on voters' list, and probably for the first time in Canada a woman voted at the Parliamentary election. Her choice was Major Hughes.

THE GREAT POLITICAL BATTLE has been fought and won and on the eventful 5th of March Sir John Macdonald's government was again returned to power with a majority of thirty five, which is increasing every day. The battle was very keenly contested and many thought the old man's time had come. But the Lion of Canada, however, did not view the situation from that point; they were determined to show the world they still had confidence in their country and no foreign power, however great, could induce them to sever their connection with the British crown. The Conservatives had a hard fight, having to contend against the hoodle of American millionaires and monopolists which was scattered broadcast throughout the land.

In Peel the Liberal candidate, Mr. Featherston, was elected over Mr. McCalla by a majority of 73. As an offset Halton went Conservative.

Sir John Macdonald's magnificent majority in Kingston was a stunner and will not soon be forgotten.

Full returns will be found on our fourth page, and next week we will have the official returns.

CAMILLA.

Charlie the four-year-old son of Mr. J. A. Hewitt, died a week ago Saturday. Mr. Hewitt has the sympathy of all.

We regret to hear that Mr. Sinclair Terry has removed to Dakota. What will Gosseville do for a mayor now?

We are very sorry, as is everybody around here, of the sad death of Mr. Ed. Dowdall, who was almost instantly killed by being dragged under a sleigh, as reported in last week's SUN. Rev. Father McPhillips officiated at the funeral.

The elections are all over at last, and Mr White has been returned for Cardwell, notwithstanding Algie's efforts to elect a Grit. The banner township was always loyal to the conservative cause and this time was no exception, as White's big majority will show.

CHARLESTON.

Mr. Wm. Clark has sold his farm of 200 acres, lot 18, 1st con east, Caledon, to Mr. Jas. Armstrong, of Moon. Mr. Clark has removed to Orangeville.

Mr. Wm. B. Coutts, a well known resident of this village, died at his residence on Monday at the age of 42 years. His wife, a daughter of Mr W. Phillips, and four children—two girls and two boys—survive him. The funeral took place on Wednesday afternoon to the Charleston cemetery, Rev. A. Wilson officiating.

We are sorry to have to announce the death of Mrs. Flora McKinnon, relict of the late Martin McKinnon, which took place on Sunday at the residence of Mrs Rutledge in this village. She was 88 years of age. Deceased came to Canada in 1819, and settled in Vaughan township, county of York, where she resided until recently. Her remains were taken to Hamilton for interment.

MONO CENTRE.

The Mono township council will meet here on Friday.

Mr. Wesley Dynes, who has been visiting friends in this neighborhood for the past few months, left on Monday for Dakota.

Mr. Wm. Henry, of Cheltenham, is at present the guest of Mr. Joseph Henry of this place. Will is a jovial fellow and appears to be enjoying himself.

Mr. Thomas Platt, was united in holy wedlock on Wednesday last week, at Alliston to Miss Sarah Breedon of Sheldon. Both bride and groom are well known in this vicinity and will have the best wishes of a host of friends for long life of wedded bliss. They will shortly take up their residence in Adjala township.

A rather interesting political meeting was held here last week in the interests of Mr. Myers. Unrestricted reciprocity was flaunted before the electors by Messrs. Dodds and Myers, but Mr Powell Martin knocked their arguments into a cocked hat. A great deal of crossing firing was indulged in much to the amusement of the audience.

GRAND VALLEY.

(Star.)

Many of the children in the village of late have been on the sick list.

Rev. Mr. Hill, who has been laid up with inflammation of the lungs during the past two weeks, is slightly improving.

The Select Templars gave a free supper to the members of the R. T. of T., in their hall on Wednesday evening last week. A good time was enjoyed.

The thaws of last week raised the water in the river and running streams around Grand Valley and many bridges were in danger from being carried away by the ice jams.

The citizens of Woodbridge gave N Clarke Wallace a great send off on Friday night. R. S. White, M. P., for Cardwell, who was on his way to Montreal, remained over and participated in the celebration. Cheer upon cheer were given for the members of West York, Cardwell, Sir John and the Queen.

A short while ago the Belfountain Reformers passed a vote of "want of confidence" in Mr. Myers, their standard-bearer. THE SUN published the resolution and stamped it as a campaign dodge. After the ballots were counted on Thursday evening it was found the Grits voted to a man for Mr. Myers and gave their old majority of 105. The people were prepared for the result, consequently it was no shock.

The tannery of E. R. No. 10, Amaranth, are asking for tenders for the erection of a new building.

An employee of the McKinnon harvesting machine works will receive a fortune amounting to $12,000 next May.

An adjourned meeting of the council was held in the chamber on Monday evening. No important business was transacted.

The Dominion express delivery rig ran away one day last week. Beyond scraping a pail of oysters on the road no damage was done.

The gasoline machine is out of order at the pastoffice and the interior of the building is now illuminated by the "light of other days."

St Mark's Temperance Society's concert on Monday week was well attended. The society will hold one more entertainment next Monday evening.

The many friends of Mr. R. T. Hans, manager of the Bank of Hamilton, will regret to hear that his youngest son, Walter Selwyn, died on Wednesday. The funeral will take place from the family residence, McCarthy street, at 4 P. M., on Friday, to the Forest Lawn cemetery.

PASSED HIS EXAMINATION.—We are pleased to notice that John W Robb of this town has successfully passed his final examination, at the Philadelphia Dental college, taking the degree of D. D. S.

BROKE HIS LEG.—While Mr. Jas. Ramsey was walking down King street, Toronto, on Tuesday he slipped on the sidewalk and fractured one of his ankles. He arrived in town on the evening train and is now under the care of Dr. Smith.

FINED.—The two persons mentioned in last week's SUN as having ill treated a horse appeared at Saturday's police court. Chief Shields was the complainant and fully established a case. P. M. Pattullo fined each of them $5 and costs. This should serve as a warning to those who abuse dumb animals.

FRIDAY NIGHT'S CONCERT.—The Tennessean jubilee singers gave a first class concert in the town hall on Friday evening last under the auspices of St. Andrew's Y. P. A. The singing was excellent, but the attendance was smaller than it should have been. Those who remained away missed a treat.

GILCHRIST, KENT & CO.—Have closed their Petrolea store and removed the stock to Orangeville. It will be ready for inspection on and after Thursday, March 12th. Don't fail to see it. The stock is of the finest quality and will be sold at about half regular prices, having been bought at 56½ cents on the $.

DEAD.—We are sorry to hear that Mary, wife of Mr. Geo. C. Palmer and sister of the late Mrs. Perfect, died at her home in Rochester, N. Y., on Tuesday, from malarial fever. Mr. Palmer was here on a visit about a month ago, and her death, which occurred just six days after her sister's, is a great shock to her friends and acquaintances.

WEDDING BELLS.—On Wednesday afternoon last the marriage of Mr. Henry Searle Brown, of Toronto, to Miss Tottie Pierce, took place at the residence of the bride's parents, Margaret street, Rev A. Henderson, pastor of St. Mark's church, officiating. The happy young couple have left for their home in Toronto, accompanied by the best wishes of their many friends.

FISTIC ENCOUNTERS.—All day Saturday a former named Chambers was looking for a fight, but was unsuccessful in his efforts until after supper. He walked into one of the Broadway hotels and deliberately pasted an old resident in the mouth. Before he could make his escape he was knocked down by a stunning blow and then the boots were applied. Chief Shields was called and put a stop to the disgraceful exhibition.

FOSTER WINS.—The last masquerade carnival of the season took place in the Balmoral skating-rink on Monday evening. The centre of attraction was the deciding three-mile race for the silver tea urn. Joe Foster and Harry Hulse, who have each won two contests for the trophy, toed the scratch and started off at the beat of a drum. Before they had gone many rounds Joe left himself out and soon had a lap-and-a-half to spare. The race ended with Foster being the above distance ahead.

WEDDING.—A very pleasing event occurred on Tuesday last week, at 5 o'clock at the residence of Mr. J. M. Bennett, 1st avenue, the occasion being the marriage of his second daughter, Minnie B., to Mr. Walter Lief, of Orrwold, Man. Rev. A. Henderson, M.A., performed the ceremony in the presence of a few invited guests. The bride was tastefully attired in a travelling dress of navy blue cloth. The young couple amid general congratulations left on the evening train for their home in the west.

CHARGE OF INCENDIARY.—John Kirkland, an old resident of East Garafraxa, is in the toils of justice. From the evidence it appears that Kirkland in 1890 insured his barn on lot on No. 8, 12 con., East Garafraxa, in the Waterloo Fire Insurance Co. and on the 10th of October last the property was burned. The loss was duly adjusted and paid, but suspicious were aroused and investigations were set on foot by the company which resulted in a warrant being sworn out before the P. M. charging Kirkland who was duly arrested by Constable Hubbard and on the 18th the charge was investigated before the police magistrate and Squire McKinnon. Several witnesses were examined and the case was fully argued, the complainants did not make out a very strong case, in fact it appeared barely sufficient to send the accused up for trial, but finally an order was made allowing Kirkland to bail to stand his trial at the next assizes. Clement, of Bolton & Clement, of Berlin, solicitors for the prosecuted and A. A. Hughson appeared for the prisoner.

DEATH OF MRS. PERFECT.—The people of this vicinity were shocked to hear of the death of Mrs. Robert Perfect which sad event occurred at the Perfect house, Springbrook, at 6 o'clock on Wednesday evening of last week. The deceased lady, who was 58 years old, took sick last December, but until a week ago Saturday, had almost recovered. On that day she apparently felt better than she had for many weeks before. After partaking of a hearty supper she retired, but almost immediately a relapse set in and she lingered until the time mentioned above. Mrs. Perfect has been a resident of Springbrook for the past twenty years and was probably the most widely known and highly respected woman in this part of the country. The remains were interred in the Town cemetery on Friday, a large number of sorrowing friends and relatives attending the funeral. Rev. D. C. Hossack, pastor of St Andrew's church, officiated at the grave, and Messrs. W. H. Hunter, R. Hewitt, Jas Cooper, S. Corbett, Jas. Hewitt and Geo. Dunning acted as pallbearers. A husband and a family of seven—four boys and three girls—lament the death of a faithful wife and mother.

AMARANTH COUNCIL.

LAUREL, Feby 28th, '91.

The Amaranth council met at Laurel on the above date at the call of the Reeve. All the members present. The Reeve in the chair. Minutes of previous meeting were read and adopted.

Moved by E. Hamilton, seconded by J. Dudgeon, that leave be given to introduce a by law to provide for draining parts of the 4th, 5th, 6th, 9th and 10th concessions, and that be read a first and second time and numbered 238.—Carried.

By-law read a first and second time.

Moved by W. Johnston, seconded by J. A Turner, that By-law No. 238 be published as directed by the Municipal Act for 4 weeks in the Orangeville SUN, the first of such publications to appear on Thursday, March 12th.—Carried.

Moved by W. Johnston, seconded by J. Dudgeon, that the Reeve issue his order for $35 in favor of the treasurer of Shelburne, to pay for use of the town hall, Shelburne, as court room.—Carried.

The council then adjourned to meet as a Court of Revision on By-law No. 238 on Saturday, April 4th., at the usual hour.

M. G VANCOR, Clerk.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—It is impossible entirely to prevent the noxious vapours which are given off in mines and tunnels, and those who, like miners and railway operatives, have to work day after day in such vitiated atmospheres, suffer in health and strength in consequence. The chest and liver often become clogged with the products of coal combustion, necessitating great attention to the health. No remedy is more valuable for miners and the like than Holloway's Pills, as they carry off all effete matter from the blood, and healthily stimulate the liver. They are also invaluable for costive bowels and for all bilious disorders. The Ointment is a priceless remedy for gout, sprains, bruises and all manner of sores.

NORTH WELLINGTON.

Mr. L. H Clarke made a gallant fight in this riding and succeeded in pulling down Jas. McMullen's old-time majority of 600 to 165. The following is the returns:

BROKE HIS NECK!

James Daniels, An Orangeville Carpenter, Falls from the Roof of a House and Dislocates His Neck.

Shortly after 1 o'clock Friday afternoon James Daniels, a carpenter, fell from the roof of a cottage on Second street and dislocated his neck, from the effects of which he died. It appears Daniels had been engaged to repair the roof of the building lately occupied by G. H. Galbraith, and at the time the accident occurred he was preparing to commence operations. The cottage is about fifteen feet high and for the convenience of the workmen a scaffold was built around the top so he could shingle the lower portion of the roof. Nobody saw the accident take place, but it is supposed deceased was on the roof and slipped down, his foot striking the scaffolding and making him turn half around. The poor fellow alighted on his head, in a frightful manner. He remained unconscious on the ground when he fell until Rev. A. Henderson, who was driving past in a cutter, happened to notice him. The rev. gentlemen lost no time in getting the unfortunate man into the rig and rapidly driving him to Dr. Henry's surgery. He was then taken home and his injuries attended to. From the first the doctor said it was impossible for the injured man to recover, owing to the great extent of his injuries. He lingered in a semi unconscious condition until Saturday evening when the grim reaper mowed him down. The body, from the shoulders down, was paralyzed from the time the accident occurred.

James Daniels, the victim of the accident, has resided in Orangeville for the past eight years, and ever since his arrival in town has had his share of troubles. He leaves a young wife and several small children totally unprovided for.

A charitably disposed citizen circulated a subscription on Saturday and in a few hours $40 had been collected for the bereaved family. There is some talk of holding a concert in aid of the widow and if such takes place it will be well patronized.

Disappeared From Rockwood.

Last Fall Mr. Jesse Johnston, of Rockwood, suffered very much from boils. He says: "I got a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters and the effect was wonderful, the boils at once began to disappear and I was soon totally cured. B. B. B. is a natural foe to impure blood.

Uncle Sam's navy is short of sailors. This is what that nation gets for allowing the railroads to wreck the business of the canals.

Mr. A. J. Kelly, of Toronto, spent a few days with his mother here last week.

Mrs. R. S. White, of Montreal, spent a pleasant half hour in our sanctum on Friday.

Mr. Thos. McManus, returning officer for Centre Wellington, called on THE SUN on Monday.

Miss Annie Keane has returned to the Toronto Conservatory of Music to resume her studies.

Mr. James K. Paisley, of Toronto, came up on Thursday and marked his ballot for W. H. Hunter.

Mr. Wm. Graham, of the C. P. R., Chatham, formerly of Caledon, gave us a pleasant call last Friday.

Mr. Robt. Massey, of West Toronto Junction, an old subscriber to THE SUN, gave us a call last week.

Dr. A. E. Perfect, of West Toronto Junction, was in town last week attending the funeral of his mother.

Mr. W. A. McLim, of Toronto, formerly of this town, was renewing acquaintance here last week.

Mr. Charles Gillespie, of Toronto, paid his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Gillespie, of Amaranth, a visit last week.

Mr. F. Moore, editor of the Cannington Independent, arrived in town on Thursday and cast his ballot for Mr. Sample.

Mr. C. B. Dorland, who has been laid up with an attack of sickness for some time past, is able to be around again.

Mr. Charles Smith, of Moose Jaw, N. W. T., an old time resident of this town, is here renewing old acquaintances. Charley is looking well and reports things as flourishing in the North West.

MARBVILLE.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Thomas Moss, who died at her residence, in Waldemar, on Tuesday the 3rd instant, took place on Friday to Price's Corners cemetery and was largely attended. The deceased was only 35 years old. Mr. Moss will have the sympathy of all in his sore bereavement.

An instance of friendly feeling was exhibited here on Friday evening, the 27th inst., when a large number of friends waited upon Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McGowan to express their respect for them before the latter leave for Minnesota. A very pleasant evening was spent, in the course of which they became the recipients of some beautiful presents, accompanied by the following address which was read by Mr. W. Wilson:

DEAR FRIENDS,—The thought that you are about to separate yourselves from us, causes us no small degree of sorrow, and as the time which you are to spend here grows short, the thought becomes more impressed upon our minds that we are going to lose friends which we always held very near and dear. During the many long years you have spent here in Garafraxa, we have on all occasions found you to be genial, kind-hearted and always willing to assist and further every good cause. But since you have decided to go from among us, we can only hope that you may have as large a number of friends and well wishers in the far West as those you are leaving behind you in Garafraxa. But before we could think of you going away, we ask you to kindly accept this watch and chain, Mrs. Gowan this cruit stand, Martha this brooch and James and Albert those purses with their contents. We do not present those to you on account of their value, but as a slight token of our affection to you. It seems impossible to find words to express our feelings when we think that this may be the last time we will all meet here, but how thankful to God we should be when we think that he has prepared a heavenly home for us not far away where we may all meet and where there will be no sorrow and no more separation. We now wish you a safe journey and success and prosperity in your new home, and if we should never all meet here again we trust we will all meet you in Heaven.

Signed in behalf of your friends,

James McGowan,
John Wilson.

In replying Mr. McGowan became so overcome with emotion that he found it impossible to find words to express his feeling, however he kindly thanked his many friends for their kind interest taken in him and his family. A programme consisting of speeches and instrumental music was given, after which the young people took part in tripping the light fantastic till the wee sma' hours, when all parted for their homes, after wishing Mr. and Mrs. McGowan success and prosperity in their new home, feeling well satisfied with the evening's entertainment.

SHELBURNE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Thomas are removing to Brantford, where Mr. Thomas will go into business.

Mrs. Lyons, public school teacher, has purchased Mr. David Hall's frame residence on Main street east.

The Reliance Electric Light Co. will commence next week to put in a plant to light the business places of Shelburne.

Mr. Matthew Anderson, of Keldon, met with a serious accident on Saturday last. He was engaged trimming off a tree that lay some feet from the ground when he fell and came in contact with the stump of a sapling having a sharp point, inflicting a terrible wound in the lower part of the abdomen. The sufferer was attended to by Dr. Rooney, of Shelburne.

On Friday evening, Feb. 27th, the following deputation from Shelburne lodge No. 149, A.O.U.W., waited on Mrs McClelland, widow of the late Rev. T. J. McClelland:—Major Douglas, Dr. Marshall, Wm. Hogg, Thos. Allen, M. W., and Wm. Collins recorder. The master workmen called on Bro. Marshall to read a letter of condolence and present Mrs. McClelland with a cheque for $2,000, being the amount of her late husband's insurance in the order. Mrs. McClelland thanked the members for their prompt manner in dealing with claims.

EMMA ABBOTT'S ASHES.

Her Body was Cremated after all, but the Fact Kept Secret.

The remains of Emma Abbott, the well-known prima donna who died last January, were cremated in Pittsburg, Pa., February 17 last. The fact was kept very quiet at the request of the mother of deceased and only became publicly known to day. The incineration took place in Samson's crematory. On February 14 three of Miss Abbott's executors arrived and arranged all details. On the morning of the 17th an elegant casket, addressed to Mr. Samson arrived from the West on the limited express and was taken directly to the crematory on Sixth avenue. The remains were immediately placed in the retort and in exactly one hour and fifteen minutes the incineration was completed.

At 4 20 o'clock that afternoon the ashes were placed in an ordinary urn and shipped on the Philadelphia express to New York city, where they were placed in a vault of the Safe Deposit Company, to await final interment in the family burying ground in Massachusetts. When the body was placed in the furnace it was robed in an elegant dress, made in Paris at a cost of $5,000. It was the singer's favorite costume and was made of heavy cream satin with lavender stripes and hand embroidered in gold. Miss Abbott had expressed a desire to be cremated in this dress.

None of the singer's relatives accompanied the remains to the city, the three executors being the only persons in attendance. They were in charge of W. F. Dunning of No. 67 Wall street, New York, Miss Abbott's legal adviser.

DON'T LOAF.—If you have no business of your own, don't loaf around the place of another. Nothing gives a business man a poorer opinion of a place than to see half a dozen loafers sitting or lounging around every time he goes in. The owner or proprietor may be too polite or forbearing to order you away, but inwardly he will wish you at the bottom of the sea. If he hires hands he expects them to work in business hours, and the man who hangs around a place of business, hour after hour, talking to the workmen, is never a welcome visitor to the proprietor. In this busy world there is work enough for all, and no man or boy should be content to be around and loaf.

The local option law was carried in Parry Sound Monday by a majority of 56.

ANOTHER ENGLISH SCANDAL.

The Wife of Earl Russell Prays for a Writ of Judicial Separation.

LONDON, March 2.—Lady Russell, wife of Earl Russell, has made application to the Divorce Division of the High Court of Justice, praying for a writ of judicial separation from her husband. The case has been entered for a hearing. The Earl denies the allegations made by his wife in her application and will stoutly contest the granting of the separation. The case excites much interest, not only because of the high social position occupied by the noble Earl and his wife, but also because they have been wedded but a short time, their marriage having taken place on the 6th of February last. Lady Russell is the daughter of the late Sir Claude Scott. Earl Russell, who succeeded to the earldom on the death of his grandfather, in 1878 is only twenty six years old. The outcome of the application is watched with much interest.

One Distinct Point.

One distinct point about Hagyard's Yellow Oil is, that it is just as good for external use. It is a cleanly, prompt and pleasant cure for rheumatism, colds, croup, sore throat, wounds, bruises, sprains, chapped hands, etc. No household should be without it.

Mrs. P. P. Coffey, of Omaha, wife of a mechanic, is said to have become sole heir to $75,000,000, left by a millionaire manufacturer named John O'Neill, in Bradford, England. The deceased was Mrs. Coffey's father, but disowned her for her humble marriage.

NORTH WELLINGTON.

Although the Conservatives suffered defeat in North Wellington it is gratifying to know the electors of that constituency are getting tired of their notorious representative, James McMullen. At the last general elections Mr. McMullen had a majority bordering on four hundred votes, but now that big four hundred has been reduced to one hundred and sixty-nine. The cause of Mr. L. H. Clark's defeat is identical with that of Mr. Hunter in Centre Wellington—the voters' lists not being properly attended to. The township of Amaranth pronounced against the Grit candidate in unmistakable terms, and if the lists were what they should have been Mr. Clarke's plurality in that township would have been at least fifty more. The result, however, clearly shows that Mr. McMullen will soon have to look for another constituency or retire from parliamentary life. It is sincerely hoped he will choose the latter alternative.

CARDWELL.

The reelection of Mr. Robert S. White in Cardwell was a foregone conclusion, the informers knowing very well that a supporter of Sir Richard Cartwright's policy could not possibly represent such an intelligent community as the electors of Cardwell are. Considering everything Mr. Myers fought a brilliant battle, but we think he hardly expected victory to perch on his banner.

At the bye election, a little over two years ago, Mr. White and Mr. W. Stubbs were the contestants, the former being elected by a majority of one hundred and forty one. Both gentlemen were Conservatives, therefore the battle was not fought on party lines. The fight last Thursday, however, was of an entirely different nature and demonstrated that the constituency of Cardwell was loyal to the Conservative cause. Mr. White has done much to retain the confidence of the electors and they did not forget him at the polls, rolling up, as they did, the magnificent majority of two hundred and forty nine.

We hope Mr. White will continue the same able representative and give the electors no cause for complaint.

ECHOES OF THE FIGHT.

The three Wellingtons will remain as they were.

The great Grit stronghold of Caledonia gave Mr. Myers a majority of only 52.

Dr. Montague has been re-elected for the county of Haldimand. Conlter is away out of the race.

Hon A. Mackenzie has retained East York by a majority of 26. McLean of the World came very nearly getting there.

Dr. Orton, ex member for Centre Wellington, arrived in the county in time to mark his ballot for the Conservative candidate.

It is rumored that Bill Algie has given up politics for good. It takes something more than pedantry and cool check to influence voters.

The Grits felt jubilant when it was announced that Minister of Finance Foster was defeated. The tables were turned when the correct news was announced—Foster elected by 7 3.

Mr. John Gillespie, ex-Reeve of Amaranth, conveyed Clarke's voters to the Farmington poll in great style. Amaranth was solid for Clarke.

Mr. Hargraft who won West Northumberland from Mr. Guillet, the former Conservative member, is the youngest member in the new House. He is only 26.

The Grits thought they had a big Gunn in Kingston to shoot Sir John Macdonald. The old man's magnificent majority of 500 indicates it was only a pop Gunn.

Sam Hughes brother of J. L. Hughes, P S inspector of Toronto, made a gallant fight down in North Victoria. He reduced the Reform majority from 738 to 160.

The banner township of Mono has always been loyal to the Conservative cause and Thursday was no exception. A majority of 304 was rolled up for Mr R S. White.

The name of Mrs. Langford of Cameron, North Victoria, was through an error placed on voters' list, and probably for the first time in Canada a woman voted at the Parliamentary election. Her choice was Major Hughes.

Onta by a majority of 14 [illegible] not Helen West Conservative.

Sir John Macdonald's magnificent majority in Kingston was a stunner and will not soon be forgotten.

Full returns will be found on our fourth page, and next week we will have the official returns.

CAMILLA.

Charlie the four-year-old son of Mr. J. A. Hewitt, died a week ago Saturday. Mr. Hewitt has the sympathy of all.

We regret to hear that Mr. Sinclair Terry has removed to Dakota. What will Gooseville do for a mayor now?

We are very sorry, as is everybody around here, of the sad death of Mr. Ed. Dowdall, who was almost instantly killed by being dragged under a sleigh, as reported in last week's SUN. Rev. Father McPhillips officiated at the funeral.

The elections are all over at last, and Mr. White has been returned for Cardwell, notwithstanding Algie's efforts to elect a Grit. The banner township was always loyal to the conservative cause and this time was no exception, as White's big majority will show.

CHARLESTON.

Mr. Wm. Clark has sold his farm of 200 acres, lot 18, 1st con east, Camdon, to Mr. Jas. Armstrong, of Hood. Mr. Clark has removed to Orangeville.

Mr. Wm. B. Coutts, a well known resident of this village, died at his residence on Monday at the age of 42 years. His wife, a daughter of Mr W. Phillips, and four children—two girls and two boys—survive him. The funeral took place on Wednesday afternoon to the Charleston cemetery, Rev. A. Wilson officiating.

We are sorry to have to announce the death of Mrs. Flora McKinnon, relict of the late Martin McKinnon, which took place on Sunday at the residence of Mrs Rutledge in this village. She was 88 years of age. Deceased came to Canada in 1819, and settled in Vaughan township, county of York, where she resided until recently. Her remains were taken to Hamilton for interment.

MONO CENTRE.

The Mono township council will meet here on Friday.

Mr. Wesley Dynes, who has been visiting friends in this neighborhood for the past few months, left on Monday for Dakota.

Mr. Wm. Henry, of Cheltenham, is at present the guest of Mr. Joseph Henry of this place. Will is a jovial fellow and appears to be enjoying himself.

Mr. Thomas Flatt, was united in holy wedlock on Wednesday last week at Alliston to Miss Sarah Breedon of Sheldon. Both bride and groom are well known in this vicinity and will have the best wishes of a host of friends for long life of wedded bliss. They will shortly take up their residence in Adjala township.

A rather interesting political meeting was held here last week in the interests of Mr. Myers. Unrestricted reciprocity was flaunted before the electors by Messrs. Dodds and Myers, but Mr Powell Martin knocked their arguments into a cocked hat. A great deal of crossing firing was indulged in much to the amusement of the audience.

GRAND VALLEY.

(Star.)

Many of the children in the village of late have been on the sick list.

Rev. Mr. Hill, who has been laid up with inflammation of the lungs during the past two weeks, is slightly improving.

The Select Templars gave a free supper to the members of the R. T. of T., in their hall on Wednesday evening last week. A good time was enjoyed.

The thaws of last week raised the water in the river and running streams around Grand Valley and many bridges were in danger from being carried away by the ice jams.

The citizens of Woodbridge gave N Clarke Wallace a great send off on Friday night. R. S. White, M. P., for Cardwell, who was on his way to Montreal, remained over and participated in the celebration. Cheer upon cheer were given for the members of West York, Cardwell, Sir John and the Queen.

A short while ago the Belfountain Reformers passed a vote of "want of confidence" in Mr. Myers, their standard-bearer. The SUN published the resolution and stamped it as a campaign dodge. After the ballots were counted on Thursday evening it was found the Grits voted to a man for Mr. Myers and gave their old majority of 105. The people were prepared for the result, consequently it was no shock.

attended. The society will hold one more entertainment next Monday evening.

The many friends of Mr. R. T. Haun, manager of the Bank of Hamilton, will regret to hear that his youngest son, Walter Selwyn, died on Wednesday. The funeral will take place from the family residence, McCarthy street, at 4 P. M., on Friday, to the Forest Lawn cemetery.

Passed His Examination.—We are pleased to notice that John W Robb of this town has successfully passed his final examination, at the Philadelphia Dental college, taking the degree of D. D. S.

Broke His Leg.—While Mr. Jas. Ramsey was walking down King street, Toronto, on Tuesday he slipped on the sidewalk and fractured one of his ankles. He arrived in town on the evening train and is now under the care of Dr. Smith.

Fined.—The two persons mentioned in last week's SUN as having ill treated a horse appeared at Saturday's police court. Chief Shields was the complainant and fully established a case. P. M. Pattullo fined each of them $5 and costs. This should serve as a warning to those who abuse dumb animals.

Friday Night's Concert.—The Tennessean jubilee singers gave a first class concert in the town hall on Friday evening last under the auspices of St. Andrew's Y. P. A. The singing was excellent, but the attendance was smaller than it should have been. Those who remained away missed a treat.

Gilchrist, Kent & Co.—Have closed their Petrolea store and removed the stock to Orangeville. It will be ready for inspection on and after Thursday, March 12th. Don't fail to see it. The stock is of the finest quality and will be sold at about half regular prices, having been bought at 56½ cents on the $.

Dead.—We are sorry to hear that Mary, wife of Mr. Geo. C. Palmer and sister of the late Mrs. Perfect, died at her home in Rochester, N. Y., on Tuesday, from malarial fever. Mrs. Palmer was here on a visit about a month ago, and her death, which occurred just six days after her sister's, is a great shock to her friends and acquaintances.

Wedding Bells.—On Wednesday afternoon last the marriage of Mr. Henry Searle Brown, of Toronto, to Miss Tottie Pierce, took place at the residence of the bride's parents, Margaret street, Rev A. Henderson, pastor of St. Mark's church, officiating. The happy young couple have left for their home in Toronto, accompanied by the best wishes of their many friends.

Fistic Encounters.—All day Saturday a farmer named Chambers was looking for a fight, but was unsuccessful in his efforts until after supper. He walked into one of the Broadway hotels and deliberately pasted an old resident in the mouth. Before he could make his escape he was knocked down by a stunning blow and then the boots were applied. Chief Shields was called and put a stop to the disgraceful exhibition.

Foster Wins.—The last masquerade carnival of the season took place in the Balmoral skating-rink on Monday evening. The centre of attraction was the deciding three-mile race for the silver tea urn. Joe Foster and Harry Hulse, who have each won two contests for the trophy, tied the scratch and started off at the beat of a drum. Before they had gone many rounds Joe left himself out and soon had a lap-and-a-half to spare. The race ended with Foster being the above distance ahead.

Wedding.—A very pleasing event occurred on Tuesday last week, at 5 o'clock at the residence of Mr. J. M. Bennett, 1st avenue, the occasion being the marriage of his second daughter, Minnie B., to Mr. Walter Lief, of Orrwold, Man. Rev. A. Henderson, M. A., performed the ceremony in the presence of a few invited guests. The bride was tastefully attired in a travelling dress of navy blue cloth. The young couple amid general congratulations left on the evening train for their home in the west.

April 20th, 1891, there is to come in stamps or silver, for a sample copy of the February number, with rules and regulations governing the competition. Address, Our Boxes Puz. Co., Brockville, Ont.

Charge of Incendiary.—John Kirkland, an old resident of East Garafraxa, is in the toils of justice. From the evidence it appears that Kirkland in 1890 insured his barn on lot 14 in 13 con., East Garafraxa, in the Waterloo Fire Insurance Co. and on the 10th of October last the property was burned. The loss was duly adjusted, and, there but suspicious were around and investigations were set on foot by the company which resulted in a warrant being sworn out before the P. M. against Kirkland who was duly arrested by Constable Hubbard and on the 19th the charge was investigated before the police magistrate and Squire McKinnon. Several witnesses were examined and the case was fully argued, the complainants did not make out a very strong case, in fact it appeared barely sufficient to send the accused up for trial, but finally an order was made on Kirkland to be bound to stand his trial at the next assizes. Clement, of Bishop & Clement of Berlin, solicitors for the accused, prosecuted and A. A. Hughes appeared for the prisoner.

Death of Mrs. Perfect.—The people of this vicinity were shocked to hear of the death of Mrs. Robert Perfect, which sad event occurred at the Perfect house, Springbrook, at 6 o'clock on Wednesday evening of last week. The deceased lady, who was 58 years old, took sick last December, but still a week ago Saturday, had almost recovered. On that day she apparently felt better than she had for many weeks before. After partaking of a hearty supper she retired, but almost immediately a relapse set in and she lingered until the time mentioned above. Mrs Perfect has been a resident of Springbrook for the past twenty years and was probably the most widely known and highly-respected woman in this part of the country. The remains were interred in the Town cemetery on Friday, a large number of sorrowing friends and relatives attending the funeral. Rev. D. C. Hossack, pastor of St Andrew's church, officiated at the grave, and Messrs. W. H. Hunter, R. Hewitt, Jas. Cooper, S. Corbett, Jas. Hewitt and Geo. Dunning acted as pallbearers. A husband and a family of seven—four boys and three girls—lament the death of a faithful wife and mother.

AMARANTH COUNCIL.

Laurel, Feb'y 28th, '91.

The Amaranth council met at Laurel on the above date at the call of the Reeve. All the members present. The Reeve in the chair. Minutes of previous meeting were read and adopted.

Moved by E. Hamilton, seconded by J. Dudgeon, that leave be given to introduce a by law to provide for draining parts of the 4th, 5th, 6th, 9th and 10th concessions, and that be read a first and second time and numbered 238.—Carried.

By-law read a first and second time.

Moved by W. Johnston, seconded by J. A Turner, that By-law No. 238 be published as directed by the Municipal Act for 4 weeks in the Orangeville Sun, the first of such publications to appear on Thursday, March 12th.—Carried.

Moved by W. Johnston, seconded by J. Dudgeon, that the Reeve issue his order for $36 in favor of the assignee of Shelburne, to pay for use of the town hall, Shelburne, as court room.—Carried.

The council then adjourned to meet as a Court of Revision on By-law No. 238 on Saturday, April 4th, at the usual hour.

M. G Vancor, Clerk.

Holloway's Pills and Ointment.—It is impossible entirely to prevent the noxious vapours which are given off in mines and tunnels, and those who, like miners and railway operatives, have to work day after day in such vitiated atmospheres, suffer in health and strength in consequence. The chest and liver often become clogged with the products of coal combustion, necessitating great attention to the health. No remedy is more valuable for miners and the like than Holloway's Pills, as they carry off all effete matter from the chest, and healthily stimulate the liver. They are also invaluable for costive bowels and for all bilious ailments. The Ointment is a priceless remedy for gout, sprains, ulcerated and all manner of sores.

BROKE HIS NECK!

James Daniels, An Orangeville Carpenter, Falls from the Roof of a House and Dislocates His Neck.

Shortly after 1 o'clock Friday afternoon James Daniels, a carpenter, fell from the roof of a cottage on Second street, and dislocated his neck, from the effects of which he died. It appears Daniels had been engaged to repair the roof of the building lately occupied by G. H. Galbraith, and at the time the accident occurred he was preparing to commence operations. The cottage is about fifteen feet high and for the convenience of the workmen a scaffold was built around the top so he could shingle the lower portion of the roof. Nobody saw the accident take place, but it is supposed deceased was on the roof and slipped down, his foot striking the scaffolding and making him turn half around. The poor fellow alighted on his head, in a frightful manner. He remained unconscious on the ground when he fell until Rev. A. Henderson, who was driving past in a cutter, happened to notice him. The rev. gentlemen lost no time in getting the unfortunate man into the rig and rapidly driving him to Dr. Henry's surgery. He was then taken home and his injuries attended to. From the first the doctor said it was impossible for the injured man to recover, owing to the great extent of his injuries. He lingered in a semi unconscious condition until Saturday evening when the grim reaper mowed him down. The body, from the shoulders down, was paralyzed from the time the accident occurred.

James Daniels, the victim of the accident, has resided in Orangeville for the past eight years, and ever since his arrival in town has had his share of troubles. He leaves a young wife and several small children totally unprovided for.

A charitably disposed citizen circulated a subscription on Saturday and in a few hours $40 had been collected for the bereaved family. There is some talk of holding a concert in aid of the fund and if such takes place it will be well patronized.

Disappeared From Rockwood.

Mr. Wm. Graham, of the G. P. R., Chatham, formerly of Caledon, gave us a pleasant call last Friday.

Mr. Robt. Mossey, of West Toronto Junction, an old subscriber to THE SUN, gave us a call last week.

Dr. A. E. Perfect, of West Toronto Junction, was in town last week attending the funeral of his mother.

Mr. W. A. McLim, of Toronto, formerly of this town, was renewing acquaintances here last week.

Mr. Charles Gillespie, of Toronto, paid his patents, Mr. and Mrs. John Gillespie, of Amaranth, a visit last week.

Mr. F. Moore, editor of the Cannington Independent, arrived in town on Thursday and cast his ballot for Mr. Semple.

Mr. C. B. Dorland, who has been laid up with an attack of sickness for some time past, is able to be around again.

Mr. Charles Smith, of Moose Jaw, N. W. T., an old time resident of this town, is here receiving old acquaintance. Charley is looking well and reports things as flourishing in the North West.

MARSVILLE.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Thomas Moss, who died at her residence, in Waldemar, on Tuesday the 3rd instant, took place on Friday to Price's Corners cemetery and was largely attended. The deceased was only 35 years old. Mr. Moss will have the sympathy of all in his sore bereavement.

An instance of friendly feeling was exhibited here on Friday evening, the 27th inst., when a large number of friends waited upon Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McGowan to express their respect for them before the latter leave for Minnesota. A very pleasant evening was spent, in the course of which they became the recipients of some beautiful presents, accompanied by the following address which was read by Mr. W. Wilson:

Dear Friends,—The thought that you are about to separate yourselves from us, causes us no small degree of sorrow, and as the time which you are to spend here grows short, the thought becomes more impressed upon our minds that we are going to lose friends which we always held very near and dear. During the many long years you have spent here in Garafraxa, we have on all occasions found you to be genial, kind-hearted and always willing to assist and further every good cause. But since you have decided to go from among us, we can only hope that you may have as large a number of friends and well wishers in the far West as those you are leaving behind you in Garafraxa. But before we could think of you going away, we ask you to kindly accept this watch and chain, Mrs. Gowan this cruit stand, Martha this brosch and James and Albert those purses with their contents. We do not present those to you on account of their value, but as a slight token of our affection to you. It seems impossible to find words to express our feelings when we think that this may be the last time we will all meet here, but how thankful to God we should be when we think that he has prepared a heavenly home for us not far away where we may all meet and where there will be no sorrow and no more separation. We now wish you a safe journey and success and prosperity in your new home, and if we should never all meet here again we trust we will all meet you in Heaven.

Signed in behalf of your friends,

James McGowan,
John Wilson.

In replying Mr. McGowan became so overcome with emotion that he found it impossible to find words to express his feeling, however he kindly thanked his many friends for their kind interest taken in him and his family. A programme consisting of speeches and instrumental music was given, after which the young people took part in tripping the light fantastic till the wee sma' hours, when all parted for their homes, after wishing Mr. and Mrs. McGowan success and prosperity in their new home, feeling well satisfied with the evening's entertainment.

SHELBURNE.

(From Free and Economist.)

Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Thomas are removing to Brantford, where Mr. Thomas will go into business.

Mrs. Lyons, public school teacher, has purchased Mr. David Hall's frame residence on Main street east.

The Rellance Electric Light Co. will commence next week to put in a plant to light the business places of Shelburne.

Mr. Matthew Anderson, of Keldon, met with a serious accident on Saturday last. He was engaged trimming off a tree that lay some feet from the ground when he fell and came in contact with the stump of a sapling having a sharp point, inflicting a terrible wound in the lower part of the abdomen. The sufferer was attended to by Dr. Rooney, of Shelburne.

On Friday evening, Feb. 27th, the following deputation from Shelburne Lodge No. 149, A.O.U.W., waited on Mrs McClelland, widow of the late Rev. T. J. McClelland:—Major Douglas, Dr. Marshall, Wm. Hogg, Thos. Allen, M. W., and Wm. Collins recorder. The master workman called on Bro. Marshall to read a letter of condolence and present Mrs. McClelland with a cheque for $2,000, being the amount of her late husband's insurance in the order. Mrs. McClelland thanked the members for their prompt manner in dealing with claims.

EMMA ABBOTT'S ASHES.

Her Body was Cremated after all, but the Fact Kept Secret.

The remains of Emma Abbott, the well-known prima donna who died last January, were cremated in Pittsburg, Pa., February 17 last. The fact was kept very quiet at the request of the mother of deceased and only became publicly known to day. The incinerator took place in Samson's crematory. On February 14 three of Miss Abbott's executors arrived and arranged all details. On the morning of the 17th an elegant casket, addressed to Mr. Samson arrived from the West on the limited express and was taken directly to the crematory on Sixth avenue. The remains were immediately placed in the retort and in exactly one hour and fifteen minutes the incineration was completed.

At 4 20 o'clock that afternoon the ashes were placed in an ordinary urn and shipped on the Philadelphia express to New York city, where they were placed in a vault of the Safe Deposit Company, to await final interment in the family burying ground in Massachusetts. When the body was placed in the furnace it was robed in an elegant dress, made in Paris at a cost of $5,000. It was the singer's favorite costume and was made of heavy cream satin with lavender stripes and hand embroidered in gold. Miss Abbott had expressed a desire to be cremated in this dress.

None of the singer's relatives accompanied the remains to the city, the three executors being the only persons in attendance. They were in charge of W. F. Dunning of No. 67 Wall street, New York, Miss Abbott's legal adviser.

Don't Loaf.—If you have no business of your own, don't loaf around the place of another. Nothing gives a business man a poorer opinion of a place than to see half a dozen loafers sitting or lounging around every time he goes in. The owner or proprietor may be too polite or forbearing to order you away, but inwardly he will wish you at the bottom of the sea. If he hires hands he expects them to work in business hours, and the man who hangs around a place of business, hour after hour, talking to the workmen, is never a welcome visitor to the proprietor. In this busy world there is work enough for all, and no man or boy should be content to be around and loaf.

The local option law was carried in Parry Sound Monday by a majority of 99.

The Wife of Earl Russell Prays for a Writ of Judicial Separation.

London, March 2.—Lady Russell, wife of Lord Russell, has made application to the Divorce Division of the High Court of Justice, praying for a writ of judicial separation from her husband. The case has been entered for a hearing. The Earl denies the allegations made by his wife in her application and will stoutly contest the granting of the separation. The case excites much interest, not only because of the high social position occupied by the noble Earl and his wife, but also because they have been wedded but a short time, their marriage having taken place on the 6th of February last. Lady Russell is the daughter of the late Sir Claude Scott. Earl Russell, who succeeded to the earldom on the death of his grandfather, in 1878 is only twenty six years old. The outcome of the application is watched with much interest.

One Distinct Point.

One distinct point about Hagyard's Yellow Oil is, that it is just as good for external use. It is a cleanly, prompt and pleasant cure for rheumatism, colds, croup, sore throat, wounds, bruises, sprains, chapped hands, etc. No household should be without it.

Mrs. P. P. Coffey, of Omaha, wife of a mechanic, is said to have become sole heir to $75,000,000, left by a millionaire manufacturer named John O'Neill, in Bradford, England. The deceased was Mrs. Coffey's father, who disowned her for her humble marriage.

A BY-LAW to provide for Draining Certain Parts of the Township of Amaranth, by the Construction of Five Drains and for borrowing on the credit of the Municipality the sum of $2,061.04 for completing the same.

Provisionally adopted 26th day of February, A.D. 1891.

Whereas a majority in number of the owners as shown by the last revised Assessment Roll, of the property hereinafter set forth, to be benefited by the drainage thereof have petitioned the Council of the said Township of Amaranth, praying that the Council will take the necessary steps to have certain portions of the Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Ninth and Tenth Concessions, lying north of Town Side line, in the Township of Amaranth, drained in accordance with the provisions of Chapter 184, R. S. O. 1887.

And Whereas thereupon the said Council procured an examination to be made by Charles R. Wheelock, being a person competent for such purpose, of the said locality proposed to be Drained, and has also procured plans and estimates of the work to be made by the said Charles R. Wheelock, and an assessment to be made by him of the real property to be benefited by such Drainage, stating, as nearly as he can, the proportion of benefit, which in his opinion will be derived in consequence of such Drainage by every Road or Lot, or portion of Lot; the said Assessment so made, being the assessment hereinafter by this By-Law enacted to be assessed and levied upon the lots and parts of lots hereinafter in that behalf especially set forth and described, and the report of the said Charles R. # By-Law No. 280.

A BY-LAW to provide for Draining Certain Parts of the Township of Amaranth, by the Construction of Five Drains and for borrowing on the credit of the Municipality the sum of $2,061.04 for completing the same.

Provisionally adopted, 26th day of February, A. D. 1891.

WHEREAS a majority in number of the owners as shown by the last revised Assessment Roll, of the property hereinafter set forth, to be benefited by the drainage thereof have petitioned the Council of the said Township of Amaranth, praying that the Council will take the necessary steps to have certain portions of the Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Ninth and Tenth Concessions, lying north of The Side line, in the Township of Amaranth, drained in accordance with the provisions of Chapter 184, R. S. O. 1887.

AND WHEREAS thereupon the said Council procured an examination to be made by Charles R. Wheelock, being a person competent for such purpose, of the said locality proposed to be Drained, and has also procured plans and estimates of the work to be made by the said Charles R. Wheelock, and an assessment to be made by him of the real property to be benefited by such Drainage, stating as nearly as he can, the proportion of benefit, which in his opinion will be derived in consequence of such Drainage by every Road or Lot, or portion of Lot; the said Assessment so made, being the assessment hereinafter by this By-Law enacted to be assessed and levied upon the lots and parts of lots hereinafter in that behalf especially set forth and described, and the report of the said Charles R. Wheelock in respect thereof, and of the said Drainage, being as follows:—

To the Reeve and Council of the Township of Amaranth:

GENTLEMEN,—I herewith submit the Plans, Profiles, Specifications and Estimates of five Drains laid out by me in the Township of Amaranth, which I consider beneficial to the Roads and Lands through which they pass.

I have the honor to be Gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,
CHARLES R. WHEELOCK,
Engineer in Charge.

Orangeville, February 26th, A. D. 1891.

AND WHEREAS the said Council are of opinion that the drainage of the locality described is desirable.

Be it therefore enacted by the said Municipal Council of the said Township of Amaranth pursuant to the provisions of the Municipal Act, R.S.O., chapter 184

1st. That the said report, plans, and estimates be adopted, and the said Drain and the works connected therewith, be made and constructed in accordance therewith.

2nd. That the Reeve of the said Township may borrow on the credit of the Corporation of the said Township the of Amaranth the sum Two Thousand and Sixty one Dollars and Four cents, being the funds necessary for the work, and may issue Debentures of the Corporation to that amount, in sums of not less than One Hundred Dollars each, and payable within fifteen years from the date thereof, with interest at the rate of four per cent. per annum, that is to say in fifteen annual instalments such Debentures to be payable at the Bank of Toronto, in Toronto, and to have attached to them Coupons for the payment of interest.

3rd. That for the purpose of paying the sum of One Thousand Nine Hundred and Forty eight Dollars, being the amount charged against the said lands so to be benefited as aforesaid, other than roads belonging to the Municipality, and to cover interest thereon for fifteen years at the rate of four per cent. per annum, the following special rates, over and above all other rates, shall be assessed and levied (in the same manner and at the same time as taxes are levied) upon the undermentioned Lots and part of Lots; and the amount of the said special rates and interest assessed as aforesaid against each lot or part of Lot respectively shall be divided into fifteen equal parts, and one such part shall be assessed and levied as aforesaid, in each year, for fifteen years after the final passing of this By Law, during which the said Debentures have to run.

4th. For the purpose of paying the sum of One Hundred and Thirteen Dollars and Four cents, being the total amount assessed against the said Roads of said Municipality, and to cover interest thereon for fifteen years at the rate of four per cent. per annum a sufficient special rate of One hundredredth of one mill in the dollar shall, over and above all other rates, be levied (in the same rate and manner and at the same time as taxes are levied) upon the whole ratable property in the said Township of Amaranth in each year for the period of fifteen years after the date of the final passing of the By-Law, during which the said Debentures have to run.

5th. That the Council are hereby appointed Commissioners to let the contract for completing the said Drains and works connected therewith, by public sale to the lowest bidder (not exceeding the estimate); but every such contractor, with one good and satisfactory surety shall be required forthwith to enter into bonds, for the due performance and completion of contract according to said plans and specifications, and within the time mentioned in such bond, unless otherwise ordered by the Council; and it shall be the duty of the said Commissioners to cause said Drain and works connected therewith, to be made and constructed in accordance with such plans and specifications, not later than the First day of October, A. D. 1891, (unless otherwise ordered by the Council); and to grant orders on the Treasurer to each Contractor, less 25 per cent of the amount due until the contract is fully completed and duly accepted; and for the due performance of those and all other duties of Commissioners the said Commissioners shall be entitled to receive a salary of two dollars per day.

.....Reeve.

.....Treasurer.

I hereby certify that the foregoing is a true copy of a By Law provisionally passed by the Municipal Council of the said township of Amaranth on the 26th day of Feburary, A. D. 1891.

Township Clerk.

NOTICE.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, that a Court of Revision will be held at the Town Hall, Laurel, on Saturday, the 4th day of April, A.D. 1891, at the hour of Ten o'clock A. M., for the hearing and trial of appeals made against the above Assessment or any part thereof, in the manner provided by "The Assessment Act of 1869," and amendments thereto; a notice of such appeal to be served on the Clerk of this Municipality at least eight days before the meeting of said Court.

And further notice is hereby given, that any one intending to apply to have such By Law, or any part thereof quashed, must, within ten days after the final passing thereof, serve a notice in writing upon the Reeve or other head officer; and upon the Clerk of the Municipality, of his intention to make application for that purpose to the High Court at Toronto, during the six weeks next ensuing the final passing of this By law.

M. G. VARCOE,
Township Clerk.

Dated at Laurel, this 28th day of February, A. D. 1891.

COPY OF A CURIOUS LOVE LETTER.

MADAM,—

The great love tenderness I have hitherto expressed for you is false, and I now feel that my indifference towards you increases proportionably every day, and the more I see you the more you appear ridiculous and an object of contempt and the more I feel disposed, inclined, and finally determined, to hate you. Believe me, I never had the slightest inclination to offer you my hand and heart. Our last conversation has, I assure you, left a wretched insipidity, which has by no means possessed me with the most exalted opinion of your character. Yes, Madam, and you will much oblige me by avoiding me, and if ever we are united, I shall experience nothing but the fearful hatred of my parents added to an everlasting displeasure of living with you. Yes, Madam, I think sincerely—You need not put yourself to the trouble or send or write me an answer. Adieu, and believe me that I am so averse to you, that it is really impossible that I should ever be.

Madam,
Your affectionate love till death,
W. G.

To Miss M——

There are two ways of reading this letter. Her father compelled his daughter to show him all letters sent to her. The unsuspecting father read it straightforward, but the daughter (having the clue) read it otherwise. Find the contrast or go to MACADAM'S for it.

Conversation after Marriage.

We had better decide now on the best place to do our trading. MACADAM'S, of course, for Tea, Sugar and Groceries, and I heard some people talking on the street say he had the largest, the best assorted and best value in Ladies' and Childreas' Boots and Shoes of any one in Town. We will put him down for our Boots and Shoes. Now, for Crockery. Well, we don't need to discuss that matter long. Why? Do you think MACADAM'S the best? Certainly I do; he is the only one who keeps an assortment worth looking at.

FACIAL EXPRESSION.

A man's occupation has a great deal to with making his facial expression. Studies, or scholarly professions, intellectual pursuits, when coupled with moral habits, brighten the face and give a superior look. An unselfish nature, or love of studies or arts, will make a bright pleasant face; but, on the contrary, a man may have a face that does not please anyone, because of pure selfishness. It may be noticed that soldiers get a hard, severe look; laborers look tired; reporters look inquisitive; mathematicians look studious; judges look grave, and a man whose home-life is unhappy looks all broken up. The business often makes the face. How often we think this man is a butcher, this one a lawyer, that a minister, the other a doctor, and so on. It is seldom we are mistaken, for the callings show through the faces. And who fails to recognize the genuine farmer the minute one sets eyes on him?—N. Y. Ledger.

FACIAL EXPRESSION.

A man's occupation has a great deal to with making his facial expression. Studies, or scholarly professions, intellectual pursuits, when coupled with moral habits, brighten the face and give a superior look. An unselfish nature, or love of studies or arts, will make a bright pleasant face; but, on the contrary, a man may have a face that does not please anyone, because of pure selfishness. It may be noticed that soldiers get a hard, severe look; laborers look tired; reporters look inquisitive; mathematicians look studious; judges look grave, and a man whose home-life is unhappy looks all broken up. The business often makes the face. How often we think this man is a butcher, this one a lawyer, that a minister, the other a doctor, and so on. It is seldom we are mistaken, for the callings show through the faces. And who fails to recognize the genuine farmer the minute one sets eyes on him?—N. Y. Ledger.

What They Say!

The Globe says: The Government has been sustained but by a majority which, at the present writing, appears to be too small to enable it to carry on affairs for any considerable length of time. Its majority in the last Parliament was about 50. Its majority in the next Parliament will probably not exceed 12 or 15. At the outside it will be less than 20, and in times like these a Tory Administration, pledged to uphold a trade policy which is impoverishing the people, cannot work with so slender a margin.

The Mail says: So far as the returns which come to hand show, the Government has been sustained by the moderate majority of 26. There are seven constituencies yet to be heard from, three in Quebec, one in New Brunswick, two in British Columbia and one in Ontario.

The Empire says: The returns up to the time of going to press are: Conservatives returned, 125; Reformers returned, 81; still in doubt, 7—215; showing a Conservative majority of 42, with 7 seats, of which 5 at last election returned Conservatives at the last election, still to be heard from.

The World gives the majority 30.

Cabinet Ministers Defeated.

Hon. John Carling (London), Minister of Agriculture.
Hon. C. C. Colby, President of the Council.
Hon. George E. Foster, Minister of Finance.

THE HYMNS THAT MOTHER SUNG.

Throughout the changing scenes of life,
The sacred value of an hour we know,
Where all is lost within the grave
That hides the hygone years,
Some strains there are that linger still,
And many hearts no longer young
Are thrilled with joy again to hear
The hymns that mother sung.

We used to gather at the hearth
When darkness overcame the day,
And dreamily, as children will,
We'd watch the shadows play;
And sitting by the glowing fire,
As to and fro the kettle swung,
We learned the songs we always loved—
The hymns that mother sung.

We seem to hear again her voice,
So long remembered, clear and sweet,
As when, in days of long ago,
We sat at mother's feet;
And looking upward on the wall,
Where dearest father's picture hung,
We thought he smiled, for he, too, loved
The hymns that mother sung.

To them we owe our happy homes,
Praise be to God who reigns above,
For keeping ever bright and clear
The lessons learned in love.
Outliving sorrow, bearing hope,
The dear old songs have always clung,
And never can the heart forget
The hymns that mother sung.

STORM-BOUND.

"AUNT Ethel, why do you always look so sad when it snows heavily—so sad and yet so happy?" asked Emily Page, seating herself coolly at her great aunt's feet, as the old lady sat by the window, her knitting lying idly in her lap, her eyes fixed upon the fast falling flakes of a heavy snow-storm. "So sad and yet so happy," Emily said, looking into Ethel Page's wrinkled face, the words were no contradiction. The large dark eyes, deeply-sunken, were full of pathetic, wistful sadness, but upon the sweet mouth lay the shadow of a smile full of love and hope.

"I am thinking, dear," the old lady said, softly stroking the curly head upon her knees. "I am living in a dream of the past, the one adventure in an uneventful life. It is a love story, too, little one."

"Tell me!" Emily said, coaxingly.

"So many long years ago," said the old lady, her voice a dreamy monotone, "I was but eighteen, and to-day I am ninety three years old. It has been weary waiting, but not unhappy, for I knew the time would come in God's good pleasure, when it would end. When, I was eighteen Emily, we had all the luxuries the times afforded, were wealthy, and considered ourselves very grand people, with lands and horses, slaves and jewels.

"It was an event to travel in those days, even for a few miles, and I fairly held my breath in awe when my father undertook a journey to Philadelphia and told me I was to be his companion. One of my aunts—an English aunt—was married to a merchant in Philadelphia, and we were to visit her, and my father to make some mercantile investments the nature of which I did not understand.

"It was a long, long journey, taken in our own carriage. We crossed rivers and small streams on rafts, and we bought our provisions at the farm houses lying widely scattered on our road.

"I will not weary you by a description of it all, or of the gay season I passed at my aunt's, where first I tasted of the pleasures of society and found out I was fair as well as young.

"It was in February that we started upon our homeward journey, our carriage most bountifully supplied with food, and our clothing of the warmest. I am old, dear, and the changes confuse me somewhat, but I think it was not far from what is now the large city of Baltimore we were caught in a driving snow storm, at dusk.

"We were lost, blinded if we looked out of the carriage door, and the horses were becoming useless from cold and snow-clogged feet, when the coachman caught sight of a lighted window, and by lusty calls, at last wakened the people living in a rambling old house, a mixture of farm house and barracks, built for protection as well as shelter.

"Two men, one not more than twenty-one or two, the other middle aged, came stumbling and floundering through the snow-drifts, carrying lanterns that looked like will o' wisps in the darkness. They led the horses to the stable, and we left the carriage to slight upon the bare floor, with the cattle in stalls all around us.

"Through a covered way we went from the barn to an immense kitchen, where a wood fire roared in such a chimney place as belongs to the past. Hooks for iron pots hung above the roaring blaze that had been roused from its night rest for our comfort. A sweet-faced matron was awaiting us, and preparing a hurried supper that was most welcome.

"Before long we were thoroughly comfortable the negroes, made warm and well fed, were in the barn sleeping on the hay, and my father and myself in the guest chambers, broken to be sure, for warmed sleeping rooms were an unheard-of luxury, but liberally provided with blankets and warming pans.

"The next day my life began, the life that has been my true one through all the loneliness of my outward existence. I cannot describe Henry Bradley to you, Emily, as he came into the room, and into my heart the next day. He was a farmer's son, and wore the coarse dress that suited his occupations; he was imperfectly educated, for books were not plenty, but what he had studied he had mastered. This I knew later. What I saw on the first day was a face that can only be described as 'angelic.' Even deep set, large and luminous, that seemed already to have looked to heaven; a mouth whose sweetness had nothing effeminate but whose smile was tenderness, itself. The complexion was colorless, but not sickly. The figure, tall and slender, was carried with erect grace. My Henry! Shall I see you in heaven as I saw you that day?"

There was a long silence after the last words, for Emily Page could not break the spell they seemed to throw over her aunt. All the sadness was gone from the face which seemed glorified by the memory of this early love. It was not until this strange inner radiance had faded away that the old lady spoke again:

"We were detained at the Brakley Farm for two weeks by the lameness of one of the horses. During most of that time it was impossible to leave the house the snow drifting high against the doors and the paths unbroken. But to me the time was spent as in paradise. Henry, in the early days, spoke no words of love, though he was my lover from the first, but he talked to me as none had ever done before. Emily, I cannot tell you what words these were, because from the first our spirits seemed to meet in a communion not of this world.

"Delicate from a child, Henry Bradley had a spirit above earth's trials, above this world's temptations. Some men are so, but they are not many. He never talked of religion, but he lived it. Utterly unselfish, he was always watchful of others, making the comfort of his parents the first duty of his life. To see him with his mother moved me to tears, for I lost my mother before I was old enough to stamp her face upon my memory.

"It was the old, old story, my dear, told once more; but I did not realize the truth until the thaw came, the roads were passable, and we were going away. Then Henry spoke to my father, asking permission to visit and woo me.

"Never can I forget my father's rage. He looked down upon our hospitable entertainers as some monarch might upon his subjects, counting his wealth, his long line of English ancestors as something that elevated him far above these farmer-folk, who put their hands to actual labor to earn daily bread.

"How pretty it all seemed to me; how small it looks to day. But my father's will was a law I dared not question, and I took a tearful farewell of Henry, never hoping to meet him again, yet submitting entirely to my father. The whole leave-taking was painful, and Mr. and Mrs. Bradley, resenting the insult to their son contained in my father's indignation, yet refusing the money he haughtily offered for our entertainment, as if it had been a tavern that opened its doors to us.

"Once at home, I tried to do my duty faithfully in every respect but one. I made no effort to forget my lover, but cherished every word, every look, living over and over and over again every happy hour we had passed together. He filled my heart, my brain, my life.

"I was young and fair, and my father was wealthy, so I had suitors; but I was the only child at home, and my father looked to me for companionship as well as for housekeeping duties. It was, therefore, easy for me to be faithful, as I was never urged to marry. Indeed, I think my father was as anxious to keep me single as I was to remain so. My life was a quiet one, for the mistress of a large plantation in those days had many and urgent duties in caring for the bodies and souls of the slaves under her. I had never questioned the right or wrong of slavery, but I did try to make those who were my father's property comfortable and happy.

"Six years passed, and the War of 1812 broke out. Long before I knew that all my father's sympathies were with the English, and that he had been a staunch Tory in Revolutionary days. But he was an old man, taking only a passive interest in politics, and there were no daily papers to keep alive the hopes and fears of nations.

"Some rumors of the war reached us, but it did not seem as if it could touch us in any way. There were no sons to equip and send out, and years before, your grand mother, my only sister, had died in her home in Washington, leaving a young family in the care of her husband's relatives. We heard at long intervals of their welfare, but they were like strangers to us.

"Yet, while the war raged, a letter came to me—my only love-letter—written on a battlefield where Henry Bradley lay in the death grip. He had studied for the ministry in those years, and gone as a chaplain to the war. In praying beside a wounded soldier he received his death wound, and his last hours were spent in writing to his mother and to me. The letter was instead in one from his colonel, telling me that my Lover had passed peacefully from life temporal to life eternal.

"I did not grieve because death had but brought him nearer to me. The world could separate us, and duty keep me from his side, but I have never doubted the presence of my Henry's spirit to and around my own. It lifted my heart it elevated my life. How could I sail or stain the one or the other, with the certainty I felt that he looked upon every thought and act from the purer world I was striving to fit myself for. Every year I hoped to join him, but God met duties to fill my life, so that I need not fold my hands to mourn. Your father sent for me when my own father died, and I left my Virginia home to come to this busy city and to care for my nephew's motherless little ones.

"I have had great happiness in my life, and but little sorrow. It has been very quiet, full of love, and knowing no burdens of great care or great suffering, yet it has been ever a time of waiting. To-day I am ninety-three, and it is to me as if I parted from Henry yesterday to meet to-morrow where parting does not come. Kiss me, dear, and let me lie here alone, looking at the white mantle that brings back such happy memories."

Very tenderly Emily obeyed, a strange solemnity in her heart at this record of undying love that would so triumph over time and separation. Silence fell upon the room, where the one occupant lay back in the deeply cushioned chair, praying silently. Once she said, in a low sweet voice:

"Snow bound! But Thou, O Lord, canst open heaven's gates and send the sunshine of life eternal!"

When Emily went in, some hours, later, the sun shone full upon the aged face, but the weary eyes were closed forever, and the free heart was storm-bound no longer.

HOW TO FIGHT FLESH.

Fat is the dread and disaster of actresses. Many of them are unhappily compelled to sink their talents into obesity long before age has disqualified them for youthful roles. Such favorites of the stage as Fanny Davenport, Lillian Russell, and Pauline Hall have fought off fleshiness with more or less of temporary success. The subject of actresses' resistance to fat is written about by William Muldoon, the "solid man" and trainer of athletes, in a dramatic paper. Muldoon advises actresses not to try too hard to work off their fat by excessive exercise, because their health would be ruined thereby. He recommends walking at a brisk pace, with long, free strides and with swinging arms, every morning for a distance as great as the woman can bear without marked fatigue, and in a costume both easy and warm, like the "sweater" used by prize fighters. "The object of the gait," so Muldoon tells the plump actress through the press, "is to step from the hips. Do not try to hold your arms woman style—both fastened together in front of you—but keep one up if you want to, and let the other swing. If your limbs begin to tire from the fast walking, rest them by running a few steps. Hurry to the point that you have chosen, and don't stop when you get there. Imagine yourself terribly disappointed, and in dignantly start back home, keeping up the same pace. Hasten into your home have your room warmed, and no draughts. Wrap yourself up well with an extra blanket. Five minutes is long enough for you to sit. Then take a hot drink of weak tea, or even hot water. Sit ten minutes more. By that time, your circulation will have become normal. Then do not lazily and slowly take off one garment and stop but strip your self as rapidly as possible. Have coarse towels ready. If you employ a maid, have her on hand. Get assistance from either the maid or any one who is convenient. A very particular point is not to allow the prespiration to stand on the skin after stripping. Have the towels all ready. Strip the upper portion of the body first, rub quickly and thoroughly; then strip the lower part. A good rubbing with rough towels is then gone through. Throw a blanket about yourself for a few moments, as there is usually a reaction, and another slight prospiration comes on. Rub again with the coarse towels, and then take a sponge bath. Go through a thorough rubbing again with coarse towels, and a hand rub; dress warmly, and as you gradually resume your accustomed costume, whatever it may be, let a little more air into the room to cool it off. You may at first have a great desire to drink something—something cold—as the stomach is feverish. But you must resist that temptation, also. Satisfy that desire by getting fresh, pure air. Open the windows. Keep out of the draught. This walk should be taken at least every other day when the weather is fair. And remember that it is not the distance you walk—it is the pace in which you walk it. A man may walk ten miles and gain a pound. I can take the same man three miles and make him lose two pounds. Slow walking has a tendency to make a healthy person heavy.

No douche or instrument is required to apply Rheumatism. It is easy to use, pleasant and agreeable in its effects. Use nothing else for rheumatism and cold in head.

DEATH IN MARCH WINDS.

Poets and novelists so late seem to love when they romantically call "beautiful spring," and "gentle spring," and while, no doubt, every one is glad to see winter release its icy grasp, "beautiful spring" is, after all, one of the most deadly seasons of the year. Sudden transitions from warmth to extreme cold, with piercing chilling winds; from dry to sloppy, "muggy" weather, all combine to make the season a most trying one, even to the hardiest constitutions, while to those with weak constitutions the season is one of positive danger. Undoubtedly the greatest danger at this season of the year is from cold in the head, which very few escape, and which if not promptly and thoroughly treated, develops into catarrh, with all its disagreeable and loathsome effects. Catarrh, neglected, almost as certainly develops into consumption, annually destroying thousands of lives. At this trying season no household should be without a bottle of Nasal Balm. In case of cold in the head it gives almost instant relief and effects a speedy cure, thus preventing the development of catarrh. Where the latter disease has already secured a hold it is equally efficacious, and with persistent use will cure the worst case. From the outset it sweetens the breath, stops the unsavory droppings into the throat and lungs, dispels those dull headaches that afflict the sufferer from catarrh. Nasal Balm is not advertised as a cure all—it is an honest remedy which never fails to cure cold in the head or catarrh when the directions are faithfully followed, and thousands throughout the country have reason to bless its discovery. Nasal Balm may be had from all dealers or will be sent post paid on receipt of price (50 cents, small, or $1, large size bottle) by addressing Fulford & Co., Brockville Ont.

A SERIOUS BATTLE.

The political battle is over, but the battle with disease must be constantly and unceasingly waged else the grim reaper will come out victorious, and loved ones will be gathered to their long home. On all sides may be seen pale and listless girls who should be enjoying the health and glow of rosy youth. Everywhere we are met with women young in years, yet prematurely old, who suffer in silence almost untold agonies, the result of those ailments peculiar to the female system. To all such, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills come as a blessing. They restore wasted vitality, build up the nervous system, enrich the blood, and transform pale and sallow complexions into glowing, rosy cheeks that alone follow perfect health. In a word they are a certain cure for all these distressing complaints to which women and girls are peculiarly liable. A trial of these pills will convince the most sceptical of their wonderful merit. For suffering men Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are equally efficacious. For over work, mental strain, loss of sleep, nervous debility, and all those diseases that lead to broken down manhood, they are a certain specific, stimulating the brain, reinforcing the exhausted system and restoring shattered vitality. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are nature's restorative and should be used by every weak and debilitated person. For sale by all dealers or sent post paid on receipt of price (50 cents a box) by addressing the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Disappeared From Rockwood.

Last Fall Mr. Jesse Johnston, of Rockwood, suffered very much from boils. He says: "I got a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters and the effect was wonderful, the boils at once began to disappear and I was soon totally cured. B. B. B. is a natural foe to impure blood."

BROOD MARES.

The foaling season is coming, and the mares must be attended to if we want strong and healthy foals. They ought to have daily exercise, and will be all the better off if they have been worked regularly. Mares that are worked can be well fed without any injury to them, and they must be well fed, for it is to be remembered that the mare has to generate blood for the nourishment of her foetus as well as of herself. It is not necessary to have her loaded with fat, but in good healthy condition. Heating foods must not be fed, and bran mashes should be given occasionally to keep her bowels open. A mare that is poor, or one that is in high condition without exercise, cannot be expected to produce a good foal. The cause of there being so many deformed and weak-limbed foals may be attributed to this. Of course she must not be put to extraordinary work, such as pulling excessive loads, or to any efforts likely to produce sudden jerks or strains, which would most likely cause her to slip her foal, but she may be kept at slow and light work up to near the time of parturition. Eleven months is the usual period of gestation, but some will foal [illegible] and some go a year, [illegible] matter (wax) appears on her teats, the time is not far off, probably only twenty-four or forty eight hours, and one must be on the watch. She ought to be put in a roomy box, and if the weather is fine and warm she will be better in a paddock. If the mare has been regularly exercised, and apparently in health when in foal, little danger will attend the act of parturition. If, however, there are signs of danger, it will be better to have recourse to a well-informed practitioner, rather than run the risk of injuring the dam by violent and injudicious attempts, which are often made to relieve the animal.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Pure Blood.—When the blood is pure, its circulation calm and equable, and the nerves well strung, we are well. These Pills possess a marvellous power in correcting these essentials of health by purifying, regulating, and strengthening the fluids and solids. Holloway's Pills can be confidently recommended to all persons suffering from disordered digestion, or worried by nervous fancies, or neuralgic pains. They correct debility and heartburn, dispel sick headache, quicken the action of the liver, and act as alterative and gentle aperients. The weak and delicate may take them without fear. Holloway's Pills are eminently serviceable to invalids of irritable constitution, as they raise the action of every organ to its normal standard and universally exercise a calming and sedative influence.

We meet as then again we wake,
Its long remembered chime and cheer,
As when, in days of long ago,
We sat at mother's feet;
And gazing upward on the wall,
Where dearest father's picture hung,
We thought he smiled, for he, too, loved
The hymns that mother sung.

To them we owe our happy homes,
Praise be to God who reigns above,
For keeping ever bright and clear
The lessons learned in love.
Outliving sorrow, bearing hope,
The dear old songs have always clung,
And never can the heart forget
The hymns that mother sung.

STORM-BOUND.

"ANDT Ethel, why do you always look so sad when it moves heavily—so sad and yet so happy?" asked Emily Page, seating herself cosily at her great aunt's feet, as the old lady sat by the window, her knitting lying idly in her lap, her eyes fixed upon the fast falling flakes of a heavy snow-storm. "So sad and yet so happy," Emily said, looking into Ethel Page's wrinkled face, the words were so contradiction. The large dark eyes, deeply-sunken, were full of pathetic, wistful sadness, but upon the sweet mouth lay the shadow of a smile full of love and hope.

"I am thinking, dear," the old lady said, softly stroking the curly head upon her knee. "I am living in a dream of the past, the one adventure in an uneventful life. It is a love story, too, little one."

"Tell me!" Emily said, coaxingly.

"So many long years ago," said the old lady, her voice a dreamy monotone, "I was but eighteen, and to-day I am ninety-three years old. It has been weary waiting, but not unhappy, for I knew the time would come in God's good pleasure, when it would end. When I was eighteen Emily, we had all the luxuries the times afforded, were wealthy, and considered ourselves very grand people, with lands and horses, slaves and jewels.

"It was an event to travel in those days, even for a few miles, and I fairly held my breath in awe when my father undertook a journey to Philadelphia and told me I was to be his companion. One of my aunts—an English aunt—was married to a merchant in Philadelphia, and we were to visit her, and my father to make some mercantile investments the nature of which I did not understand.

"It was a long, long journey, taken in our own carriage. We crossed rivers and small streams on rafts, and we bought our provisions at the farm houses lying widely scattered on our road.

"I will not weary you by a description of it all, or of the gay season I passed at my aunt's, where first I tasted of the pleasures of society and found out I was fair as well as young.

"It was in February that we started upon our homeward journey, our carriage most bountifully supplied with food, and our clothing of the warmest. I am old, dear, and the changes confuse me somewhat, but I think it was not far from what is now the large city of Baltimore we were caught in a driving snow storm, at dusk.

"We were lost, blinded if we looked out of the carriage door, and the horses were becoming useless from cold and snow-clogged feet, when the coachman caught sight of a lighted window, and by lusty calls, at last wakened the people living in a rambling old house, a mixture of farm house and barracks, built for protection as well as shelter.

"Two men, one not more than twenty-one or two, the other middle aged, came stumbling and floundering through the snow-drifts, carrying lanterns that looked like will o' wisps in the darkness. They led the horses to the stable, and we left the carriage to slight upon the bare floor, with the cattle in stalls all around us.

"Through a covered way we went from the barn to an immense kitchen, where a wood fire roared in such a chimney place as belongs to the past. Hooks for iron pots hung above the roaring blaze that had been roused from its night rest for our comfort. A sweet-faced matron was awaiting us, and preparing a hurried supper that was most welcome.

"Before long we were thoroughly comfortable the negroes, made warm and well fed, were in the barn sleeping on the hay, and my father and myself in the guest chambers, furlous to be sure, for warmed sleeping rooms were an unheard-of luxury, but liberally provided with blankets and warming pans.

"The next day my life began, the life of my father's indignation, yet refusing the money he haughtily offered for our entertainment, as if it had been a tavern that opened its doors to us.

"Once at home, I tried to do my duty faithfully in every respect but one I made no effort to forget my lover, but cherished every word, every look, living over and over and over again every happy hour we had passed together. He filled my heart, my brain, my life.

"I was young and fair, and my father was wealthy, so I had suitors; but I was the only child at home, and my father looked to me for companionship as well as for housekeeping duties. It was, therefore, easy for me to be faithful, as I was never urged to marry. Indeed, I think my father was as anxious to keep me single as I was to remain so. My life was a quiet one, for the mistress of a large plantation in those days had many and urgent duties in caring for the bodies and souls of the slaves under her. I had never questioned the right or wrong of slavery, but I did try to make those who were my father's property comfortable and happy.

"Six years passed, and the War of 1812 broke out. Long before I knew that all my father's sympathies were with the English, and that he had been a staunch Tory in Revolutionary days. But he was an old man, taking only a passive interest in politics, and there were no daily papers to keep alive the hopes and fears of nations.

"Some rumors of the war reached us, but it did not seem as if it could touch us in any way. There were no sons to equip and send out, and years before, your grand mother, my only sister, had died in her home in Washington, leaving a young family in the care of her husband's relatives. We heard at long intervals of their welfare, but they were like strangers to us.

"Yet, while the war raged, a letter came to me—my only love-letter—written on a battlefield where Henry Bradley lay in the death grip. He had studied for the ministry in those years, and gone as a chaplain to the war. In praying beside a wounded soldier he received his death wound, and his last hours were spent in writing to his mother and to me. The letter was instead in one from his colonel, telling me that my lover was no more, and that I was yet to be as he, one year that day?"

There was a long silence after the last words, for Emily Page could not break the spell they seemed to throw over her aunt. All the sadness was gone from the face which seemed glorified by the memory of this early love. It was not until this strange inner radiance had faded away that the old lady spoke again:

"We were detained at the Brakley Farm for two weeks by the lameness of one of the horses. During most of that time it was impossible to leave the house the snow drifting high against the doors and the paths unbroken. But to me the time was spent as in paradise. Henry, in the early days, spoke no words of love, though he was my lover from the first, but he talked to me as none had ever done before. Emily, I cannot tell you what words these were, because from the first our spirits seemed to meet in a communion not of this world.

"Delicate from a child, Henry Bradley had a spirit above earth's trials, above this world's temptations. Some men are so, but they are not many. He never talked of religion, but he lived it. Utterly unselfish, he was always watchful of others, making the comfort of his parents the first duty of his life. To see him with his mother moved me to tears, for I lost my mother before I was old enough to stamp her face upon my memory.

"It was the old, old story, my dear, told once more; but I did not realize the truth until the thaw came, the roads were passable, and we were going away. Then Henry spoke to my father, asking permission to visit and woo me.

"Never can I forget my father's rage. He looked down upon our hospitable entertainers as some monarch might upon his subjects, counting his wealth, his long line of English ancestors as some thing that elevated him far above these farmer-folk, who put their hands to actual labor to earn daily bread.

"How pretty it all seemed to me; how small it looks to day. But my father's will was a law I dared not question, and I took a tearful farewell of Henry, never hoping to meet him again, yet submitting entirely to my father. The whole leave-taking was painful, and Mr. and Mrs. Bradley, resenting the insult to their son contained in my father's indignation, yet refusing the money he haughtily offered for our entertainment, as if it had been a tavern that opened its doors to us.

"Once at home, I tried to do my duty faithfully in every respect but one I made no effort to forget my lover, but cherished every word, every look, living over and over and over again every happy hour we had passed together. He filled my heart, my brain, my life.

"I was young and fair, and my father was wealthy, so I had suitors; but I was the only child at home, and my father looked to me for companionship as well as for housekeeping duties. It was, therefore, easy for me to be faithful, as I was never urged to marry. Indeed, I think my father was as anxious to keep me single as I was to remain so. and and yet so happy?" asked Emily Page, seating herself easily at her great aunt's feet, as the old lady sat by the window, her knitting lying idly in her lap, her eyes fixed upon the fast falling flakes of a heavy mow-storm. "So sad and yet so happy," Emily said, looking into Ethel Page's wrinkled face, the words were so contradictory. The large dark eyes deeply-sunken, were full of pathetic, wistful sadness, but upon the sweet mouth lay the shadow of a smile full of love and hope.

"I am thinking, dear," the old lady said, softly stroking the curly head upon her knees. "I am living in a dream of the past, the one adventure in an uneventful life. It is a love story, too, little one."

"Tell me!" Emily said, coaxingly.

"So many long years ago," said the old lady, her voice a dreamy monotone, "I was but eighteen, and to-day I am ninety three years old. It has been weary waiting, but not unhappy, for I knew the time would come in God's good pleasure, when it would end. When I was eighteen Emily, we had all the luxuries the times afforded, were wealthy, and considered ourselves very grand people, with lands and horses, slaves and jewels.

"It was an event to travel in those days, even for a few miles, and I fairly held my breath in awe when my father undertook a journey to Philadelphia and told me I was to be his companion. One of my aunts—an English aunt—was married to a merchant in Philadelphia, and we were to visit her, and my father to make some mercantile investments the nature of which I did not understand.

"It was a long, long journey, taken in our own carriage. We crossed rivers and small streams on rafts, and we bought our provisions at the farm houses lying widely scattered on our road.

"I will not weary you by a description of it all, or of the gay season I passed at my aunt's, where first I tasted of the pleasures of society and found out I was fair as well as young.

"It was in February that we started upon our homeward journey, our carriage most bountifully supplied with food, and our clothing of the warmest. I am old, dear, and the changes confuse me somewhat, but I think it was not far from what is now the large city of Baltimore we were caught in a driving snow storm, at dusk.

"We were lost, blinded if we looked out of the carriage door, and the horses were becoming useless from cold and snow-clogged feet, when the coachman caught sight of a lighted window, and by lusty calls, at last wakened the people living in a rambling old house, a mixture of farm house and barracks, built for protection as well as shelter.

"Two men, one not more than twenty-one or two, the other middle aged, came stumbling and floundering through the snow-drifts, carrying lanterns that looked like will o' wisps in the darkness. They led the horses to the stable, and we left the carriage to slight upon the bare floor, with the cattle in stalls all around us.

"Through a covered way we went from the barn to an immense kitchen, where a wood fire roared in such a chimney place as belongs to the past. Hooks for iron pots hung above the roaring blaze that had been roused from its night rest for our comfort. A sweet-faced matron was awaiting us, and preparing a hurried supper that was most welcome.

"Before long we were thoroughly comfortable the negroes, made warm and well fed, were in the barn sleeping on the hay, and my father and myself in the guest chambers, finlem to be sure, for, warmed sleeping rooms were an unheard-of luxury, but liberally provided with blankets and warming pans.

"The next day my life began, the life from the first, but he talked to me as none had ever done before. Emily, I cannot tell you what words those were, because from the first our spirits seemed to meet in a communion not of this world.

"Delicate from a child, Henry Bradley had a spirit above earth's trials, above this world's temptations. Some men are so, but they are not many. He never talked of religion, but he lived it. Utterly unselfish, he was always watchful of others, making the comfort of his parents the first duty of his life. To see him with his mother moved me to tears, for I lost my mother before I was old enough to stamp her face upon my memory.

"It was the old, old story, my dear, told once more; but I did not realize the truth until the thaw came, the roads were passable, and we were going away. Then Henry spoke to my father, asking permission to visit and woo me.

"Never can I forget my father's rage. He looked down upon our hospitable entertainers as some monarch might upon his subjects, counting his wealth, his long line of English ancestors as something that elevated him far above these farmer-folk, who put their hands to actual labor to earn daily bread.

"How pretty it all seemed to me; how small it looks to-day. But my father's will was a law. I dared not question, and I took a tearful farewell of Henry, never hoping to meet him again, yet submitting entirely to my father. The whole leave-taking was painful, and Mr. and Mrs. Bradley, resenting the insult to their son contained in my father's indignation, yet refusing the money he haughtily offered for our entertainment, as if it had been a tavern that opened its doors to us.

"Once at home, I tried to do my duty faithfully in every respect but one I made no effort to forget my lover, but cherished every word, every look, living over and over and over again every happy hour we had passed together. He filled my heart, my brain, my life.

"I was young and fair, and my father was wealthy, so I had suitors; but I was the only child at home, and my father looked to me for companionship as well as for housekeeping duties. It was, therefore, easy for me to be faithful, as I was never urged to marry. Indeed, I think my father was as anxious to keep me single as I was to remain so. My life was a quiet one, for the mistress of a large plantation in those days had many and urgent duties in caring for the bodies and souls of the slaves under her. I had never questioned the right or wrong of slavery, but I did try to make those who were my father's property comfortable and happy.

"Six years passed, and the War of 1812 broke out. Long before I knew that all my father's sympathies were with the English, and that he had been a staunch Tory in Revolutionary days. But he was an old man, taking only a passive interest in politics, and there were no daily papers to keep alive the hopes and fears of nations.

"Some rumors of the war reached us, but it did not seem as if it could touch us in any way. There were no sons to equip and send out, and years before, your grand mother, my only sister, had died in her home in Washington, leaving a young family in the care of her husband's relatives. We heard at long intervals of their welfare, but they were like strangers to us.

"Yet, while the war raged, a letter came to me—my only love-letter—written on a battlefield where Henry Bradley lay in the death grip. He had studied for the ministry in those years, and gone as a chaplain to the war. In praying beside a wounded soldier he received his death wound, and his last hours were spent in writing to his mother and to me. The letter was inclosed in one from his colonel, telling me that my chair, praying silently. Once she said, in a low sweet voice:

"Snow bound! But Thou, O Lord, canst open heaven's gates and send the sunshine of life eternal!"

When Emily went in, some hours later, the sun shone full upon the aged face, but the weary eyes were closed forever, and the free heart was storm-bound no longer.

HOW TO FIGHT FLESH.

Fat is the dread and disaster of actresses. Many of them are unhappily compelled to sink their talents into obesity long before age has disqualified them for youthful roles. Such favorites of the stage as Fanny Davenport, Lillian Russell, and Pauline Hall have fought off flesh with more or less of temporary success. The subject of actresses' resistance to fat is written about by William Muldoon, the "solid man" and trainer of athletes, in a dramatic paper. Muldoon advises actresses not to try too hard to work off their fat by excessive exercise, because their health would be ruined thereby. He recommends walking at a brisk pace, with long, free strides and with swinging arms, every morning for a distance as great as the woman can bear without marked fatigue, and in a costume both easy and warm, like the "sweater" used by prize fighters. "The object of the gait," so Muldoon tells the plump actress through the press, "is to step from the hips. Do not try to hold your arms woman style—both fastened together in front of you—but keep one up if you want to, and let the other swing. If your limbs begin to tire from the fast walking, rest them by running a few steps. Hurry to the point that you have chosen, and don't stop when you get there. Imagine yourself terribly disappointed, and in dignantly start back home, keeping up the same pace. Hasten into your home have your room warmed, and no draughts. Wrap yourself up well with an extra blanket. Five minutes is long enough for you to sit. Then take a hot drink of weak tea, or even hot water. Sit ten minutes more. By that time, your circulation will have become normal. Then do not lazily and slowly take off one garment and stop but strip your self as rapidly as possible. Have coarse towels ready. If you employ a maid, have her on hand. Get assistance from either the maid or any one who is convenient. A very particular point is not to allow the prespiration to stand on the skin after stripping. Have the towels all ready. Strip the upper portion of the body first, rub quickly and thoroughly; then strip the lower part. A good rubbing with rough towels is then gone through. Throw a blanket about yourself for a few moments, as there is usually a reaction, and another slight prespiration comes on. Rub again with the coarse towels, and then take a sponge bath. Go through a thorough rubbing again with coarse towels, and a hand rub; dress warmly, and as you gradually resume your accustomed costume, whatever it may be, let a little more air into the room to cool it off. You may at first have a great desire to drink something — something cold — as the stomach is feverish. But you must resist that temptation, also. Satisfy that desire by getting fresh, pure air. Open the windows. Keep out of the draught. This walk should be taken at least every other day when the weather is fair. And remember that it is not the distance you walk—it is the pace in which you walk it. A man may walk ten miles and gain a pound. I can take the same man three miles and make him lose two pounds. Slow walking has a tendency to make a healthy person heavy.

No douche or instrument is required to apply Nerve Pain. It is easy to use, pleasant and agreeable in its effects. Use nothing else for toothache and cold in head.

A SERIOUS BATTLE.

The political battle is over, but the battle with disease must be constantly and unceasingly waged else the grim reaper will come out victorious, and loved ones will be gathered to their long home. On all sides may be seen pale and listless girls who should be enjoying the health and glow of rosy youth. Everywhere we are met with women young in years, yet prematurely old, who suffer in silence almost untold agonies, the result of those ailments peculiar to the female system. To all such, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills come as a blessing. They restore wasted vitality, build up the nervous system, enrich the blood, and transform pale and sallow complexions into glowing, rosy cheeks that alone follow perfect health. In a word they are a certain cure for all these distressing complaints to which women and girls are peculiarly liable. A trial of these pills will convince the most sceptical of their wonderful merit. For suffering men Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are equally efficacious. For over work, mental strain, loss of sleep, nervous debility, and all those diseases that lead to broken down manhood, they are a certain specific, stimulating the brain, reinforcing the exhausted system and restoring shattered vitality. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are nature's restorative and should be used by every weak and debilitated person. For sale by all dealers or sent post paid on receipt of price (50 cents a box) by addressing the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Disappeared From Rockwood.

Last Fall Mr. Jesse Johnston, of Rockwood, suffered very much from boils. He says: "I got a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters and the effect was wonderful, the boils at once began to disappear and I was soon totally cured. B.B.B. is a natural foe to impure blood.

BROOD MARES.

The foaling season is coming, and the mares must be attended to if we want strong and healthy foals. They ought to have daily exercise, and will be all the better off if they have been worked regularly. Mares that are worked can be well fed without any injury to them, and they must be well fed, for it is to be remembered that the mare has to generate blood for the nourishment of her foetus as well as of herself. It is not necessary to have her loaded with fat, but in good healthy condition. Heating foods must not be fed, and bran mashes should be given occasionally to keep her bowels open. A mare that is poor, or one that is in high condition without exercise, cannot be expected to produce a good foal. The cause of there being so many deformed and weak-limbed foals may be attributed to this. Of course she must not be put to extraordinary work, such as pulling excessive loads, or to any efforts likely to produce sudden jerks or strains, which would most likely cause her to miscarry her foal, but she may be kept at slow and light work up to near the time of parturition. Eleven months is the at least term of gestation, but some will foal before that time and some go a year. [illegible] matter (wax) appears on her teats, the time is not far off, probably only twenty-four or forty eight hours, and she must be on the watch. She ought to be put in a roomy box, and if the weather is fine and warm she will be better in a paddock. If the mare has been regularly exercised, and apparently in health when in foal, little danger will attend the act of parturition. If, however, there are signs of danger, it will be better to have recourse to a well-informed practitioner, rather than run the risk of injuring the dam by violent and injudicious attempts, which are often made to relieve the animal.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Pure Blood.—When the blood is pure, its circulation calm and equable, and the nerves well strung, we are well These Pills possess a marvellous power in securing these essentials of health by purifying, regulating, and strengthening the fluids and solids. Holloway's Pills can be confidently recommended to all persons suffering from disordered digestion, or worried by nervous fancies, or neuralgic pains. They correct acidity and heartburn, dispel sick headache, quicken the action of the liver, and act as alteratives and gentle aperients. The weak and delicate may take them without fear. Holloway's Pills are eminently serviceable to invalids of irritable constitution, as they raise the action of every organ to its natural standard, and universally exercise a calming and sedative influence.

THE SUN, THURSDAY, MARCH 19, 1891.

The Sun.

EVERY THURSDAY MORNING.

ORANGEVILLE, MARCH 19, 1891.

At the last meeting of the council, fully reported in another column, Mr Fiddle, chairman of the Street Lighting committee, made great efforts to propose three more arc lamps for the streets of the town. In view of the fact that the present electric light contract will expire in a few months, we think it would be more folly for the town fathers to arrange for any more lights. A great many ratepayers find fault with the present system, and even the Street Lighting committee do not believe the ratepayers get value for their money. However that may be, nothing should be done in the matter until a new contract is made.

ITALIANS LYNCHED!

AND THEIR BODIES RIDDLED WITH BULLETS.

The Terrible Revenge Which Few Orleans Wreaked on the Italian Assassins—Ten of Them Shot Down in Prison.

NEW ORLEANS, March 16.—A fearful reign of terror was enacted here yesterday. The infuriated populace wreaked a terrible vengeance on the Mafia miscreants who received their quietus in a torrent of blood. The people of New Orleans in the overwhelming indignation determined to mete out the justice which their courts had denied, and yesterday deliberately slew eleven of the whitewashed criminals lying in the city jail who had been acquitted on the charge of killing Chief of Police Hennessy. It was shown that the chief's death was deliberately plotted and ruthlessly carried out by a band of Sicilian assassins, who had formed themselves into a kind of vendetta, known as the Mafia. Wholesale arrests were made, but after a trial lasting twenty six days, the jury, who were openly accused of being bribed, refused to convict, and acquitted the entire gang.

The result has simply infuriated the whole community, and at a meeting hastily convened, some of the city's most representative merchants, lawyers, and politicians decided to wreak a summary vengeance upon the assassins. There was an immediate call for a mass

A SLEEPY DRIVER.—On Saturday last the pedestrians were considerably amused to see a well known character, who resides a short distance from town, leaning against a Broadway hitching post asleep. All at once he fell with a "clattering, dull thud" that caused the muddled senses, and the people came along and told him to "move on."

THE FARTHER SHORE.—Mrs. Thos. McKitterick died on Wednesday last at her husband's residence, Orangeville Junction, after a short illness, in the 29th year of her age. The deceased was a general favorite with friends and acquaintances. She leaves a husband and four little children who are too young to realize the loss they have sustained. We extend our sympathy to the bereaved husband and friends.

MORE FISTICUFFS.—Last Thursday evening (fairday) a farmer from Mono and a local tough indulged in a fistic battle in one of the hotel sheds, and the tough has cause to lament the occurrence. The farmer used a loaded whip on the Orangeville man's head. They were summoned to the police court and quietly settled the affair by each paying $5 and costs. Out of respect for their relatives we have suppressed their names but if either of the combatants repeat the disgraceful performance THE SUN will publish their names in extra black-faced type. Rowdyism must be put down in Orangeville.

DEATH OF MRS. WALLACE.—We are called upon this week to chronicle the death of an old resident of Amaranth

THE SUN: THURSDAY, MARCH 19, 1891.

The Sun.

IS SHINING FOR ALL.

ORANGEVILLE, MARCH 19, 1891.

At the last meeting of the council, fully reported in another column, Mr. Fiddis, chairman of the Street Lighting committee, made great efforts to prevent three more arc lamps for the streets of the town. In view of the fact that the present electric light contract will expire in a few months, we think it would be mere folly for the town fathers to arrange for any more lights. A great many ratepayers find fault with the present system, and even the Street Lighting committee do not believe the ratepayers get value for their money. However that may be, nothing should be done in the matter until a new contract is made.

BRADLEY GETS THE PLUM!

He Has Been Appointed Postmaster for Orangeville.

For two or three weeks past rumors have been rife regarding the appointing of a postmaster for this town, but very few people believed that any such appointment had been made. However, THE SUN's many readers may rest assured that the plum has descended, falling directly into the hat of Assistant Postmaster John F. Bradley. Mr. B. has been connected with the postoffice for several years and understands the business pretty well.

No doubt many will view the appointment unfavorably as they think several older residents of the town had better claims on the office.

We may have something more to say on the matter next week.

MORE LIGHT WANTED

THE CHAIRMAN OF THE S. L. COMMITTEE SAYS SO.

Gillespie's Fire Protection Report Passed—Board of Health Appointed —News Notes

THE SUN's municipal representative found himself in the council chamber at 7.30 o'clock on Monday evening. Business had not commenced, however, owing to the insufficient number of "great heads" being present. In a few minutes several members called around and his worship ascended the throne. Besides the mayor, Reeve Lindsay, Deputy-reeve Endacott, Ald. Green, Gillespie, Cohoon, Young and Fiddis were present. The North ward was not represented, Ald. Youmans and Ketchum being absent.

ACCOUNTS

from C. R. Wheelock, $50; L. W. Waines, $24 50; were read and ordered paid.

GILLESPIE GOT THERE.

Ald. Gillespie requested the mayor to read the F. & W. report which was referred several weeks ago. This report recommends that $700 be expended in improving the fire department, thereby reducing the rate of insurance, and that the expense incurred be borne by special tax by those benefitted. Ald. Gillespie moved its adoption, seconded by Ald. Green. The reeve asked if the council had power to levy such a tax. No person around the "green table" could tell. About twenty minutes were consumed in debating on the matter. The chairman of the F. & W. and the reeve indulged in some sharp pointed remarks during the debate. Before any fire department improvement can be made a petition signed by three-quarters of the ratepayers interested will have to be submitted to the council. Ald. Gillespie moved the adoption of the report, the reeve moving in amendment that it be deferred. A vote was taken and motion declared carried.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

Two by-laws were introduced for the appointment of a board of health, a medical health officer and a health inspector. It was decided to follow the course followed last year and appoint the officers. When several names were mentioned it was laughable to hear the reasons advanced by aldermen why they should serve. Finally Ald. Young, Reeve Lindsay, Ketchum were chosen, with Dr. Henry as medical health officer and Chas. Mills as inspector. The last two positions are worth $20 per annum!

THE ALDERMEN WOULDN'T LIKE IT.

Ald. Gillespie introduced a by-law to prevent coasting with sleighs, sleds, toboggans and bicycles on the streets. A clause of the by-law provided that any person pushing a baby carriage along the streets of the town would be committing a breach of the by-law. Ald. Adamson inquired if it was the intention to prohibit ladies push their babies in sleighs along the streets. Of course it was not, and Harry asked to have the by-law remain over until the next meeting. The ladies will understand that it was an unfortunate error, and that Ald. Adamson had no intention of keeping them and the babies at home.

A CALL FOR LIGHT.

Ald. Fiddis, of the Noble South, asked that the S. L. committee be empowered to secure three more arc lamps, one to be placed on John street, another at the grist mill on Mill street and another opposite Sheriff Bowlas' residence on west Broadway. Deputy-reeve Endacott said the present contract would soon expire and he thought it best not to arrange for any more lamps until a new contract was made. Ald. Adamson said the people might think he was in favor of the C. P. R.; but he was not. He thought a lamp should be placed at the end of the platform at the station for the convenience of the travelling public—not the C. P. R. An amendment was moved, but Reeve Lindsay said a resolution was on the books that no more lights should be contracted for. And here the matter rests.

ITALIANS LYNCHED!

AND THEIR BODIES RIDDLED WITH BULLETS.

The Terrible Revenge Which Few or None Wreaked on the Italian Assassins—Ten of Them Shot Down in Prison.

NEW ORLEANS, March 16.—A fearful reign of terror was enacted here yesterday. The infuriated populace wreaked a terrible vengeance on the Mafia miscreants who received their quietus in a torrent of blood. The people of New Orleans in the overwhelming indignation determined to mete out the justice which their courts had denied, and yesterday deliberately slew eleven of the whitewashed criminals lying in the city jail who had been acquitted on the charge of killing Chief of Police Hennessey. It was shown that the chief's death was deliberately planned and ruthlessly carried out by a band of Sicilian assassins, who had formed themselves into a kind of vendetta, known as the Mafia. Wholesale arrests were made, but after a trial lasting twenty-six days, the jury, who were openly accused of being bribed, refused to convict, and acquitted the entire gang.

The result has simply infuriated the whole community, and at a meeting hastily convened, some of the city's most representative merchants, lawyers, and politicians decided to wreak a summary vengeance upon the assassins. There was an immediate call for a mass meeting, which closed with the significant request to the citizens, "Come prepared for action."

With the most business like precision a large room was promptly garrisoned, and some thousands of people rallied to the call armed to the teeth. There were a few short addresses, and soon the crowd was keyed up to the highest pitch of excitement. They demanded the death of the assassins, as the law had failed to give them justice. The leader of the mob was W. S. Parkson, a prominent lawyer, and president of the Southern Athletic Club. He is an exceedingly popular figure in local circles and is at the head of the city reform movement. Lawyer Wickliffe also made an impassioned appeal for vengeance, and the surging crowd then made a straight rush for the prison, most of the responsible and respectable citizens having in the meantime been supplied with double-barrelled shot guns, Winchester rifles and pistols.

The marshaling of the avenging and infuriated crowds had an electric effect on the city, and the sympathies of the citizens were entirely on their side. Sheriff Villere, who was in command of the prison, armed his deputies and then went out with the Italian consul in a fruitless search for the mayor. The State Governor had no time to act, and the posse of police on guard was ridiculously small to resist the angry mob. All resistance was swept away by the infuriated citizens, and promptly the principal entrance was forced open with axes and battering rams. The prisoners meantime became terror-stricken and officials as a last desperate ruse transferred the 19 Italian suspects into the women's quarters. Then the reign of blood commenced.

Rushing into the first cell they saw a prisoner whom some one mistook for the man Scoffedo, and he was instantly shot. It was afterwards found the man was innocent. In a moment the keys were wrested from the guards, and some one shouted, "To the women's quarters." There ten of the miscreants were found in a crouching position and were deliberately riddled with bullets, though two of the dastards were first dragged out and hanged on the gate in face of the crowd. Six of the suspects were got away in safety by the officials. Just as the work of blood was finished Parkerson was marched in triumph through the streets and the crowd dispersed.

Great crowds have since visited the scene of the awful occurrence, but the greatest order prevails. A strong armed guard has been placed around the prison. Detective O'Malley who is accused with tampering with the jury would have been shot dead if he had been caught by the mob. He has fled from the city. The foreman of the Mafia jury has been arrested as he was attempting to leave the city.

The Italian consul having instantly demanded satisfaction for the outrage, Secretary Blaine sent a prompt note to the Governor of Louisiana in which he said "The President deeply regrets that the citizens of New Orleans should have so disparaged the purity and adequacy of their own judicial tribunals as to transfer to the passionate judgment of a mob a question that should have been adjudged dispassionately and by settled rules of law. The Government of the United States must give to the subjects of friendly powers that security which it demands for our own citizens when temporarily under a foreign jurisdiction. It is the hope of the President that you will co-operate with him in maintaining the obligations of the United States towards Italian subjects who may be within the perils of the present excitement, that further bloodshed and violence may be prevented, and that all offenders against the law may be promptly brought to justice."

The Italians throughout the United States have risen to demand prompt punishment for the offenders.

VANATTER.

THE THREE EVENTS OF LIFE.—There were registered at the town clerk's office during the month of February three births, one marriage and five deaths.

LAST OF THE SEASON.—St. Mark's Temperance Society held the last concert for this season on Monday evening. The attendance was large and an excellent programme was rendered.

SECOND PLACE.—Next to the Orillia Hustler comes Jim Kelly. Any person wanting to buy the Singer Sewing machine should call on Jim Kelly, the farmers' friend. They will find him at his place in the Singer office, opposite Prince of Wales road, Orangeville.

OUR NEW STORY.—In the next issue of THE SUN we will commence the publication of a new story entitled "Olive Varcoe; or True to the Last." Now is the time to subscribe. Send us $1 and your address and we will mail you the spiciest paper in Dufferin.

RACES AT THE RINK.—Two interesting skating races took place at the Balmoral rink on Monday evening. Willie Irvine and Joe Foster participated in a two-mile dash for a purse of $10, the latter winning by a short distance. "Coone" Shields captured the prize in the open race.

H. S. L. S. ENTERTAINMENT.—A large crowd attended the annual entertainment of the High School Literary Society, which took place in the town hall on Thursday evening last. The programme consisted of recitals by Miss Jessie Alexander, of Toronto. The receipts were large.

REMOVING TO MANITOBA.—Mr. W. J. Price, the well known boot and shoe dealer, will remove to Manitoba next week. Mr. Price has carried on a large and successful business here for a number of years and he will undoubtedly do similarly in the far West. THE SUN wishes him a safe journey.

CENSUS ENUMERATORS.—The census enumerators appointed for the surrounding districts are: Centre Wellington, Thos. Hamilton, Hereward; North Wellington, W. B Jelly, Bowling Green; South Wellington, J. A. McLean, Guelph; Cardwell J. Wallace, Castlederg; Peel, H. Miller, Streetsville.

MRS. DANIELS' BENEFIT.—The firemen have arranged to hold a concert in the town hall next (Good) Friday evening in aid of the family of the late James Daniels, a report of whose tragic death appeared in last week's SUN. The best local talent has been secured for the occasion. A full house should respond to this worthy call.

THE GORDON'S NEW PROPRIETORS.—Messrs. D Livingston and K. Raasland of Orillia have purchased Messrs. Crockett & Spiers' interest in the Gordon house. The new proprietors took possession on Monday. They are both obliging gentlemen and will, no doubt, do a rushing business at the Gordon. We wish the new proprietors every success.

ENOCH'S LIBEL SUIT.—The action for libel brought by the Credit Foncier Franco-Canadian Loan Co., against Mr. Enoch Price of Marsville will come up at the York county assizes on Tuesday. It was expected the case would be tried on Monday last and the proprietors of THE SUN and Post were summoned as witnesses. Enoch is confident of winning the case.

A SERIOUS ACCIDENT.—On Saturday last the publication office staff were suddenly startled by a crash where the cutter of an adjacent paper had been running against a Broadway spanking fast colt. All at once he took with a "whinnying, dull thud" that caused the startled scribes, and the policeman along and told him to "move on."

THE FARTHER SHORE.—Mrs. Thos. McKitterick died on Wednesday last at her husband's residence, Orangeville Junction, after a short illness, in the 29th year of her age. The deceased was a general favorite with friends and acquaintances. She leaves a husband and four little children who are too young to realize the loss they have sustained. We extend our sympathy to the bereaved husband and friends.

MORE FISTICUFFS.—Last Thursday evening (fairday) a farmer from Mono and a local tough indulged in a fistic battle in one of the hotel sheds and the tough has cause to lament the occurrence. The farmer used a loaded whip on the Orangeville man's head. They were summoned to the police court and quietly settled the affair by each paying $5 and costs. Out of respect for their relatives we have suppressed their names but if either of the participants repeat the disgraceful performance THE SUN will publish their names in extra black-faced type. Rowdyism must be put down in Orangeville.

DEATH OF MRS. WALLACE.—We are called upon this week to chronicle the death of an old resident of Amaranth in the person of Ann Wallace, relict of the late Wm. Wallace, which sad event occurred at the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. R. Hewitt, lot 5, 5th line, Amaranth on Sunday evening last. Deceased had been a resident of Amaranth for the past fifty years, and was well known throughout the country. She was born in the county Monaghan, Ireland, in 1806 and emigrated to the United States in 1837, where she lived for four years, after which she came to Amaranth and has resided there ever since. Deceased leaves a family of three sons and three daughters—Samuel of Orangeville and William and Albert of Amaranth, Mrs. R. Hewitt, Amaranth, Mrs. Joseph Carson, Stratford, and Mrs. Wm. Duncan, Buffalo, N. Y. The remains were interred in the town cemetery on Tuesday, being followed to the grave by a large concourse of sorrowing friends and neighbors. The bereaved ones have our heartfelt sympathy.

HEREWARD.

Diphtheria is prevalent around here.

We are pleased to notice that Mr. Thos. Hamilton, reeve of Garafraxa, has been appointed census enumerator for Centre Wellington. We congratulate Mr. Hamilton on his appointment.

A sad bereavement has befallen Mrs. Atcheson by the death of two of her children by that dread disease, diphtheria. On Friday, the 6th instant, a bright little girl aged 8 years joined the choirs song of the angles in the land o' the leal and on Thursday last a promising boy aged 15 years was called away. Mrs. Atcheson has the sympathy of the community. The remains were interred side by side in Price's Corners cemetery.

CONNOR.

The ranks of the old settlers of Adjala are getting thinner and thinner as time flies by, and the latest to disappear from our midst is Mr. Joseph Mercer, a well-known and highly-respected resident of this township, who died on Saturday last, the 14th inst. Mr. Mercer, who was 59 years old, came to Adjala about forty years ago and has resided here ever since. About three years ago he was stricken down by a paralytic stroke, from the effects of which he did not fully recover. On Thursday and Friday he experienced two more paralytic strokes and on Saturday died. The deceased gentleman was a strict adherent to the Presbyterian church, but was held in high esteem by all classes and creeds. In politics he was a loyal supporter of the Conservative cause and at the last elections, although very sick, he insisted on going to the polls and casting his vote for R. S. White. A wife and three grown up children, one son and two daughters, survive him and they have the sympathy of the entire community. The funeral took place to St. John's cemetery, 7th line, Mono, on Monday and was very largely attended. Rev. Mr. Orr, pastor of the Presbyterian church, officiated at the grave. Deceased was a brother of Mr. T. L. Mercer of Mercer & Cohoon, harnessmakers, Orangeville.

PERSONAL.

Miss Emma Hand, of Stanton, is visiting friends in town.

Miss Violet McMorris, of Erin, is the guest of Orangeville friends.

Miss Jade Caldwell is visiting friends at Toronto, Durham and other places.

Mr. J. J. Hannahson, of Wycliffe college, Toronto, was in town last week.

Mrs. T. Wilkins, of Stratford, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Wallace.

Mr. W. T. Pearson, son of Rev. E. L. Pearson, has secured a situation with his uncle in New York, and left for there Tuesday.

Mr. Joseph A. Leighton, of Trinity college, Toronto, is spending his Easter vacation in town.

Mr. Thos. Wallace, of Jamestown, N. Y., is spending a few days with his parents on Broadway.

County Attorney Myers was called to Welland on Monday to attend the funeral of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Cooper.

the town. In view of the fact that the present electric light contract will expire in a few months, we think it would be more folly for the town fathers to arrange for any more lights. A great many ratepayers find fault with the present system, and even the Street Lighting committee do not believe the ratepayers get value for their money. However that may be, nothing should be done in the matter until a new contract is made.

BRADLEY GETS THE PLUM!

He Has Been Appointed Postmaster for Orangeville.

For two or three weeks past rumors have been rife regarding the appointing of a postmaster for this town, but very few people believed that any such appointment had been made. However, THE SUN'S many readers may rest assured that the plum has descended, falling directly into the hat of Assistant Postmaster John F. Bradley. Mr. B. has been connected with the postoffice for several years and understands the business pretty well.

No doubt many will view the appointment unfavorably as they think several older residents of the town had better claims on the office.

We may have something more to say on the matter next week.

MORE LIGHT WANTED

THE CHAIRMAN OF THE S. L. COMMITTEE SAYS SO.

Gillespie's Fire Protection Report Passed—Board of Health Appointed —Icway Notes

THE SUN'S municipal representative found himself in the council chamber at 7.30 o'clock on Monday evening. Business had not commenced, however, owing to the insufficient number of "great heads" being present. In a few minutes several members called around and his worship ascended the throne. Besides the mayor, Reeve Lindsey, Deputy-reeve Eudacott, Ald. Green, Gillespie, Coleman, Young and Fiddis were present. The North ward was not represented, Ald. Youmans and Ketchum being absent.

ACCOUNTS

from C. R. Wheelock, $50; L. W. Waines, $2.50; were read and ordered paid.

GILLESPIE GOT THERE.

Ald. Gillespie requested the mayor to read the F. & W. report which was referred several weeks ago. This report recommends that $700 be expended in improving the fire department, thereby reducing the rate of insurance, and that the expense incurred be borne by special tax by those benefitted. Ald. Gillespie moved its adoption, seconded by Ald. Green. The reeve asked if the council had power to levy such a tax. No person around the "green table" could tell. About twenty minutes were consumed in debating on the matter. The chairman of the F. & W. and the reeve indulged in some sharp pointed remarks during the debate. Before any fire department improvement can be made a petition signed by three-quarters of the ratepayers interested will have to be submitted to the council. Ald. Gillespie moved the adoption of the report, the reeve moving in amendment that it be deferred. A vote was taken and motion declared carried.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

Two by laws were introduced for the appointment of a board of health, a medical health officer and a health inspector. It was decided to follow the course pursued last year and appoint members of council. When several names were mentioned it was laughable to hear the excuses advanced by aldermen why they were not. Finally Ald Young, Green and Ketchum were chosen, with Dr. Henry as medical health officer and Chief Moore as inspector. The last two positions are worth $20 per annum!

THE LADIES WOULDN'T LIKE IT.

Ald. Gillespie introduced a by law to prevent sleigh riding, snow balling and coasting on the streets. A clause of the by-law provided that any person pushing a baby sleigh along the streets of the town would be committing a breach of the by-law. Ald. Adamson inquired if it was the intention to prohibit ladies push baby sleighs along the streets. Of course it was not, and Harry asked to have the by-law remain over until the next meeting. The ladies will understand this was an unfortunate error, and that he had no intention of keeping them and the babies at home.

A CALL FOR LIGHT.

Ald. Fiddis, of the Noble South, asked that the S. L. committee be empowered to secure three more arc lamps, one to be placed on John street, another at the grist mill on Mill street and another opposite Sheriff Bowles' residence on west Broadway. Deputy-reeve Eudacott said the present contract would soon expire and he thought it best not to arrange for any more lamps until a new contract was made. Ald. Adamson said the people might think he was in favor of the C. P. R., but he was not. He thought a lamp should be placed at the end of the platform at the station for the convenience of the travelling public —for the C. P. R. An amendment was moved, but Reeve Lindsey said a resolution was on the books that no more lights should be contracted for. And there the matter rests.

[illegible] resulted in a terrible vengeance on the Mafia miscreants who received their quietus in a torrent of blood. The people of New Orleans in the overwhelming indignation determined to mete out the justice which their courts had denied, and yesterday deliberately slew eleven of the whitewashed criminals lying in the city jail who had been acquitted on the charge of killing Chief of Police Hennessy. It was shown that the chief's death was deliberately planned and ruthlessly carried out by a band of Sicilian assassins, who had formed themselves into a kind of vendetta, known as the Mafia. Wholesale arrests were made, but after a trial lasting twenty six days, the jury, who were openly accused of being bribed, refused to convict, and acquitted the entire gang.

The result has simply infuriated the whole community, and at a meeting hastily convened, some of the city's most representative merchants, lawyers, and politicians decided to wreak a summary vengeance upon the assassins. There was an immediate call for a mass meeting, which closed with the significant request to the citizens, "Come prepared for action."

With the most business like precision a large room was promptly garrisoned, and some thousands of people rallied to the call armed to the teeth. There were a few short addresses, and soon the crowd was keyed up to the highest pitch of excitement. They demanded the death of the assassins, as the law had failed to give them justice. The leader of the mob was W. S. Parkson, a prominent lawyer, and president of the Southern Athletic Club. He is an exceedingly popular figure in local circles and is at the head of the city reform movement. Lawyer Wickliffe also made an impassioned appeal for vengeance, and the surging crowd then made a straight rush for the prison, most of the responsible and respectable citizens having in the meantime been supplied with double barrelled shot guns, Winchester rifles and pistols.

The marching of the avenging and infuriated crowds had an electric effect on the city, and the sympathies of the citizens were entirely on their side. Sheriff Villere, who was in command of the prison, armed his deputies and then went out with the Italian consul in a fruitless search for the mayor. The State Governor had no time to act, and the posse of police on guard was ridiculously small to resist the angry mob. All resistance was swept away by the infuriated citizens, and promptly the principal entrance was forced open with axes and battering rams. The prisoners meantime became terror-stricken and officials as a last desperate ruse transferred the 19 Italian suspects into the women's quarters. Then the reign of blood commenced.

Rushing into the first cell they saw a prisoner whom some one mistook for the man Scoffedo, and he was instantly shot. It was afterwards found the man was innocent. In a moment the keys were wrested from the guards, and some one shouted, "To the women's quarters." There ten of the miscreants were found in a crouching position and were deliberately riddled with bullets, though two of the dastards were first dragged out and hanged on the gate in face of the crowd. Six of the suspects were got away in safety by the officials. Just as the work of blood was finished Parkerson was marched in triumph through the streets and the crowd dispersed.

Great crowds have since visited the scene of the awful occurrence, but the greatest order prevails. A strong armed guard has been placed around the prison. Detective O Malley who is accused with tampering with the jury would have been shot dead if he had been caught by the mob. He has fled from the city. The foreman of the Mafia jury has been arrested as he was attempting to leave the city.

The Italian consul having instantly demanded satisfaction for the outrage, Secretary Blaine sent a prompt note to the Governor of Louisiana in which he said "The President deeply regrets that the citizens of New Orleans should have so disparaged the purity and adequacy of their own judicial tribunals as to transfer to the passionate judgment of a mob a question that should have been adjudged dispassionately and by settled rules of law. The Government of the United States must give to the subjects of friendly powers that security which it demands for our own citizens when temporarily under a foreign jurisdiction. It is the hope of the President that you will co-operate with him in maintaining the obligations of the United States towards Italian subjects who may be within the perils of the present excitement, that further bloodshed and violence may be prevented, and that all offenders against the law may be promptly brought to justice."

The Italians throughout the United States have risen to demand prompt punishment for the offenders.

VANATTER.

Mrs. W. H. Hunter, and daughter, Lily have been staying at the Queen's in Orangeville for the past two weeks.

Mr. Dean is boarding at Mr. Hoar's.

Mr. S Pattullo had a bee last week drawing lumber for the erection of a new bank barn.

A very enjoyable party of friends were entertained by Mr and Mrs. John Hoar at their residence on Wednesday of last week.

Mr. Isaac Reid will have a sale of his farm stock, implements, etc., on Friday. Mr. Reid has, we understand, rented his farm.

Mr. John Glover, our obliging blacksmith, has closed his shop and has gone to the Northwest. It is his intention to permanently locate at Moose Jaw.

Messrs. Will Reid, James Walker, Henry and John Ferguson left on Tuesday to try their fortunes in the Northwest. We wish them success.

Miss Crotwaith, the missionary from China, lectured in the Methodist church on Tuesday evening of last week. The audience was small and proceeds hardly paid expenses.

THE THREE EVENTS OF LIFE.—There were registered at the town clerk's office during the month of February three births, one marriage and five deaths.

LAST OF THE SEASON.—St. Mark's Temperance Society held the last concert for this season on Monday evening. The attendance was large and an excellent programme was rendered.

SECOND PLACE.—Next to the Orillia Hustler comes Jim Kelly. Any person wanting to buy the Singer Sewing machine should call on Jim Kelly, the farmers' friend. They will find him at his place in the Singer office, opposite Prince of Wales road, Orangeville.

OUR NEW STORY.—In the next issue of THE SUN we will commence the publication of a new story entitled "Olive Varcoe; or True to the Last." Now is the time to subscribe. Send us $1 and your address and we will mail you the spicicst paper in Dufferin.

RACES AT THE RINK.—Two interesting skating races took place at the Balmoral rink on Monday evening. Willie Irvine and Joe Foster participated in a two-mile dash for a purse of $10, the latter winning by a short distance; "Coone" Shields captured the prize in the open race.

H. S. L. S. ENTERTAINMENT.—A large crowd attended the annual entertainment of the High School Literary Society, which took place in the town hall on Thursday evening last. The programme consisted of recitals by Miss Jessie Alexander, of Toronto. The receipts were large.

REMOVING TO MANITOBA.—Mr. W. J. Price, the well known boot and shoe dealer, will remove to Manitoba next week. Mr. Price has carried on a large and successful business here for a number of years and he will undoubtedly do similarily in the far West. THE SUN wishes him a safe journey.

CENSUS ENUMERATORS.—The census enumerators appointed for the surrounding districts are: Centre Wellington, Thos. Hamilton, Hereward; North Wellington, W. B Jelly, Bowling Green; South Wellington, J. A. McLean, Guelph; Cardwell J. Wallace, Castlederg; Peel, H. Miller, Streetsville.

MRS. DANIELS' BENEFIT.—The firemen have arranged to hold a concert in the town hall next (Good) Friday evening in aid of the family of the late James Daniels, a report of whose tragic death appeared in last week's SUN. The best local talent has been secured for the occasion. A full house should respond to this worthy call.

THE GORDON'S NEW PROPRIETORS.—Messrs. D Livingston and K. Rasland of Orillia have purchased Messrs. Crockett & Spiers' interest in the Gordon house. The new proprietors took possession on Monday. They are both obliging gentlemen and will, no doubt, do a rushing business at the Gordon. We wish the new proprietors every success.

ENOCH'S LIBEL SUIT.—The action for libel brought by the Credit Foncier Franco-Canadian Loan Co., against Mr. Enoch Price of Marsville will come up at the York county assizes on Tuesday. It was expected the case would be tried on Monday last and the proprietors of THE SUN and Post were summoned as witnesses. Enoch is confident of winning the case.

NOTE PITCHFORKS.—Last Thursday evening (Shrove) a farmer from Mono and a local tough indulged in a fistic battle in one of the hotel sheds and the tough has cause to lament the occurrence. The farmer used a loaded whip on the Orangeville man's head. They were summoned to the police court and quietly settled the affair by each paying $5 and costs. Out of respect for their relatives we have suppressed their names but if either of the contestants repeat the disgraceful performance THE SUN will publish their names in extra black-faced type. Rowdyism must be put down in Orangeville.

DEATH OF MRS. WALLACE.—We are called upon this week to chronicle the death of an old resident of Amaranth in the person of Ann Wallace, relict of the late Wm. Wallace, which sad event occurred at the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. R. Hepton, lot 5, 5th line, Amaranth on Sunday evening last. Deceased had been a resident of Amaranth for the past fifty years, and was well known throughout the country. She was born in the county Monaghan, Ireland, in 1806 and emigrated to the United States in 1837, where she lived for four years, after which she came to Amaranth and has resided there ever since. Deceased leaves a family of three sons and three daughters—Samuel of Orangeville and William and Albert of Amaranth, Mrs. R. Hewitt, Amaranth, Mrs. Joseph Carson, Stratford, and Mrs. Wm. Duncan, Buffalo, N. Y. The remains were interred in the Orangeville cemetery on Tuesday, being followed to the grave by a large concourse of sorrowing friends and neighbors. The bereaved ones have our heartfelt sympathy.

HEREWARD.

Diphtheria is prevalent around here. We are pleased to notice that Mr. Thos. Hamilton, reeve of Garafraxa, has been appointed census officer for Centre Wellington. We congratulate Mr. Hamilton on his appointment.

A sad bereavement has befallen Mrs. Atchesson by the death of two of her children by that dread disease, diphtheria. On Friday, the 6th instant, a bright little girl aged 8 years joined the choirs song of the angles in the land of the leal and on Thursday last a promising boy aged 15 years was called away. Mrs. Atchesson has the sympathy of the community. The remains were interred side by side in Price's Corners cemetery.

CONNOR.

The ranks of the old settlers of Adjala are getting thinner and thinner as time flies by, and the latest to disappear from our midst is Mr. Joseph Mercer, a well-known and highly-respected resident of this township, who died on Saturday last, the 14th inst. Mr. Mercer, who was 59 years old, came to Adjala about forty years ago and has resided here ever since. About three years ago he was stricken down by a paralytic stroke, from the effects of which he did not fully recover. On Thursday and Friday he experienced two more paralytic strokes and on Saturday died. The deceased gentleman was a strict adherent to the Presbyterian church, but was held in high esteem by all classes and creeds. In politics he was a loyal supporter of the Conservative cause and at the last elections, although very sick, he hobbled on going to the polls and exercising his vote for R. S. White. A wife and three grown up children, one son and two daughters, survive him and they have the sympathy of the entire community. The funeral took place to St. John's cemetery, 7th line, Mono, on Monday and was very largely attended. Rev. Mr. Orr, pastor of the Presbyterian church, officiated at the grave. Deceased was a brother of Mr. T. L. Mercer, of Mercer & Cobean, harnessmakers, Orangeville.

falling directly into the hat of Assistant Postmaster John F. Bradley. Mr. B. has been connected with the postoffice for several years and understands the business pretty well.

No doubt many will view the appointment unfavorably as they think several older residents of the town had better claims on the office.

We may have something more to say on the matter next week.

MORE LIGHT WANTED

THE CHAIRMAN OF THE S. L. COMMITTEE SAYS SO.

Gillespie's Fire Protection Report Passed—Board of Health Appointed —Issue Notes

THE SUN'S municipal representative found himself in the council chamber at 7.30 o'clock on Monday evening. Business had not commenced, however, owing to the insufficient number of "great heads" being present. In a few minutes several members called around and his worship ascended the throne. Besides the mayor, Reeve Lindsey, Deputy-reeve Eudacott, Ald. Green, Gillespie, Cobean, Young and Fiddle were present. The North ward was not represented, Ald. Youmans and Ketchum being absent.

ACCOUNTS

from C. R. Wheelock, $50; L. W. Waines, $24 50; were read and ordered paid.

GILLESPIE GOT THERE.

Ald. Gillespie requested the mayor to read the F. & W. report which was referred several weeks ago. This report recommends that $700 be expended in improving the fire department, thereby reducing the rate of insurance, and that the expense incurred be borne by special tax by those benefitted. Ald. Gillespie moved its adoption, seconded by Ald. Green. The reeve asked if the council had power to levy such a tax. No person around the "green table" could tell. About twenty minutes were consumed in debating on the matter. The chairman of the F. & W. and the reeve indulged in some sharp pointed remarks during the debate. Before any fire department improvement can be made a petition signed by three-quarters of the ratepayers interested will have to be submitted to the council. Ald. Gillespie moved the adoption of the report, the reeve moving in amendment that it be deferred. A vote was taken and motion declared carried.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

Two by laws were introduced for the appointment of a board of health, a medical health officer and a health inspector. It was decided to follow the [illegible] last year and appoint officers. When several names were mentioned it was laughable to hear the excuses advanced by aldermen why they should not serve. Finally Ald Young, Green and Ketchum were chosen, with Dr. [illegible] as medical health officer and [illegible] as inspector. The last two positions are worth $20 per annum!

THE LADIES WOULDN'T LIKE IT.

Ald. Gillespie introduced a by-law to prevent [illegible] along the streets. A clause of the by-law provided that any person pushing a barrow along the streets of the town would be committing a breach of the by-law. Adamson inquired if it was the intention to prohibit ladies push sleighs along the streets. Of course it was not, and Harry asked to have the law remain over until the next meeting. The ladies will understand that it was an unfortunate error, and that he had no intention of keeping them and the babies at home.

A CALL FOR LIGHT.

Ald. Fiddis, of the Noble South, asked that the S. L. committee be empowered to secure three more arc lamps, one to be placed on John street, another at the grist mill on Mill street and another opposite Sheriff Bowles' residence on west Broadway. Deputy-reeve Eudacott said the present contract would soon expire and he thought it best not to arrange for any more lamps until a new contract was made. Ald. Adamson said the people might think he was in favor of the C. P. R., but he was not. He thought a lamp should be placed at the end of the platform at the station for the convenience of the travelling public —or the C. P. R. An amendment was moved, but Reeve Lindsey said a resolution was on the books that no more lights should be contracted for. And here the matter rests.

THE THREE EVENTS OF LIFE.—There were registered at the town clerk's office during the month of February three births, one marriage and five deaths.

LAST OF THE SEASON.—St. Mark's Temperance Society held the last concert for this season on Monday evening. The attendance was large and an excellent programme was rendered.

SECOND PLACE.—Next to the Orillia Hustler comes Jim Kelly. Any person wanting to buy the Singer Sewing machine should call on Jim Kelly, the farmers' friend. They will find him at his place in the Singer office, opposite Prince of Wales road, Orangeville.

OUR NEW STORY.—In the next issue of THE SUN we will commence the publication of a new story entitled "Olive Varcoe; or True to the Last." Now is the time to subscribe. Send us $1 and your address and we will mail you the spiciest paper in Dufferin.

RACES AT THE RINK.—Two interesting skating races took place at the Balmoral rink on Monday evening. Willie Irvine and Joe Foster participated in a two-mile dash for a purse of $10, the latter winning by a short distance. "Coons" Shields captured the prize in the open race.

H. S. L. S. ENTERTAINMENT.—A large crowd attended the annual entertainment of the High School Literary Society, which took place in the town hall on Thursday evening last. The programme consisted of recitals by Miss Jessie Alexander, of Toronto. The receipts were large.

REMOVING TO MANITOBA.—Mr. W. J. Price, the well known boot and shoe dealer, will remove to Manitoba next week. Mr. Price has carried on a large and successful business here for a number of years and he will undoubtedly do similarly in the far West. THE SUN wishes him a safe journey.

CENSUS ENUMERATORS.—The census enumerators appointed for the surrounding districts are: Centre Wellington, Thos. Hamilton, Hereward; North Wellington, W. B Jelly, Bowling Green; South Wellington, J. A. McLean, Guelph; Cardwell J. Wallace, Castlederg; Peel, H. Miller, Streetsville.

MRS. DANIELS' BENEFIT.—The firemen have arranged to hold a concert in the town hall next (Good) Friday evening in aid of the family of the late James Daniels, a report of whose tragic death appeared in last week's SUN. The best local talent has been secured for the occasion. A full house should respond to this worthy call.

THE GORDON'S NEW PROPRIETORS.—Messrs. D Livingston and K. Rasland of Orillia have purchased Messrs. Crockett & Spiers' interest in the Gordon house. The new proprietors took possession on Monday. They are both obliging gentlemen and will, no doubt, do a rushing business at the Gordon. We wish the new proprietors every success.

ENOCH'S LIBEL SUIT.—The action for libel brought by the Credit Foncier Franco-Canadian Loan Co., against Mr. Enoch Price of Marsville will come up at the York county assizes on Tuesday. It was expected the case would be tried on Monday last and the proprietors of THE SUN and Post were summoned as witnesses. Enoch is confident of winning the case.

VANATTER.

Mrs. W. H. Hunter, and daughter, Lily have been staying at the Queen's in Orangeville for the past two weeks.

Mr. Dean is boarding at Mr. Hoar's.

Mr. S Pattullo had a bee last week drawing lumber for the erection of a new bank barn.

A very enjoyable party of friends were entertained by Mr and Mrs. John Hoar at their residence on Wednesday of last week.

Mr. Isaac Reid will have a sale of his farm stock, implements, etc., on Friday. Mr. Reid has, we understand, rented his farm.

Mr. John Glover, our obliging blacksmith, has closed his shop and has gone to the Northwest. It is his intention to permanently locate at Moose Jaw.

Messrs. Will Reid, James Walker, Henry and John Ferguson left on Tuesday to try their fortunes in the Northwest. We wish them success.

Miss Crotwaith, the missionary from China, lectured in the Methodist church on Tuesday evening of last week. The audience was small and proceeds hardly paid expenses.

$100,000.00 of private money to loan on Real Estate, at 6 per cent. interest yearly—good terms—by R. E. Hamilton, Grand Valley.

HEREWARD.

Diphtheria is prevalent around here.

We are pleased to notice that Mr. Thos. Hamilton, reeve of Garafraxa, has been appointed commissioner for Centre Wellington. We congratulate Mr. Hamilton on his appointment.

A sad bereavement has befallen Mrs. Atcheson by the death of two of her children by that dread disease, diphtheria. On Friday, the 6th instant, a bright little girl aged 8 years joined the choirs song of the angles in the land o' the leal and on Thursday last a promising boy aged 15 years was called away. Mrs. Atcheson has the sympathy of the community. The remains were interred side by side in Price's Corners cemetery.

CONNOR.

The ranks of the old settlers of Adjala are getting thinner and thinner as time flies by, and the latest to disappear from our midst is Mr. Joseph Mercer, a well-known and highly-respected resident of this township, who died on Saturday last, the 14th inst. Mr. Mercer, who was 59 years old, came to Adjala about forty years ago and has resided here ever since. About three years ago he was stricken down by a paralytic stroke, from the effects of which he did not fully recover. On Thursday and Friday he experienced two more paralytic strokes and on Saturday died. The deceased gentleman was a strict adherent to the Presbyterian church, but was held in high esteem by all classes and creeds. In politics he was a loyal supporter of the Conservative cause and at the last elections, although very sick, he hobbled on going to the polls and casting his vote for R. S. White. A wife and three grown up children, one son and two daughters, survive him and they have the sympathy of the entire community. The funeral took place to St. John's cemetery, 7th line, Mono, on Monday and was very largely attended. Rev. Mr. Orr, pastor of the Presbyterian church, officiated at the grave. Deceased was a brother of Mr. T. L. Mercer, of Mercer & Cobean, harnessmakers, Orangeville.

PERSONAL.

Miss Emma Hand, of Stanton, is visiting friends in town.

Miss Violet McMorris, of Erin, is the guest of Orangeville friends.

Miss Jade Caldwell is visiting friends at Toronto, Durham and other places.

Mr. J. J. Hannahson, of Wycliffe college, Toronto, was in town last week.

Mrs. T. Wilkins, of Stratford, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Wallace.

Mr. W. T. Pearson, son of Rev. E. L. Pearson, has secured a situation with his uncle in New York, and left for there Tuesday.

Mr. Joseph A. Leighton, of Trinity college, Toronto, is spending his Easter vacation in town.

Mr. Thos. Wallace, of Jamestown, N. Y., is spending a few days with his parents on Broadway.

County Attorney Myers was called to Welland on Monday to attend the funeral of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Cowper.

ALTON.

Measles are prevalent around here.

Mr. Ward is getting everything in readiness to reopen his woolen mill.

Mr. B. Ward and daughter, Miss E. Ward, have returned from their trip to England.

About half past one o'clock on Tuesday morning fears were seen issuing from the Methodist church, but the fire had gained such headway that it was impossible to save anything. The building together with the library, organ and furniture was consumed. It is supposed the fire originated in the vicinity of the furnace.

We can say that Alton has the best hotel between Orangeville and Toronto. The Dixie house, since the new proprietors have taken possession, has been thoroughly renovated and the rooms have been tastefully painted and papered by Mr. Robt. Irvine, the well-known painter of Orangeville. Mrs. Duffy has had long experience in the business and knows just what the travelling public want. We welcome Mrs. Duffy to our

By-Law No. 238.

A BY-LAW to provide for Draining Certain Parts of the Township of Amaranth, by the Construction of Five Drains and for borrowing on the credit of the Municipality the sum of $2,061.04 for completing the same.

Provisionally adopted, 9th day of February, A.D. 1891.

Whereas a majority in number of the owners mentioned by the last revised Assessment Roll, of the property hereinafter set forth, to be benefited by the drainage thereof have petitioned the Council of the said Township of Amaranth, praying that the Council will take the necessary steps to have certain portions of the Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Ninth and Tenth Concessions, lying north of Two Bids line, in the Township of Amaranth, drained in accordance with the provisions of Chapter 184, R. S. O. 1887.

And Whereas thereupon the said Council procured an examination to be made by Charles R. Wheelock, being a person competent for such purpose, of the said locality proposed to be Drained, and has also procured plans and estimates of the work to be made by the said Charles R. Wheelock, and an assessment to be made by him of the real property to be benefited by such Drainage, stating, as nearly as he can, the proportion of benefit, which in his opinion will be derived in consequence of such Drainage by every Road or Lot, or portion of Lot; the

To the Honorable Council for the Municipality of Amaranth in Council Assembled:

GENTLEMEN.—Agreeably to instructions from your honorable Reeve, we have carefully examined the books and vouchers connected with the foregoing Accounts and found them all correct; also the Collectors' Rolls, together with the Defaulters' Lists. The time, however, was not sufficient to inspect the Assessment Roll. We find the balance in Treasurer's hands on the 21st December, 1890, to be $1,168 45; also the Assets for 1891, $5,866 49 and Liabilities of $4,726.06, thereby leaving a balance of Assets over Liabilities of $1,140 43, and beg to congratulate you on the satisfactory state of your finances. The Treasurer's office was in its usually satisfactory state, and himself in his customary obliging manner, and we would cheerfully recommend his reappointment.

We are, Gentlemen, respectfully yours,

JONATHAN VARCOE, JOHN JOHNSTON. } Township Auditors.

By-Law No. [illegible]

A BY-LAW to provide for Draining Certain Parts of the Township of Amaranth, by the Construction of Five Drains and for borrowing on the credit of the Municipality the sum of $2,061.04 for completing the same.

Provisionally adopted, 28th day of February, A. D. 1891.

WHEREAS a majority in number of the owners (as shown by the last revised Assessment Roll) of the property hereinafter set forth, to be benefited by the drainage thereof have petitioned the Council of the said Township of Amaranth, praying that the Council will take the necessary steps to have certain portions of the Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Ninth and Tenth Concessions, lying north of Townline in the Township of Amaranth, drained in accordance with the provisions of Chapter 184, R. S. O. 1887.

AND WHEREAS thereupon the said Council procured an examination to be made by Charles E. Wheelock, being a person competent for such purpose, of the said locality proposed to be drained, and has also procured plans and estimates of the work to be made by the said Charles E. Wheelock, and an assessment to be made by him of the real property to be benefited by such Drainage, stating as nearly as he can, the proportion of benefit, which in his opinion will be derived in consequence of such Drainage by every Road or lot, or portion of lot; the said Assessment so made, being the assessment hereinafter by this By-Law enacted to be assessed and levied upon the lots and parts of lots hereinafter in that behalf especially set forth and described, and the report of the said Charles E. Wheelock in respect thereof, and of the said Drainage, being as follows:—

To the Reeve and Council of the Township of Amaranth:

GENTLEMEN.—I herewith submit the Plans, Profiles, Specifications and Estimates of five Drains laid out by me in the Township of Amaranth, which I consider beneficial to the Roads and Lands through which they pass.

I have the honor to be Gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,
CHARLES E. WHEELOCK,
Engineer in Charge.

Orangeville, February 26th, A. D. 1891.

AND WHEREAS the said Council are satisfied that the drainage of the locality described is desirable.

Be it therefore enacted by the said Municipal Council of the said Township of Amaranth pursuant to the provisions of the Municipal Act, R.S.O., chapter 184.

1st. That the said report, plans, and estimates be adopted, and the said Drain and the works connected therewith, be made and constructed in accordance therewith.

2nd. That the Reeve of the said Township may borrow on the credit of the Corporation of the said Township the of Amaranth the sum Two Thousand and Sixty one Dollars and Four cents, being the funds necessary for the work, and may issue Debentures of the Corporation to that amount, in sums of not less than One Hundred Dollars each, and payable within fifteen years from the date thereof, with interest at the rate of four per cent. per annum, that is to say in fifteen annual instalments each Debenture to be payable at the Bank of Toronto, in Toronto, and to have attached to them Coupons for the payment of interest.

3rd. That for the purpose of paying the sum of One Thousand Nine Hundred and Forty eight Dollars, being the amount charged against the said lands so to be benefited as aforesaid, other than roads belonging to the Municipality, and to cover interest thereon for fifteen years at the rate of four per cent. per annum, the following special rates, over and above all other rates, shall be assessed and levied (in the same manner and at the same time as taxes are levied) upon the undermentioned Lots and part of Lots, that the amount of the said special rates and interest assessed as aforesaid against each Lot or part of Lot respectively shall be divided into fifteen equal parts, and one such part shall be assessed and levied as aforesaid, in each year, for fifteen years after the final passing of this By Law, during which the said Debentures have to run.

4th. For the purpose of paying the sum of One Hundred and Thirteen Dollars, and Four cents, being the total amount assessed against the said Roads of said Municipality, and to cover interest thereon for fifteen years at the rate of four per cent. per annum a sufficient special rate of One hundredth of one mill in the dollar shall, over and above all other rates, be levied (in the same rate and manner and at the same time as taxes are levied) upon the whole ratable property in the said Township of Amaranth in each year for the period of fifteen years after the date of the final passing of the By-Law, during which the said Debentures have to run.

5th. That the Council are hereby appointed Commissioners to let the contract for completing the said Drains and works connected therewith, by public sale to the lowest bidder (not exceeding the estimate); but every such contractor, with one good and satisfactory surety shall be required forthwith to enter into bonds, for the due performance and completion of contract according to said plans and specifications, and within the time mentioned in such bond, unless otherwise ordered by the Council; and it shall be the duty of the said Commissioners to cause said Drain and works connected therewith, to be made and constructed in accordance with such plans and specifications, not later than the First day of October, A. D. 1891, (unless otherwise ordered by the Council); and to grant orders on the Treasurer to each Contractor, for 75 per cent of the amount due until the contract is fully completed and duly accepted; and for the due performance of those and all other duties of Commissioners the said Commissioners shall be entitled to receive a salary of two dollars per day.

.....Reeve.

COPY OF A CURIOUS LOVE LETTER.

MADAM,—

The great love tenderness I have hitherto expressed for you is false, and I now feel that my indifference towards you increases proportionably every day, and the more I see you the more you appear ridiculous and an object of contempt and the more I feel disposed, inclined and finally determined, to hate you. Believe me, I never had the slightest inclination to offer you my hand and heart. Our last conversation has, I assure you, left a wretched insipidity, which has by no means possessed me with the most exalted opinion of your character. Yes, Madam, and you will much oblige me by avoiding me, and if ever we are united, I shall experience nothing but the fearful hatred of my parents added to an everlasting displeasure of living with you. Yes, Madam, I think sincerely—You need not put yourself to the smallest trouble or send or write me an answer. Adieu. And believe me that I am so averse to you, that it is really impossible that I should ever be.

Madam,
Your affectionate love till death,

To Miss M——— W. G.

There are two ways of reading this letter. Her father compelled his daughter to show him all letters sent to her. The unsuspecting father read it straightforward, but the daughter (having the clue) read it otherwise. Find the contrast or go to MACADAM'S for it.

Conversation after Marriage.

We had better decide now on the best place to do our trading. MACADAM'S, of course, for Tea, Sugar and Groceries, and I heard some people talking on the street say he had the largest, the best assorted and best value in Ladies' and Childrens' Boots and Shoes of any one in Town. We will put him down for our Boots and Shoes. Now, for Crockery. Well, we don't need to discuss that matter long. Why? Do you think MACADAM'S the best? Certainly I do; he is the only one who keeps an assortment worth looking at.

T. T. King,

UNDERTAKER,

Has the Best Hearse and the Largest Stock in the County, and everything usually kept in a first-class Undertaking Establishment. Your Patronage in connection with Show Room, where all orders will receive prompt attention at any hour. Next door to the post office. (6 13)

Poetry.

DUTY.

Straight and firm mark out the furrow,
Drop therein the golden grain;
Do thy task, and pine to morrow
Ready to begin again.
One day like another passing,
Acts and deeds of little show,
Unnoted seeds may be amassing,
Whence the harvest fields shall glow.

Bravely, then, the ploughshare driving,
Faint not, nor withdraw thy hand;
Toilers done by earnest striving
Leave their traces o'er the land.
Hard the labour, few the pleasures,
Dull the task no others share;
Yet each step that duty measures
Leadeth up a golden stair.

Sing, then, in the early morning,
Going forth to work alone;
Sing at evening, home returning,
Counting up the days work done.
Light the footsteps ever wending
Duty's worn and dusty ways;
Light the heart itself expending,
Dead to thought of human praise.

Dead to self, intensely loving,
In the noble throbs that move
Hearts which weary not in giving
Life for life, and love for love.
Love of souls and love of duty,
Fear of falsehood, hate of wrong—
These shall clothe thy life with beauty
Worthy of the poet's song.

LITTLE LORD FAUNTLEROY.

A laddie small, with big, bright eyes,
A mop of curly tresses
A wee, sweet face, a bonnie boy,
For kisses and caresses.

With childish love for sports and fun,
Opinions fixed, emphatic,
An Earl's young heir, with wealth and name,
But strictly democratic.

A tender, little pitying heart,
A love of fast devotion,
A generous friendliness—a clinging trust,
Too [illegible] echoes o'er the ocean.

A noble child-nature, fresh, unspoiled,
For love and trust appealing.
An honest, grave philosopher,
Quaint views of life revealing.

A cheery, bright and happy lad,
An old man's pride and pleasure,
A person whom the warmest love
Is lavished without measure.

This is our young Lord Fauntleroy,
Round whom such fortunes hover,
And yet whose sweetest, truest name,
Is "Dearest's" little lover.

Pressed for time—mummies.

A matter of course—table d'hote bill of fare.

The road to eternity issues no return tickets.

How to become four handed—evolute back to the monkey.

Muddy Water, a Seminole, living in the Indian Territory, is said to be the oldest living Indian in the United States—109 years old. Muddy Water has probably never made the acquaintance of Fire Water.

GIVE BOYS AND GIRLS NEWSPAPERS.—An experienced school teacher is quoted by a contemporary to the effect that pupils who have access to newspapers at home, when compared with those who have not, are grammarians better punctuators, read more understandingly, and obtain a practical knowledge of geography in almost half the time it requires otherwise. This is true not only of school pupils, but of grown up people. As an educator the newspaper is invaluable. [illegible] most nothing.

One Distinct Point.

One distinct point about Hagyard's Yellow Oil is, that it is just as good for external use. It is a cleanly, prompt and pleasant cure for rheumatism, colds, croup, sore throat, wounds, bruises, sprains, chapped hands, etc. No household should be without it.

A large stock of Ready-made Clothing now for sale, cheap, at Leighton's Cash Grocery, Boot and Shoe Store, Orangeville.

Mr. James Currel editor and proprietor of the Daily Telegraph, Quebec, died suddenly on Monday night. The deceased was well and widely known as a newspaper man and had been president of both the press gallery of the Legislature and the Associated Press of the province.

Willie—"Well, I've seen all I want to of this Dalsarte business." Johnny—"What is the Dalsarte business?" "I don't know, but there is a lady in there calling on mamma who says she teaches." "It takes her five minutes to sit down."

SUNBEAMS.

Don't grumble because the cold weather is making the coal circle in the bin. Think how the flies bothered you last summer.

The Czar (unthankful)—You may order me a new suit. Ironfounder—Will your majesty have it forged out west or cast?

Visitor—That's a handsome man and how devilish he looks. Warden of Prison—Yes, sir; he's one of the finest murders we have.

Mr. Pigg—I don't know why, but it has seemed like Sunday to me all day. Tommy—It has to me, paw. Ma made me wash my neck this morning.

When a man gets old enough to know himself thoroughly he begins to entertain cynical opinions of the whole human race.

Mistress Digby.

DEAR SIRS—I was troubled by costiveness and sick headache, and in fact felt very miserable until I tried B.B.B. I used seven bottles with Burdock Pills also, and they made me as well as ever I was. This was about two years ago, and I still enjoy the best of health.

MRS. A. MCCULLOUGH,
Digby, N.S.

SHELBURNE.

(Free Press and Economist.)

Mr. Matthew Anderson, who met with a serious accident as recorded last week, is said to be doing well, and the prospects are favorable for his recovery.

At the election on Thursday last the vote in Shelburne stood as follows: South Ward—Dr. Sproule, 73, Mr. Clark, 43. Majority for Dr. Sproule, 41.

Dr. Barr, M.P.P. for Dufferin, left town on Tuesday morning for Toronto, to attend the sessions of the Ontario House. Mrs. Barr accompanied the Dr. on a visit to the city.

Mr. W. E. Cornell, of Shelburne, did some great work on election day, by way of voting and testing the strength of his ponies along the heavy roads from Orangeville. He voted in Centre and North Wellington and in East and North Grey. "Corney" is a hustler.

Since the Reliance Company, represented by Mr. Skinner, have talked of supplying us with electric light, the town has been visited by two other electric light men—a Mr. Cone, of Fergus, and a gentleman representing the Ball Company. Mr. Skinner having closed a number of contracts, he, no doubt, has the inside track.

We have heard some complaints recently that some of our town youngsters are pursuing the habit of ringing the bell and rapping at people's doors, and then running away, causing much annoyance on the call being answered to find nobody at the door. We hope this will serve as a warning, some of you will be caught one of these nights, when a right good application of toe and leather will justly be administered. There's no fun in it.

GRAND VALLEY.

(Star.)

A large number of people from all parts including Mr. J. C. Strachan, Mr. Beals, Mr. H. J. Speirs, Mr. W. Bailey came here to poll their votes on Thursday last.

Mr. Alex. Cotton and Mr. Ad. Taylor, of E. Garafraxa, shipped from this station a carload (18 head) of horses, fine animals, to the Northwest. Mr. W. Atchison also shipped two carload of stock.

Miss M. E. Wilmott of Waldemar had the misfortune to be thrown from a sleigh and had her nose broken. The others of the party were badly shaken up. Young men drive slow; horse racing is a bad practice on the ice.

On Tuesday last week Mr. John McPherson concession 12, East Garafraxa, had the misfortune to fall on the slippery ice on the Grand River hill, near his residence, and dislocate his shoulder. He was conveyed to his home by Mr. George Cuatters, of Tarbert, who happened to come along and found the aged gentleman on the hill. Medical aid was called, who with the assistance of four others the dislocated member was drawn in place. Mr McPherson is doing as well as can be expected, although the joint is somewhat painful.

All Men.

young, old, or middle aged, who find themselves nervous, weak and exhausted, who are broken down from excess or overwork, resulting in many of the following symptoms: Mental depression, premature old age, loss of vitality, loss of memory, bad dreams, dimness of sight, palpitation of the heart, emissions, lack of energy, pain in the kidneys, headache, pimples on the face of body, itching or peculiar sensation about the scrotum, wasting of the organs, dizziness, specks before the eyes, twitching of the muscles, eye lids and else where, bashfulness, sediments in the urine, loss of will power, tenderness of the scalp and spine, weak and flabby muscles, desire to sleep, failure to be rested by sleep, constipation, dullness of hearing, loss of voice, desire for solitude, excitability of temper, sunken eyes surrounded with LEADEN CIRCLES, oily looking skin, etc., are all symptoms of nervous debility that lead to insanity and death unless cured. The spring or vital force having lost its tension every function wanes in consequence. Those who, through abuse committed in ignorance may be permanently cured. Send your address for book on all diseases peculiar to man. Address M. V. LUBON, 50 Front St. E., Toronto, Ont. Books sent free sealed. Muddy Water, a Seminole, living in the Indian Territory, is said to be the oldest living Indian in the United States—109 years old. Muddy Water has probably never made the acquaintance of Fire Water.

GIVE BOYS AND GIRLS NEWSPAPERS.—An experienced school teacher is quoted by a contemporary to the effect that pupils who have access to newspapers at home, when compared with those who have not, are grammarians better punctuators, read more understandingly, and obtain a practical knowledge of geography in almost half the time it requires otherwise. This is true not only of school pupils, but of grown up people. As an educator the newspaper is invaluable. [illegible] most nothing.

Billy Bennett, who has served [illegible] sentence, went [illegible] last night and [illegible] he was a sound [illegible] that he was [illegible] by the sale [illegible] cure all the ills of the human race. Bennett was sent to the hospital, it being evident he was crazy.

One Distinct Point.

One distinct point about Hagyard's Yellow Oil is, that it is just as good for external use. It is a cleanly, prompt and pleasant cure for rheumatism, colds, croup, sore throat, wounds, bruises, sprains, chapped hands, etc. No household should be without it.

SHELBURNE.

(Free Press and Economist.)

Mr. Matthew Anderson, who met with a serious accident as recorded last week, is said to be doing well, and the prospects are favorable for his recovery.

At the election on Thursday last the vote in Shelburne stood as follows: South Ward—Dr. Sproule, 73, Mr. Clark, 42. Majority for Dr. Sproule, 31.

Dr. Barr, M. P. P. for DuFferin, left town on Tuesday morning for Toronto, to attend the sessions of the Ontario House. Mrs. Barr accompanied the Dr. on a visit to the city.

Mr. W. E. Cornell, of Shelburne, did some great work on election day, by way of voting and testing the strength of his ponies along the heavy roads from Orangeville. He voted in Centre and North Wellington and in East and North Grey. "Corney" is a hustler.

Since the Reliance Company, represented by Mr. Skinner, have talked of supplying us with electric light, the town has been visited by two other electric light men—a Mr. Cone, of Fergus, and a gentleman representing the Ball Company. Mr. Skinner having closed a number of contracts, he, no doubt, has the inside track.

We have heard some complaints recently that some of our town youngsters are pursuing the habit of ringing the bell and rapping at people's doors, and then running away, causing much annoyance on the call being answered to find nobody at the door. We hope this will serve as a warning, some of you will be caught one of these nights, when a right good application of toe and leather will justly be administered. There's no fun in it.

GRAND VALLEY.

(Star.)

A large number of people from all parts including Mr. J. C. Strachan, Mr. Beals, Mr. H. J. Speirs, Mr. W. Bailey came here to poll their votes on Thursday last.

Mr. Alex. Cotton and Mr. Ad. Taylor, of E. Garafraxa, shipped from this station a carload (18 head) of horses, fine animals, to the Northwest. Mr. W. Atchison also shipped two carload of stock.

Miss M. E. Wilmott of Waldemar had the misfortune to be thrown from a sleigh and had her nose broken. The others of the party were badly shaken up. Young men drive slow; horse racing is a bad practice on the ice.

On Tuesday last week Mr. John McPherson concession 12, East Garafraxa, had the misfortune to fall on the slippery ice on the Grand River hill, near his residence, and dislocate his shoulder. He was conveyed to his home by Mr. George Cuatters, of Tarbert, who happened to come along and found the aged gentleman on the hill. Medical aid was called, who with the assistance of four others the disjointed member was drawn in place. Mr McPherson is doing as well as can be expected, although the joint is somewhat painful.

All Men.

young, old, or middle aged, who find themselves nervous, weak and exhausted, who are broken down from excess or overwork, resulting in many of the following symptoms: Mental depression, premature old age, loss of vitality, loss of memory, bad dreams, dimness of sight, palpitation of the heart, emissions, lack of energy, pain in the kidneys, headache, pimples on the face or body, itching or peculiar sensation about the scrotum, wasting of the organs, dizziness, spots before the eyes, twitching of the muscles, eye lids and elsewhere, bashfulness, cobweb in the urine, loss of will power, tenderness of the scalp and spine, weak and flabby muscles, desire to sleep, failure to be rested by sleep, constipation, dullness of hearing, loss of voice, desire for solitude, irritability of temper, sunken eyes surrounded with LARGE CIRCLES, oily looking skin, etc., are all symptoms of nervous debility that lead to insanity and death unless cured. The spring or vital force having lost its tension every function wanes in consequence. Those who through abuse committed in ignorance may be permanently cured. The Sun,
IT SHINES FOR ALL!
VOLUME 31. ORANGEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, MARCH 26, 1891. NUMBER 13.

A love of fast devotion,
Its early friends—a clinging trust,
That reaches o'er the ocean.
A sweet child-nature, frank, unspoiled,
For love and trust appealing.
An earnest, grave philosopher,
Quaint views of life revealing.

A sunny, bright and happy lad,
An old man's pride and pleasure,
A pet on whom the warmest love
Is lavished without measure.

This is our young Lord Fauntleroy,
Round whom such fortunes hover,
And yet whose sweetest, truest name,
Is "Dearest's" little lover.

Poetry.

I OFTEN WONDER WHY 'TIS SO

Going 'mid work where none but men,
And in the noisy world gain one,
I sometimes wonder which is better
The answer comes when life is gone.

Some eyes grow when none eyes wake,
And in the dreary night hours go;
Some hearts just where none hearts break;
I often wonder why 'tis so.

Some with faint where none with fainting,
Some have the true and none the false;
I often wonder which are right—
The ones who strive or those who rest.

Some hands fold where none hands
Are lifted heavily in the strife;
And to through ages and through lands
More on the two [illegible]

"Olive Varcoe!" exclaimed Sir Hilton impatiently. "Am I to have that girl always thrust into my face? Do you think me a fool, John, that I should marry a little Sitting which She Olive Varcoe?—a cousin, too!"

"So you are one is a witch," said John. "And you know she is a fool. Bad signs, Hilton very."

"Out in short, John, unless you want me to get savage!" exclaimed Sir Hilton. "I am going to marry Eleanor Harlowe."

The blood flew to the face of John, leaving it quite pale as it rushed back to his heart.

"That you are going to marry a good girl, Hilton," he answered; "and may Good bless you and her! Hallo!

and on his breast, they could not reach his shoulder. He found Eleanor Harlowe, and the dance grew faster and faster, as she sang in a low voice a wild Russian melody to measure time.

"There!" she cried at last, triumphantly. "I have you would leave it in a minute or two. You are so quick at anything. By the by, have you not found it slow here without me? I have been away a whole month, you know."

"Is it really so long?" said Sir Hilton, graving a little from the exertion in the dance.

"Time the time has not seemed so long to you!" exclaimed Olive. "Out of sight, out of mind!" as the old proverb says. But what have you been doing with yourself all this while, pr

Lady Trevanion. The letter was from her nephew, Mr. Varcoe, who, on the point of death, implored his aunt to take pity on his little child.

Lady Trevanion might have hesitated, but the letter and the child reached her together; and the fairy face and beautiful little creature, who with folded arms and flashing eyes stood defiantly before her, seemed to have no relative on earth but herself. Her father's letter made no mention of her mother; but it was easy to see, by Olive's blue-black hair and dark skin, that she must have been of Eastern blood; and, though she might have been a wife, it was more probable that she was a slave.

Mr. Varcoe, all his life long, had been a strange, eccentric man. Young

CAUTION.

Holloway's Pills & Ointment

WHEREAS I AM INFORMED THAT one Joseph Hayduck, of New York, is making and selling Pills and Ointment under the name of HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT, and that the same are being sold by certain persons in the British Provinces of America, to the detriment of the public, and also to my injury and loss.

Now, I declare the said Joseph Hayduck has no authority whatever from me to use my name in any way. He is not my agent. He holds no power of attorney of mine, nor have I any connection with him whatever.

Persons publishing the said counterfeit Medicines of Joseph Haydock, or keeping for sale, or selling the same in any part of the British American Provinces, will be prosecuted according to law.

I have no agent in the United States, nor are my medicines sold there.

Every Pot and Box of my Genuine Medicine bears on the label the address 533 Oxford Street, London, and has affixed to each the British Government Stamp, with the words Holloway's Pills and Ointment engraved thereon.

The trade mark of my said Medicines are registered in Ottawa and also at Washington.

NASAL BALM

This a certain and speedy cure for Cold in the Head and Catarrh in all its stages.

SOOTHING, CLEANSING, HEALING.

Instant Relief, Permanent Cure, Failure Impossible.

Many so-called diseases are simply symptoms of Catarrh, such as headache, pain about the eyes, losing sense of smell, foul breath, hawking and spitting, nasal discharges, loss of taste, dullness, a general feeling of depression. If you are troubled with any of these or kindred symptoms, your best course is to procure a bottle of Nasal Balm. Be warned in time, neglected cold in head results in Catarrh, followed by consumption and death. Nasal Balm is sold by all druggists, or will be sent, post paid, on receipt of price (50 cents and $1.00) by addressing

Poetry.

I OFTEN WONDER WHY 'TIS SO

Some find work where none find rest,
And on the dreary world pass by;
I sometimes wonder which is best—
The never comes when life is gone.

Some eyes sleep when some eyes wake,
And on the dreary night hours go;
Some hearts lead where some hearts break;
I often wonder why 'tis so.

Some while faint where some will fight,
Some love the true and shun the false;
I often wonder which are right—
The ones who strive or those who yield.

Some hands fold where some hands
Are lifted bravely in the strife;
And so through ages and through lands
Move on the two extremes of life.

Some feet halt where some feet trod,
In broken march, in thorny way;
Some struggle on where hope have fled,
Some seek when others shun the fray.

Some swords rust where others clash,
Some fall back where some move on,
Some flags furl where others flash
Until the battle has been won.

Some sleep on while others keep
The vigils of the true and brave;
They will not rest till roses creep
Around their name above the grave.

TRUE TO THE LAST.

CHAPTER I.

A FLIRTING WITCH.

"To me, Sir Hilton!—and you say this to me!"

"To you, Eleanor Maristowe, and to none other in the world. Why are you astonished? Have you not seen this long while that I love you?"

"No," said Eleanor, "I never dreamed of it. I thought that you loved another."

"Then Eleanor, on my life you have wronged me!" he cried. "Whom did you suppose I loved? I have never seen any woman but you whom I could wish to make my wife."

The young girl to whom Sir Hilton Trewavas spoke thus earnestly was silent but her fair face was covered with blushes and the little hand resting in his trembled visibly.

"If could only believe you," she said at last, in a low voice; "if I could only think it was true."

"Tell me why you doubt me, Eleanor?" cried her lover, eagerly. "Let me defend myself. Of what do you accuse me?"

"I thought your cousin, Olive——"

"My cousin Olive!" he interrupted, seriously. "What of her?"

The girl drew her hand from his, and turned away her face proudly.

"I see," she said, "you grow angry the moment I mention her name. Go back to your cousin Olive. I will never take another girl's lover from her."

"This is nonsense, Eleanor! I am not her lover. Has she dared to say so?"

"She has not quite said so," was the reply; "but her manner, and your manner——"

"My manner was that of a cousin," said he, "nothing more. Eleanor—dear Eleanor, hear me! Don't leave me; don't wreck my happiness for such a folly as this."

Eleanor Maristowe was stealing away from his side among the trees, but she came back at this appeal, and he seized her hand again.

"Eleanor," he exclaimed, "what can I say—what can I do to convince you of my truth?"

"And have you never loved Olive Varcoe?"

"No never," he replied. "Eleanor, do not make me hate the poor girl. Remember she is dependent on my bounty."

"I am sorry," said Eleanor, softly; "I would not say a word to injure her; but I assure you she has always implied to me that you loved her; therefore I have avoided you as much as I possibly could."

"And for this you have treated me so coldly, so cruelly! Eleanor, you owe me some amends. Say frankly now that you love me, and will be my wife."

"If Olive——"

"Fling Olive to the winds!" he interrupted. "Say 'Yes,' Eleanor. I want that one word—'Yes.'"

"If you really love me, I say it—Yes. But if Olive has any place in your heart——"

"If?" said her lover. "I will have no 'ifs.' You are mine now."

He had her in his arms; and as his lips touched hers, Eleanor forgot her jealousy, and the vision of Olive Varcoe's bright flashing face faded away.

* * * * *

"John, I am going to be married," said Sir Hilton Trewavas to his brother. "My bachelor days are nearly over. Congratulate me."

"I'll wait till I know who the lady is," said John, a great, easy, good natured fellow, slightly given to superstition and a few other weaknesses.

"Well, guess then who it is," said his brother.

"Do I know her, Hilton?"

"Slightly, I think."

"My dear brother," said John, "I hope it is not Olive Varcoe!"

"Olive Varcoe!" exclaimed Sir Hilton impatiently. "Am I to have that girl always thrust into my face? Do you think me a fool, John, that I should marry a little flirting witch like Olive Varcoe!—a cousin, too!"

"So you care one iota about her," said John. "And you know she is a flirt. Bad cousin, Hilton very."

"Out it short, John, unless you want me to get savage!" exclaimed Sir Hilton. "I am going to marry Eleanor Maristowe."

The blood flew to the face of John, leaving it quite pale as it rushed back to his heart.

"Then you are going to marry a good girl, Hilton," he answered; "and may Good bless you and her! Hello! there's Vivian Bamevel; I must go and speak to him."

John Trewavas sprang out of the open window, and ran down the lawn in fleet speed, but he dashed among the laurels, avoiding the elegantly dressed fop, who called out to him in a languid voice to stop.

"The dence is in John this morning, I believe," observed Hilton to himself. "He need not have gone off in that style; I had a hundred things to tell him."

A light step made him turn round and then he faced a tiny figure of a woman, so small, that she might have been a child, and so wonderfully attractive that she might have been a syren, or a witch, or a nymph, or all three in one.

"Olive!" exclaimed Sir Hilton.

"Yes, Olive," she repeated; "just arrived. Are you glad to see me?"

"I am always delighted to see the most charming of cousins," he replied.

"That means nothing," said Olive seating herself on a little footstool just in front of Sir Hilton. "I hate compliments. Say something true and kind, Cousin Hilton."

The tall, handsome man looked down on the little figure in slight embarrassment. She looked lovely, and she knew it, as she turned her large dark eyes up to his and smiled. One little hand rested on the large arm chair against which she leaned. It was covered with green velvet; and the contrast between this and her white fingers, her glossy black hair, coiled massively around her her head, and the folds of her pale pink dress, all made a picture, the beauty of which no one could appreciate more than her impulsive cousin.

"Upon my word black hair is the richest in the world," he said aloud, speaking his thoughts too frankly; and the color you have in your cheeks, Olive would shame a damask rose. You were born somewhere in the sun, I think, and dropped upon this world by mistake."

Olive had just said she did not like compliments, yet she made no objection to this speech; on the contrary her red lips broke into a smile, and her bright face was lit up with a flush of joy. She suddenly bent forward, and seizing Sir Hilton's hand, she impressed a kiss upon it. The young man colored to the roots of his hair, but he did not take his hand away from the ripe lips that lingered on it lovingly.

"That's to thank you," she said, "for your pretty compliment. Words are so tame, they never say anything that I want to express with my whole heart."

"It was a very pretty, cousinly act, Olive," returned Sir Hilton, a little gravely.

Olive's dark eyes flashed at Sir Hilton's words, and she flung his hand away with an angry gesture.

"There you have undone your kindness now," she said. "I understand you; I have not acted up to your stiff English notions of propriety. Wait—you shall not get a kiss from me again until you go on your knees for it. If you like prudes, go and flirt with Miss Maristowe."

"Miss Maristowe, will never let any man flirt with her, Olive," said Sir Hilton.

"Dear me!" said Olive. "She is too good I suppose,—a sort of angel in flounces. Well, leave her alone, if you won't flirt with her, I assure you, whether you do or not, it won't trouble me."

"Nothing troubles you, Olive," said he. "I really think you never cared for any human being in your life."

"No, I never cared for anybody but my dog Spot," she replied, "and he isn't a human being, is he? Look here, Sir Hilton—how do you like this new dance? I learnt it last week."

She displayed a pair of twinkling feet and danced a new Mazurka, twisting in and out between chairs and tables with marvellous grace.

"The dance is very pretty," said Sir Hilton. Who taught it to you?"

"A bear—a Russian bear," she replied, "rich and ugly. Oh Hilton, I had such a time in London."

"What, pleasant?" said Sir Hilton. "Balls, and concerts, and flirtations, I suppose, constantly!"

"Plenty of all that," replied Olive "But where was the pleasure? Oh, it was such a dreary time to me! I would rather be at Trewavas than. I would live in London, and go to parties every night."

"I don't believe that, Olive," said Sir Hilton.

"Oh yes, you do," said Olive; "you know it is true. Just try this dance, Hilton. I am sure I can teach it to you in five minutes."

He put his arm around her; he took her hand in his; the glossy coils of hair rested on his breast, they could see touch his shoulder. Sir Roger Maristowe, and the dance grew faster and faster, as the young man and the wild Russian coalesced to measure time.

"There!" she cried at last, triumphantly. "I knew you would learn it in a minute or two. You are so quick at anything. By the by, have you been found in clover here without me? I have been away a whole month, you know."

"Is it really so long?" said Sir Hilton, grasping a little from his arm thus for the dance.

"Then the time has not seemed so long to you!" exclaimed Olive. "Out of sight, out of mind! as the old proverb says. But what have you been doing with yourself all this while?"

"Doing? Why nothing," replied Sir Hilton.

"Then if you were doing nothing," said Olive, "why did you not come to meet the coach this morning, and escort me home? I felt so dismal when I saw the carriage was empty."

"Upon my word, Olive, I didn't know the carriage was gone for you," said Sir Hilton.

"My respected grandmother never said one word about your return. I never knew you were coming till you appeared to me here like a vision."

Olive laughed aloud. "Aunt did not know I was coming till last night," she said. "I have returned without orders I am not wanted here."

"Olive!" he ejaculated. "If I thought that any one, even my father's mother, dared to make you unwelcome in my house, I——"

"I am always welcome wherever I go," said Olive. "In five minutes from this time I mean to make Aunt thank me for coming. I know she has been dull ever since she sent me away. Who has been here? Have you had those Maristowes all this while,—the prude and her stately stick of a mother!"

A burning flush came over her cousin's face at these words. In his embarrassment he drew Olive closer to him and grasped her hand with nervous strength. At that moment the door opened, and a well trained servant, standing respectfully at the portal, said in the soft, calm voice peculiar to the English domestic, "The horses are at the door, sir; and Miss Maristowe sent me to say she was waiting."

"I am coming," said Sir Hilton, biting his lip.

The servant closed the door, while the cousins looked at each other blankly. Olive was the first to laugh—"Oh, it does not matter, as we are cousins—that's just like brother and sister, you know."

"Of course it is," exclaimed Sir Hilton, eagerly; "and I hope you will always feel it so, Olive."

Olive turned her back on him, and walked to the window.

"I wish," she murmured, "you hadn't promised to ride with that tiresome Miss Maristowe on the very first day of my coming home."

But she spoke to the winds—her cousin was gone; and, gazing blankly from the window, she saw him in a moment lifting Eleanor Maristowe on her horse. What was there in this little act of courtesy that made Olive gasp for breath, and sent the blood to her heart in a rush of terror and anguish.

* * * * *

The green glades of Trewavas slope down to the sea, and honeysuckle and hawthorn, lilac and arbutus trail their branches on the beach, while the shadows of stately elm and oak fall across the waters. The waves are blue and limpid, clear as liquid crystal; so that far beneath the surface, down among the very depths, the eye watches delightedly the silvery fish, darting to and fro, and marks the glittering sands, white as snow, the rocks of serpentine flashing purple and green, and the many colored plants of the sea waving in a thousand shapes of beauty. The bay of Trewavas, like an inland lake, is shut in on nearly every side by green hills and sloping woods; and dotted around it like gems, lie the glistening sands of little sightered coves, up which the waves roll lovingly, dancing to with a gentle murmur.

High up, on the sunniest slope of the fairest hill, stands the old mansion of Trewavas. It seems embowered with roses, so luxuriant are the flowers of every sort that cluster round its windows, and climb up to its old grey roof. The garden, too, is lovely as a dream; green glades, soft as velvet, with here and there between the trees a vista opening to the sea, or a peep given for an instant of the great rugged hills far away, and then walls of leaf and flower shut them out again.

In this lovely nook of the west lived old Lady Trewavas, a stately dame of the old school, full of pride and kindness; and with her lived her two grandsons—Sir Hilton, a man not without faults, and kindly, simple John, who thought every man a Bayard, and every woman a saint; a good heart born to live unwisely and too well.

Olive Varcoe, a second cousin to the brothers, made one of the family at Trewavas. She was alone, but self-possessed, and with [illegible] an imp, she arrived in Cornwall at ten years of age, having come from Smyrna in a sailing vessel. She was put on board by the English consul, with letters and credentials for Lady Trewavas. The letter was from her nephew, Mr. Varcoe, who, at the point of death, implored his aunt to take pity on his little child.

Lady Trewavas might have hesitated, but the letter and the child reached her together; and the friendless and powerful little creature, who with folded arms and flashing eyes stood dauntless before her, seemed to have no relative on earth but herself. Her father's letter made no mention of her mother; but it was easy to see, by Olive's blue-black hair and dark skin, that she must have been of Eastern blood; and, though she might have been a wife, it was more probable that she was a slave.

Mr. Varcoe, all his life long, had been a strange, eccentric man, "everything by turns, and nothing long." Accident caused him to study astronomy; chance he diverged to astrology; and, in pursuit of his science, he traveled to the East, and never returned to England. He pretended to have penetrated deep secrets, and learned weighty things; but they certainly never benefited his fortune, for at his death the small remnant of his once large property made only a scanty pittance for his child. Thinking pitifully of his poverty, and remembering, with ever fresh and yearning affection, the sorrows, the love, and the short life of her only sister, Mr. Varcoe's mother, Lady Trewavas took Olive, and gave her a home.

The two grandsons, whom the untimely death of their parents had left entirely to her care, had no sister; hence this little Eastern child became their petted playmate. But as Olive grew older, Lady Trewavas became uneasy of this companionship. She had no wish to see Olive the wife of either of her cousins; hence she cleverly managed, after her fifteenth birthday, to keep them much apart. But her maternal instinct soon told her that John might see this fascinating cousin without danger; therefore she allowed him to come and go as he would at Trewavas, but his elder brother she kept as much as possible from home. His education, his Continental tour, his amusements, all had insured his absence; and during his brief visits Lady Trewavas fondly hoped that he regarded the wayward, willful fairy of the household only as a sister. And we have seen how the old lady knew how to manœuvre. She could send Olive Varcoe on a visit, when Sir Hilton's stay was expected to be long, and she could fill her house with outer attractions.

Sir Hilton had known Eleanor Maristowe about two years; that is, he had seen her at intervals during that time, and every succeeding interview had strengthened the impression that her face had made. Her coldness and reserve wounded his pride, and he only the more earnestly resolve to win her. Longing to see him safely married, Lady Trewavas had, without his knowledge, warmly sided his wooing. Long before his last return home, she had invited Eleanor to Trewavas, and secured Olive's absence by procuring for her a judicious invitation to London. All this was well; but, in constantly having Eleanor for her guest, she had forgotten John. Thinking only of Sir Hilton, she had asked her to Trewavas as often during his absence as his presence; and the result was that simple, kindly John loved her with all the strength of his soul. And his life was wrecked; there was no hope left for him now but to hide his pain, and never touch the happiness of others with the shadow of his own grief.

One of the silvery beaches that gemmed the Bay of Trewavas fringed also a little creek, so sheltered from the winds that hawthorn bushes and wild roses grew in every cranny of the cliff, and the clear waves crept in with a gentle lap, lulling into dreams of happiness even the careworn and worldly.

The beach itself was almost inaccessible; walled in by cliffs, it could only be reached seawards, except by some adventurous climber, who cared neither for danger nor fatigue. On this warm spring day the sands glistened white in the sun, and no sign of life, either on sea or land, broke the beautiful loneliness of the scene. But soon a little boat put out from Trawavas, and a single rower, with stout arms pulled steadily this solitary beach.

The rower was John Trewavas, who, impelled by that instinct of suffering which teaches man and animal alike to seek solitary places, had now set his face towards those lonely sands; but when he was about to spring ashore, hoping to find solitude and peace, he was startled to see the tiny figure of Olive Varcoe seated on a rock.

John was superstitious; and as he looked on the tiny creature, crowned in red and black, who sat perched on the very pinnacle of a rock, it seemed to him that he saw a veritable witch. (The very place whereon she sat had a supernatural air about it. No mere woman, he thought, would have climbed to such a seat.

"How did you get on this beach?" he asked, looking about for her boat.

"I flew down," she replied.

"Olive, you cannot have descended this cliff!" exclaimed John, aghast with astonishment.

"But I did, though," persisted Olive. "Look at my hands."

She held forth her tiny hands, and showed them cut and torn, and streaked with blood.

"The rocks are hard," she continued "and the thorn will pierce the flesh," as some trumpery poet says.

"Olive, you are certainly mad," said John; "I would not have a spirit like yours for worlds."

"Nor I like yours," she replied. "I am tired, John; take me in your boat, and row me home."

John threw down his oars, and jumped ashore to assist her; but before he had time even to stretch out his hand, she had made a daring spring, and alighted on the seats of his boat.

"Olive Varcoe!" exclaimed Sir Hilton, impatiently. "Am I to know that girl always throws him my care? Do

"Then if you don't like being anything," said Olive, "why did you not come to meet the coach this morning, and escort me home? I felt so dismal when I saw the carriage was empty."

"Upon my word, Olive, I didn't know the carriage was gone for you," said Sir Hilton.

"My respected grandmother never said one word about your return. I never knew you were coming till you appeared to me here like a vision."

Olive laughed aloud. "Aunt did not know I was coming till last night," she said. "I have returned without orders I am not wanted here."

"Olive!" he ejaculated. "If I thought that any one, even my father's mother, dared to make you unwelcome in my house, I——"

"I am always welcome wherever I go," said Olive. "In five minutes from this time I mean to make Aunt thank me for coming. I know she has been dull ever since she sent me away. Who has been here? Have you had those Marristowes all this while,—the prude and her stately stick of a mother!"

A burning flush came over her cousin's face at these words. In his embarrassment he drew Olive closer to him and grasped her hand with nervous strength. At that moment the door opened, and a well trained servant, standing respectfully at the portal, said in the soft, calm voice peculiar to the English domestic, "the horses are at the door, sir; and Miss Marristowe sent me to say she was waiting."

"I am coming," said Sir Hilton, biting his lip.

The servant closed the door, while the cousins looked at each other blankly. Olive was the first to laugh—"Oh, it does not matter, as we are cousins—that's just like brother and sister, you know."

"Of course it is," exclaimed Sir Hilton, eagerly; "and I hope you will always feel it so, Olive."

Olive turned her back on him, and walked to the window.

"Hush," she murmured, "you hadn't promised to ride with that tiresome Miss Maristowe on the very first day of my coming home."

But she spoke to the winds—her cousin was gone; and, gazing blankly from the window, she saw him in a moment lifting Eleanor Maristowe on her horse. What was there in this little act of courtesy that made Olive gasp for breath, and sent the blood to her heart in a rush of terror and anguish.

* * * * *

The green glades of Trewavas slope down to the sea, and honeysuckle and hawthorn, lilac and arbutus trail their branches on the beach, while the shadows of stately elm and oak fall across the waters. The waves are blue and limpid, clear as liquid crystal; so that far beneath the surface, down among the very depths, the eye watches delightedly the silvery fish, darting to and fro, and marks the glittering sands, white as snow, the rocks of serpentine flashing purple and green, and the many colored plants of the sea waving in a thousand shapes of beauty. The bay of Trewavas, like an inland lake, is shut in on nearly every side by green hills and sloping woods; and dotted around it like gems, lie the glistening sands of little sheltered coves, up which the waves roll lovingly, dancing to with a gentle murmur.

High up, on the sunlest slope of the fairest hill, stands the old mansion of Trewavas. It seems embowered with roses, so luxuriant are the flowers of every sort that cluster round its windows, and climb up to its old grey roof. The garden, too, is lovely as a dream; green glades, soft as velvet, with here and there between the trees a vista opening to the sea, or a peep given for an instant of the great rugged hills far away, and then walls of leaf and flower shut them out again.

In this lovely nook of the west lived old Lady Trewavas, a stately dame of the old school, full of pride and kindness; and with her lived her two grandsons—Sir Hilton, a man not without faults, and kindly, simple John, who thought every man a Bayard, and every woman a saint; a good heart born to love unwisely and too well.

Olive Varcoe, a second cousin to the brothers, made one of the family at Trewavas. [illegible] alone, but self-possessed, and with [illegible] as imp, she arrived in Cornwall at ten years of age, having come from Smyrna in a sailing vessel. She was put on board by the English consul, with letters and credentials for Lady Trewavas. The letter was from her nephew, Mr. Varcoe, who, at the point of death, implored his aunt to take pity on his little child.

—OR—

TRUE TO THE LAST.

CHAPTER I.

A FLIRTING WITCH.

"To me, Sir Hilton!—and you say this to me!"

"To you, Eleanor Maristowe, and to none other in the world. Why are you astonished? Have you not seen this long while that I love you?"

"No," said Eleanor, "I never dreamed of it. I thought that you loved another."

"Then Eleanor, on my life you have wronged me!" he cried. "Whom did you suppose I loved? I have never seen any woman but you whom I could wish to make my wife."

The young girl to whom Sir Hilton Trewavas spoke thus earnestly was silent but her fair face was covered with blushes and the little hand resting in his trembled visibly.

"If could only believe you," she said at last, in a low voice; "if I could only think it was true."

"Tell me why you doubt me, Eleanor?" cried her lover, earnestly. "Let me defend myself. Of what do you accuse me?"

"I thought your cousin, Olive——"

"My cousin Olive!" he interrupted, fiercely. "What of her!"

The girl drew her hand from his, and turned away her face proudly.

"I see," she said, "you grow angry the moment I mention her name. Go back to your cousin Olive. I will never take another girl's lover from her."

"This is nonsense, Eleanor! I am not her lover. Has she dared to say so?"

"She has not quite said so," was the reply; "but her manner, and your manner——"

"My manner was that of a cousin," said he, "nothing more. Eleanor—dear Eleanor, hear me! Don't leave me; don't wreck my happiness for such a folly as this."

Eleanor Maristowe was stealing away from his side among the trees, but she came back at this appeal, and he seized her hand again.

"Eleanor," he exclaimed, "what can I say—what can I do to convince you of my truth?"

"And have you never loved Olive Varcoe?"

"No never," he replied. "Eleanor, do not make me hate the poor girl. Remember she is dependent on my bounty."

"I am sorry," said Eleanor, softly; "I would not say a word to injure her; but I assure you she has always implied to me that you loved her; therefor I have avoided you as much as I possibly could."

"And for this you have treated me so coldly, so cruelly! Eleanor, you owe me some amends. Say frankly now that you love me, and will be my wife."

"If Olive——"

"Fling Olive to the winds!" he interrupted. Say 'Yes,' Eleanor. I want that one word—'Yes.'"

"If you really love me, I say it—Yes. But if Olive has any place in your heart——"

"If?" said her lover. "I will have no 'ifs.' You are mine now."

He had her in his arms; and as his lips touched hers, Eleanor forgot her jealousy, and the vision of Olive Varcoe's bright flashing face faded away.

* * * * *

"John, I am going to be married," said Sir Hilton Trewavas to his brother. "My bachelor days are nearly over. Congratulate me."

"I'll wait till I know who the lady is," said John, a great, easy, good natured fellow, slightly given to superstition and a few other weaknesses.

"Well, guess then who is in," said his brother.

"Do I know her, Hilton?"

"Slightly, I think."

"My dear brother," said John, "I hope it is not Olive Varcoe!"

"Olive Varcoe!" exclaimed Sir Hilton, impatiently. "Am I to know that girl always throws him my care? Do

"Then if you don't like being anything," said Olive, "why did you not come to meet the coach this morning, and escort me home? I felt so dismal when I saw the carriage was empty."

High up, on the sunlest slope of the fairest hill, stands the old mansion of Trewavas. It seems embowered with roses, so luxuriant are the flowers of every sort that cluster round its windows, and climb up to its old grey roof. The garden, too, is lovely as a dream; green glades, soft as velvet, with here and there between the trees a vista opening to the sea, or a peep given for an instant of the great rugged hills far away, and then walls of leaf and flower shut them out again.

In this lovely nook of the west lived old Lady Trewavas, a stately dame of the old school, full of pride and kindness; and with her lived her two grandsons—Sir Hilton, a man not without faults, and kindly, simple John, who thought every man a Bayard, and every woman a saint; a good heart born to love unwisely and too well.

Olive Varcoe, a second cousin to the brothers, made one of the family at Trewavas. [illegible] alone, but self-possessed, and with [illegible] as imp, she arrived in Cornwall at ten years of age, having come from Smyrna in a sailing vessel. She was put on board by the English consul, with letters and credentials for Lady Trewavas. The letter was from her nephew, Mr. Varcoe, who, at the point of death, implored his aunt to take pity on his little child.

The two grandsons, whom the untimely death of their parents had left entirely to her care, had no sister; hence this little Eastern child became their petted playmate. But as Olive grew older, Lady Trewavas became uneasy of this companionship. She had no wish to see Olive the wife of either of her cousins; hence she cleverly managed, after her fifteenth birthday, to keep them much apart. But her maternal instinct soon told her that John might see this fascinating cousin without danger; therefore she allowed him to come and go as he would at Trewavas, but his elder brother she kept as much as possible from home. His education, his Continental tour, his amusements, all had insured his absence; and during his brief visits Lady Trewavas fondly hoped that he regarded the wayward, wilful fairy of the household only as a sister. And we have seen how the old lady knew how to manœuvre. She could send Olive Varcoe on a visit, when Sir Hilton's stay was expected to be long, and she could fill her house with older attractions.

Sir Hilton had known Eleanor Maristowe about two years; that is, he had seen her at intervals during that time, and every succeeding interview had strengthened the impression that her face had made. Her coldness and reserve wounded his pride, and he only the more earnestly resolve to win her. Longing to see him safely married, Lady Trewavas had, without his knowledge, warmly aided his wooing. Long before his last return home, she had invited Eleanor to Trewavas, and secured Olive's absence by procuring for her a judicious invitation to London. All this was well; but, in constantly having Eleanor for her guest, she had forgotten John. Thinking only of Sir Hilton, she had asked her to Trewavas as often during his absence as his presence; and the result was that simple, kindly John loved her with all the strength of his soul. And his life was wrecked; there was no hope left for him now but to hide his pain, and never touch the happiness of others with the shadow of his own grief.

One of the silvery beaches that gemmed the Bay of Trewavas fringed also a little creek, so sheltered from the winds that hawthorn bushes and wild roses grew in every cranny of the cliff, and the clear waves crept in with a gentle lap, lulling into dreams of happiness even the careworn and worldly.

The beach itself was almost inaccessible; walled in by cliffs, it could only be reached seawards, except by some adventurous climber, who cared neither for danger nor fatigue. On this warm spring day the sands glistened white in the sun, and no sign of life, either on sea or land, broke the beautiful loneliness of the scene. But soon a little boat put out from Trewavas, and a single rower with stout arms pulled steadily this solitary beach.

The rower was John Trewavas, who, impelled by that instinct of suffering which teaches man and animal alike to seek solitary places, had now set his face towards those lonely sands; but when he was about to spring ashore, hoping to find solitude and peace, he was startled to see the tiny figure of Olive Varcoe seated on a rock.

John was superstitious; and as he looked on the tiny creature, dressed in red and black, who sat perched on the very pinnacle of a rock, it seemed to him that he saw a veritable witch. The very place whereon she sat had a supernatural air about it. No mere woman, he thought, would have climbed to such a seat.

"How did you get on this beach?" he asked, looking about for her boat.

"I flew down," she replied.

"Olive, you cannot have descended this cliff!" exclaimed John, aghast with astonishment.

"But I did, though," persisted Olive. "Look at my hands."

She held forth her tiny hands, and showed them cut and torn, and streaked with blood.

"The rocks are hard," she continued "and the thorn will pierce the flesh," as some trumpery poet says.

"Olive, you are certainly mad," said John; "I would not have a spirit like yours for worlds."

"Nor I like yours," she replied. "I am tired, John; take me in your boat, and row me home."

John threw down his oars, and jumped ashore to assist her; but before he had time even to stretch out his hand, she had made a daring spring, and alighted on the sands at his feet.

CHAPTER I.

A BLIGHTING WITCH.

"To me, Sir Hilton!—and you say this to me!"

"To you, Eleanor Maristowe, and to none other in the world. Why are you astonished? Have you not seen this long while that I love you?"

"No," said Eleanor, "I never dreamed of it. I thought that you loved as sister."

"Then Eleanor, on my life you have wronged me!" he cried. "Whom did you suppose I loved? I have never seen any woman but you whom I could wish to make my wife."

The young girl to whom Sir Hilton Trewavas spoke thus earnestly was silent, but her fair face was covered with blushes and the little hand resting in his trembled visibly.

"If could only believe you," she said at last, in a low voice; "if I could only think it was true."

"Tell me why you doubt me, Eleanor?" cried her lover, eagerly. "Let me defend myself. Of what do you accuse me?"

"I thought your cousin, Olive——"

"My cousin Olive!" he interrupted, fiercely. "What of her!"

The girl drew her hand from his, and turned away her face proudly.

"I see," she said, "you grow angry the moment I mention her name. Go back to your cousin Olive. I will never take another girl's lover from her."

"This is nonsense, Eleanor! I am not her lover. Has she dared to say so?"

"She has not quite said so," was the reply; "but her manner, and your manner——"

"My manner was that of a cousin," said he, "nothing more. Eleanor—dear Eleanor, hear me! Don't leave me; don't wreck my happiness for such a folly as this."

Eleanor Maristowe was stealing away from his side among the trees, but she came back at this appeal, and he seized her hand again.

"Eleanor," he exclaimed, "what can I say—what can I do to convince you of my truth?"

"And have you never loved Olive Varcoe?"

"No never," he replied. "Eleanor, do not make me hate the poor girl. Remember she is dependent on my bounty."

"I am sorry," said Eleanor, softly; "I would not say a word to injure her; but I assure you she has always implied to me that you loved her; therefore I have avoided you as much as I possibly could."

"And for this you have treated me so coldly, so cruelly! Eleanor, you owe me some amends. Say frankly now that you love me, and will be my wife."

"If Olive——"

"Fling Olive to the winds!" he interrupted. Say 'Yes,' Eleanor. I want that one word—'Yes.'"

"If you really love me, I say it—Yes. But if Olive has any place in your heart——"

"If?" said her lover. "I will have no 'ifs.' You are mine now."

He had her in his arms; and as his lips touched her's, Eleanor forgot her jealousy, and the vision of Olive Varcoe's bright flashing face faded away.

* * * * *

"John, I am going to be married," said Sir Hilton Trewavas to his brother. "My bachelor days are nearly over. Congratulate me."

"I'll wait till I know who the lady is," said John, a great, easy, good natured fellow, slightly given to superstition and a few other weaknesses.

"Well, guess then who it is," said his brother.

"Do I know her, Hilton?"

"Slightly, I think."

"My dear brother," said John, "I hope it is not Olive Varcoe!"

"Yes, Olive," she repeated; "just arrived. Are you glad to see me?"

"I am always delighted to see the most charming of cousins," he replied.

"That means nothing," said Olive seating herself on a little footstool just in front of Sir Hilton. "I hate compliments. Say something true and kind, Cousin Hilton."

The tall, handsome man looked down on the little figure in slight embarrassment. She looked lovely, and she knew it, as she turned her large dark eyes up to his and smiled. One little hand rested on the large arm chair against which she leaned. It was covered with green velvet; and the contrast between this and her white fingers, her glossy black hair, coiled massively around her her head, and the folds of her pale pink dress, all made a picture, the beauty of which no one could appreciate more than her impulsive cousin.

"Upon my word black hair is the richest in the world," he said aloud, speaking his thoughts too frankly; and the color you have in your cheeks, Olive would shame a damask rose. You were born somewhere in the sun, I think, and dropped upon this world by mistake."

Olive had just said she did not like compliments, yet she made no objection to this speech; on the contrary her red lips broke into a smile, and her bright face was lit up with a flush of joy. She suddenly bent forward, and seizing Sir Hilton's hand, she impressed a kiss upon it. The young man colored to the roots of his hair, but he did not take his hand away from the ripe lips that lingered on it lovingly.

"That's to thank you," she said, "for your pretty compliment. Words are so tame, they never say anything that I want to express with my whole heart."

"It was a very pretty, cousinly act, Olive," returned Sir Hilton, a little gravely.

Olive's dark eyes flashed at Sir Hilton's words, and she flung his hand away with an angry gesture.

"There you have undone your kindness now," she said. "I understand you; I have not acted up to your stiff English notions of propriety. Wait—you shall not get a kiss from me again until you go on your knees for it. If you like prudes, go and flirt with Miss Maristowe."

"Miss Maristowe, will never let any man flirt with her, Olive," said Sir Hilton.

"Dear me!" said Olive. "She is too good I suppose,—a sort of angel in flounces. Well, leave her alone, if you won't flirt with her, I assure you, whether you do or not, it won't trouble me."

"Nothing troubles you, Olive," said he. "I really think you never cared for any human being in your life."

"No, I never cared for anybody but my dog Spot," she replied, "and he isn't a human being, is he? Look here, Sir Hilton—how do you like this new dance? I learnt it last week."

She displayed a pair of twinkling feet and danced a new Mazurka, twisting in and out between chairs and tables with marvellous grace.

"The dance is very pretty," said Sir Hilton. Who taught it to you?"

"A bear—a Russian bear," she replied, "rich and ugly. Oh Hilton, I had such a time in London."

"What, pleasant?" said Sir Hilton. "Balls, and concerts, and flirtations, I suppose, constantly?"

"Plenty of all that," replied Olive "But where was the pleasure? Oh, it was such a dreary time to me! I would rather be at Trewavas than I would live in London, and go to parties every night."

"I don't believe that, Olive," said Sir Hilton.

"Oh yes, you do," said Olive; "you know it is true. Just try this dance, Hilton. I am sure I can teach it to you in five minutes."

He put his arm around her; he took her hand in his; the glossy coils of hair that any one, even my father's mother, dared to make you unendeared in my house, I——"

"I am always welcome wherever I go," said Olive. "In five minutes from this time I mean to make Aunt thank me for coming. I know she has been dull ever since she sent me away. Who has been here? Have you had those Marristowes all this while,—the prude and her stately stick of a mother!"

A burning flush came over her cousin's face at these words. In his embarrassment he drew Olive closer to him and grasped her hand with nervous strength. At that moment the door opened, and a well trained servant, standing respectfully at the portal, said in the soft, calm voice peculiar to the English domestic, "the horses are at the door, sir; and Miss Marristowe sent me to say she was waiting."

"I am coming," said Sir Hilton, biting his lip.

The servant closed the door, while the cousins looked at each other blankly. Olive was the first to laugh—"Oh, it does not matter, as we are cousins—that's just like brother and sister, you know."

"Of course it is," exclaimed Sir Hilton, eagerly; "and I hope you will always feel it so, Olive."

Olive turned her back on him, and walked to the window.

"I wish," she murmured, "you hadn't promised to ride with that tiresome Miss Maristowe on the very first day of my coming home."

But she spoke to the winds—her cousin was gone; and, gazing blankly from the window, she saw him in a moment lifting Eleanor Maristowe on her horse. What was there in this little act of courtesy that made Olive gasp for breath, and sent the blood to her heart in a rush of terror and anguish.

* * * * *

The green glades of Trewavas slope down to the sea, and honeysuckle and hawthorn, lilac and arbutus trail their branches on the beach, while the shadows of stately elm and oak fall across the waters. The waves are blue and limpid, clear as liquid crystal; so that far beneath the surface, down among the very depths, the eye watches delightedly the silvery fish, darting to and fro, and marks the glittering sands, white as snow, the rocks of serpentine flashing purple and green, and the many colored plants of the sea waving in a thousand shapes of beauty. The bay of Trewavas, like an inland lake, is shut in on nearly every side by green hills and sloping woods; and dotted around it like gems, lie the glistening sands of little sheltered coves, up which the waves roll lovingly, dancing in with a gentle murmur.

High up, on the sunlest slope of the fairest hill, stands the old mansion of Trewavas. It seems embowered with roses, so luxuriant are the flowers of every sort that cluster round its windows, and climb up to its old grey roof The garden, too, is lovely as a dream; green glades, soft as velvet, with here and there between the trees a vista opening to the sea, or a peep given for an instant of the great rugged hills far away, and then walls of leaf and flower shut them out again.

In this lovely nook of the west lived old Lady Trewavas, a stately dame of the old school, full of pride and kindness; and with her lived her two grandsons—Sir Hilton, a man not without faults, and kindly, simple John, who thought every man a Bayard, and every woman a saint; a good heart born to love unwisely and too well."

Olive Varcoe, a second cousin to the brothers, made one of the family at Trewavas. [illegible] alone, but self-possessed, and [illegible] an imp, she arrived in Cornwall at ten years of age, having come from Smyrna in a sailing vessel. She was put on board by the English consul, with letters and credentials for Lady Trewavas. The letter was from her nephew, Mr. Varcoe, who, at the point of death, implored his aunt to take pity on his little child.

Lady Trewavas might have hesitated, but the frank and the child rushed her together; and the blandness and beautiful little creature, who with folded arms and flashing eyes stood dauntless before her, seemed to have no relative on earth but herself. Her father's letter made no mention of her mother; but it was easy to see, by Olive's blue-black hair and dark skin, that she must have been of Eastern blood; and, though she might have been a wife, it was more probable that she was a slave.

Mr. Varcoe, all his life long, had been a strange, eccentric man, "everything by turns, and nothing long." Accident opened him to study astronomy; thence he diverged to meteorology; and, in pursuit of his science, he travelled to the East, and never returned to England.

"Olive Varcoe!" exclaimed Sir Hilton, impatiently. "Am I to have that girl always thrust into my arms? Do you think me a fool, John, that I should marry a little fleering witch like Olive Varcoe?—a cousin, too!"

"Do you care me is a witch," said John. And you know she is a fire. Bad eyes, Hilton very."

"Cut it short, John, unless you want me to get savage!" exclaimed Sir Hilton. "I am going to marry Eleanor Maristowe."

The blood flew to the face of John, leaving it quite pale as it rushed back to his heart.

"Then you are going to marry a good girl, Hilton," he answered; "and may Good bless you and bless Heiloise Vivian Dunvel; I must go and speak to him."

John Trewavas sprang out of the window, and ran down the lawn in fleet speed, but he dashed among the laurels, [illegible] Eleanor Maristowe, and the dance grew faster and faster, as the pang in a few young wild Russian subside to concerto time.

"There!" she cried at last, triumphantly. "I knew you would have him in a minute or two. You are so quick at anything. By the by, have you not found it slow here without me? I have been away a whole month, you know."

"Is it really so long?" said Sir Hilton, stepping a little from the exertion in the dance.

"Then the time has not seemed so long to you?" exclaimed Olive. "Out of sight, out of mind!" as the old proverb says. But what have you been doing with yourself all this while?"

"Doing? Why nothing," replied Sir Hilton.

"Then if you were doing nothing," said Olive, "why did you not come to meet the coach this morning, and escort [illegible] entirely to her care, had no sister; hence this little Eastern child became their petted playmate. But as Olive grew older, Lady Trewavas became uneasy of this companionship. She had no wish to see Olive the wife of either of her cousins; hence she cleverly managed, after her fifteenth birthday, to keep them much apart. But her maternal instinct soon told her that John might see this fascinating cousin without danger; therefore she allowed him to come and go as he would at Trewavas, but his elder brother she kept as much as possible from home. His education, his Continental tour, his amusements, all had insured his absence; and during his brief visits Lady Trewavas fondly hoped that he regarded the wayward, wilful fairy of the household only as a sister. And we have seen how the old lady knew how to manœuvre. She could send Olive Varcoe on a visit, when Sir Hilton's stay was expected to be long, and she could fill her house with safer attractions.

Sir Hilton had known Eleanor Maristowe about two years; that is, he had seen her at intervals during that time, and every succeeding interview had strengthened the impression that her face had made. Her coldness and reserve wounded his pride, and he only the more earnestly resolved to win her. Longing to see him safely married, Lady Trewavas had, without his knowledge, warmly aided his wooing. Long before his last return home, she had invited Eleanor to Trewavas, and secured Olive's absence by procuring for her a judicious invitation to London. All this was well; but, in constantly having Eleanor for her guest, she had forgotten John. Thinking only of Sir Hilton, she had asked her to Trewavas as often during his absence as his presence; and the result was that simple, kindly John loved her with all the strength of his soul. And his life was wrecked; there was no hope left for him now but to hide his pain, and never touch the happiness of others with the shadow of his own grief.

One of the silvery beaches that gemmed the Bay of Trewavas fringed also a little creek, so sheltered from the winds that hawthorn bushes and wild roses grew in every cranny of the cliff, and the clear waves crept in with a gentle lap, lulling into dreams of happiness even the careworn and worldly.

The beach itself was almost inaccessible; walled in by cliffs, it could only be reached seawards, except by some adventurous climber, who cared neither for danger nor fatigue. On this warm spring day the sands glistened white in the sun, and no sign of life, either on sea or land, broke the beautiful loneliness of the scene. But soon a little boat put out from Trewavas, and a single rower with stout arms pulled steadily this solitary beach.

The rower was John Trewavas, who, impelled by that instinct of suffering which teaches man and animal alike to seek solitary places, had now set his face towards those lonely sands; but when he was about to spring ashore, hoping to find solitude and peace, he was startled to see the tiny figure of Olive Varcoe seated on a rock.

John was superstitious; and as he looked on the tiny creature, dressed in red and black, who sat perched on the very pinnacle of a rock, it seemed to him that he saw a veritable witch. The very place whereon she sat had a supernatural air about it. No mere woman, he thought, would have climbed to such a seat.

"How did you get on this beach?" he asked, looking about for her boat.

"I flew down," she replied.

"Olive, you cannot have descended this cliff!" exclaimed John, aghast with astonishment.

"But I did, though," persisted Olive. "Look at my hands."

She held forth her tiny hands, and showed them cut and torn, and streaked with blood.

"The rocks are hard," she continued "and the thorn will pierce the flesh, as some trumpery poet says.

"Olive, you are certainly mad," said John; "I would not have a spirit like yours for worlds."

"Nor I like yours," she replied. "I am tired, John; take me in your boat, and row me home."

John threw down his oars, and jumped ashore to assist her; but before he had close even to stretch out his hand, she had made a daring spring, and alighted on the sands at his feet.

I OFTEN WONDER WHY 'TIS SO

Some find work where some find rest,
And as the weary world goes on;
I sometimes wonder which is best—
The slower comes when the is gone.

Some eyes grow weary some eyes wake,
And as the dreary night hours go;
Some hearts beat where some hearts break;
I often wonder why 'tis so.

Some with faint voices some with fife,
Some love the rose and some the field;
I often wonder which are right—
The ones who strive or those who yield.

Some hands fold where some hands
Are lifted bravely to the strife;
And so through ages and through lands
Move on the two extremes of life.

Some feet halt where some feet round,
To finish march, to finish race;
Some struggle on where some have fled,
Some wait when others chase the fray.

Poetry.

I OFTEN WONDER WHY 'TIS SO

Some feet rush where some feet rest,
And on the weary world goes on;
I sometimes wonder which is best—
The answer comes when life is gone.

Some eyes sleep where some eyes wake,
And on the dreary night hours go;
Some hearts beat where some hearts break;
I often wonder—why 'tis so.

Some wills falter where some wills dare,
Some love the cost and shun the field;
I often wonder which are right—
The men who strive or those who yield.

Some hands hold where some hands
Are lifted bravely in the strife;
And on through ages and through lands
Move on the two extremes of life.

Some feet halt where some feet tread,
In broken march, in thorny way;
Some struggle on when some have fled,
Some seek when others chase the fray.

Some swords rust where others steel,
Some fall back where some move on,
Some flags fort where others flock
Until the battle has been won.

Some sleep on while others keep
The vigils of the cross and brave;
They will not rest till roses creep
Around their name above the grave.

—OR—

TRUE TO THE LAST.

CHAPTER I.

A FLIRTING WITCH.

"To me, Sir Hilton!—and you say this to me!"

"To you, Eleanor Maristowe, and to none other in the world. Why are you astonished? Have you not seen this long while that I love you?"

"No," said Eleanor, "I never dreamed of it. I thought that you loved another."

"Then Eleanor, on my life you have wronged me!" he cried. "Whom did you suppose I loved? I have never seen any woman but you whom I could wish to make my wife."

The young girl to whom Sir Hilton Trewavas spoke thus earnestly was silent, but her fair face was covered with blushes and the little hand resting in his trembled visibly.

"If could only believe you," she said at last, in a low voice; "if I could only think it was true."

"Tell me why you doubt me, Eleanor?" cried her lover, eagerly. "Let me defend myself. Of what do you accuse me?"

"I thought your cousin, Olive——"

"My cousin Olive!" he interrupted, fiercely. "What of her!"

The girl drew her hand from his, and turned away her face proudly.

"I see," she said, "you grow angry the moment I mention her name. Go back to your cousin Olive. I will never take another girl's lover from her."

"This is nonsense, Eleanor! I am not her lover. Has she dared to say so?"

"She has not quite said so," was the reply; "but her manner, and your manner——"

"My manner was that of a cousin," said he, "nothing more. Eleanor—dear Eleanor, hear me! Don't leave me; don't wreck my happiness for such a folly as this."

Eleanor Maristowe was stealing away from his side among the trees, but she came back at this appeal, and he seized her hand again.

"Eleanor," he exclaimed, "what can I say—what can I do to convince you of my truth?"

"And have you never loved Olive Varcoe?"

"No never," he replied. "Eleanor, do not make me hate the poor girl. Remember she is dependent on my bounty."

"I am sorry," said Eleanor, softly; "I would not say a word to injure her; but I assure you she has always implied to me that you loved her; therefor I have avoided you as much as I possibly could."

"And for this you have treated me so coldly, so cruelly! Eleanor, you owe me some amends. Say frankly now that you love me, and will be my wife."

"If Olive——"

"Fling Olive to the winds!" he interrupted. Say 'Yes,' Eleanor. I want that one word—'Yes.'"

"If you really love me, I say it—Yes. But if Olive has any place in your heart——"

"If?" said her lover. "I will have no 'ifs.' You are mine now."

He had her in his arms; and as his lips touched hers, Eleanor forgot her jealousy, and the vision of Olive Varcoe's bright flashing face faded away.

* * * * *

"John, I am going to be married," said Sir Hilton Trewavas to his brother. "My bachelor days are nearly over. Congratulate me."

"I'll wait till I know who the lady is," said John, a great, easy, good natured fellow, slightly given to superstition and a few other weaknesses.

"Well, guess then who it is," said his brother.

"Do I know her, Hilton?"

"Slightly, I think."

"My dear brother," said John, "I hope it is not Olive Varcoe!"

"Olive Varcoe!" exclaimed Sir Hilton impatiently. "Am I to have that girl always thrust here my ears? Do you think me a fool, John, that I should marry a little Strange-stitch like Olive Varcoe?—a cousin, too!"

"So you are she is a witch," said John. And you know she is a flirt. Bad signs, Hilton very."

"Cut it short, John, unless you want me to get savage!" exclaimed Sir Hilton. "I am going to marry Eleanor Maristowe."

The blood flew to the face of John, leaving it quite pale as it rushed back to his heart.

"Then you are going to marry a good girl, Hilton," he answered; "and may God bless you and her! Hollo! there's Vivian Dameral; I must go and speak to him."

John Trewavas sprang out of the open window, and ran down the lawn in fleet speed, but he dashed among the laurels, avoiding the elegantly dressed fop, who called out to him in a languid voice to stop.

"The deuce is in John this morning, I believe," observed Hilton to himself. "He need not have gone off in that style; I had a hundred things to tell him."

A light step made him turn round and then he faced a tiny figure of a woman, so small, that she might have been a child, and so wonderfully attractive that she might have been a syren, or a witch, or a nymph, or all three in one.

"Olive!" exclaimed Sir Hilton.

"Yes, Olive," she repeated; "just arrived. Are you glad to see me?"

"I am always delighted to see the most charming of cousins," he replied.

"That means nothing," said Olive seating herself on a little footstool just in front of Sir Hilton. I hate compliments. Say something true and kind, Cousin Hilton."

The tall, handsome man looked down on the little figure in slight embarrassment. She looked lovely, and she knew it, as she turned her large dark eyes up to his and smiled. One little hand rested on the large arm chair against which she leaned. It was covered with green velvet; and the contrast between this and her white fingers, her glossy black hair, coiled massively around her her head, and the folds of her pale pink dress, all made a picture, the beauty of which no one could appreciate more than her impulsive cousion.

"Upon my word black hair is the richest in the world," he said aloud, speaking his thoughts too frankly; and the color you have in your cheeks, Olive would shame a damask rose. You were born somewhere in the sun, I think, and dropped upon this world by mistake."

Olive had just said she did not like compliments, yet she made no objection to this speech; on the contrary her red lips broke into a smile, and her bright face was lit up with a flush of joy. She suddenly bent forward, and seizing Sir Hilton's hand, she impressed a kiss upon it. The young man colored to the roots of his hair, but he did not take his hand away from the ripe lips that lingered on it lovingly.

"That's to thank you," she said, "for your pretty compliment. Words are so tame, they never say anything that I want to express with my whole heart."

"It was a very pretty, cousinly act, Olive," returned Sir Hilton, a little gravely.

Olive's dark eyes flashed at Sir Hilton's words, and she flung his hand away with an angry gesture.

"There you have undone your kindness now," she said. "I understand you; I have not acted up to your stiff English notions of propriety. Wait—you shall not get a kiss from me again until you go on your knees for it. If you like prudes, go and flirt with Miss Maristowe."

"Miss Maristowe, will never let any man flirt with her, Olive," said Sir Hilton.

"Dear me!" said Olive. "She is too good I suppose,—a sort of angel in flounces. Well, leave her alone, if you won't flirt with her, I assure you, whether you do or not, it won't trouble me.'

"Nothing troubles you, Olive," said he. "I really think you never cared for any human being in your life."

"No, I never cared for anybody but my dog Spot," she replied, "and he isn't a human being, is he? Look here, Sir Hilton—how do you like this new dance? I learnt it last week."

She displayed a pair of twinkling feet and danced a new Mazurka, twisting in and out between chairs and tables with marvellous grace.

"The dance is very pretty," said Sir Hilton. Who taught it to you?"

"A bear—a Russian bear," she replied, "rich and ugly. Oh Hilton, I had such a time in London."

"What, pleasant?" said Sir Hilton. "Balls, and concerts, and flirtations, I suppose, constantly!"

"Plenty of all that," replied Olive "But where was the pleasure? Oh, it was such a dreary time to me! I would rather be at Trewavas than. I would live in London, and go to parties every night."

"I don't believe that, Olive," said Sir Hilton.

"Oh yes, you do," said Olive; "you know it is true. Just try this dance, Hilton. I am sure I can teach it to you in five minutes."

He put his arm around her; he took her hand in his; the glossy coils of hair on his breast, they could not reach his shoulder. He forgot Eleanor Maristowe, and the dance grew faster a-d faster, as she sang to a tune a old Russian melody to measure time.

"There!" she cried at last, triumphantly. "I knew you would learn it in a minute or two. You are so quick at anything. By the by, have you not found it slow here without me? I have been away a whole month, you know."

"Is it really so long?" said Sir Hilton, gazing a little from his exercise in the dance.

"Time the time has not seemed so long to you?" exclaimed Olive. "Out of sight, out of mind!" as the old proverb says. But what have you been doing with yourself all this while?"

"Doing? Why nothing," replied Sir Hilton.

"Then if you were doing nothing," said Olive, "why did you not come to meet the coach this morning, and escort me home? I felt so dismal when I saw the carriage was empty."

"Upon my word, Olive, I didn't know the carriage was gone for you," said Sir Hilton.

"My respected grandmother never said one word about your return. I never knew you were coming till you appeared to me here like a vision."

Olive laughed aloud. "Aunt did not know I was coming till last night," she said. "I have returned without orders I am not wanted here."

"Olive!" he ejaculated. "If I thought that any one, even my father's mother, dared to make you unwelcome in my house, I——"

"I am always welcome wherever I go," said Olive. "In five minutes from this time I mean to make Aunt thank me for coming. I know she has been dull ever since she sent me away. Who has been here? Have you had those Maristowes all this while,—the prude and her stately stick of a mother!"

A burning flush came over her cousin's face at these words. In his embarrassment he drew Olive closer to him and grasped her hand with nervous strength At that moment the door opened, and a well trained servant, standing respectfully at the portal, said in the soft, calm voice peculiar to the English domestic, "the horses are at the door, sir; and Miss Marristowe sent me to say she was waiting."

"I am coming," said Sir Hilton, biting his lip.

The servant closed the door, while the cousins looked at each other blankly. Olive was the first to laugh—"Oh, it does not matter, as we are cousins—that's just like brother and sister, you know."

"Of course it is," exclaimed Sir Hilton, eagerly; "and I hope you will always feel it so, Olive."

Olive turned her back on him, and walked to the window.

"I wish," she murmured, "you hadn't promised to ride with that tiresome Miss Maristowe on the very first day of my coming home."

But she spoke to the winds—her cousin was gone; and, gazing blankly from the window, she saw him in a moment lifting Eleanor Maristowe on her horse. What was there in this little act of courtesy that made Olive gasp for breath, and sent the blood to her heart in a rush of terror and anguish.

* * * * *

The green glades of Trewavas slope down to the sea, and honeysuckle and hawthorn, lilac and arbutus trail their branches on the beach, while the shadows of stately elm and oak fall across the waters. The waves are blue and limpid, clear as liquid crystal; so that far beneath the surface, down among the very depths, the eye watches delightedly the silvery fish, darting to and fro, and marks the glittering sands, white as snow, the rocks of serpentine flashing purple and green, and the many colored plants of the sea waving in a thousand shapes of beauty. The bay of Trewavas, like an inland lake, is shut in on nearly every side by green hills and sloping woods; and dotted around it like gems, lie the glistening sands of little sheltered coves, up which the waves roll lovingly, dancing in with a gentle murmur.

High up, on the sunniest slope of the fairest hill, stands the old mansion of Trewavas. It seems embowered with roses, so luxuriant are the flowers of every sort that cluster round its windows, and climb up to its old grey roof The garden, too, is lovely as a dream; green glades, soft as velvet, with here and there between the trees a vista opening to the sea, or a peep given for an instant of the great rugged hills far away, and then walls of leaf and flower shut them out again.

In this lovely nook of the west lived old Lady Trewavas, a stately dame of the old school, full of pride and kindness; and with her lived her two grandsons—Sir Hilton, a man not without faults, and kindly, simple John, who thought every man a Bayard, and every woman a saint; a good heart born to have unwisely and too well."

Olive Varcoe, a second cousin to the brothers, made one of the family at Trewavas. Utterly alone, but self-possessed, and wilful as an imp, she arrived in Cornwall at ten years of age, having come from Smyrna in a sailing vessel. She was put on board by the English consul, with letters and credentials for Lady Trewavas. The letter was from her nephew, Mr. Varcoe, who, at the point of death, implored his aunt to take pity on his little child.

Lady Trewavas might have hesitated, but the letter and the child reached her together; and the friendless and beautiful little creature, who with folded arms and flashing eyes stood defiantly before her, seemed to have no relative on earth but herself. Her father's letter made no mention of her mother; but it was easy to see, by Olive's blue-black hair and dark skin, that the mother have been of Eastern blood; and, though she might have been a wife, it was more probable that she was a slave.

Mr. Varcoe, all his life long, had been a strange, eccentric man, "everything by turns, and nothing long." Accident turned him to study astronomy; thence he diverged to astrology; and, in pursuit of his science, he traveled to the East, and never returned to England. He pretended to have penetrated deep secrets, and learned weighty things; but they certainly never benefitted his fortune, for at his death the small remnant of his once large property made only a scanty pittance for his child. Thinking pitifully of his poverty, and remembering, with over fresh and yearning affection, the sorrows, the love, and the short life of her only sister, Mr. Varcoe's mother, Lady Trewavas took Olive, and gave her a home.

The two grandsons, whom the untimely death of their parents had left entirely to her care, had no sister; hence this little Eastern child became their petted playmate. But as Olive grew older, Lady Trewavas became uneasy of this companionship. She had no wish to see Olive the wife of either of her cousins; hence she cleverly managed, after her fifteenth birthday, to keep them much apart. But her maternal instincts soon told her that John might see this fascinating cousin without danger; therefore she allowed him to come and go as he would at Trewavas, but his elder brother she kept as much as possible from home. His education, his Continental tour, his amusements, all had insured his absence; and during his brief visits Lady Trewavas fondly hoped that he regarded the wayward, wilful fairy of the household only as a sister. And we have seen how the old lady knew how to manœuvre. She could send Olive Varcoe on a visit, when Sir Hilton's stay was expected to be long, and she could fill her house with safer attractions.

Sir Hilton had known Eleanor Maristowe about two years; that is, he had seen her at intervals during that time, and every succeeding interview had strengthened the impression that her face had made. Her coldness and reserve wounded his pride, and he only the more earnestly resolve to win her. Longing to see him safely married, Lady Trewavas had, without his knowledge, warmly aided his wooing. Long before his last return home, she had invited Eleanor to Trewavas, and secured Olive's absence by procuring for her a judicious invitation to London. All this was well; but, in constantly having Eleanor for her guest, she had forgotten John. Thinking only of Sir Hilton, she had asked her to Trewavas as often during his absence as his presence; and the result was that simple, kindly John loved her with all the strength of his soul. And his life was wrecked; there was no hope left for him now but to hide his pain, and never touch the happiness of others with the shadow of his own grief.

One of the silvery beaches that gemmed the Bay of Trewavas fringed also a little creek, so sheltered from the winds that hawthorn bushes and wild roses grew in every cranny of the cliff, and the clear waves crept in with a gentle lap, lulling into dreams of happiness even the careworn and worldly.

The beach itself was almost inaccessible; walled in by cliffs, it could only be reached seawards, except by some adventurous climber, who cared neither for danger nor fatigue. On this warm spring day the sands glistened white in the sun, and no sign of life, either on sea or land, broke the beautiful loneliness of the scene. But soon a little boat put out from Trawavas, and a single rower with stout arms pulled steadily this solitary beach.

The rower was John Trewavas, who, impelled by that instinct of suffering which teaches man and animal alike to seek solitary places, had now set his face towards those lonely sands; but when he was about to spring ashore, hoping to find solitude and peace, he was startled to see the tiny figure of Olive Varcoe seated on a rock.

John was superstitious; and as he looked on the tiny creature, dressed in red and black, who sat perched on the very pinnacle of a rock, it seemed to him that he saw a veritable witch. The very place whereon she sat had a supernatural air about it. No mere woman, he thought, would have climbed to such a seat.

"How did you get on this beach?" he asked, looking about for her boat.

"I flew down," she replied.

"Olive, you cannot have descended this cliff!" exclaimed John, aghast with astonishment.

"But I did, though," persisted Olive. "Look at my hands."

She held forth her tiny hands, and showed them out and turn, and streaked with blood.

"The rocks are hard," she continued "and the thorn will pierce the flesh, as some trumpery poet says.

"Olive, you are certainly mad," said John; "I would not have a spirit like yours for worlds."

"Nor I like yours," she replied. "I am tired, John; take me in your boat, and row me home."

John threw down his oars, and jumped ashore to assist her; but before he had time even to stretch out his hand, she had made a daring spring, and alighted on the sands at his feet.

TRUE TO THE LAST.

CHAPTER I.

A FLICKERING WITCH.

"To me, Sir Hilton!—and you say this to me!"

"To you, Eleanor Maristowe, and to none other in the world. Why are you astonished? Have you not seen this long while that I love you?"

"No," said Eleanor, "I never dreamed of it. I thought that you loved an other."

"Then Eleanor, on my life you have wronged me!" he cried. "Whom did you suppose I loved? I have never seen any woman but you whom I could wish to make my wife."

The young girl to whom Sir Hilton Trewavas spoke thus earnestly was silent but her fair face was covered with blushes and the little hand resting in his trembled visibly.

"If could only believe you," she said at last, in a low voice; "if I could only think it was true."

"Tell me why you doubt me, Eleanor?" cried her lover, eagerly. "Let me defend myself. Of what do you accuse me?"

"I thought your cousin, Olive——"

"My cousin Olive!" he interrupted, fiercely. "What of her?"

The girl drew her hand from his, and turned away her face proudly.

"I see," she said, "you grow angry the moment I mention her name. Go back to your cousin Olive. I will never take another girl's lover from her."

"This is nonsense, Eleanor! I am not her lover. Has she dared to say so?"

"She has not quite said so," was the reply; "but her manner, and your manner——"

"My manner was that of a cousin," said he, "nothing more. Eleanor—dear Eleanor, hear me! Don't leave me; don't wreck my happiness for such a folly as this."

Eleanor Maristowe was stealing away from his side among the trees, but she came back at this appeal, and he seized her hand again.

"Eleanor," he exclaimed, "what can I say—what can I do to convince you of my truth?"

"And have you never loved Olive Varcoe?"

"No never," he replied. "Eleanor, do not make me hate the poor girl. Remember she is dependent on my bounty."

"I am sorry," said Eleanor, softly; "I would not say a word to injure her; but I assure you she has always implied to me that you loved her; therefor I have avoided you as much as I possibly could."

"And for this you have treated me so coldly, so cruelly! Eleanor, you owe me some amends. Say frankly now that you love me, and will be my wife."

"If Olive——"

"Fling Olive to the winds!" he interrupted. Say 'Yes,' Eleanor. I want that one word—'Yes.'"

"If you really love me, I say it—Yes. But if Olive has any place in your heart——"

"If?" said her lover. "I will have no 'ifs.' You are mine now."

He had her in his arms; and as his lips touched her, Eleanor forgot her jealousy, and the vision of Olive Varcoe's bright flashing face faded away.

* * * * *

"John, I am going to be married," said Sir Hilton Trewavas to his brother. "My bachelor days are nearly over. Congratulate me."

"I'll wait till I know who the lady is," said John, a great, easy, good natured fellow, slightly given to superstition and a few other weaknesses.

"Well, guess then who it is," said his brother.

"Do I know her, Hilton?"

"Slightly, I think."

"My dear brother," said John, "I hope it is not Olive Varcoe!"

"Why not? Is she not good enough for me?" he demanded sternly, the hearth, avoiding the elegantly dressed boy, who called out to him in a boyish voice to stop.

"The house is to John this morning, I believe," observed Hilton to himself. "He need not have gone off in that style; I had a hundred things to tell him."

A light step made him turn round and then he faced a tiny figure of a woman, so small, that she might have been a child, and so wonderfully attractive that she might have been a syren, or a witch, or a nymph, or all three in one.

"Olive!" exclaimed Sir Hilton.

"Yes, Olive," she repeated; "just arrived. Are you glad to see me?"

"I am always delighted to see the most charming of cousins," he replied.

"That means nothing," said Olive seating herself on a little footstool just in front of Sir Hilton. "I hate compliments. Say something true and kind, Cousin Hilton."

The tall, handsome man looked down on the little figure in slight embarrassment. She looked lovely, and she knew it, as she turned her large dark eyes up to his and smiled. One little hand rested on the large arm chair against which she leaned. It was covered with green velvet; and the contrast between this and her white fingers, her glossy black hair, coiled massively around her her head, and the folds of her pale pink dress, all made a picture, the beauty of which no one could appreciate more than her impulsive cousion.

"Upon my word black hair is the richest in the world," he said aloud, speaking his thoughts too frankly; and the color you have in your cheeks, Olive would shame a damask rose. You were born somewhere in the sun, I think, and dropped upon this world by mistake."

Olive had just said she did not like compliments, yet she made no objection to this speech; on the contrary her red lips broke into a smile, and her bright face was lit up with a flush of joy. She suddenly bent forward, and seizing Sir Hilton's hand, she impressed a kiss up on it. The young man colored to the roots of his hair, but he did not take his hand away from the ripe lips that lingered on it lovingly.

"That's to thank you," she said, "for your pretty compliment. Words are so tame, they never say anything that I want to express with my whole heart."

"It was a very pretty, cousinly act, Olive," returned Sir Hilton, a little gravely.

Olive's dark eyes flashed at Sir Hilton's words, and she flung his hand away with an angry gesture.

"There you have undone your kindness now," she said. "I understand you; I have not acted up to your stiff English notions of propriety. Wait—you shall not get a kiss from me again until you go on your knees for it. If you like prudes, go and flirt with Miss Maristowe."

"Miss Maristowe, will never let any man flirt with her, Olive," said Sir Hilton.

"Dear me!" said Olive. "She is too good I suppose,—a sort of angel in flounces. Well, leave her alone, if you won't flirt with her, I assure you, whether you do or not, it won't trouble me."

"Nothing troubles you, Olive," said he. "I really think you never cared for any human being in your life."

"No, I never cared for anybody but my dog Spot," she replied, "and he isn't a human being, is he? Look here, Sir Hilton—how do you like this new dance? I learnt it last week."

She displayed a pair of twinkling feet and danced a new Mazurka, twisting in and out between chairs and tables with marvellous grace.

"The dance is very pretty," said Sir Hilton. Who taught it to you?"

"A bear—a Russian bear," she replied, "rich and ugly. Oh Hilton, I had such a time in London."

"What, pleasant?" said Sir Hilton. "Balls, and concerts, and flirtations, I suppose, constantly!"

"Plenty of all that," replied Olive "But where was the pleasure? Oh, it was such a dreary time to me! I would rather be at Trewavas than. I would live in London, and go to parties every night."

"I don't believe that, Olive," said Sir Hilton.

"Oh yes, you do," said Olive; "you know it is true. Just try this dance, Hilton. I am sure I can teach it to you in five minutes."

He put his arm around her; he took her hand in his; the glossy coils of hair touched his cheek; the fragrance of her breath was upon him; the sweet voice rang in his ears; the lithe form was in his arms. Olive was a witch, and Sir Hilton was her victim.

"Stop, Olive," he said, at last, "we must be sensible. Let me go back to the house with you. Let me go back to the house with you."

"Stop, Olive," he said

ORANGEVILLE, MARCH 26, 1891.

Dr. Landerkin, the Liberal M.P. for South Grey, had a narrow escape from defeat at the recent election. A recount of the votes polled was held at Owen Sound on Tuesday and resulted in the Dr. holding his seat by 2 votes. In the previous election the Dr. was returned by a majority of 600. South Grey takes no stock in the Cartwright-Wilson annexation scheme.

MONO COUNCIL.

The Council met on the 12th March according to adjournment. Members all present. The Reeve in the chair. The minutes of last meeting read and adopted.

By-law No. 179, for the purpose of exempting dogs from being taxed within the municipality of Mono, was introduced and read the usual number of times, on motion of Mr. Island, seconded by Mr. Still, was ordered to pass, be engrossed by the Clerk, and signed and sealed by the Reeve.

By-law No. 180, for the purpose of appointing a local board of health, was introduced, and read a first and second time, and on motion of Mr. Still, seconded by Mr. Island, was ordered to be read a third time, be engrossed by the Clerk, and signed and sealed by the Reeve.

By-law No. 181, for the purpose of appointing overseers of highways, fence-viewers and pound keepers for the current year was laid before the council and read the usual number of times, and on motion of Mr. Island seconded by Mr. Dynes, was ordered to pass, be engrossed by the Clerk, and signed and sealed by the Reeve.

Referred petition of Hugh Bracken and others praying that a new school section be formed from parts of school sections No. 5, 6, 7 and 8 of this township was laid before the council, and on motion of Mr. Island, seconded by Mr. Reid, no action was taken on said petition.

Moved by Mr. Still, seconded by Mr. Island, that the sum of $40 be granted towards the support of a private school situated at Glen Cross, lot No. 10, con. 4, providing that said school be in operation during the winter season.

Treasurer's balance sheet and auditors' report for the year 1890 was laid before the council and accepted, and on motion of Mr. Dynes, seconded by Mr. Island, was ordered to be printed in the usual way.

Moved by Mr. Reid, seconded by Mr. Dynes, that Messrs. Still and Island be appointed to examine No. 10 side road across the 3rd. con., E. H. St., and report at next meeting of the council.

Moved by Mr. Still, seconded by Mr. Island, that leave be granted to John Brown to build a house for himself and family on the gore between the Hockley road and the Centre road, corner of lot No. 6, con 1, E. H. St., on condition that he pay a yearly rent of $1 per year and not to sublet the same, the township not to be liable for any improvements made on said premises.

Council adjourned to meet on the last Friday in May as a Court of Revision and other general business of the township.

ANDREW HENRY, Clerk.

The Cardwell petition, referred to heretofore in THE SUN, is meeting with a good deal of opposition. The Mono council, it seems, cannot handle the question satisfactorily. It will probably go before the county council and we hope that body will satisfactorily adjust the matter.

Mrs John Leighton gave another of her delightful teas on Tuesday afternoon of this week. Friends from town and elsewhere accepted Mrs. Leighton's hospitality and before refreshments were served busy feet beat time to the music of the violin, and vocalic organs and resting bones kept time to the music of the piano. Mrs Joseph Leighton will entertain friends next week!

Mr. James Armstrong has sold his 200 acre Cardwell farm to Mr. Sproul of Orangeville, and has bought another 200 acre farm from Mr. Clarke, of Caledon, near Charleston. Prior to his departure, friends from a distance generally congregated at his residence and presented him with a watch and chain, Mrs. Armstrong was given a beautiful hanging lamp. Good-bye, James, and may you turn over a new leaf and enroll thereon good deeds; and may the breezes of Caledon and the zephyrs of the coming summer play gently o'er thy placid countenance in thy new neighborhood.

DULCET.

A man named Hugh Foster of Toronto, aged 40, has got into trouble by marrying too often. He has a respectable wife and family in Milton. Last fall he left his family and went to Muskoka with a widow, and on 3rd March married a Miss Clarkson of Toronto township. Foster has been arrested.

HE TROUBLE AGAIN!

Henry L. Atkinson Fined for $1,000 Damages for Assaulting John Chambers.

In our last issue we referred to a disgraceful fight that took place in a Broadway hotel yard between a Mono farmer and a resident of this town. The farmer was none other than Henry L. Atkinson and the Orangeville citizen was John Chambers, a shoddy peddler who resides near the court house on Zina street. We suppressed their names with deference to the friends of the parties concerned, but now as the case has assumed more serious proportions THE SUN, as a leading public journal, is bound to keep its readers posted in everything that occurs.

Last Saturday, the 12th inst., Atkinson and Chambers, who are said to have been slightly intoxicated, met in the rear of an hotel and some hot words were exchanged. Words led to blows, and it is alleged Atkinson struck Chambers several times over the head with a loaded whip-stock. As a result of the fight, Chambers was laid up for several days. Chief Shields laid an information against the fighters, but for some reason unknown to us the case never came to trial. This week, however, we learn that Chambers has entered an action against Atkinson claiming $1,000 damages for injuries received during the fight and has retained George Tait Blackstock and E. F. B. Johnston of Toronto as his counsel. The case will be tried at the Peel assizes, which take place at Brampton on the 27th of April.

ARTHUR DAY'S SISTER,

Mrs. Quigley, Makes a Deathbed Confession—She was an Accomplice.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., March 19.—Mrs. Quigley, sister of Arthur Day, who was hanged at Welland, Ont., Dec. 16, 1890 for wife murder, and who was with him at Niagara Falls on Sunday, July 27, 1890, when he pushed his wife over the precipice, near the whirlpool, and was a witness against him on his trial, died here at 2 o'clock to day. On her deathbed she confessed to her mother that she had incited Arthur to the murder, and had helped him to commit the deed by aiding him in pushing his wife over. She held Mrs. Day's dress skirt over her head and pushed on one shoulder while Day pushed on the other. The mother told the story to a special detective officer here, but this evening positively denied having done it to an Associated Press reporter.

It will be remembered that just before his execution, Day wrote a letter to his sister, in which he vehemently upbraided her, telling her:—"You ought to be here instead of me, you liar. I hope you won't have a friend in Rochester; they ought to tar and feather you and ride you out of town on a rail." The letter in question closed thus:—"You are the cause of Deseriah's death, and you were the means of killing her, for you gave her some stuff to drink, and then you were the cause of her going over the cliff. Oh, how I wish it had been you instead of her, and then you were not satisfied with her death, but you hung me too. Oh, you hag, you hag, you hell-hound." Day also wrote a statement of his case, some eight or ten foolscap pages in length, and handed it to a reporter of a local paper for publication. It gave some facts regarding his life, and blamed his sister for bringing him to the gallows.

POLITICAL PROBLEMS.

Prince Napoleon died Tuesday morning.

The North Bruce recount confirmed Mr McNeil's election with a majority of 30.

The North Middlesex recount has left Mr. Hutchins, (Conservative) with a majority of six.

THE recount in South Wentworth resulted in the confirmation of Mr. Carpenter (Conservative) in the seat by a majority of one.

The Owen Sound Advertiser regretted very much that Sir John's government had been sustained, but sought "consolation" by the defeat of Hon G. E. Foster. Bro Little's "cause for consolation" exploded when Foster's minority was converted into a majority of 76.

The firm of Nesbitt & Blackell of Hamilton has received instructions to protest the election of J. M. Gibson, and the petitions will be filed with the Court of Appeal within a few days. The charge involves alleged bribery, shipping voters out of town, impersonation and illegal voting, hiring hacks and carriages and other breaches of the act.

CHARLESTON.

Mrs. T. T. King and daughter of Orangeville have been visiting friends in this vicinity for the past week.

A little snow bird has told us that we will have a wedding here ere the April showers fall. Guess who.

The many friends in this vicinity of Miss McKinnon, music teacher, will regret to hear that she is laid up with a severe attack of la grippe.

On Tuesday evening a large number of the members of Knox church, and friends of Mr. William Clark, license commissioner for the county of Peel, assembled and presented Mr. Clark with an illuminated address, accompanied by a gold headed cane, as an expression of regret at the removal to Orangeville of the recipient. Miss Clark, who has for many years been an earnest worker in the church, was presented with a beautiful gold watch and chain by the executive of the Sabbath school.

(Too late for last week.)

In Darkest Gloom.

Millions of men and women are in the dark gloom of disease. The way out is by using Burdock's Blood Bitters, a tried and sure remedy for dyspepsia, billiousness, constipation, scrofula, bad blood, and all diseases of the stomach, liver, bowels and blood.

MILLINERY OPENING.—Ladies, you are cordially invited to visit our millinery opening, Wednesday, April 1st, and following days.

JUDGE, CHAPMAN & Co.

BROTHERHOOD OF ST. ANDREW.—There has lately been formed in St. Mark's church a branch of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew which promises to be a very important organization for the interests of the church of England in this place.

THIS IS AWFUL.—We overheard a man remark the following on Tuesday: "There's no use of an honest man going to division court. Men will get up there and swear falsehoods. You can't blame the judge; he has to go by the evidence given, etc."—Shelburne Free Press.

GREAT SPRING WEATHER.—The weather during the past week has been simply beautiful, and we have no hesitation in saying that spring has come at last. A couple of more days of sunshine and the white mantle will disappear. P. S. The first robin appeared several days ago.

WARD ENUMERATORS.—The census enumerators appointed for Orangeville are: North ward, Collector Alex. Hughson; South ward, James Foulds; East ward, Robert Moore; West ward, James Dawson. The enumerators will go to Elora on Tuesday to receive instructions from Commissioner Hamilton as how to proceed.

OPENED UP.—Mr. Robt. Wilson, who succeeds Mr. W. J. Price in the boot and shoe business, will be found at the old stand, opposite the Commercial hotel, where he will be pleased to see all who may favor him with their patronage. Mr. W. is in business on his own book and you may rely on getting first class work.

R. S. WHITE IN TOWN.—On Monday Mr. R. S. White, Cardwell's M. P. arrived in town from Montreal and put up at the Queen's. Although his arrival in town was unheralded throughout the county scores of his friends dropped into grasp his good right hand and congratulate him on his re-election in Cardwell. He left by the evening train for home.

A VALUABLE STALLION.—Mr. C. W. Sydie has disposed of his six year-old chestnut stallion, Gold Leaf Jr, to Messrs. Mossury & Stears of Markdale for the handsome sum of $600. The purchasers also own his sire, old Gold Leaf. The valuable animal was taken to Markdale on Saturday. Mr. S is a lover of good horseflesh and he always has first-class samples.

[illegible] Hunter, aged 75 years, was in the act of taking water from a cistern when he suddenly fell forward and in nothing the [illegible] received inflicted caused instantaneous death. When found the body was completely submerged in water, but a medical examination brought out the fact that death was not caused by drowning, but resulted from a wound found on the head. Deceased was a brother of Mr. Thos Hunter, of Orangeville.

NEW GROCERY STORE.—In a few days Mr. P. J. Beech, formerly bookkeeper at Endacott Bros., and his brother Michael will open out a first-class stock of groceries, etc., in the store lately occupied by Shaw Bros. in THE SUN building, opposite the Paisley house. Mr. Beech is well known throughout the county, and as he has had several years' experience behind the counter the new firm will undoubtedly do a profitable business. We wish Messrs. Beech Bros. success.

THEM BROKES.—Mr. Joseph Webster, Amaranth, last week was assisting his brother William to remove from the Tucker farm, Eramosa, now occupied by John Gowdy, to Bracey's milk farm, near Guelph. After entering the gate at his brother's residence the horses refused to cross a gutter near the house, and Mr. Webster jumped out to lead them across. The horses made a sudden jump forward, knocked Mr. Webster down and trampled on him, breaking his thigh, and also injuring his ankle.—Guelph Herald.

AN OLD RESIDENT DEAD.—On Saturday night last Mr. William Suggitt died at his residence, west Broadway, after a prolonged illness. Deceased has been a resident of Orangeville for twenty years, and was an honest and respectable citizen. Mr. Suggitt was born in Leeds, England, in 1815 and emigrated to Canada in 1851 and settled in York township, where he lived for twenty years. After leaving the township of York he came to Orangeville and has remained here ever since. The funeral took place to the Town cemetery on Tuesday and was largely attended by sorrowing friends and relatives.

"A GREAT SPELLING MATCH."—The greatest spelling match on record is that offered by Our Homes Publishing Co., in which they will award the following magnificent CASH PRIZES:—One prize of $300; one prize of $200; two prizes of $100; four prizes of $50; eight prizes of $25; twenty prizes of $10; forty prizes of $5; one hundred prizes of $2; and two hundred of $1. These prizes will be awarded to the persons sending in the largest number of correctly spelled words found in the advertising pages of the February number of Our Homes, in which no letters occur but those found in the sentence: "Our Homes, is Unrivalled as a Home Magazine." Special cash prizes will be given away each day and cash week during this competition, which closes April 25th, 1891. Send 10 cents in stamps or silver, for a sample copy of the February number, with rules and regulations governing the competition. Address, OUR HOMES PUB. CO., Brockville, Ont.

THAT LIBEL CASE.—The last stage was reached in the celebrated libel case of the Credit Foncier Franco-Canadian Loan Co. against Mr. Enoch Price, a farmer residing near Marsville, East Garafraxa, at the Toronto assizes on Tuesday. THE SUN's readers are already familiar with the details of of this case. Mr. Price secured a loan of $6,000 from the company and when he repaid it last winter he claimed they charged him too much. The company, on the other hand, disputed Price's claim, and the latter inserted an ad in THE SUN warning intending borrowers to give this company a wide berth. The company at once informed the editor of this journal that they would bring an action against us for damages for libel. The defendant was also notified to retract his assertions. Our explanation of THE SUN's connection with case satisfied the company, but Mr. Price refused to retract any of his statements, and, as a result, the Foncier people issued a writ for libel, claiming $2 000 damages. The case has been adjourned several times, but it was finally settled Tuesday. The jury returned a verdict awarding the company damages to the extent of $1. The object of such damages was to insure costs, which amount to something like $500 and which Price will have to pay. The judge in reviewing the evidence went strongly in favor of the plaintiffs, clearly showing that they and their Orangeville agent, Mr. W. Still, acted honorably with the defendant in regard to loan. B. B. Osler looked after the plaintiffs interests, while Mr. W. J. L. McKay, handled the defence.

DEATH OF MR. JOHN POLLEY.—It is our painful duty to record the death of Mr. John Polley, late deputy reeve of Melancthon, which took place on Friday last. Mr. Polley was respected by everybody and he was without doubt the most popular man in the township of Melancthon. The deceased in his younger days taught school for a year or two, but not liking the profession he gave it up and devoted his attention to farming. He was also secretary-treasurer of the Melancthon Agricultural Society for about 18 years and on account of his health resigned the position a little over a year ago. Mr. Polley was respected by all who knew him because of his many good qualities and his death has cast a gloom over the community for miles around. He never made an enemy—he never was heard to speak ill of a neighbor. He was a faithful husband, a kind father, a true friend, generous to a fault, and an active and enterprising citizen. For the past year the deceased had been in poor health and his death was not unexpected. He was a little over 40 years of age and leaves a young wife and family. The funeral was held on Monday afternoon and it was the largest ever seen in this place. The deceased was a member of Lakelet lodge A. O. U. W., Hornings Mills, and the funeral services were conducted by the lodge. The friends of the deceased have our heartfelt sympathy in their sore bereavement.—Shelburne Free Press.

Thos Maas, of Waldemar, has a dog that he will match against any other menace in the section for speed. The other day at Grand Valley Station Colley thought the engine was a fast stier in stopping, so he undertook to bring it to a standstill by barking at the cars and catching them with his teeth. After the train stopped he got under one of the cars to take a rest but forgot to come out again before the engine started off. The dog then attempted to get out but he could not do so so he made up his mind to test his speed and run to Waldemar under the car and came out safe and sound and thought the speed of the C. P. R. was not so great after all. The C. P. R. may get the best of its opponent yet.

A DISCOVERY IMPORTANT TO LADIES.
The political battle is over, but the battle with disease must be constantly and unceasingly waged else the grim reaper will come out victorious, and loved ones will be consigned to their long home. On all sides may be seen pale and listless girls who should be enjoying the health and glow of rosy youth. Everywhere we are met with women young in years, yet prematurely old, who suffer in silence almost untold agonies, the result of those ailments peculiar to the female system. To all such, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills come as a blessing. They restore wasted vitality, build up the nervous system, enrich the blood, and transform pale and sallow complexions into glowing, rosy cheeks that alone follow perfect health. In a word they are a certain cure for all those distressing complaints to which women and girls are peculiarly liable. A trial of these pills will convince the most sceptical of their wonderful merit. For suffering men Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are equally efficacious. For over work, mental strain, loss of sleep, nervous debility, and all those diseases that lead to broken down manhood, they are a certain specific, stimulating the brain, reinforcing the exhausted system and restoring shattered vitality. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are nature's restorative and should be used by every weak and debilitated person. For sale by all dealers or sent post paid on receipt of price (50 cents a box) by addressing the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CARDWELL.

Postmaster Jackson is recovering from the effects of la grippe.

Miss Katie Craig of Sand Hills is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Wm. Jackson.

Mrs. R. S. White of Montreal was visiting at Mrs. R. Jackson's a few days ago.

Miss Nellie Burt has returned from Kingston to spend her holidays. She is recuperating from a severe illness.

The Cardwell petition, referred to heretofore in THE SUN, is meeting with a good deal of opposition. The Mono council, it seems, cannot handle the question satisfactorily. It will probably go before the county council and we hope that body will satisfactorily adjust the matter.

Mrs. John Leighton gave another of her delightful teas on Tuesday forenoon of this week. Friends form town and elsewhere accepted Mrs. Leighton's hospitality and before refreshments were served busy feet beat time to the music of the violin, and vocalic organs and reeting bones kept time to the music of the piano. Mrs. Joseph Leighton will entertain friends next week!

Mr. James Armstrong has sold his 200 acre Cardwell farm to Mr. Sproul, of Orangeville, and has bought another 200 acre farm from Mr. Charles, of Caledon, near Charleston. Prior to his departure, friends from a distance generally congregated at his residence and presented him with a watch and chain. Mrs. Armstrong was given a beautiful hanging lamp. Good-bye, James, and may you turn over a new leaf and enroll thereon good deeds; and may the breezes of Caledon and the zephyrs of the coming summer play gently o'er thy placid countenance in thy new neighborhood.

DULCET.

A man named Hugh Foster of Toronto, aged 40, has got into trouble by marrying too often. He has a respectable wife and family in Milton. Last fall he left his family and went to Muskoka with a widow, and on 3rd March married a Miss Clarkson of Toronto township. Foster has been arrested.

Capt. Chambers was held up for several days. Chief Shields laid an information against the fighters, but for some reason unknown to us the case never came to trial. This week, however, we learn that Chambers has entered an action against Atkinson claiming $1,000 damages for injuries received during the fight and has retained George Tate Blackstock and M. F. B. Johnston of Toronto as his counsel. The case will be tried at the Peel assizes, which take place at Brampton on the 27th of April.

ARTHUR DAY'S SISTER,

Mrs. Quigley, Makes a Deathbed Confession—She was an Accomplice.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., March 19.—Mrs. Quigley, sister of Arthur Day, who was hanged at Welland, Ont., Dec. 16, 1890 for wife murder, and who was with him at Niagara Falls on Sunday, July 27, 1890, when he pushed his wife over the precipice, near the whirlpool, and was a witness against him on his trial, died here at 2 o'clock to day. On her deathbed she confessed to her mother that she had incited Arthur to the murder, and had helped him to commit the deed by sliding him in pushing his wife over. She held Mrs. Day's dress skirt over her head and pushed on one shoulder while Day pushed on the other. The mother told the story to a special detective officer here, but this evening positively denied having done it to an Associated Press reporter.

It will be remembered that just before his execution, Day wrote a letter to his sister, in which he vehemently upbraided her, telling her:—"You ought to be here instead of me, you liar. I hope you won't have a friend in Rochester; they ought to tar and feather you and ride you out of town on a rail." The letter is question closed thus:—"You are the cause of Desariah's death, and you were the means of killing her, for you gave her some stuff to drink, and then you were the cause of her going over the cliff. Oh, how I wish it had been you instead of her, and then you were not satisfied with her death, but you hung me too. Oh, you hag, you hag, you hell-hound." Day also wrote a statement of his case, some eight or ten foolscap pages in length, and handed it to a reporter of a local paper for publication. It gave some facts regarding his life, and blamed his sister for bringing him to the gallows.

POLITICAL PROBLEMS.

Prince Napoleon died Tuesday morning.

The North Bruce recount confirmed Mr. McNeil's election with a majority of 30.

The North Middlesex recount has left Mr. Hutchins, (Conservative) with a majority of six.

THE recount in South Wentworth resulted in the confirmation of Mr. Carpenter (Conservative) in the seat by a majority of one.

The Owen Sound Advertiser regretted very much that Sir John's government had been sustained, but sought "consolation" by the defeat of Hon G. E. Foster. Bro Little's "cause for consolation" exploded when Foster's minority was converted into a majority of 76.

The firm of Nesbitt & Blackwell of Hamilton has received instructions to protest the election of J. M. Gibson, and the petitions will be filed with the Court of Appeal within a few days. The charge involves alleged bribery, shipping voters out of town, impersonation and illegal voting, hiring hacks and carriages and other breaches of the act.

CHARLESTON.

Mrs. T. T. King and daughter of Orangeville have been visiting friends in this vicinity for the past week.

A little snow bird has told us that we will have a wedding here ere the April showers fall. Guess who.

The many friends in this vicinity of Miss McKinnon, music teacher, will regret to hear that she is laid up with a severe attack of la grippe.

On Tuesday evening a large number of the members of Knox church, and friends of Mr. William Clark, license commissioner for the county of Peel, assembled and presented Mr. Clark with an illuminated address, accompanied by a gold headed cane, as an expression of regret at the removal to Orangeville of the recipient. Miss Clark, who has for many years been an earnest worker in the church, was presented with a beautiful gold watch and chain by the executive of the Sabbath school.

(Too late for last week.)

The remains of 18-year-old Earnest Henry of Toronto, formerly of this town, were interred in Mitchell's burying-ground, Mono, on Saturday.

Mr. James Macdonald has been awarded the contract of constructing another exit from the town hall. His tender of $50 being the lowest was accepted by the T. P. committee.

Early service was held in the Methodist church at 6 o'clock last Sunday morning. Service will also be held at the same hour next Sunday morning.

A 200 acre farm in Mono is advertised for sale in this week's SUN. For particulars address James McQuarrie, Orangeville, or Mulock, Miller, Crowther & Montgomery, barristers, Toronto.

MILLINERY OPENING.—Ladies, you are cordially invited to visit our millinery opening, Wednesday, April 1st, and following days.

JUDGE, CHAPMAN & CO.

BROTHERHOOD OF ST. ANDREW.—There has lately been formed in St. Mark's church a branch of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew which promises to be a very important organization for the interests of the church of England in this place.

THIS IS AWFUL.—We overheard a man remark the following on Tuesday: "There's no use of an honest man going to division court. Men will get up there and swear falsehoods. You can't blame the judge; he has to go by the evidence given, etc."—Shelburne Free Press.

GREAT SPRING WEATHER.—The weather during the past week has been simply beautiful, and we have no hesitation in saying that spring has come at last. A couple of more days of sunshine and the white mantle will disappear. P. S. The first robin appeared several days ago.

WARD ENUMERATORS.—The census enumerators appointed for Orangeville are: North ward, Collector Alex. Hughson; South ward, James Foulds; East ward, Robert Moore; West ward, James Dawson. The enumerators will go to Elora on Tuesday to receive instructions from Commissioner Hamilton as how to proceed.

OPENED UP.—Mr. Robt. Wilson, who succeeds Mr. W. J. Price in the boot and shoe business, will be found at the old stand, opposite the Commercial hotel, where he will be pleased to see all who may favor him with their patronage. Mr. W. is in business on his own hook and you may rely on getting first class work.

R. S. WHITE IN TOWN.—On Monday Mr. R. S. White, Cardwell's M. P., arrived in town from Montreal and put up at the Queen's. Although his arrival in town was unheralded throughout the county scores of his friends dropped into grasp his good right hand and congratulate him on his re-election in Cardwell. He left by the evening train for home.

A VALUABLE STALLION.—Mr. C. W. Sydie has disposed of his six year-old chestnut stallion, Gold Leaf Jr., to Messrs. Menary & Stears of Markdale for the handsome sum of $600. The purchasers also own his sire, old Gold Leaf. The valuable animal was taken to Markdale on Saturday. Mr. S is a lover of good horseflesh and he always has first-class samples.

brother William, to remove from the Tucker farm, Brampton, now occupied by John Gandy, to Bromy's milk farm, near Guelph. After entering the gate at his brother's residence the horses refused to enter a gutter near the house, and Mr. Webster jumped out to lead them across. The horses made a sudden jump forward, knocked Mr. Webster down and trampled on him, breaking his thigh and also fracturing his ankle.—Guelph Herald.

AN OLD RESIDENT DEAD.—On Saturday night last Mr. William Scright died at his residence, west Broadway, after a prolonged illness. Deceased has been a resident of Orangeville for twenty years, and was an honest and respectable citizen. Mr. Scright was born in Leeds, England, in 1815 and emigrated to Canada in 1851 and settled in York township, where he lived for twenty years. After leaving the township of York he came to Orangeville and has remained here ever since. The funeral took place to the Town cemetery on Tuesday and was largely attended by sorrowing friends and relatives.

"A GREAT SPELLING MATCH."—The greatest spelling match on record is that offered by Our Homes Publishing Co., in which they will award the following magnificent CASH PRIZES:—One prize of $300; one prize of $200; two prizes of $100; four prizes of $50; eight prizes of $25; twenty prizes of $10; forty prizes of $5; one hundred prizes of $2; and two hundred of $1. These prizes will be awarded to the persons sending in the largest number of correctly spelled words found in the advertising pages of the February number of Our Homes, in which no letters occur but those found in the sentence: "Our Homes, is Unrivalled as a Home Magazine." Special cash prizes will be given away each day and each week during this competition, which closes April 25th, 1891. Send 10 cents in stamps or silver, for a sample copy of the February number, with rules and regulations governing the competition. Address, OUR HOMES PUB. CO., Brockville, Ont.

THAT LIBEL CASE.—The last straw was reached in the celebrated libel case of the Credit Foncier Franco-Canadian Loan Co. against Mr. Enoch Price, a farmer residing near Marsville, East Garafraxa, at the Toronto assizes on Tuesday. THE SUN's readers are already familiar with the details of of this case. Mr. Price secured a loan of $6,000 from the company and when he repaid it last winter he claimed they charged him too much. The company, on the other hand, disputed Price's claim, and the latter inserted an ad in THE SUN warning intending borrowers to give this company a wide berth. The company at once informed the editor of this journal that they would bring an action against us for damages for libel. The defendant was also notified to retract his assertions. Our explanation of THE SUN's connection with case satisfied the company, but Mr. Price refused to retract any of his statements, and, as a result, the Foncier people issued a writ for libel, claiming $2,000 damages. The case has been adjourned several times, but it was finally settled Tuesday. The jury returned a verdict awarding the company damages to the extent of $1. The object of such damages was to insure costs, which amount to something like $500 and which Price will have to pay. The judge in reviewing the evidence went strongly in favor of the plaintiffs, clearly showing that they and their Orangeville agent Mr. W. Still, acted honestly with the defendant in regard to loan. B. B. Osler looked after the plaintiffs interests, while Mr. W. J. L. McKay handled the defence.

DEATH OF MR. JOHN POLLEY.—It is our painful duty to record the death of Mr. John Polley, late deputy reeve of Melancthon, which took place on Friday last. Mr. Polley was respected by everybody and he was without doubt the most popular man in the township of Melancthon. The deceased in his younger days taught school for a year or two, but not liking the profession he gave it up and devoted his attention to farming. He was also secretary-treasurer of the Melancthon Agricultural Society for about 18 years and on account of his health resigned the position a little over a year ago. Mr. Polley was respected by all who knew him because of his many good qualities and his death has cast a gloom over the community for miles around. He never made an enemy—he never was heard to speak ill of a neighbor. He was a faithful husband, a kind father, a true friend, generous to a fault, and an active and enterprising citizen. For the past year the deceased had been in poor health and his death was not unexpected. He was a little over 40 years of age and leaves a young wife and family. The funeral was held on Monday afternoon and it was the largest ever seen in this place. The deceased was a member of Lakelet lodge A. O. U. W., Hornings Mills, and the funeral services were conducted by the lodge. The friends of the deceased have our heartfelt sympathy in their sore bereavement.—Shelburne Free Press.

McMaster is still engaged with the Oak Harvest Co., and reports business brisk.

BOWLING GREEN.

Messrs. Geo Rounding of this place and Geo. Brown of Laurel left last Friday for British Columbia. We wish them success.

Oh dit.—Three weddings in this vicinity by this week.

Mr. R. Smith is about removing to Orangeville Junction, where he will reside.

For the past two years Mrs. George Hill has been suffering intense pain from the effects of a sore head. Last week Dr. Groves of Forgue operated on the afflicted member and removed therefrom several small pieces of bone. We are happy to state the sufferer is now rapidly recovering.

TARBERT.

(Too late for last week.)

The grip has almost disappeared from around here.

We see that Constable Hubbard has been out through Amaranth this week. The evil doers should give him a wide berth.

Mr. Hugh Macdougal is going to remove to Manitoba shortly, where he expects to make his fortune. May good-wishes go with Hugh.

On Wednesday last Mr George Riley, of the township of Luther, was married to Miss Ester Ritchie, youngest daughter of Robert Ritchie, Esq., of the 10th line, Amaranth. The ceremony took place at Grand Valley, after which the happy couple left for the home of the bride's father. Your correspondents wishes them happiness and prosperity.

MONO MILLS.

Mr. J. Downs, of Lockton, has taken possession of the Duggan house. We wish him success.

On Wednesday evening, the 11th inst., the members of the football club met at Aldons' hotel for the election of officers. The following is the list: President, Dr. Bonnar; vice-pres., J. Aldous; secy-treas., A. R. Mills; capt., T. Langford; managing committee, W. Kee, O. Potter, and J. Hazzard. After the transaction of some business an oyster supper was partaken of which was served in good style by mine host and hostess of the Aldons house.

The wedding of Miss Frances Uretta Fox, daughter of Rev. Thomas Fox, Toronto, formerly of this village, and Mr. Albert Jacobs took place on Thursday last. The ceremony was performed in the Methodist church, King street, Toronto, by Rev. Thos. Fox, father of the bride. Miss Henry, of Orangeville, acted as bridesmaid, while Dr. Bonnar, o this village, supported the groom. A host of friends in this vicinity will wish her every happiness in her new sphere.

On Wednesday the residence of Thos Potter, Esq., Caledon, was the scene of a very happy event, being the marriage of his daughter, Miss Mary, to to Mr. George McManus, of the 5th line, Mono Rev. Mr. Orr performed the ceremony in the presence of a large and fashionable assemblage. The bride was elegantly attired in a white silk dress and was assisted by Miss Snell, of Orangeville, who was tastefully attired in cream cashmere and satin, the groom being supported by his brother, Mr. W. F McManus, of Detroit. The wedding breakfast was very tastefully gotten up and the young couple, amid general congratulations, left on a bridal tour to Chicago and other points.

Misery vs. Comfort.

Misery is one result of billiousness or liver complaint. Comfort is the first result always obtained. We back this with the strongest proof by testimonials from reliable Canadian people.

Dr. Nelson of A Battery Kingston, is treating a number of diseases with hypnotism. By means of the new science he has been able to reform a number of drunkards.

A case of a very grave nature was heard at Brampton on Friday before Justice George Graham. Information was laid which led to the arrest of John Lay on the charge of committing assault on Maggie Cumiee on the 11th inst. Both are about eighteen years of age, and are employed on the farm of Mr. John Might. Maggie, who is a strong, healthy-looking girl, has borne an excellent character. Lay is somewhat coarse looking, and has not the best character. He was committed for trial.

Should be Loosened.

A cough should be loosened at once and all irritation allayed. To do this nothing excells Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. Obstinate coughs yield at once to its expectorant, soothing and healing properties, which loosen phlegm and allay irritation.

If you want to borrow any money you had better go to D. B. Brown, as he is always to the front with the cheap money.

A DISCOVERY IMPORTANT TO LADIES.

The political battle is over, but the battle with disease must be constantly and unceasingly waged else the grim reaper will come out victorious, and loved ones will be consigned to their long home. On all sides may be seen pale and listless girls who should be enjoying the health and glow of rosy youth. Everywhere we are met with women young in years, yet prematurely old, who suffer in silence almost untold agonies, the result of those ailments peculiar to the femal system. To all such, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills come as a blessing. They restore wasted vitality, build up the nervous system, enrich the blood, and transform pale and sallow complexions into glowing, rosy cheeks that alone follow perfect health. In a word they are a certain cure for all these distressing complaints to which women and girls are peculiarly liable. A trial of these pills will convince the most sceptical of their wonderful merit. For suffering men Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are equally efficacious. For over work, mental strain, loss of sleep, nervous debility, and all those diseases that lead to broken down manhood, they are a certain specific, stimulating the brain, reinforcing the exhausted system and restoring shattered vitality. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are nature's restorative and should be used by every weak and debilitated person. For sale by all dealers or sent post paid on receipt of price (50 cents a box) by addressing the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THOUSANDS OF LIVES LOST.

Poets and patriots go into ecstacies over what they romantically call "beautiful spring time," and "spring opens," and "spring is here," and "spring, glorious spring," and so on, so much, every one is glad to see the fleecy grass, beautiful flowers, after all, one of the most tantalizing seasons of the year. Sudden transitions from warm to cold, with piercing spring winds; from dry to sloppy, unpleasant weather, all combine to make the season a most trying one, even to the hardiest constitution, while to those with weak constitutions the season is one of positive danger. Undoubtedly the greatest danger at this season of the year is from cold in the head, which very few escape, and which if not promptly and thoroughly treated, develops into catarrh, with all its disagreeable and loathsome effects. Catarrh, neglected, almost as certainly develops into consumption, annually destroying thousands of lives. At this trying season no household should be without a bottle of Nasal Balm. In cases of cold in the head it gives almost instant relief and effects a speedy cure, thus preventing the development of catarrh. Where the latter disease has already secured a hold it is equally efficacious, and with persistent use will cure the worst case. From the outset it sweetens the breath, stops the nauseous droppings into the throat and lungs, dispels those dull headaches that afflict the sufferer from catarrh. Nasal Balm is not advertised as a cure all—it is an honest remedy which never fails to cure cold in the head or catarrh when the directions are faithfully followed, and thousands throughout the country have reason to bless its discovery. Nasal Balm may be had from all dealers or will be sent post paid on receipt of price (50 cents, small, or $1, large size bottle) by addressing Fulford & Co., Brockville Ont.

The great love tenderness I have hitherto expressed for you is false, and I now feel that my indifference towards you increases proportionately every day, and the more I see you the more you appear ridiculous and an object of contempt and the more I feel alienated, mortified and deeply threatened, to hate you. Believe me, I never had the slightest intention to offer you my hand and heart. Yes, Madam, and you will much oblige me by avoiding me, and if ever we are united, I shall experience nothing but the fearful hatred of my parents, added to an everlasting displeasure of living with you. Yes, Madam, I think sincerely. You need not put yourself to the excellent trouble of send or write me an answer. Adieu. ## By-Law No. [illegible]

A BY-LAW to provide for Draining Certain Parts of the Township of Amaranth, by the Construction of Five Drains and for borrowing on the credit of the Municipality the sum of $2,061.04 for completing the same.

Provisionally adopted, 28th day of February, A.D. 1891.

WHEREAS a majority in number of the owners as shown by the last revised Assessment Roll, of the property hereinafter set forth, to be benefited by the drainage thereof have petitioned the Council of the said Township of Amaranth, praying that the Council will take the necessary steps to have certain portions of the Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Ninth and Tenth Concessions, lying north of Ten Side line, in the Township of Amaranth, drained in accordance with the provisions of Chapter 184, R. S. O. 1887.

AND WHEREAS thereupon the said Council procured an examination to be made by Charles R. Wheelock, being a person competent for such purpose, of the said locality proposed to be Drained, and has also procured plans and estimates of the work to be made by the said Charles R. Wheelock, and an assessment to be made by him of the real property to be benefited by such Drainage, stating, as nearly as he can, the proportion of benefit, which in his opinion will be derived in consequence of such Drainage by every Road or Lot, or portion of Lot; the said Assessment so made, being the assessment hereinafter by this By-Law enacted to be assessed and levied upon the lots and parts of lots hereinafter in that behalf especially set forth and described, and the report of the said Charles R. Wheelock in respect thereof, and of the said Drainage, being as follows:—

To the Reeve and Council of the Township of Amaranth:

GENTLEMEN.—I herewith submit the Plans, Profiles, Specifications and Estimates of five Drains laid out by me in the Township of Amaranth, which I consider beneficial to the Roads and Lands through which they pass.

I have the honor to be Gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,
CHARLES R. WHEELOCK,
Engineer in Charge.

Orangeville, February 26th, A. D. 1891.

AND WHEREAS the said Council are of opinion that the drainage of the locality described is desirable.

Be it therefore enacted by the said Municipal Council of the said Township of Amaranth pursuant to the provisions of the Municipal Act, R.S.O., chapter 184.

1st. That the said report, plans, and estimates be adopted, and the said Drain and the works connected therewith, be made and constructed in accordance therewith.

2nd. That the Reeve of the said Township may borrow on the credit of the Corporation of the said Township the of Amaranth the sum Two Thousand and Sixty one Dollars and Four cents, being the funds necessary for the work, and may issue Debentures of the Corporation to that amount, in sums of not less than One Hundred Dollars each, and payable within fifteen years from the date thereof, with interest at the rate of four per cent. per annum, that is to say in fifteen annual instalments each Debentures to be payable at the Bank of Toronto, in Toronto, and to have attached to them Coupons for the payment of interest.

3rd. That for the purpose of paying the sum of One Thousand Nine Hundred and Forty eight Dollars, being the amount charged against the said lands as to be benefited as aforesaid, other than roads belonging to the Municipality, and to cover interest thereon for fifteen years at the rate of four per cent. per annum, the following special rates, over and above all other rates, shall be assessed and levied (in the same manner and at the same time as taxes are levied) upon the undermentioned Lots and part of Lots; and the amount of the said special rates and interest assessed as aforesaid against each Lot or part of Lot respectively shall be divided into fifteen equal parts, and one such part shall be assessed and levied as aforesaid, in each year, for fifteen years after the final passing of this By Law, during which the said Debentures have to run.

4th. For the purpose of paying the sum of One Hundred and Thirteen Dollars, and Four cents, being the total amount assessed against the said Roads of said Municipality, and to cover interest thereon for fifteen years at the rate of four per cent. per annum a sufficient special rate of One hundredredth of one mill in the dollar shall, over and above all other rates, be levied (in the same rate and manner and at the same time as taxes are levied) upon the whole ratable property in the said Township of Amaranth in each year for the period of fifteen years after the date of the final passing of the By-Law, during which the said Debentures have to run.

5th. That the Council are hereby appointed Commissioners to let the contract for completing the said Drains and works connected therewith, by public sale to the lowest bidder (not exceeding the estimate); but every such contractor, with one good and satisfactory surety shall be required forthwith to enter into bonds, for the due performance and completion of contract according to said plans and specifications, and within the time mentioned in such bond, unless otherwise ordered by the Council; and it shall be the duty of the said Commissioners to cause said Drain and works connected therewith, to be made and constructed in accordance with such plans and specifications, not later than the First day of October, A. D. 1891, (unless otherwise ordered by the Council); and to grant orders on the Treasurer to each Contractor, less 25 per cent of the amount due until the contract is fully completed and duly accepted; and for the due performance of those and all other duties of Commissioners the said Commissioners shall be entitled to receive a salary of two dollars per day.

.....Reeve.

.....Treasurer.

I hereby certify that the foregoing is a true copy of a By Law provisionally passed by the Municipal Council of the said township of Amaranth on the 28th day of Feburary, A. D. 1891.

NOTICE.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, that a Court of Revision will be held at the Town Hall, Laurel, on Saturday, the 4th day of April, A. D. 1891, at the hour of Ten o'clock A. M., for the hearing and trial of appeals made against the above Assessment or any part thereof, in the manner provided by "The Assessment Act of 1869," and amendments thereto; a notice of such appeal to be served on the Clerk of this Municipality at least eight days before the meeting of said Court.

And further notice is hereby given, that any one intending to apply to have such By Law, or any part thereof quashed, must, within ten days after the final passing thereof, serve a notice in writing upon the Reeve or other head officer, and upon the Clerk of the Municipality, of his intention to make application for that purpose to the High Court at Toronto, during the six weeks succeeding the final passing of this By law.

M. G. VARCOE,
Township Clerk.

Dated at Laurel, this 28th day of February, A. D. 1891.

Norton.—I will not be responsible for any debts contracted in my name without my written order ANDREW HUGHSON. East Garafraxa, March, 19, 1891.

A family at Lingston were almost poisoned to death one day last week by eating canned sardines.

At the Guelph assizes last week, Wm. Coutts, the man who drowned his son in a cistern at Mt. Forest a few months ago, was found not guilty. The jury believed the prisoner to be insane, and he will be removed to an asylum.

Consider This Fact.

THE fact that rheumatism is caused by an acid in the blood points to the remedy Burdock Blood Bitters, which removes all impurities from the blood not only poisonous rheumatic humors but even obstinate scrofulous and cancerous taints.

An effort is being made to have Mr. A. Fraser of Milton appointed license inspector. The salary is about $400.

Saturday an Orillia lady entered the post office to post a letter. Opening her pocketbook she took therefrom a piece of corn plaster (mistaking it for a three-cent stamp), and stuck it on the letter. On retiring at night she put the stamp on her corn, and of course the letter turned up dead and the corn is still alive.

Orangeville, February 20th, A. D. 1891.

AND WHEREAS the said Council are of opinion that the drainage of the locality described is desirable.

Be it therefore enacted by the said Municipal Council of the said Township of Amaranth pursuant to the provisions of the Municipal Act, R.S.O., chapter 184.

1st. That the said report, plans, and estimates be adopted, and the said Drain and the works connected therewith, be made and constructed in accordance therewith.

2nd. That the Reeve of the said Township may borrow on the credit of the Corporation of the said Township the of Amaranth the sum Two Thousand and Sixty one Dollars and Four cents, being the funds necessary for the work, and may issue Debentures of the Corporation to that amount, in sums of not less than One Hundred Dollars each, and payable within fifteen years from the date thereof, with interest at the rate of four per cent. per annum, that is to say in fifteen annual instalments each Debenture to be payable at the Bank of Toronto, in Toronto, and to have attached to them Coupons for the payment of interest.

3rd. That for the purpose of paying the sum of One Thousand Nine Hundred and Forty eight Dollars, being the amount charged against the said lands as to be benefited as aforesaid, other than roads belonging to the Municipality, and to cover interest thereon for fifteen years at the rate of four per cent. per annum, the following special rates, over and above all other rates, shall be assessed and levied (in the same manner and at the same time as taxes are levied) on the undermentioned Lots and part of Lots; and the amount of the said special rates and interest assessed as aforesaid against each Lot or part of Lot respectively shall be divided into fifteen equal parts, and one such part shall be assessed and levied as aforesaid, in each year, for fifteen years after the final passing of this By Law, during which the said Debentures have to run.

4th. For the purpose of paying the sum of One Hundred and Thirteen Dollars, and Four cents, being the total amount assessed against the said Roads of said Municipality, and to cover interest thereon for fifteen years at the rate of four per cent. per annum a sufficient special rate of One hundredredth of one mill in the dollar shall, over and above all other rates, be levied (in the same rate and manner and at the same time as taxes are levied) upon the whole rateable property in the said Township of Amaranth in each year for the period of fifteen years after the date of the final passing of the By-Law, during which the said Debentures have to run.

5th. That the Council are hereby appointed Commissioners to let the contract for completing the said Drains and works connected therewith, by public sale to the lowest bidder (not exceeding the estimate); but every such contractor, with one good and satisfactory surety shall be required forthwith to enter into bonds, for the due performance and completion of contract according to said plans and specifications, and within the time mentioned in such bond, unless otherwise ordered by the Council; and it shall be the duty of the said Commissioners to cause said Drain and works connected therewith, to be made and constructed in accordance with such plans and specifications, not later than the First day in October, A. D. 1891. (unless otherwise ordered by the Council); and to grant orders on the Treasurer to each Contractor, less 25 per cent of the amount due until the contract is fully completed and duly accepted; and for the due performance of those and all other duties of Commissioners the said Commissioners shall be entitled to receive a salary of two dollars per day.

.....Reeve.

.....Treasurer.

I hereby certify that the foregoing is a true copy of a By Law provisionally passed by the Municipal Council of the said township of Amaranth on the 28th day of February, A. D. 1891.

WHAT SHE WANTED.

She didn't want a corner lot way out in Kansas City,
She didn't want a Turkish rug; she didn't think them pretty,
She hadn't any use for oil, for chromos or for water;
She stuck her nose up at dresses worn by Jones' daughters.
She just detested diamonds, and thought jewelry vulgar;
She had no here for ornaments, Romanism or Pulgar;
She wouldn't drive in a coach and four, although she might have had 'em,
But trudged along the street, as did her great forefather, Adam.
She didn't like the dance, and thought the ballet horrid;
She didn't like the weather cold, nor yet so very torrid;

WHAT SHE WANTED.

She didn't want a corner lot out out in Kansas City,
She didn't want a Turkish rug; she didn't think them pretty,
She hadn't any use for oil, for chromos or for statues;
She didn't how some up in dresses worn by future graduates,
She just detested diamonds, and thought jewelry vulgar;
She had no have for commonwealth, Romanism, or Bulgar;
She wouldn't drive in a coach and four, although the night have had 'em,
But trudged along the street, as did her great forefather, Adam.

She didn't like the drama, and thought the ballet horrid;
She didn't like the weather cold, nor yet so very torrid;
She didn't care for household work, and had no longer ribbon;
She let her mother darn her hose, for she detested stitches.
She didn't care for beaus, and she never wrote a letter
To the papers telling how she'd try and make the whole world better;
She lived in Massachusetts, she was freckled, o'er with tan,
And all on earth she wanted was a marriageable man.

Probably the oldest man who voted in Canada last Thursday was Wm. Gunner, of this city. Mr. Gunner, is ninety eight years of age. He is getting feeble now, but he insisted upon going to the poll, to cast his vote for the Conservative candidates. He voted in polling district 27, ward 4.—Hamilton Spectator.

ACTS ON THE BOWELS.

Rapid Recovery.

DEAR SIRS,—I have tried your B.B.B. with great success for constipation and pain in my head. The second dose made me ever so much better. My bowels now move freely and the pain in my head has left me, and to everybody with the same disease I recommend B.B.B.

A Prompt Cure.

DEAR SIRS,—I was very bad with headache and pain in my back; my hands and feet swelled so I could do no work. My sister-in-law advised me to try B.B.B. With one bottle I felt so much better that I got one more. I am now well, and can work as well as ever.

PURIFIES THE BLOOD.

Bad Blood may arise from wrong action of the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Bowels. B.B.B. by regulating and toning these organs, removes the cause and makes new rich blood, removing all blood diseases from a pimple to a scrofulous sore.

To the Honorable Council for the Municipality of Amaranth in Council Assembled:

GENTLEMEN,—Agreeably to instructions from your honorable Board, we have carefully examined the books and numbers connected with the foregoing Accounts and found them all correct; also the Collectors' Rolls, together with the Defaulters' Lists. The Roll, however, was not sufficient to support the Assessment Roll. We find the balance in Treasurer's hands on the 31st December, 1890, to be $1,168.45; also the Assets for 1891, $5,866.49, and Liabilities of $4,726.96, thereby leaving a balance of Assets over Liabilities of $1,140.43, and beg to congratulate you on the satisfactory state of your finances. The Treasurer's office was in its usually satisfactory state, and himself in his customary obliging manner, and we would cheerfully recommend his reappointment.

We are, Gentlemen, respectfully yours,

JONATHAN VARCOE, JOHN JOHNSTON, } Township Auditors.

CAUTION.

Holloway's Pills & Ointment

WHEREAS I AM INFORMED THAT one Joseph Haydock, of New York, is making and selling Pills and Ointment under the name of HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT, and that the same are being sold by certain persons in the British Provinces of America, to the detriment of the public and also to my injury and loss.

Now, I declare the said Joseph Haydock has no authority whatever from me to use my name in any way. He is not my agent. He holds no power of attorney of mine, nor have I any connection with him whatever.

Persons publishing the said counterfeit Medicines of Joseph Haydock, or keeping for sale, or selling the same in any part of the British American Provinces, will be prosecuted according to law.

I have no agent in the United States, nor are my medicines sold there.

Every Pot and Box of my Genuine Medicine bears on the label the address 533 Oxford Street, London, and has affixed to each the British Government Stamp, with the words Holloway's Pills and Ointment engraved thereon.

The trade mark of my said Medicines are registered in Ottawa and also at Washington

Signed, THOMAS HOLLOWAY.

A MOTHER'S GOOD-BYE.

Sit down by the side of your mother, my boy,
You have only a moment, I know;
But you will stay until I give you my parting advice,
It shall I have to bestow.
You have go to rush for employment, my boy;
By the world you have yet to be tried;
But in all the temptations and struggles you meet,
May your heart in the Saviour confide.
You will find in your satchel a bible, my boy;
It is a book of all others the best;
It will teach you to live, it will help you to die,
And lead to the gates of the blest.
I give you to God in your cradle, my boy;
I have taught you the best that I know,
And as long as His mercies permit me to live
I will never cease praying for you.
Your father is coming to wish you good-bye,
O how sad and how late we will be!
But when far from the scenes of your childhood and youth
You will remember your father and me.
I want you to heed every word I have said,
For it comes from a heart filled with love;
And, my boy, if we never behold you on earth,
Will you promise to meet us above?
Hold fast to the right, hold fast to the right,
Wherever your footsteps may roam;
O forsake not the way of salvation, my boy,
That you learned from your mother at home.

TRUE TO THE LAST.

CHAPTER II. (CONTINUED.)

A CONFESSION.

NOT a word was said before the servants; but once in the drawing room, with the door shut, Lady Trewavas gave way to her anger.

"This shall not go on!" she cried. 'Olive Varcoe leaves Trewavas to morrow for ever!"

"Not on my account," said Eleanor, poudly. "Your niece must not be driven from her home for me. If Sir Hilton prefers his cousin to myself, it is for me and my mother to quit Trewavas, not Olive."

She said this with pale face and firm lips, and a throb of hope for one moment beat in John's heart; then he flung hope off as a crime, and stepped forward to take his brother's part.

"My dear grandmother," said he, "don't make a mountain out of a molehill. If we allow this affair to appear important, we shall make it so. Hilton was doubtless annoyed when he found Eleanor had gone out driving, and he has shown his pique by taking his ride all the same. It is nothing strange or new that he should ask Olive to go with him. Recollect that she is almost a sister; and surely you would not have Hilton take a dismal ride by himself?"

John's words sounded true and reasonable; yet an instinct in Eleanor's heart warned her of danger, and said loudly that this ride was not the insignificant thing that John would fain make it appear. Lady Trewavas, however, was calmed.

"Well, my dear," she said, "when you see Hilton at dinner I hope you will give him a scolding, and you may depend on it I shall let him know that he has to thank Olive for your displeasure. These tricks are unladylike, and beyond a jest."

Eleanor thought this affair more serious than a mere trick, or jest of Olive's, but she would not argue the point; she felt that her uneasiness, her jealousy, her wounded pride could not find expression in words. She bowed her head silently and left the room. In passing, she gave her hand to John to thank him. He started at the action, his face growing crimson; then he seized the extended hand, and holding it in both his, whispered earnestly, "Don't be afraid. Don't cry, Eleanor. I'll bring Hilton up to your sitting room before dinner."

"Heaven bless you, John!" said the girl, what a good kind fellow you are!"

Every word went to his heart, and so did the touch of the little cold hand that pressed his so gratefully. He turned away and let her go, showing a cheerful face to the stately old lady who was watching him half curiously, half strangely.

Meanwhile Eleanor, restraining her tears, escaped to her room; but here she flung herself on the bed, crying, "Mother is right. He loves Olive! Oh, what shall I do? What ought I to do?"

That evening there was a party at Trewavas, and the guests looked blankly at each other, as ten, twenty, thirty minutes crept by, and no announcement of dinner reached their ears.

Stately and self possessed as she might be, Lady Trewavas could not altogether conceal her uneasiness. Not that for a moment it disturbed the quiet dignity of her manner, or the graceful flow of talk that set her guests at ease. Accustomed all her life long to power and command, she kept her face now as calm as a queen's, showing only to the flight twitch of her eye the anxiety she felt.

Mrs. Maristowe did not try to conceal her indignant astonishment. Her eyes wandered continually from the domestics to the great bay window that commanded the park, and every time she turned away, they said plainly that the expected figures of Olive Varcoe and Sir Hilton were not in sight.

With every nerve quivering, Eleanor bore her anguish as only a proud girl can; she would not show her pain; so she talked to the young squire of Bovrige, and turned over the leaves of photograph albums with a seemingly careless hand. But John Trewavas saw the trembling of her eyelid, the flush upon her cheek, the sorrow and signs of recent tears that lingered on her face; and it was John's cheery voice that proposed dinner as a relief to all.

"My dear Lady Trewavas," he said, "are we all to starve because Hilton has lost his way in the woods? Come, let us have dinner; he deserves to get his cold for coming home late."

"May he not have met with an accident?" asked the doctor's wife.

This agreeable suggestion brought a quick flush to Eleanor's face as she looked eagerly at her mother.

"My grandson is too good a rider to be likely to meet with an accident," said Lady Trewavas a little drily.

"But is not Miss Varcoe with him?" said the doctor's wife. "She is a very wild rider I know, for she has frightened me often by coming down those hills at a furious gallop."

"She deserves to break her neck if she does that," said the blunt squire of Bovrige. "But ladies are never fit to be trusted with horses; they are always cruel to them. A man would be ashamed to whip a horse, and gallop him up hill and down, as a lady does."

"Quite true," said the doctor in an undertone; "but I wish Miss Varcoe would use the whip just now, and practise a little of that galloping you talk of; it would be better than keeping us all waiting for dinner."

"Lady Trewavas would not wait a minute for that madcap girl," whispered the old squire. "It is for Sir Hilton she waits. Rather awkward, don't you see, sitting down to table without the master of the house."

At this moment the firm hand of the hostess rang the bell.

"Serve dinner," she said. "Sir Hilton is doubtless detained by some slight accident."

As the guests walked to the dining room, whispers were exchanged and surmises uttered respecting Sir Hilton's strange absence. Some of these Eleanor overheard, and her ears tingled with indignant pain.

At this party her engagement was to have been announced, and her position as Sir Hilton's intended wife was to have been acknowledged; and from such a gathering of friends as this, brought together for such a purpose, he had chosen to absent himself, in order to prolong his ride with Olive Varcoe! Unless some accident detained him, his conduct was an insult, deliberately given; and it could only mean that he had discovered, ere it was too late, the mistake he had made in offering his love to her.

How Eleanor's heart swelled—how her veins throbbed at the thought! How horrible was the torture of sitting here, to be gazed at by these people, who could not see that her brain was on fire!

"Miss Marlstowe, you are ill!" exclaimed the blunt, fussy Mr. Vigo. "Let me assist you from the table?"

Eleanor was leaning back in her chair, deadly pale. She had seen Sir Hilton's groom dash by at a gallop. Why had he come home alone?

Lady Trewavas had seen him also; but, although a little pale, she was still stately and calm; and, with instinctive delicacy and tact, Eleanor copied the demeanor of her hostess.

"My dear Eleanor," said Mrs. Marlstowe, nervously, "I think you had better go and lie down a little—you look so ill?"

Eleanor was used to be cared for by John Trewavas that she was not surprised when he came to her, and she found herself quietly led from the room and placed on the drawing-room sofa.

"Now if you are quite comfortable, I will run and see what is the matter," said John. "I expect our wild cousin has had a spill."

"How kind you are, John!" said Eleanor; and her blue eyes swam in tears, as she looked at him gratefully.

In two minutes John was back again.

"Don't be frightened, Eleanor," said he. "There has been an accident—only a slight one; Hilton is a little hurt. That madcap girl has been jumping hurdles and running races with him, and in clearing a hurdle his horse swerved and threw him. He is at a farm house a few miles off."

"And Olive?" said Eleanor, faintly.

"Oh, Olive is not hurt," replied John. "Do you feel strong enough, Eleanor, to come in the carriage with me to fetch Hilton?"

Eleanor sprang from the sofa instantly; she understood John's words too well. Olive was there by Sir Hilton's side—Olive had her place—Olive was winning him with her insidious smiles and tender words. Yes, she would be ready in a moment. Once more, how good, and kind, and thoughtful John was!

As the carriage was getting ready, John returned to the dining-room, and whispered the news to Lady Trewavas. "Thank Heaven!" said the old lady, crossing her hand gratefully. Her grandson was hurt, perhaps dangerously, and yet she said, "Thank Heaven!"

John knew why—she had fancied that Sir Hilton and Olive Varcoe had eloped together.

CHAPTER III.

BETTER THAN A SWEETHEART.

Sir Hilton Trewavas lay on a bed in his tenant's house. Olive sat by his side holding one of his hands in hers. All the rich color had faded from her face, and she was nearly as pale as he.

"Aunt will never forgive me, Hilton," she said. "I shall be sent away to the Antipodes now."

"You'll be sent nowhere," he replied. "You'll stay at Trewavas. My home is yours while I live. If I die, and it goes to John, I can't say what will happen. Look out for yourself, then, Olive."

"I won't," said Olive; "and, if you die, I'll kill John."

"Hallo!" cried Sir Hilton, "have you and John quarrelled?"

"No; only the thought of his being master at Trewavas makes me hate him," she replied. "But you won't die. Why are you talking about death? You are not much hurt."

"The deuce I'm not," said Sir Hilton. "I'm in horrid pain, then. Put a pillow under my shoulder, Olive."

Olive did as he requested; then, stooping suddenly, she kissed him on the brow.

"You are a good little girl," said Sir Hilton, taking her hand, and bending her face again to his. "You are sorry for me, I see. I do believe you would suffer all this for me if you could. A sister, after all, is better than a sweetheart. Eleanor, you perceive, does not trouble herself about me; and to-day she broke a promise. I hate an unreliable woman, it was a shabby trick she served me, Lola, wasn't it?"

"How do you feel now, Hilton?" asked Olive, evading his question.

"Horrid!" he replied. "I'm swelling like a porpoise. Just see the size of my arm! I wish that doctor would come."

"He will be here soon," said Olive. "I told Kinsman to ride like a fiend. When they hear of this at Trewavas, Hilton, I know exactly all they'll do and say."

Sir Hilton did not answer precisely as Olive expected; he raised his head languidly, and said, "You are mighty clever, Miss Lola; can you tell me what Eleanor will do?"

There was a flash in Olive's eyes, but she replied with seeming gayety. "Oh, I don't pretend to know what she will do, but it will be nothing useful for certain. She will faint most likely, and have your grandmother fussing over her with eau-de-cologne and hartshorn. I never saw such a spoilt baby as Eleanor Maristowe. If she had roughed it in the world as I have done, and never had a human being to care for her, she would have learned a few things by this time."

"Good thing, Lola?" asked Sir Hilton, a little satirically, "Do you know I think it is unfair to say you are not cared for. What has been lacking to you at Trewavas?—not love, not kindness, I am sure."

"There's nothing wanting at Trewavas except a Roe's egg," replied Olive, laughingly, "and I dare say I shall get even that in time. When I spoke, I was thinking of old days, before I came among your kind faces. Ah, I roughed it then! What a terrible time I had in Smyrna!—my father always in the clouds, and the horrible old woman who used to rule the house used to beat me with her slipper. And, my goodness! what falsehoods she used to tell, and teach me to tell too!"

Sir Hilton was looking at her curiously, as though for the first time it had struck him that her character had strange points in it.

"Don't you still indulge in little fictions, now and then, Lola?" he asked. "Beware of that girl! Falsehood is a virtue only in the East."

Olive colored crimson, but laughed gaily as she replied: "Truth is too precious to be given to every one; I keep it for you and a few others. To the rest of the world my Eastern blood will break out at times. You know, if I am neither Cornish nor English, I cannot help it, can I?"

"No," replied Sir Hilton. "But how about this Roe's egg that is wanting at Trewavas? Can I get it for you?"

Olive turned her black eyes on him in a piercing and strange way, but she saw that he was still blind to the truth; so she replied carelessly: "Yes, you can get it, and you only, but not now. I'll ask you for it one day."

Her hand touched his as she spoke; it was burning hot, and there was a glow like fire on her cheeks.

"Upon my word, Olive, it must be something you have mightily set your heart upon," said Sir Hilton; "but you need not put on capital over it. Ask, and you shall have it, even if it be to the half of my kingdom. Is that the Eastern style, Lola?"

"In earnest I dare say it is Eastern enough," she replied. "Hilton," she added, suddenly, "I wish you were going to stay here for a month."

"That's kind," he returned. "But I have no doubt you will have your wish. I don't feel like moving."

"Ah, you will have to move, Hilton," said Olive. "Your grandmamma is too fond of her own way, and too proud of her own dignity, to let you stay here. That's one of the things they will do at Trewavas directly; they will bring a carriage here to take you home."

"But suppose I won't go?" said Sir Hilton. "It is useless to think of it. I could not bear the jolting. I am very comfortable here; and I shall stay."

"Stand to that firmly," cried Olive, her eyes glistening with joy; "and I'll stay with you, Hilton."

"You, Olive?" said he. "You can't do that."

"Yes I can," she replied, "being a cousin—almost a sister. Eleanor could not of course. Mrs. Grundy would scream and go into fits of horror, but I am too insignificant to be talked of. Besides, I am a better nurse than Eleanor. How does that pillow feel now?"

"Beautiful, Olive," he replied. "You have given it just the right twist. So you really think you can stay?"

"Of course I can, if you insist on it with Lady Trewavas," said Olive. "Really, Hilton, it will only be kind of you to do that; for the truth is, I am afraid to go home till the storm is over. At Trewavas they'll say this accident is all my fault."

"They won't dare to say that," said Sir Hilton. "How can it be your fault?"

"Asking you to go out with me, you know," replied Olive.

"Nonsense, Olive," said Sir Hilton; "that was very kind of you. It would be absurd if any one blamed you for this accident. Pixy was very hard to hold to-day. I never knew her so hot. If my respected grandmother says a word to you that you don't like, tell me, and I'll set things to rights. I detest to see a girl bullied by her relations."

"What a dear, good, kind cousin you are, Hilton!" said Olive, bending over him, with the gleam of her black eyes shining full into his own hazel orbs. "What can I do to thank you?"

Sir Hilton smiled. It was a droll smile. He was beginning to have a glimmering idea that all this was a little too cousinly.

"Never mind thanks, Lola," he said. "Brothers and sisters need not talk of thanks."

At this moment the sound of wheels was heard in the farmyard, and Olive's answer was interrupted.

"There's the doctor!" cried Sir Hilton, joyfully. "Now for a good tug, and then I suppose I shall be all right again. Have you got courage to stay with me, Lola?"

To his surprise Olive burst into tears and rushed from the room. On the stairs she met the surgeon, and seized him by the hand, in a strange excited manner.

"Will it pain him much?" she cried. "Oh, Dr. Burton, I little thought that I might injure Hilton."

Olive checked herself suddenly, for behind Dr. Burton was the grave face of John Trewavas.

"Do not alarm yourself, Miss Varcoe," said the doctor. "I trust I shall find Sir Hilton not much hurt. You seem unnerved. You had better go down to Lady Trewavas and Miss Maristowe; they are both below."

Olive gave John one reproachful and bitter look; then rushing past him, she sprang down the stairs, and out at the door into the orchard beyond.

The pique against Eleanor, which Olive had planted in Sir Hilton's mind, could not endure for a moment, after the explanation clearly and promptly given by Lady Trewavas. She turned it off as a jest of Olive's; one of those mischievious jests to which that lively young lady had long accustomed the inmates of Trewavas. With studied carelessness, Lady Trewavas thus spoke of it, giving it no other motive beyond the fun to be got out of a lover's quarrel.

The want of truth which Miss Varcoe had displayed in the affair counted for nothing; Sir Hilton even laughed at it. Olive, from her first appearance among her relations, had indulged in inventions, Eastern fashion, with an adroitness and skill that oftimes amused her English opponents. Yet it was almost impossible to be angry with her, as her ways were so different from their ways, and she evidently considered lying as a charter of right, and a just means either of defence or attack. Moreover her falsehoods did not disgust, as they were mostly so no English, so removed from mere vulgar lying, having in them a keen jest, a spice of romance, or a spice of Eastern malice. Hence it was permitted to her to do and say things that to an English lady would be inadmissible.

OLIVE VARCOE
—OR—
TRUE TO THE LAST.

CHAPTER II. (CONTINUED.)

A CONFESSION.

NOT a word was said before the servants; but once in the drawing room, with the door shut, Lady Trewavas gave way to her anger.

"This shall not go on!" she cried. 'Olive Varcoe leaves Trewavas to-morrow for ever!"

"Not on my account," said Eleanor, poudly. "Your niece must not be driven from her home for me. If Sir Hilton prefers his cousin to myself, it is for me and my mother to quit Trewavas, not Olive."

She said this with pale face and firm lips, and a throb of hope for one moment beat in John's heart; then he flung hope off as a crime, and stepped forward to take his brother's part.

"My dear grandmother," said he, "don't make a mountain out of a mole-hill. If we allow this affair to appear important, we shall make it so. Hilton was doubtless annoyed when he found Eleanor had gone out driving, and he has shown his pique by taking his ride all the same. It is nothing strange or new that he should ask Olive to go with him. Recollect that she is almost a sister; and surely you would not have Hilton take a dismal ride by himself?"

John's words sounded true and reasonable; yet an instinct in Eleanor's heart warned her of danger, and said loudly that this ride was not the insignificant thing that John would fain make it appear. Lady Trewavas, however, was calmed.

"Well, my dear," she said, "when you see Hilton at dinner I hope you will give him a scolding, and you may depend on it I shall let him know that he has to thank Olive for your displeasure. These tricks are unladylike, and beyond a jest."

Eleanor thought this affair more serious than a mere trick, or jest of Olive's, but she would not argue the point; she felt that her uneasiness, her jealousy, her wounded pride could not find expression in words. She bowed her head silently and left the room. In passing, she gave her hand to John to thank him. He started at the action, his face growing crimson; then he seized the extended hand, and holding it in both his, whispered earnestly, "Don't be afraid. Don't cry, Eleanor. I'll bring Hilton up to your sitting room before dinner."

"Heaven bless you, John!" said the girl, what a good kind fellow you are?"

Every word went to his heart, and so did the touch of the little cold hand that pressed his so gratefully. He turned away and let her go, showing a cheerful face to the stately old lady who was watching him half curiously, half strangely.

Meanwhile Eleanor, restraining her tears, escaped to her room; but here she flung herself on the bed, crying, "Mother is right. He loves Olive! Oh, what shall I do? What ought I to do?"

That evening there was a party at Trewavas, and the guests looked blankly at each other, as ten, twenty, thirty minutes crept by, and no announcement of dinner reached their ears.

Stately and self possessed as she might be, Lady Trewavas could not altogether conceal her uneasiness. Not that for a moment is disturbed the quiet dignity of her manner, or the graceful flow of talk that set her guests at ease. Accustomed all her life long to power and command, she kept her face now as calm

"May be not have met with an accident?" asked the doctor's wife.

This agreeable suggestion brought a quick flush to Eleanor's face as she looked eagerly at her mother.

"My grandson is too good a rider to be likely to meet with an accident," said Lady Trewavas a little drily.

"But is not Miss Varcoe with him?" said the doctor's wife. "She is a very wild rider I know, for she has frightened me often by coming down those hills at a furious gallop."

"She deserves to break her neck if she does that," said the blunt squire of Bosvige. "But ladies are never fit to be trusted with horses; they are always cruel to them. A man would be ashamed to whip a horse, and gallop him up hill and down, as a lady does."

"Quite true," said the doctor in an undertone; "but I wish Miss Varcoe would use the whip just now, and practise a little of that galloping you talk of; it would be better than keeping us all waiting for dinner."

"Lady Trewavas would not wait a minute for that madcap girl," whispered the old squire. "It is for Sir Hilton she waits. Rather awkward, don't you see, sitting down to table without the master of the house."

At this moment the firm hand of the hostess rang the bell.

"Serve dinner," she said. "Sir Hilton is doubtless detained by some slight accident."

As the guests walked to the dining room, whispers were exchanged and surmises uttered respecting Sir Hilton's strange absence. Some of these Eleanor overheard, and her ears tingled with indignant pain.

At this party her engagement was to have been announced, and her position as Sir Hilton's intended wife was to have been acknowledged; and from such a gathering of friends as this, brought together for such a purpose, he had chosen to absent himself, in order to prolong his ride with Olive Varcoe! Unless some accident detained him, his conduct was an insult, deliberately given; and it could only mean that he had discovered, ere it was too late, the mistake he had made in offering his love to her.

How Eleanor's heart swelled—how her veins throbbed at the thought! How horrible was the torture of sitting here, to be gazed at by these people, who could not see that her brain was on fire!

"Miss Marlstowe, you are ill!" exclaimed the blunt, fussy Mr. Vigo. "Let me assist you from the table?"

Eleanor was leaning back in her chair, deadly pale. She had seen Sir Hilton's groom dash by at a gallop. Why had he come home alone?

Lady Trewavas had seen him also; but, although a little pale, she was still stately and calm; and, with instinctive delicacy and tact, Eleanor copied the demeanor of her hostess.

"My dear Eleanor," said Mrs. Marlstowe, nervously, "I think you had better go and lie down a little—you look so ill?"

Eleanor was used to be cared for by John Trewavas that she was not surprised when he came to her, and she found herself quietly led from the room and placed on the drawing-room sofa.

"Now if you are quite comfortable, I will run and see what is the matter," said John. "I expect our wild cousin has had a spill."

"How kind you are, John!" said Eleanor; and her blue eyes swam in tears, as she looked at him gratefully.

In two minutes, John was back again.

"Don't be frightened, Eleanor," said he. "There has been an accident—only a slight one; Hilton is a little hurt. That madcap girl has been jumping hurdles and running races with him, and in clearing a hurdle his horse swerved and threw him. He is at a farm house a few miles off."

"And Olive?" said Eleanor, faintly.

"Oh, Olive is not hurt," replied John. "Do you feel strong enough, Eleanor, to come to the carriage with me to fetch Hilton?"

Eleanor sprang from the sofa instantly; she understood John's words too well. Olive was there by Sir Hilton's side—Olive had her place—Olive was tending him with her insidious smiles and tender words. Yes, she would be

"is yours while I live. If I die, and it goes to John, I can't say what will happen. Look out for yourself, then, Olive."

"I won't," said Olive; "and, if you die, I'll kill John."

"Hallo!" cried Sir Hilton, "have you and John quarrelled?"

"No; only the thought of his being master of Trewavas makes me hate him," she replied. "But you won't die. Why are you talking about death? You are not much hurt."

"The dence I'm not," said Sir Hilton. "I'm in horrid pain, then. Put a pillow under my shoulder, Olive."

Olive did as he requested; then, stooping suddenly, she kissed him on the brow.

"You are a good little girl," said Sir Hilton, taking her hand, and bending her face again to his. "You are sorry for me, I see. I do believe you would suffer all this for me if you could. A sister, after all, is better than a sweetheart. Eleanor, you perceive, does not trouble herself about me; and to-day she broke a promise. I hate an unreliable woman, it was a shabby trick she served me, Lois, wasn't it?"

"How do you feel now, Hilton?" asked Olive, evading his question.

"Horrid!" he replied. "I'm swelling like a porpoise. Just see the size of my arm! I wish that doctor would come."

"He will be here soon," said Olive. "I told Kinsman to ride like a fiend. When they hear of this at Trewavas, Hilton, I know exactly all they'll do and say."

Sir Hilton did not answer precisely as Olive expected; he raised his head languidly, and said, "You are mighty clever, Miss Lois; can you tell me what Eleanor will do?"

There was a flash in Olive's eyes, but she replied with seeming gayety. "Oh, I don't pretend to know what she will do, but it will be nothing useful for certain. She will faint most likely, and have your grandmother fussing over her with eau-de-cologne and hartshorn. I never saw such a spoilt baby as Eleanor Maristowe. If she had roughed it in the world as I have done, and never had a human being to care for her, she would have learned a few things by this time."

"Good thing, Lois?" asked Sir Hilton, a little satirically, "Do you know I think it is unfair to say you are not cared for. What has been lacking to you at Trewavas?—not love, not kindness, I am sure."

"There's nothing wanting at Trewavas except a Roe's egg," replied Olive, laughingly, "and I dare say I shall get even that in time. When I spoke, I was thinking of old days, before I came among your kind faces. Ah, I roughed it then! What a terrible time I had in Smyrna!—my father always in the clouds, and the horrible old woman who used to rule the house used to beat me with her slipper. And, my goodness! what falsehoods she used to tell, and teach me to tell too!"

Sir Hilton was looking at her curiously, as though for the first time it had struck him that her character had strange points in it.

"Don't you still indulge in little fictions, now and then, Lois?" he asked. "Beware of that girl! Falsehood is a virtue only in the East."

Olive colored crimson, but laughed gaily as she replied: "Truth is too precious to be given to every one; I keep it for you and a few others. To the rest of the world my Eastern blood will break out at times. You know, if I am neither Cornish nor English, I cannot help it, can I?"

"No," replied Sir Hilton. "But how about this Roe's egg that is wanting at Trewavas? Can I get it for you?"

Olive turned her black eyes on him in a piercing and strange way, but she saw that he was still blind to the truth; so she replied carelessly: "Yes, you can get it, and you only, but not now. I'll ask you for it one day."

Her hand touched his as she spoke; it was burning hot, and there was a glow like fire on her cheeks.

"Upon my word, Olive, it must be something you have mightily set your heart upon," said Sir Hilton; "but you need not get so excited over it. Ask, and you shall have it, even if it be to the half of my kingdom. In that the "Poor Lois! I am too indignant to be called ill. Besides, I am a better nurse than Eleanor. How does that pillow feel now?"

"Beautiful, Olive," he replied. "You have given it just the right twist. Do you really think you can stay?"

"Of course I can, if you insist on it with Lady Trewavas," said Olive. "Really, Hilton, it will only be kind of you to do that; for the truth is, I am afraid to go home till the storm is over. At Trewavas they'll say this accident is all my fault."

"They won't dare to say that," said Sir Hilton. "How can it be your fault?"

"Asking you to go out with me, you know," replied Olive.

"Nonsense, Olive," said Sir Hilton; "that was very kind of you. It would be absurd if any one blamed you for this accident. Pixy was very hard to hold to-day. I never knew her so hot. If my respected grandmother says a word to you that you don't like, tell me, and I'll set things to rights. I detest to see a girl bullied by her relations."

"What a dear, good, kind cousin you are, Hilton!" said Olive, bending over him, with the gleam of her black eyes shining full into his own hazel orbs. "What can I do to thank you?"

Sir Hilton smiled. It was a droll smile. He was beginning to have a glimmering idea that all this was a little too cousinly.

"Never mind thanks, Lois," he said. "Brothers and sisters need not talk of thanks."

At this moment the sound of wheels was heard in the farmyard, and Olive's answer was interrupted.

"There's the doctor!" cried Sir Hilton, joyfully. "Now for a good tax, and then I suppose I shall be all right again. Have you got courage to stay with me, Lois?"

To his surprise Olive burst into tears and rushed from the room. On the stairs she met the surgeon, and seized him by the hand, in a strange excited manner.

"Will it pain him much?" she cried. "Oh, Dr. Burton, I little thought that I might injure Hilton."

Olive checked herself suddenly, for behind Dr. Burton was the grave face of John Trewavas.

"Do not alarm yourself, Miss Varcoe," said the doctor. "I trust I shall find Sir Hilton not much hurt. You seem unnerved. You had better go down to Lady Trewavas and Miss Maristowe; they are both below."

Olive gave John one reproachful and bitter look; then rushing past him, she sprang down the stairs, and out at the door into the orchard beyond.

The pique against Eleanor, which Olive had planted in Sir Hilton's mind, could not endure for a moment, after the explanation clearly and promptly given by Lady Trewavas. She turned it off as a jest of Olive's; one of those mischievious jests to which that lively young lady had long accustomed the inmates of Trewavas. With studied carelessness, Lady Trewavas thus spoke of it, giving it no other motive beyond the fun to be got out of a lover's quarrel.

The want of truth which Miss Varcoe had displayed in the affair counted for nothing; Sir Hilton even laughed at it. Olive, from her first appearance among her relations, had indulged in inventions, Eastern fashion, with an adroitness and skill that officers amused her English opponents. Yet it was almost impossible to be angry with her, as her ways were so different from their ways, and she evidently considered lying as a charter of right, and a just means either of defence or attack. Moreover her falsehoods did not disgust, as they were mostly so an English, so removed from mere vulgar lying, having in them a keen jest, a spice of romance, or a spice of Eastern malice. Hence it was permitted to her to do and say things that in an English lady would be inadmissible.

Several interesting cases were disposed of at Tuesday's session of the Street Commissioners. The results will be made to show the public that it is dangerous to trifle with the Big wheel of justice.

GOOD COMPANIONSHIP.—One's companions have much to do with making one's moral atmosphere. Perhaps more lives are ruined through the corruption which comes from evil companionship than from any other external cause. 'Go with the wolves,' says a Spanish proverb, 'and you will learn to howl.' 'Go with mean people,' says an English proverb, 'and you will find life mean.' There are few actions in a boy's life more important than the choosing of his friends; yet this choice is too often left to the decision of circumstances, or the pleasant preference of the hour.

NEARLY A BLAZE.—What might have been a very serious conflagration occurred on Monday afternoon about 3 o'clock in the rear of the premises occupied by Mr. Geo. Spencer, Broadway, and owned by Mr. Thos. Lawson. The fire was discovered in the rear of the premises, and had made considerable headway when the alarm was sounded. The department responded promptly and had the fire extinguished before any damage was done to speak of.

AN ANNOYING APRIL FOOL JOKE.—Last week the Owen Sound correspondent of the Mail caused a great amount of unnecessary distress to several persons in town by announcing that Peter McMillan, employed on the steamship Islander plying between Vancouver and Victoria, had been instantly killed by falling into the hold of that vessel. His mother and sisters reside in Orangeville, the latter being clerks of the G.N.W. telegraph office, and it is unnecessary to say they were very much depressed in spirits. Telegrams were sent to quick succession, but it was nearly two days

DR. BARR'S VIEWS.

SPEAKING in the Ontario Legislature on Friday last, Dr. Barr, M. P. P., for Dufferin, expressed a very sound opinion on the question of better local facilities for the education of farmers' sons. Mr. McLenaghan, the member for South Lanark, moved the following resolution:

That, in the opinion of this House, greater local facilities should be given to farmers' sons by which they could secure a better education in their own calling than is afforded them under the provisions of the law as it now stands.

Dr. Barr, speaking on the above said that he desired to congratulate Mr. McLenaghan for the able manner in which he had laid the question before the House, but he could not congratulate the Government on the course they had pursued in regard to the question. They said that it would raise the question of class, and so on. How was it that when the questions relating to other professions were brought forward there was no such danger? It was only because they knew that they had not done their duty by the farmers that they raised such absurd objections. He (Dr. Barr) had always thought that there was more money in farming than in professional life, but one of the misfortunes for which the present educational system was in a measure responsible was that farmers were led to believe that it was not a desirable occupation. The suggestion of Mr. McLenaghan was one worthy of the serious and careful consideration of the House. It had been pointed out to the House by Hon. Mr. Ross what had been done in the schools in connection with agricultural education, but he found the report of the Minister that so far as the teaching of agriculture was concerned it was almost a blank. In turning over leaf after leaf he had found almost nothing about agricultural education, and in every case it had been but a secondary consideration, and had not received the attention of the Minister of Education which it should have received. The report showed that agriculture was taught last year to only 2 596 pupils, while drawing was taught to 293 961. In his county the expenditure on mechanics' institutes had been $3,536, while that on farmers' institutes was only $22. The reason why the late Minister lost his head at the last election was that he had not attended to his duty. One reason why the farmers' institutes were not doing better work was that the Government was sending out incompetent lecturers. It was the duty of the House to devise some scheme to rivet the farmers' sons to the soil, let them see that agriculture was a grand and noble calling, and if the Minister of Agriculture or of Education would bring down such a bill he would give it his most careful consideration, as would no doubt every member on that side of the House.

Mr. Mowat's address on the Evidences of Christianity, is been published in pamphlet form. It is a good lecture and makes the reader wonder how the Government of which he is chief could possibly have made the Ontario gerrymander, by which such a minority of the provincial electors is enabled to return such a majority of the Provincial legislators to keep Mr. Mowat in power. Mr. Mowat's gerrymander is not an evidence of Christianity.—Montreal Gazette.

It is quite likely that instead of the Koch lymph for the cure of consumption the cow will be called upon, as it has in the preparation of vaccine virus for the prevention of small-pox. To vaccinate the cow with the tuberculosis virus, and then take this for vaccinating people against consumption will be the ultimate outcome of the new discovery. In this way the tuberculosis disease among cattle may be prevented, as no animal that has had the affliction in its mild form will be in danger of the more severe and fatal disease.

FOREMAN OF WORKS!

DAN. McBRIDE GETS THERE BY ONE VOTE.

An Interesting Session—New Street Lighting Contract to be Made—Chamber Chat.

At 7.30 o'clock on Monday night last the council chamber presented a very dark appearance and the uninitiated would at once come to the conclusion that it was the dark cell of the town prison or the famous black hole that once existed at Calcutta. Electrician Kyle did not turn on the electric light in time, so Ald. Fiddis, chairman of the S. L. committee, sent a telephonic despatch to the electric light station and Chief Shields procured a lamp. Meanwhile the press representatives and the local legislators amused themselves by telling chestnuts and discussing the best way to repair a plank sidewalk. All at once the illuminator got to work and the members of the council took their places around the table. There were present: Mayor Walsh, Reeve Lindsay, Deputy reeve Endacott, Ald. Youmans, Ketchum, Cobean, Gillespie, Green, Fiddis, Young and Adamson.

As this was the evening that the council would engage a foreman of works a large number of ratepayers filled the auditorium and anxiously awaited the result.

After the minutes of the last meeting had been read and adopted, the mayor read the following which were ordered to be paid: D. McDonald, $308 50; J. H. Hulse, $10; H. Flesher, $5.53; W. Fromlin, $6; George Gray, $7 6½. Dunners from THE SUN, Advertiser and Post were referred to the Printing committee with power to order payment if found correct; W. Harding, $5.67, was handed to the R. B.

ACCOUNTS;

TOWN Treasurer Irwin communicated the fact that several lots purchased by the town had been, by error, assessed. The Finance committee will remedy the defect.

WATERWORKS.

J. H. Armstrong of Toronto penned a few lines to let the council know that he was prepared to furnish Orangeville with a system of waterworks, either by the gravitation plan or by a pumping plant. His epistle will probably never be heard of again, as it fell on the table with a "sickening, dull thud."

Toronto sewer pipe and dog tag manufacturing firms wrote to the effect that they could supply the town with anything in the above lines.

MCBRIDE IS FOREMAN.

The most important business of the session was reached when Ald. Adamson, chairman of the R. & B., arose to read the report of that committee. Advertisements were inserted in the local papers requesting applications for the position of foreman of works. In reply to the ads. five persons offered their services, and the committee recommended the appointment of James Babe at a salary of $1 75 per day. Ald. Adamson seconded by Ald. Fiddis, moved the adoption of the report. An amendment was carried that the council go into committee of the whole, Ald. Gillespie in the chair. The report was re-read, D. Suggitt asked $1.37½ per day, W. Maxwell, $1.50, James Dawson, $1.50, Daniel McBride, $1.50, James Babe, no salary stated. Ald. Adamson said Ald. Fiddis recommended the appointment of Mr. Babe, as he was a better scholar and possessed more ability than any of the others. Mr. Adamson also stated that some of the applicants had got other persons to write their applications. Ald. Fiddis said he had been acquainted with Mr. Babe for twenty years and the latter had run a saw mill for a long time. Ald. Young thought Mr Maxwell a first rate man, and Ald. Gillespie gave it as his opinion that it took a man of some ability to look after affairs like this. Mayor Walsh said one man deserved the position as much as the other, but as Mr. McBride was an old resident of this town and a carpenter by trade he (the mayor) thought Mr. McBride was the most entitled to the position. His worship gave the R. & B. committee a "dig" for raising the wages to $1 75 per day when only $1 50 was asked. After several other members expressed their sentiments on the question a vote was taken, but resulted in a great muddle. Ald. Gillespie proposed to vote for them altogether and the man receiving the lowest number of votes should be considered out of the race. His suggestion was adopted, the first vote standing: Dawson 4, McBride 6, Babe 3, Maxwell 3, Suggitt 2. The latter was dropped and another vote taken which resulted: Dawson 4, McBride 4, Babe 2, Maxwell 3. Mr. Babe dropped out and the next vote stood: Dawson 5, McBride 4, Maxwell 3. The final vote resulted in a tie, Messrs. Dawson and McBride each receiving 5 votes. The casting vote had to be given by Ald. Gillespie and he hesitated some time before he gave the decision. He then declared in favor of Mr. McBride, who was the first foreman of works. The committee rose and the report as amended was adopted.

QUIBS.

Ald. Ketchum inquired when the pavement of the F. & W. intended to be put in repair. Ald. Gillespie replied that for the benefit of Ald. Ketchum he would report at the next meeting.

Ald. Youmans asked if any provision had been made to keep a lamp burning at nights in the firemen's hall. As no provision had been made, he will see to the matter.

The T. P. committee was instructed to get a fresh supply of dog tags. Ald. Fiddis thought cats should be tagged, too (laughter).

The use of the council chamber was granted to the lacrosse boys, who hold a meeting for re organization this evening.

Deputy reeve Endacott informed the council that the street lighting contract would expire in October, and he thought tenders should be asked for now. The S. L. committee will attend to the matter.

An Embro correspondent of the Lucknow Sentinel writes:—"At a recent session of the elders and deacons of Knox church, Embro, it was resolved that the singing of hymns be discontinued. At the next service, when the choir started to sing a voluntary during the time when the collection was being taken, several parties left their seats and marched out. They said they did not want to hear the concert. The choir has now been dispensed with, and Prof. Tamsey has to lead the singing alone."

THE AMARANTH DRAINS.—On Saturday at Laurel five drain contracts were let by public auction and Messrs. S. J. Brown was awarded drain number 31, Wm. C. Allen 32, W. D. Ferguson 33, T. F. Reid 34 and John Lovell 35.

A FINE BUS.—Yesterday evening the new proprietors of the Gordon house ran their elegant new bus for the first time and a splendid rig it is. Messrs. Livingstone & Rawlaub are enterprising gentlemen and will conduct the Gordon in first class style.

DEATH.—Mrs. Watson, widow of the late Louis Watson, who had been confined to bed for about three weeks, died at her residence, John street, on Wednesday night. Deceased was a daughter of Mr. John Corbett, and was 33 years old. She leaves a family of three small children, who have the sympathy of all in their irreparable loss.

WHERE THE WEARY ARE AT REST.—The funeral of the late Mrs. Elizabeth Morrison, relict of the late Rev. Samuel Morrison, who died at the residence of her son in law, Mr. J. C. Reid, lot 2, con., W. H. S., Mono, on Friday last, took place to the Town cemetery on Saturday afternoon. The deceased had reached the ripe old age of 78 years. Mrs. Morrison had many friends in this town and vicinity.

THE POSTOFFICE.—Affairs at the postoffice are going quietly and quickly along, and Postmaster Bradley and his assistant are making a better record than they ever did before. The new postmaster cannot please everybody, but if he succeeds in pleasing a majority of the public he will do very well. We think Mr. B. is quite competent to conduct the office as it should be and we hope things will continue to run as smoothly as at present.

ROUTE BILLS.—THE SUN is better prepared than ever to turn out first-class route bills, and horsemen can rely on getting work equal, if not superior, to that done in cities. We have a larger and better stock of type and cuts than any other office north of Toronto. Compare a bill printed at this office and one done elsewhere and you will come to the conclusion that THE SUN'S Job Department cannot be beaten for work of the highest order. Call around and see our great assortment of cuts.

HE DIDN'T APPEAR.—Several days ago Jimmy Robertson laid an information against Edward Lesson for selling liquor without a license. The case was to be called for yesterday, the defendant and a large number of witnesses being present, but the informant Jimmy was conspicuous by his absence. P. M. Pettitt was very wrathy at Robertson's non appearance, and he issued a warrant for his arrest. The P. M. intends to show the public that it is dangerous to trifle with old Sol when clothed in justice.

DOGS UNDERMINED.—Our dogs are precious but are used to do with nothing one's moral atmosphere. Perhaps more lives are ruined through the corruption which comes from evil companionship than from any other external cause. 'Go with the wolves,' says a Spanish proverb, 'and you will learn to howl.' 'Go with mean people,' says an English proverb, 'and you will find life mean.' There are few actions in a boy's life more important than the choosing of his friends; yet this choice is too often left to the decision of circumstances, or the pleasant preferences of the hour.

NEARLY A BLAZE.—What might have been a very destructive fire occurred in the A. O. U. W. hall, Jackson block, at 9.40 o'clock on Friday night. Just after the Select Knights brought their meeting to a close a chande lier containing six lamps fell to the floor and instantly the whole room was in a blaze. An alarm was immediately sounded and in a very short time the firemen were on the spot. Their services were not required, however, as the blaze had been extinguished in the meantime. The society has the fixtures of the hall insured for $200, and it is estimated it will take that amount to replace the furniture, etc.

TWO TEACHERS ENGAGED.—All the members of the board of public school trustees met in the council chamber on Tuesday evening, and after passing several accounts the subject of engaging two new teachers was discussed. There are two vacancies in the teaching staff and in reply to an advertisement forty-two persons offered their services. Miss Daisy Corrigan of Milton was engaged at a salary of $300 per annum, and Mr. Buchanan of Toronto at a salary of $400. The special committee appointed to consider the advisability of establishing a school in the South ward reported that there were only two suitable places, the building lately occupied by the Salvation Army and Molo's vacant pump-shop. The committee was of the opinion that anything more should n't be done in the matter this year.

MILLINERY OPENINGS.—During the past week all the town millinery establishments have re-opened for the spring and summer trade, and all have excellent displays. Endacott Bros. opened the ball on Saturday, the 28th ult., with a magnificent display of millinery tastily arranged by Miss Stevens. Judge, Chapman & Co. followed suit on Wednesday of last week and Miss Robertson, their head milliner, fully sustained her reputation. Green, Bowles & Co., with Miss Nellie Kennedy in charge, opened up on Wednesday evening, the 1st, with a large and carefully selected stock. A. & W. Johnston's opening took place Saturday evening under the supervision of Miss Thomas, and a large number of the fair sex attended the opening. The millinery displays this year are far superior to those of previous years.

THE SICK.—Mr. Earnest Henderson, messenger of the Bank of Commerce, son of Rev. A. Henderson, is laid up with rheumatic fever. Mrs. W. J. Price, who has been suffering from an attack of la grippe, is recovering. She is at present at the residence of her mother, Mrs. Moore, here. Mrs. Jas. Bennett is, we are sorry to say, not gaining any in strength. Mrs. Jos. Gordon, Wellington street, who has been confined to bed for the past three weeks, is slowly improving. Mrs. Watson, Bythia street, who is suffering from cancer, is very low. Mrs. John Gillespie of Amaranth, who has been ailing for some time past, is considerably better. Mr. Closs, assistant teacher at the high school is laid up with an attack of la grippe. We regret to hear that Mr. Jas. Johnston, 4th line, Amaranth, is seriously ill.

VERY SUDDEN DEATH.—It is our sad duty to chronicle the death of Mrs. Margaret Henry, relict of the late Dr. Thos. Henry, and mother of Dr. Henry of this town, which took place on Saturday evening, of apoplexy, death being altogether unexpected until a few hours previous. Deceased had just gone up stairs when she was suddenly taken ill. The deceased lady was born in Sligo, Ireland, 73 years ago. Mrs. Henry possessed many kindly qualities and was held in much respect by friends and acquaintances. The funeral took place from her late residence, Second street, on Monday afternoon to St. Mark's church, where religious services were conducted by Rev. A. Henderson, and then the cortege proceeded to the Forest Lawn cemetery where the remains were interred beside those of her husband. A feeling of sincere regret is expressed by all and the mourning relatives have much sympathy in their sorrow.

PASSED AWAY.—On Sunday, at his residence, Wellington street, Mr. James Harrison passed peacefully away at the advanced age of 84 years, after an illness of over four months. He passed away without a struggle, seeming to die rather from decay of vital power than from any disease. Deceased was born in Hull, Eng., and 56 years ago came to this country and settled on lot 23, centre road, Caledon, where he resided for 34 years when he retired from farming and removed to Orangeville where he resided for the past 16 years. He leaves a widow and family of three sons and two daughters. The daughters are: Mrs. Dick, Owen Sound; Mrs. Dillon, Amaranth. The sons are: Thomas, George and William who reside in Caledon. We heartily sympathize with the bereaved.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Dane, of Port Perry, is visiting friends in town.

The young child of Mrs. Lennox Cudney has completely recovered from its recent illness.

We are sorry to state that Mrs. Chatters is lying seriously ill, but we hope she will soon recover.

CHARLESTON.

Mr. Crozier Rutledge left on Wednesday for Fort Dodge, Iowa. We wish him every success.

On Wednesday morning the marriage of Mr. Robert Wallace and Miss Lizzie Rutledge of this village was celebrated at the residence of the bride's mother, Rev. A. Wilson officiating. The bride was attired in a handsome cloth travelling suit. After the ceremony a splendid wedding breakfast was partaken of and the happy couple left on the morning train for their new home at Fort Dodge, Iowa. Mr. and Mrs. Wallace carry with them the best wishes of their many friends for their future happiness and prosperity.

GRAND VALLEY.

(Star.)

The grippe is gripping a number of the residents in and around town.

We are informed that Mr. D. Hyndman has leased the Dominion hotel from Mr. Bird and intends moving back from Shelburne to Grand Valley.

Mr. Wm. Loney was away attending the funeral of his uncle, Mr. John Loney, of Malmur, on Good Friday. The deceased was 80 years of age and the interment took place at Whitfield.

Mr. Hugh McDougall, with several members of his family, of the 9th concession, E Luther, left here yesterday for Manitoba. It is their intention to try their fortune in the prairie land. May they be successful in their new departure, in building up for themselves a home and that happiness and contentment may be their lot.

SALEM.

It is rumored that Contractor Dodds is going to remove to Toronto this summer.

An Evil Spirit lives in the vicinity of Salem, and does his own peculiar work pretty well.

Justice of the Peace Nelson, since selling his farm, is giving his whole attention to legal matters.

Miss Etta Patterson, who has been teaching in the Salem school for the past several months, is giving excellent satisfaction.

Rev. Mr. Orr, Presbyterian minister of Mono Mills, held a prayer meeting at Mr. Hugh Dodds' new residence recently. The attendance was very good.

About thirty neighbors attended a wood bee at Mr. Thomas Allen's on Tuesday of last week. Over fifty cords of wood was sawed. A dance was indulged in by the boys and girls and a pleasant time was spent.

Mr. Sam Island held a wood bee on Tuesday, which was attended by a large number. In the evening everybody got dancing to the excellent music furnished by Messrs. Presley Bros. of Orangeville. Dancing was kept up until 6 o'clock next morning.

AGAIN A MURDER.

A Quarrel Leads to a Stabbing Case in London Township.

LONDON, April 5.—A fatal affray occurred near this city this afternoon on the farm of Mr. John Geary, lots 13 and 14, concession 5, London Township. It appears that one of the hired men, C. Hodges, was milking a cow when Ben. Hubbard, another of the farm hands, interfered. This led to an angry encounter, during which Hodges drew a knife and stabbed Hubbard in the heart, death resulting in a few minutes. Hodges was arrested and lodged in the gaol here. It is said that the men had been on bad terms for some time.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Liver, Lungs, and Kidneys.—Most diseases of these purifying organs arise from obstructions, over the removal of which is strongly recommended as a remedy for such chronic affections as liver enlargements, congestion of the lungs, torpidity of the kidneys, and other functional disorders which cause much present suffering, and if neglected lay the foundation of organic diseases. Holloway's Pills are specially adapted for the young and delicate; their gentle and purifying action ranks them above all other medicines. In indigestion, nervous affections, gout, and rheumatism these Pills have achieved for themselves universal fame. They expel all impurities from the blood, and thus restore cheerfulness and vigour.

P. T. BARNUM IS DEAD.

The Prince of Showmen Passed Away at Bridgeport Conn., Full of Years.

BRIDGEPORT, Ct., April 7.—Phineas T. Barnum, the prince of showmen, died last night. The immediate cause of his death was la grippe, from which he had been suffering for some days past. Mr. Barnum was born at Bethel, Conn., July 5, 1810, his father being an innkeeper. When 19 years of age Barnum became editor of The Herald of Freedom, published in Danbury, Conn. In 1835 he made his first venture in the show line by exhibiting a colored woman named Joyce Heath as the nurse of George Washington. The receipts soon amounted to $1500 a week. He continued in the show business with varying success until 1842, when his discovery and exhibition of Charles S. Stratton, known as "Tom Thumb," brought the great showman into world wide repute. Barnum was the originator of the far famed "woolly horse." He brought Jenny Lind to America in 1850 and the receipts for this venture amounted to $700,000. Since then he has been the best known showman in the world. He was a writer of no mean ability and contributed letters to the press as recently as last week. Among his published works are "The Humbugs of the World," among whom, he proudly boasted, he was the greatest. The American nation pointed to Phineas T. as one of the grandest products of the country. He leaves many imitators, but there never was but one Barnum.

Mr. Barnum died at 6.22 o'clock in the presence of his grief stricken family.

During Mr. Barnum's illness, which began 21 weeks ago last Friday, there were frequent fluctuations in his condition, from each of which he rallied, although in each instance with slightly lower vitality. He seemed to realize he could not live much longer and spoke of the approaching end with calmness.

Barnum wished his funeral to be private and unostentatious. He directed that the interment should be in the Mountain Grove Cemetery, where several years ago he erected a monument.

The funeral will be conducted by the Rev. L. B. Fisher Friday afternoon in the North Congregational Church. Mr Barnum had an intense horror of embalming or of having his body placed on ice after death. The remains will be therefore kept in a dark, cool room in the house. The body will then be enclosed in a hermetically sealed casket.

SHELBURNE.

(Free Press and Economist.)

Mr. W. J. Kennedy of Coleridge intends moving to Orangeville soon, having rented his place to Mr. Wm Thacker.

Mr. Otto Rands received word on Monday of the sudden death of his father, Mr. Wm. Rands, of Eye, Suffolk, England.

The citizens band gave their comrade, Mr. J. M. Brimmell, and his bride a musical reception on their arrival back last Saturday evening.

Mr. J. A. Skelding has moved back again to Shelburne, having sold out his livery in Creemore. We understand he intends starting up a livery business here.

Miss McKinnon, first assistant in the Shelburne public school, has resigned her position. The resignation has been accepted by the school board, and a new teacher is now required.

The Shelburne Mechanics' Institute is in a flourishing condition. The directors have made an addition of 117 volumes this week, which makes a total of 163 new books added during the past year.

E. Berwick & Co's team took fright at the railway station the other day and ran up the track with the waggon behind them. They cleared the cattle guard all right, but fell at the other side. They then turned and came back breaking the tongue of the waggon. The horses were somewhat badly cut.

Dr. Norton and Mr. John Jelly have purchased the necessary electric light plant and equipments from the Belleville Co., and it is expected the same will soon be in running order, and that our streets and business places will soon be brilliantly lighted. Contracts have already been taken for about thirty arc lights or their equivalent.

A DOZEN DON'TS.

Don't say "aggravate" for "annoy."

Don't mistake sequaciousness for friends.

Don't fail to remember that "Boys flying kites haul in their white-winged birds. You can't do that way when you're flying words."

Don't think one thing, say another and act in a different way entirely. Your associates will distrust your assertions.

Don't wear diamonds "in name only," and don't wear many even if they are of the first water.

Don't forget that white silk braid makes a pretty and durable folded finish for plain dress sleeves.

Don't wear your new gowns while the streets are muddy. Spend a few cents for braid and freshen up your old ones.

Don't buy a hat of exaggerated shape, laden with ultra fashionable trimming. It will not look womanly, and is only staring material.

Don't be foolish about your goloshes and your shoes. Thin shoes and damp feet mean money wasted and agony endured while you sit and "wonder where you got that cold."

Don't worry your face into a railroad map of wrinkles simply because things won't come and go as you want them. They'll never be much better, and worry has killed more people than doctors have.

Don't wear a dress bonnet with a tailor made gown—that is, don't unless it is necessary. If you have to, tone down it and wear it like a queen.

Don't forget to darn the tiniest hole that makes its appearance in your gloves.

SPRING PROSE.

We are all so glad to welcome the coming of spring that we are in danger of meeting her so much more than half way as to run serious risk of meeting her on the verge of the graveyard. Physicians and vital statisticians agree that March is, in respect to some prevalent causes of disease, the most fatal month of the year, and that early April is only a little better. Pneumonia claims this season for its very own and slays its victims like an epidemic. Consumptives are gathered by the sickle of death like the ripened grain at harvest time. The enfeebled aged dread these weeks with abundant reason. Infants are in constant danger. The strongest man has need to be careful, and women, to whom these bright and suspicious seeming days appeal with a charm like herself, must take heed at her peril.

The danger is in the deceptiveness. Because south winds blow, because bird songs are heard, because green grass is found in sheltered nooks, because adventurous pilgrims to the wild woods return with marvelous prizes of trailing arbutus, because the hot sun, smiting and smiling through our chamber window, bids us come forth—therefore we are over tempted to yield completely to the sweet seduction and step, any, bound, from winter habits into spring privileges.

Now, the Press is no pessimist. We would rather any day echo the notes of the robin than of the raven. None are more ready than we to speed the parting guest, winter. No hands are outstretched more cordially than ours to grasp the hands of spring, the maiden who trips hitherward bedecked with vernal leaf and blossom, but in order that the new joy of her coming may be fully felt she must not come alone; Hygeia, the goddess of health, must accompany her.—N. Y. Press.

The eclipses announced for this year are noteworthy. On the 23rd of May the moon will rise in eclipse at 7.55. At the Antipodes her face that evening will be seen wholly obscured. A total eclipse of our satellite will begin at 10.35 on the 15th November. This will be visible. There will be two solar eclipses—one annular and visible in this country as a partial eclipse on the upper limb, beginning at 5.02 on the 8th of June; the other a partial eclipse on the 1st of December which will be visible chiefly in the South Pacific.

McLenaghan, the member for South Lanark, moved the following resolution:

That, in the opinion of this House, greater local facilities should be given to farmers' sons by which they could secure a better education in their own calling than is afforded them under the provisions of the law as it now stands.

Dr. Barr, speaking on the above said that he desired to congratulate Mr. McLenaghan for the able manner in which he had laid the question before the House, but he could not congratulate the Government on the course they had pursued in regard to the question. They said that it would raise the question of class, and so on. How was it that when the questions relating to other professions were brought forward there was no such danger? It was only because they knew that they had not done their duty by the farmers that they raised such absurd objections. He (Dr. Barr) had always thought that there was more money in farming than in professional life, but one of the misfortunes for which the present educational system was in a measure responsible was that farmers were led to believe that it was not a desirable occupation. The suggestion of Mr. McLenaghan was one worthy of the serious and careful consideration of the House. It had been pointed out to the House by Hon. Mr. Ross what had been done in the schools in connection with agricultural education, but he found the report of the Minister that so far as the teaching of agriculture was concerned it was almost a blank. In turning over leaf after leaf he had found almost nothing about agricultural education, and in every case it had been but a secondary consideration, and had not received the attention of the Minister of Education which it should have received. The report showed that agriculture was taught last year to only 2 596 pupils, while drawing was taught to 293 961. In his county the expenditure on mechanics' institutes had been $5,536, while that on farmers' institutes was only $22. The reason why the late Minister lost his head at the last election was that he had not attended to his duty. One reason why the farmers' institutes were not doing better work was that the Government was sending out incompetent lecturers. It was the duty of the House to devise some scheme to rivet the farmers' sons to the soil, let them see that agriculture was a grand and noble calling, and if the Minister of Agriculture or of Education would bring down such a bill he would give it his most careful consideration, as would no doubt every member on that side of the House.

[illegible] themselves by filling cinders and discussing the best way to repair a plank sidewalk. All at once the illuminator got to work and the members of the council took their places around the table. There were present: Mayor Walsh, Reeve Lindsay, Deputy reeve Eydsontt, Ald. Youmans, Kotchum, Cobean, Gillespie, Green, Fiddis, Young and Adamson.

As this was the evening that the council would engage a foreman of works a large number of ratepayers filled the auditorium and anxiously awaited the result.

After the minutes of the last meeting had been read and adopted, the mayor read the following which were ordered to be paid: D. McDonald, $308 50; J. H. Hales, $10; H. Flesher, $5.53; W. Fromlin, $6; George Gray, $7 6½. Dunnets from THE SUN, Advertiser and Post were referred to the Printing committee with power to order payment if found correct; W. Harding, $5.67, was handed to the R. B.

ACCOUNTS;

Town Treasurer Irwin communicated the fact that several lots purchased by the town had been, by error, assessed. The Finance committee will remedy the defect.

WATERWORKS.

J. H. Armstrong of Toronto penned a few lines to let the council know that he was prepared to furnish Orangeville with a system of waterworks, either by the gravitation plan or by a pumping plant. His epistle will probably never be heard of again, as it fell on the table with a "sickening, dull thud."

Toronto sewer pipe and dog tag manufacturing firms wrote to the effect that they could supply the town with anything in the above lines.

MCBRIDE IS FOREMAN.

The most important business of the session was reached when Ald. Adamson, chairman of the R. & B., arose to read the report of that committee. Advertisements were inserted in the local papers requesting applications for the position of foreman of works. In reply to the ads. five persons offered their services, and the committee recommended the appointment of James Babe at a salary of $1 75 per day. Ald. Adamson seconded by Ald. Fiddis, moved the adoption of the report. An amendment was carried that the council go into committee of the whole, Ald. Gillespie in the chair. The report was re-read, D. Suggitt asked $1.37½ per day, W. Maxwell, $1.50, James Dawson, $1.50, Daniel McBride, $1.50, James Babe, no salary stated. Ald. Adamson said Ald. Fiddis recommended the appointment of Mr. Babe, as he was a better scholar and possessed more ability than any of the others. Mr. Adamson also stated that some of the applicants had got other persons to write their applications. Ald. Fiddis said he had been acquainted with Mr. Babe for twenty years and the latter had run a saw mill for a long time. Ald. Young thought Mr Maxwell a first rate man, and Ald. Gillespie gave it as his opinion that it took a man of some ability to look after affairs like this. Mayor Walsh said one man deserved the position as much as the other, but as Mr. McBride was an old resident of this town and a carpenter by trade he (the mayor) thought Mr. McBride was the most entitled to the position. His worship gave the R. & B. committee a "dig" for raising the wages to $1 75 per day when only $1 50 was asked. After several other members expressed their sentiments on the question a vote was taken, but resulted in a great muddle. Ald. Gillespie proposed to vote for them altogether and the man receiving the lowest number of votes should be considered out of the race. His suggestion was adopted, the first vote standing: Dawson 4, McBride 6, Babe 3, Maxwell 3, Suggitt 2. The latter was dropped and another vote taken which resulted: Dawson 4, McBride 4, Babe 2, Maxwell 3. Mr. Babe dropped out and the next vote stood: Dawson 5, McBride 4, Maxwell 3. The final vote resulted in a tie, Messrs. Dawson and McBride each receiving 5 votes. The casting vote had to be given by Ald. Gillespie and he hesitated some time before he gave the decision. He then voted in favor of Mr. McBride, who is the [illegible] foreman of works. The council then adopted the report as amended.

SQUIBS.

Ald. Gillespie inquired when the [illegible] of the F. & W intended to [illegible] Ald. Gillespie requested that for the benefit of Ald. Kotchum we would report at the next meeting.

Ald. Youmans asked if any provision had been made to keep a lamp burning at nights in the fireman's hall. As no provision had been made, he will see to the matter.

The T. P. committee was instructed to get a fresh supply of dog tags. Ald. Fiddis thought cats should be tagged, too (Laughter).

The use of the council chamber was granted to the lacrosse boys, who hold a meeting for re organization this evening.

Deputy reeve Endacott informed the council that the street lighting contract would expire in October, and he thought tenders should be asked for now. The S. L. committee will attend to the matter.

An Embro correspondent of the Lucknow Sentinel writes:—"At a recent session of the elders and deacons of Knox church, Embro, it was resolved that the singing of hymns be discontinued. At the next service, when the choir started to sing a voluntary during the time when the collection was being taken, several parties left their seats and marched out. They said they did not want to hear the concert. The choir has now been dispensed with, and Prof. Tansey has to lead the singing alone."

THE AMARANTH DRAINS.—On Saturday at Laurel five drain contracts were let by public auction and Messrs. S. J. Brown was awarded drain number 31, Wm. C. Allen 32, W. H. Ferguson 33, T. F. Reid 34 and John Lovell 35.

A FINE 'BUS.—Yesterday evening the new proprietors of the Gordon house ran their elegant new 'bus for the first time and a splendid rig it is. Messrs. Livingstone & Rathbun are enterprising gentlemen and will conduct the Gordon in first class style.

DEATH.—Mrs. Watson, widow of the late Louis Watson, who had been confined to bed for about three weeks, died at her residence, John street, on Wednesday night. Deceased was a daughter of Mr. John Corbett, and was 33 years old. She leaves a family of three small children, who have the sympathy of all in their irreparable loss.

WHERE THE WEARY ARE AT REST.—The funeral of the late Mrs. Elizabeth Morrison, relict of the late Rev. Samuel Morrison, who died at the residence of her son in law, Mr. J. C. Reid, lot 2, con., W. H. S., Mono, on Friday last, took place to the Town cemetery on Saturday afternoon. The deceased had reached the ripe old age of 78 years. Mrs. Morrison had many friends in this town and vicinity.

THE POSTOFFICE.—Affairs at the postoffice are going quietly and quickly along, and Postmaster Bradley and his assistant are making a better record than they ever did before. The new postmaster cannot please everybody, but if he succeeds in pleasing a majority of the public he will do very well. We think Mr. B. is quite competent to conduct the office as it should be and we hope things will continue to run as smoothly as at present.

ROUTE BILLS.—THE SUN is better prepared than ever to turn out first-class route bills, and horsemen can rely on getting work equal, if not superior, to that done in cities. We have a larger and better stock of type and cuts than any other office north of Toronto. Compare a bill printed at this office and one done elsewhere and you will come to the conclusion that THE SUN'S Job Department cannot be beaten for work of the highest order. Call around and see our great assortment of cuts.

HE DIDN'T APPEAR.—Several days ago Jimmy Robertson laid an information against Edward Lesson for selling liquor without a license. The case was to be called for yesterday, the defendant and a large number of witnesses being present, but the informant Jimmy was conspicuous by his absence. P. M. Pattullo was very wrathy at Robertson's non appearance, and he issued a warrant for his arrest. The P. M. in have been a very destructive fire occurred in the A. O. U. W. hall, Jackson block, at 9.40 o'clock on Friday night. Just after the Sutton Knights brought their meeting to a close a chande-lier containing six lamps fell to the floor and instantly the whole room was in a blaze. An alarm was immediately sounded and in a very short time the firemen were on the spot. Their services were not required, however, as the blaze had been extinguished in the meantime. The society has the fixtures of the hall insured for $200, and it is estimated it will take that amount to replace the furniture, etc.

TWO TEACHERS ENGAGED.—All the members of the board of public school trustees met in the council chamber on Tuesday evening, and after passing several accounts the subject of engaging two new teachers was discussed. There are two vacancies in the teaching staff and in reply to an advertisement forty-two persons offered their services. Miss Daisy Corrigan of Milton was engaged at a salary of $300 per annum, and Mr. Buchanan of Toronto at a salary of $400. The special committee appointed to consider the advisability of establishing a school in the South ward reported that there were only two suitable places, the building lately occupied by the Salvation Army and Mole's vacant pump shop. The committee was of the opinion that anything more shouldn't be done in the matter this year.

MILLINERY OPENINGS.—During the past week all the town millinery establishments have re-opened for the spring and summer trade, and all have excellent displays. Endacott Bros. opened the ball on Saturday, the 28th ult., with a magnificent display of millinery tastily arranged by Miss Stevens. Judge, Chapman & Co. followed suit on Wednesday of last week and Miss Robertson, their head milliner, fully sustained her reputation. Green, Bowles & Co., with Miss Nellie Kennedy in charge, opened up on Wednesday evening, the 1st, with a large and carefully selected stock. A. & W. Johnston's opening took place Saturday evening under the supervision of Miss Thomas, and a large number of the fair sex attended the opening. The millinery displays this year are far superior to those of previous years.

THE SICK.—Mr. Earnest Henderson, messenger of the Bank of Commerce, son of Rev. A. Henderson, is laid up with rheumatic fever. Mrs. W. J. Price, who has been suffering from an attack of la grippe, is recovering. She is at present at the residence of her mother, Mrs. Moore, here. Mrs. Jas. Bennett is, we are sorry to say, not gaining any in strength. Mrs. Jos. Gordon, Wellington street, who has been confined to bed for the past three weeks, is slowly improving. Mrs. Watson, Bythia street, who is suffering from cancer, is very low. Mrs. John Gillespie of Amaranth, who has been ailing for some time past, is considerably better. Mr. Closs, assistant teacher at the high school is laid up with an attack of la grippe. We regret to hear that Mr. Jas. Johnston, 4th line, Amaranth, is seriously ill.

VERY SUDDEN DEATH.—It is our sad duty to chronicle the death of Mrs. Margaret Henry, relict of the late Dr. Thos. Henry, and mother of Dr. Henry of this town, which took place on Saturday evening, of apoplexy, death being altogether unexpected until a few hours previous. Deceased had just gone up stairs when she was suddenly taken ill. The deceased lady was born in Sligo, Ireland, 73 years ago. Mrs. Henry possessed many kindly qualities and was held in much respect by friends and acquaintances. The funeral took place from her late residence, Second street, on Monday afternoon to St. Mark's church, where religious services were conducted by Rev. A. Henderson, and then the cortege proceeded to the Forest Lawn cemetery where the remains were interred beside those of her husband. A feeling of sincere regret is expressed by all and the mourning relatives have much sympathy in their sorrow.

PASSED AWAY.—On Sunday, at his residence, Wellington street, Mr. James Harrison passed peacefully away at the advanced age of 84 years, after an illness of over four months. He passed away without a struggle, seeming to die rather from decay of vital power than from any disease. Deceased was born in Hull, Eng., and 50 years ago came to this country and settled on lot 23, centre road, Caledon, where he resided for 34 years when he retired from farming and removed to Orangeville where he resided for the past 16 years. He leaves a widow and family of three sons and two daughters. The daughters are: Mrs. Dick, Owen Sound; Mrs. Dillon, Amaranth. The sons are: Thomas, George and William who reside in Caledon. We heartily sympathize with the bereaved

CHARLESTON.

Mr. Crozier Rutledge left on Wednesday for Fort Dodge, Iowa. We wish him every success.

On Wednesday morning the marriage of Mr. Robert Wallace and Miss Lizzie Rutledge of this village was celebrated at the residence of the bride's mother, Rev. A. Wilson officiating. The bride was attired in a handsome cloth travelling suit. After the ceremony a splendid wedding breakfast was partaken of and the happy couple left on the morning train for their new home at Fort Dodge, Iowa. Mr. and Mrs. Wallace carry with them the best wishes of their many friends for their future happiness and prosperity.

GRAND VALLEY.

(Star.)

The grippe is gripping a number of the residents in and around town.

We are informed that Mr. D. Hyndman has leased the Dominion hotel from Mr. Bird and intends moving back from Shelburne to Grand Valley.

Mr. Wm. Loney was away attending the funeral of his uncle, Mr. John Loney, of Mulmur, on Good Friday. The deceased was 80 years of age and the interment took place at Whitfield.

Mr. Hugh McDougall, with several members of his family, of the 9th concession, E Luther, left here yesterday for Manitoba. It is their intention to try their fortune in the prairie land. May they be successful in their new departure, in building up for themselves a home and that happiness and contentment may be their lot.

SALEM.

It is rumored that Contractor Dodds is going to remove to Toronto this summer.

An Evil Spirit lives in the vicinity of Salem, and does his own peculiar work pretty well.

Justice of the Peace Nelson, since selling his farm, is giving his whole attention to legal matters.

Miss Etta Patterson, who has been teaching in the Salem school for the past several months, is giving excellent satisfaction.

Rev. Mr. Orr, Presbyterian minister of Mono Mills, held a prayer meeting at Mr. Hugh Dodds' now residence recently. The attendance was very good.

About thirty neighbors attended a wood bee at Mr. Thomas Allen's on Tuesday of last week. Over fifty cords of wood was sawed. A dance was indulged in by the boys and girls and a pleasant time was spent.

Mr. Sam Island held a wood bee on Tuesday, which was attended by a large number. In the evening everybody got dancing to the excellent music furnished by Messrs. Presley Bros. of Orangeville. Dancing was kept up until 6 o'clock next morning.

AGAIN A MURDER.

A Quarrel Leads to a Stabbing Case in London Township.

LONDON, April 5.—A fatal affray occurred near this city this afternoon on the farm of Mr. John Geary, lots 13 and 14, concession 5, London Township. It appears that one of the hired men, C. Hodges, was milking a cow when Ben. Hubbard, another of the farm hands, interfered. This led to an angry encounter, during which Hodges drew a knife and stabbed Hubbard in the bowels, death resulting in a few minutes. Hodges was arrested and lodged in the goal here. It is said that the men had been on bad terms for some time.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Liver, Lungs, and Kidneys.—Most diseases of these purifying organs arise from obstructions, over the removal of which is strongly recommended as a remedy for such chronic affections as liver enlargements, congestion of the lungs, torpidity of the kidneys, and other functional disorders which cause much present suffering, and if neglected lay the foundation of organic diseases. Holloway's Pills are specially adapted for the young and delicate; their gentle and purifying action ranks them above all other medicines. In indigestion, nervous affections, gout, and rheumatism these Pills have achieved for themselves universal fame. They expel all impurities from the blood, and thus restore cheerfulness and vigour.

P. T. BARNUM IS DEAD.

The Prince of Showmen Passed Away at Bridgeport Conn., Full of Years.

BRIDGEPORT, Ct., April 7.—Phineas T. Barnum, the prince of showmen, died last night. The immediate cause of his death was la grippe, from which he had been suffering for some days past. Mr. Barnum was born at Bethel, Conn., July 5, 1810, his father being an innkeeper. When 19 years of age Barnum became editor of The Herald of Freedom, published in Danbury, Conn. In 1835 he made his first venture in the show line by exhibiting a colored woman named Joyce Heath as the nurse of George Washington. The receipts soon amounted to $1500 a week. He continued in the show business with varying success until 1842, when his discovery and exhibition of Charles S. Stratton, known as "Tom Thumb," brought the great showman into world wide repute. Barnum was the originator of the far famed "woolly horse." He brought Jenny Lind to America in 1850 and the receipts for this venture amounted to $700,000. Since then he has been the best known showman in the world. He was a writer of no mean ability and contributed letters to the press as recently as last week. Among his published works are "The Humbugs of the World," among whom, he proudly boasted, he was the greatest. The American nation pointed to Phineas T. as one of the grandest products of the country. He leaves many imitators, but there never was but one Barnum.

Mr. Barnum died at 6.22 o'clock in the presence of his grief stricken family.

During Mr. Barnum's illness, which began 21 weeks ago last Friday, there were frequent fluctuations in his condition, from each of which he rallied, although in each instance with slightly lower vitality. He seemed to realize he could not live much longer and spoke of the approaching end with calmness.

Barnum wished his funeral to be private and unostentatious. He directed that the interment should be in the Mountain Grove Cemetery, where seven years ago he erected a monument.

The funeral will be conducted by the Rev. L B Fisher Friday afternoon in the North Congregational Church. Mr Barnum had an intense horror of embalming or of having his body placed on ice after death. The remains will be therefore kept in a dark, cool room in the house. The body will then be enclosed in a hermetically sealed casket.

SHELBURNE.

(Free Press and Economist.)

Mr. W. J. Kannawin of Coleridge intends moving to Orangeville soon, having rented his place to Mr. Wm Thacker.

Mr. Otto Rands received word on Monday of the sudden death of his father, Mr. Wm. Rands, of Eye, Suffolk, England.

The citizens band gave their comrade, Mr J. M. Brimmell, and his bride a musical reception on their arrival back last Saturday evening.

Mr. J. A. Skelding has moved back again to Shelburne, having sold out his livery in Creemore. We understand he intends starting up a livery business here.

Miss McKinnon, first assistant in the Shelburne public school, has resigned her position. The resignation has been accepted by the school board, and a new teacher is now required.

The Shelburne Mechanics' Institute is in a flourishing condition. The directors have made an addition of 117 volumes this week, which makes a total of 163 new books added during the past year.

E. Berwick & Co's team took fright at the railway station the other day and ran up the track with the waggon behind them. They cleared the cattle guard all right, but fell at the other side. They then turned and came back breaking the tongue of the waggon. The horses were somewhat badly cut.

Dr. Norton and Mr. John Jelly have purchased the necessary electric light plant and equipments from the R Hanna Co., and it is expected the same will soon be in running order, and that our streets and business places will soon be brilliantly lighted. Contracts have already been taken for about thirty arc lights or their equivalent.

Sit Down and Think.

Sit down and think; 1st, that dyspepsia is caused by wrong action of the stomach; 2nd, that Burdock Blood Bitters is designed to correct and regulate the stomach; 3rd, that it always cures dyspepsia and costs less than a cent a dose. Can you afford to be dyspeptic?

Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam gives prompt relief in coughs, colds, hoarseness, whooping cough, croup, asthma or bronchitis. It is the most pleasant and perfect throat and lung healer in the world for children or adults. Price 25c.

A DOZEN DON'TS.

Don't say "aggravate" for "annoy."

Don't mistake acquaintances for friends.

Don't fail to remember that "Boys flying kites haul in their white-winged birds. You can't do that way when you're flying words."

Don't think one thing, say another and act in a different way entirely. Your associates will distrust your assertions.

Don't wear diamonds "in name only," and don't wear many even if they are of the first water.

Don't forget that white silk braid makes a pretty and durable folded finish for plain dress sleeves.

Don't wear your new gowns while the streets are muddy. Spend a few cents for braid and freshen up your old ones.

Don't buy a hat of exaggerated shape, laden with ultra fashionable trimming. It will not look womanly, and is only staring material.

Don't be foolish about your golashes and your shoes. Thin shoes and damp feet mean money wasted and agony endured while you sit and "wonder where you got that cold."

Don't worry your face into a railroad map of wrinkles simply because things won't come and go as you want them. They'll never be much better, and worry has killed more people than doctors have.

Don't wear a dress bonnet with a tailor made gown—that is, don't unless it is necessary. If you have to, tuck it and wear it like a queen.

Don't forget to darn the tiniest hole that makes its appearance in your gloves.

SPRING PROSE.

We are all so glad to welcome the coming of spring that we are in danger of meeting her so much more than half way as to run serious risk of meeting her on the verge of the graveyard. Physicians and vital statistics agree that March is, in respect to some prevalent causes of disease, the most fatal month of the year, and that early April is only a little better. Pneumonia claims this season for its very own and slays its victims like an epidemic. Consumptives are gathered by the sickle of death like the ripened grain at harvest time. The enfeebled aged dread these weeks with abundant reason. Infants are in constant danger. The strongest man has need to be careful, and women, to whom these bright and auspicious coming days appeal with a charm like herself, must take heed at her peril.

The danger is in the deceptiveness. Because south winds blow, because bird songs are heard, because green grass is found in sheltered nooks, because adventurous pilgrims to the wild woods return with marvelous prizes of trailing arbutus, because the hot sun, smiting and smiling through our chamber window, bids us come forth—therefore we are over tempted to yield completely to the sweet seduction and step, nay, bound, from winter habits into spring privileges.

Now, the Press is no pessimist. We would rather say day echo the notes of the robin than of the raven. None are more ready than we to greet the parting guest, winter. No hands are outstretched more cordially than ours to grasp the hands of spring, the maiden who trips hitherward bedecked with vernal leaf and blossom, but in order that the new joy of her coming may be fully felt she must not come alone; Hygeia, the goddess of health, must accompany her.—N. Y. Press.

The eclipses announced for this year are noteworthy. On the 21st of May the moon will rise in eclipse at 7.53. At the Antipodes her face that evening will be seen wholly obscured. A total eclipse of our satellite will begin at 10.35 on the 15th November. This will be visible. There will be two solar eclipses—one annular and visible in this country as a partial eclipse on the upper limb, beginning at 5 02 on the 8th of June; the other a partial eclipse on the 1st of December which will be visible chiefly in the South Pacific.

THE DANGERS OF SPRING.

Poets and enthusiasts go into raptures over what they sentimentally call "beautiful springtime," and "gentle spring," and while, no doubt, every one is glad to see winter release its icy grasp, "beautiful spring" is, after all, one of the most deadly seasons of the year. Sudden transitions from warmth to extreme cold, with piercing, chilling winds; from dry to sloppy, "muggy" weather, all combine to make the season a most trying one, even to the hardiest constitution, while to those with weak constitutions the season is one of positive danger. Undoubtedly the greatest danger at this season of the year is from cold in the head, which very few escape, and which if not promptly and thoroughly treated, develops into catarrh, with all its disagreeable and loathsome effects. Catarrh, neglected, almost as certainly develops into consumption, annually destroying thousands of lives. At this trying season no household should be without a bottle of Nasal Balm. In cases of cold in the head it gives almost instant relief and effects a speedy cure, thus preventing the development of catarrh. Where the latter disease has already secured a hold it is equally efficacious, and with persistent use will cure the worst case. From the outset it sweetens the breath, stops the nauseous droppings into the throat and fauces, dispels those dull headaches that afflict the sufferer from catarrh. Nasal Balm is not advertised as a cure all—it is an honest remedy which never fails to cure cold in the head or catarrh when the directions are faithfully followed, and thousands throughout the country have reason to bless its discovery. Nasal Balm may be had from all dealers or will be sent post paid on receipt of price (50 cents, small, or $1, large size bottle) by addressing Fulford & Co., Brockville Ont.

Important and True.

No better evidence of the fact that Burdock Blood Bitters is a certain remedy for all blood disorders can be asked than that of Mr. Geo. W. Thomas, druggist, of Hull, P. Q., whose wife was cured of cancer by B.B.B. The family doctor is certain that the disease was cancer and that it is now cured.

ONE SECRET OF HEALTH AND HAPPINESS.

The political battle is over, but the battle with disease must be constantly and unceasingly waged else the grim reaper will come out victorious, and loved ones will be gathered to their long home. On all sides may be seen pale and listless girls who should be enjoying the health and glow of rosy youth. Everywhere we are met with women young in years, yet prematurely old, who suffer in silence almost untold agonies, the result of those ailments peculiar to the female system. To all such, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills come as a blessing. They restore wasted vitality, build up the nervous system, enrich the blood, and transform pale and sallow complexions into glowing, rosy cheeks that alone follow perfect health. In a word they are a certain cure for all these distressing complaints to which women and girls are peculiarly liable. A trial of these pills will convince the most sceptical of their wonderful merit. For suffering men Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are equally efficacious. For over work, mental strain, loss of sleep, nervous debility, and all those diseases that lead to broken down manhood, they are a certain specific, stimulating the brain, reinforcing the exhausted system and restoring shattered vitality. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are nature's restorative and should be used by every weak and debilitated person. For sale by all dealers or sent post paid on receipt of price (50 cents a box) by addressing the Dr Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Nature requires aid in correcting irregularities at this season, and for both men and women no other remedy equals Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as a spring blood tonic. They supply all the constituents necessary to enrich the blood and build up the system. Sold by all dealers, or sent post paid on receipt of price—50c. per box, or five boxes for $2—by addressing Dr. Williams Med Co.,

[illegible] YOU BOW?

[illegible] watch people bow? It is [illegible] to estimate the variety of facial contortions [illegible] the divergence as to the mental [illegible] nodding the head.

You have probably noticed the dignified little bend of the head accompanied by a passive countenance. It does not mean much, and when it does the special graces and commendable virtues are not indicated in the definition. A genial bow has as much to account for as a hearty hand clasp, and one frigid recognition has been known to drench a sprouting friendship with ice water and kill it on the spot.

Heads are often tossed back and then bent down, and I have taken delight in observing a man who opens his mouth as if to facilitate the tilting of his head. On some occasions a greeting is given by a solemn wagging of the head, just as people in some localities shake hands with a motion from side to side.

With a few people the whole face lights up as they greet their friends, and to those cheery, sunshine souled mortals we give an unasked and impulsive confidence. Lips can be curled into a fairly good imitation of a smile. Eyes can be dilated into a cheery semblance of mirth.

Words can be strung together by the brain and uttered in tones of counterfeited joy, but we can read the falseness and mark the absence of heart on every feature.

Those who are glad to see us rarely disguise the fact, and those who are not can scarcely force our belief from resting upon the foundation of a perhaps disagreeable truth.

In the Metcalfe murder case at Loudon of the Queen v. Robert Murray the jury returned a verdict of manslaughter with strong recommendation to mercy. Sentence deferred.

Bogus $2 bills are floating about and they are a good imitation of the genuine, so keep your eyes wide open. The bill is of the B series and is made payable at Montreal, while the genuine is payable at Toronto.

The revenue from Chinese immigration at Vancouver, B. C., last month, was $3,800 against $475 in the same period last year. The tax does not seem to have much influence in decreasing the immigration of the celestials.

Bradford high school pupils became dissatisfied with their principal and petitioned the board to dismiss him. A full meeting of the board was held and the members very wisely came to the conclusion the pupils were not competent to judge the ability of their teacher.

One egg among five of us was how we enjoyed Easter Sunday. It was not much but where little is expected little is required. We could have got away with another but as eggs went up to 1½ cents each, and cash at that, our finances would not stand it. We feel better now. —Harriston Tribune.

One day last week a crowd of hoodlums congregated on a street corner in Boston and fired snowballs at passers by. One of their victims was a stranger in town, who at once stepped into a hardware store, purchased a pistol and informed the gang that he would shoot the first thing that attacked him. He was not molested any further.

Miss Kate Kennedy, who lived alone on the Garafraxa road, near Tobermory, north of the Rocky, wandered away some four or five weeks ago. There was nothing seen or heard of her since, about that time she called on a family on the 2nd con Glenelg. She is supposed to have perished from exposure.—Durham Review.

Burdock Blood Bitters

Is a purely vegetable compound, possessing perfect regulating powers over all the organs of the system, and controlling their secretions. It so purifies the blood that it

CURES

All blood humors and diseases, from a common pimple to the worst scrofulous sore, and this combined with its unrivalled regulating, cleansing and purifying influence on the secretions of the liver, kidneys, bowels and skin, render it unequalled as a cure for all diseases of the

SKIN

From one to two bottles will cure boils, pimples, blotches, nettle rash, scurf, tetter, and all the simple forms of skin disease. From two to four bottles will cure salt rheum or eczema, shingles, erysipelas, ulcers, abscesses, running sores, and all skin eruptions. It is noticeable that sufferers from skin

DISEASES

Are nearly always aggravated by intolerable itching, but this quickly subsides on the removal of the disease by B.B.B. Passing on to graver yet prevalent diseases, such as scrofulous swellings, humors and

SCROFULA

We have undoubted proof that from three to six bottles used internally and by outward application (diluted if the skin is broken) to the affected parts, will effect a cure. The great mission of B. B. B. is to regulate the liver, kidneys, bowels and blood, to correct acidity and wrong action of the stomach, and to open the sluice-ways of the system to carry off all clogged and impure secretions, allowing nature thus to aid recovery and remove without fail

BAD BLOOD

Liver complaint, biliousness, dyspepsia, sick headache, dropsy, rheumatism, and every species of disease arising from disordered liver, kidneys, stomach, bowels and blood. We guarantee every bottle of B. B. B. Should any person be dissatisfied after using the first bottle, we will refund the money on application personally or by letter. We will also be glad to send testimonials and information proving the effects of B. B. B. in the above named diseases, on application to T. MILBURN & CO., Toronto, Ont.

tively, and with persistent use will cure the worst case. From the outset it promotes the health, stops the nauseous droppings into the throat and lungs, dispels those dull headaches that afflict the sufferer from catarrh. Nasal Balm is not advertised as a cure all—it is an honest remedy which never fails to cure cold in the head or catarrh when the directions are faithfully followed, and thousands throughout the country have reason to bless its discovery. Nasal Balm may be had from all dealers or will be sent post paid on receipt of price (50 cents, small, or $1, large size bottle) by addressing Fulford & Co., Brockville Ont.

Important and true.

No better evidence of the fact that Burdock Blood Bitters is a certain remedy for all blood disorders can be asked than that of Mr. Geo. V. Thomas, druggist, of Hull, P. Q., whose wife was cured of cancer by B.B.B. The family doctor is certain that the disease was cancer and that it is now cured.

ONE SECRET OF HEALTH AND HAPPINESS.

The political battle is over, but the battle with disease must be constantly and successfully waged else the grim reaper will come out victorious, and loved ones will be gathered to their long home. On all sides may be seen pale and listless girls who should be enjoying the health and glow of rosy youth. Everywhere we are met with women young in years, yet prematurely old, who suffer in silence almost untold agonies, the result of those ailments peculiar to the female system. To all such, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills come as a blessing. They restore wasted vitality, build up the nervous system, enrich the blood, and transform pale and sallow complexions into glowing, rosy cheeks that alone follow perfect health. In a word they are a certain cure for all these distressing complaints to which women and girls are peculiarly liable. A trial of these pills will convince the most captious of their wonderful merit. For suffering men Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are equally efficacious. For over work, mental strain, loss of sleep, nervous debility, and all those diseases that lead to broken down manhood, they are a certain specific, stimulating the brain, reinforcing the exhausted system and restoring shattered vitality. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are nature's restorative and should be used by every weak and debilitated person. For sale by all dealers or sent post paid on receipt of price (50 cents a box) by addressing the Dr Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Nature requires aid in correcting irregularities at this season, and for both men and women no other remedy equals Dr Williams' Pink Pills as a spring blood tonic. They supply all the constituents necessary to enrich the blood and build up the system. Sold by all dealers, or sent post paid on receipt of price—50c. per box, or five boxes for $2—by addressing Dr. Williams Med Co.

DO YOU BOW?

[illegible] watch people bow? It is [illegible] note the variety of facial [illegible] the divergence as to the [illegible] bowing the head.

You have probably noticed the dignified little bend of the head accompanied by a passive countenance. It does not mean much, and when it does the special graces and commendable virtues are not indicated in the definition. A fashionable young newspaper man in Philadelphia has recently had two fortunes at the expense of $6,000.

Richard Cooke, two years ago was a famous boy soprano and sang "Hear Ye Israel" beautifully, is now a tenor in Paris.

Lawrence Barrett yet owes his mother for $500 for the Harrison monument fund. George M. Pullman subscribed $1,000.

The Czar owns a house in Holland, and is having it thoroughly overhauled and made sound. It was Peter the Great's house in Zaandam.

Both the parents of Congressman McKinley are living at the old home in Canton, O., aged 86 and 83 respectively. The Congressman is the baby of the family, at the age of 34.

It is estimated that to complete young George Vanderbilt's castle in North Carolina it will require ten years of labor and the expenditure of from $8,000,000 to $10,000,000.

AN OLD LEGEND.

Once, long ago, when the world was young, and men turned to the gods for the gifts they craved—once, as the story goes, there lived a man and woman bound each to the other by an unending great love. Neither anticipated unto the other, for the light and beauty each bore within filled them with such glory and strength that their days were as one folding, new sealed scroll from outside things. But so great was their love, so the legend runs, that as time went they felt within them the throb of a great desire to be yet more each unto the other than they had been. "Our joy consumes us," cried they. "We must work or we perish. Give us, ye gods, best thing to do for the other which lifetime can do for himself. Give us to do what the gods have done, and so may love find its perfect way."

Long the gods pondered. "Enough have we withheld," spake they, "save one gift only. Shall Love dwell among men, and they be even as we? Then Love herself must pass. "Detain me not, O mighty ones! There is much for me to do!" Then Love herself

MEN WHO ARE TALKED ABOUT.

A fashionable young newspaper man in Philadelphia has rented that have been furnished at the expense of $5,000.

Richard Croker, six or seven years ago was a fine manly man and among "Hoss Ye Immer" Democrats, is now a tenor in Paris.

Lawrence Barrett yet dons his sword for Hunt for the Sherman commission fund. George M. Pullman subscribed $1,000.

The Czar owns a house in Holland, and is having it thoroughly overhauled and made ready. It was Peter the Great's house in Amsterdam.

Both the parents of Congressman McKinley are living at the old home in Canton, O., aged 84 and 80 respectively. The Congressman is the baby of the family, at the age of 34.

It is estimated that to complete young George Vanderbilt's castle in North Carolina it will require ten years of labor and the expenditure of from $6,000,000 to $10,000,000.

Spencer Pratt, U. S. Minister to Persia, now displaced, is a bachelor of 36. He is tall and slim with regular features and a Vandyck beard. His salary was $6,000, but his opportunities great.

Henry Irving has been elected to the Marlborough Club. This is a high honor, as the Prince of Wales does not allow any one to join whom he does not wish to number among his intimates.

Gen. Booth's plan of regenerating "darkest England," which he proposes to introduce in New York, includes the giving of supper, bed, and breakfast to a tramp at a cost of 40 cents, in return for which the tramp is expected to give eight cents' worth of work. It will require great strategy to get this much work out of an American tramp.

ABOUT WELL KNOWN WOMEN.

Mrs. Langtry, having met with heavy losses in her theatrical ventures in England, threatens to devastate this unfortunate country again the coming season.

Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett is about to return from England to her home in Washington. It is announced that she will resume work on two new stories and a play that has been laid aside owing to the illness and death of her son.

Mme. Bernhardt is said to be of Holland-Jewish origin, and to have been born in Amsterdam about forty-six years ago. Less is known to the public of the antecedents of this brilliant French actress than of almost any other artist who has gained her celebrity.

Lady Sydney Waterlow, the wife of the distinguished English diplomat, is an American girl. She was formerly Margaret Hamilton of Napa, Cal. She is a woman of slight and almost girlish figure, with a pale, delicate face, and is very popular in London society.

Mrs. Leland Stanford is so rich that she does not hesitate to wear dresses that are out of fashion for several years. Nevertheless she is always handsomely attired and has magnificent jewels. She entertains a great deal and is open-handed in her assistance to women who have been less fortunate in life than herself.

Ex-Empress Frederick is short, plain, and stout. There is much in her countenance to remind one of Queen Victoria. The physiognomy gives the impression of sturdy strength of mind and high thought. Nevertheless she has a retreating chin and a poorly formed mouth. The nose is commonplace and turned up. Where her strength lies is in the compact, well-developed forehead and brow.

Men are drawn and quartered even in this enlightened age. They are drawn up from the railroad station and quartered at some hotel.

It is remarkable how many actors cling to that old form of advertising—getting an accommodating reporter to start a fair story about them in order to follow it with a card editorial.

The flash of the footlights has a fascination for a young man, except when pursued by the indignant husband of the actress he has attempted to fascinate, and the flash of the footlights against the embonpoint of his pants.—Texas Siftings.

THREADS OF THOUGHT.

It would be hard to find a greater flatterer than self.

To live means to be, to do, to accomplish; not simply to exist, to rest inert, useless.

The deeper and broader a nature is, the less likely it is to be comprehended by others.

It is a cheery heart that is ever ready to lighten some weary way with helpful tenderness.

Anger is like the unruly beast in the dusty road, it clouds the mind and obstructs the right of way.

It is much easier to demand that others shall reach a high standard, than to compel ourselves to do the same.

Our opinions are a good deal like the time of our clocks and watches, no two just alike, yet we all follow and keep our own.

If it is hard to forgive an enemy an intentional injury, how much more difficult must it be to pardon a friend for the same offense.

He who gives in time of need, though small the gift, has done a great good, as if it had been as broad as the earth, and as pleasant as [illegible]

AN OLD LEGEND.

Once, long ago, when the world was young and men turned to the gods for the gifts they craved—some for the many goes, there lived a man and woman loved each to the other by an exceeding great love. Rather were they wedded unto the other, for the light and beauty each have within filled them with such glory and strength that their days went on the wings, nor knew of aught from outside things. But as great as was their love, in the legend runs, that as time went by they felt within them the birth of a great desire to be yet more each unto the other than they had been. "Our joy consumes us," cried they. "We must work or we perish. Give us, ye gods, most things to do for the other which further can its for himself. Give us to do what the gods have done, and so may love find its perfect way."

Long the gods pondered. "Naught have we withheld," spake they, "save one gift only. Shall Care dwell among men, and they be given as we?" Then Care herself spoke. "Behold me not, O mighty ones! there is much for the children of earth to know that is hidden from them till I go." Then the oldest of the gods remembered what in heaven had been forgot, and he rose and took the hand of Care and led her downward to the earth. And the man and woman looking on her saw a beauteous maiden, full of grief, and her eyes were as if you looked at the stars at night over gardens full of perfume. And they shone with the light of a great gladness. And the faces of the man and woman lit up with an overwhelming joy. Then the oldest of the gods, so says the legend, stood majestic and held his hand aloft. "Children of the earth, unto you is given the divinest of our gifts, a being forged out of love that makes no end of its own. You may make of her what you will. Love must your own." But the man and the woman were lost with joyous Care among the flowers, nor heeded longer the voice of the oldest god.

After many days, so the legend runs, when men multiplied, and each man's need had grown greater to him than that of the other, and each man's power the greatest and worth striving for, then it was that some man stopped and looked at Care, and looking, turned away and ran. For Care had grown gaunt-eyed and hideous, and clutched at him with long and bony fingers. And a woman, too, in those days, stopped and looked at Care, and cried out in shuddering sobs. And one tried to drown her in the cup, and the other meekly bore her to her grave. Then the oldest of the gods trembled for the children of earth, seeing how a gift had wellnigh destroyed them.

But there were those, even in those days, so the story runs, to whom Care was beauteous as of old. They were those with whom Love had not died, to whom life meant help for others, and opportunity for service was counted blessed. And these walked hand in hand with Care rejoicing, and they looked into her face with thanksgiving, and saw that it yet glowed with the light of a great glory within, and that about her feet shone the radiance of perfect peace. And the oldest of the gods walking among them was glad, and unto the children of earth spake once again: "Take the hand of Care and be thankful. Look into her face, and she is a handmaid from heaven. Shun her, and she is an ogress haunting all your days."

And the oldest of the gods departed from this earth, nor was seen again among men. And so the legend ends.

But Care still walks abroad, and will walk, men say, till all men love duty and their fellow-men, and so love her; till men know her as a great privilege, and not as their own favored creation, stalking hungry-eyed among their possessions. And women in those days will cease to shudder at Care, even before they see the faces of their little ones, nor think Care has marked their foreheads, or stooped and stolen romance out of their lives, or crept away with their ambitions. And Care will not be a lean and crouching figure huddling by firesides, but the joyous beautiful woman who leads us with radiant smile over to higher planes of happiness. And this must ever be true, for the saddest of life is not found where Care is, but there where Love is and Care is denied.—Harper's Bazar.

About Women.

Queen Liliuokalani, who succeeds her brother, the late Kalakaua, on the Hawaiian throne, is an amiable and intelligent woman, 53 years old. She is animated and interesting in conversation, speaking in the low musical tones peculiar to her race. She speaks English well, is versed in the current literature of the day, and is especially fond of poetry and music.

Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, in her recent lecture "Is Polite Society Polite?" before the Ladies' Physiological Institute in Boston, said that politeness is not to be put on and off like a garment, for a company's delectation, but is truest and most luminous at home. It is the outgrowth of pure, natural, genuine, unselfish life; it is sincerity, self respect and acknowledgment of the rights of others.

Dressmakers do not allow the lack of an embroidered or an embossed pattern upon the material to deter them in the matter of producing the general effect of a pattern dress. With singular deftness they outline figures, either natural or conventional, upon the plain material, and then give them into the hands of an apprentice to be traced with narrow braiding which either exactly matches the cloth or harmonizes well with it. Thus a costly effect is produced at low price.

"It's all very well to talk of writing for posterity," sighed the poet, "but posterity isn't editing any magazines."

"Have you read my last novel, my dear friend?" "Certainly." "Well, and how do you like it?" "I laid the book down with the greatest satisfaction."

"We are both in the same boat, aren't we?" said one of the two brothers who were condoling over a parental visitation. "Yes," was the reply; "we were; and it was a whale boat, too, wasn't it?"

"Why, hello, old boy, I haven't seen you since you were married. What are you doing now? Travelling for the house I suppose?" "No, not exactly. Since the baby came I have become a floor-walker."

Wife—"You don't tell me that Professor A. has been struck dumb?" Husband—"Yes, last night. And he was master of four languages." Wife—"Is it possible? And was he struck dumb in all seven?"

ABOUT WELL-KNOWN WOMEN.

Mrs. Langtry, having met with heavy losses in her theatrical ventures in England, threatens to desecrate this unfortunate country again the coming season.

Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett is about to return from England to her home in Washington. It is announced that she will resume work on her new novelette and a play that has been laid aside owing to the illness and death of her son.

Mme. Furtado-Heine is said to be of Holland-Jewish origin, and to have been born in Amsterdam about forty-six years ago. Less is known to the public of the antecedents of this brilliant French actress than of almost any other artist who has gained the celebrity.

Lady Sydney Waterlow, the wife of the distinguished English baronet, is an American girl. She was formerly Margaret Hamilton of Napa, Cal. She is a woman of slight and almost girlish figure, with a pure, delicate face, and is very popular in London society.

Mrs. Leland Stanford is so rich that she does not hesitate to wear dresses that are out of fashion for several years. Nevertheless she is always handsomely attired and has magnificent jewels. She is certainly a great deal and is open-handed in her assistance to women who have been less fortunate in life than herself.

Ex-Empress Frederick is short, plain, and stout. There is much in her countenance to remind one of Queen Victoria. The physiognomy gives the impression of sturdy strength of mind and high thought. Nevertheless she has a retreating chin and a poorly formed mouth. The nose is commonplace and turned up. Where her strength lies is in the compact, well-developed forehead and brow.

It seems to be the burglaries and not the burglars that are committed nowadays.

There are men who think less of seats in the legislature than they do of the possible receipts.

Deaf mutes may speak with signs, but they don't go around shaking hands with barbed poles.

"You have my heart felt thanks," as the patient said when the doctor had finished sounding that organ.

When the humane child sees in a cage A harmless little linnet, His tender thoughts in thanks engage, Because he isn't in it.

Men are drawn and quartered even in this enlightened age. They are drawn up from the railroad station and quartered at some hotel.

It is remarkable how many actors cling to that old form of advertising—getting an accommodating reporter to start a fake story about them in order to follow it with a card of denial.

The flash of the footlights has a fascination for a young man, except when pursued by the indignant husband of the actress he has attempted to fascinate, and the flashes of the footlights against the embonpoint of his pants.—Texas Siftings.

THREADS OF THOUGHT.

It would be hard to find a greater flatterer than self.

To live means to be, to do, to accomplish; not simply to exist, to rest, to act, unless.

The deeper and broader a nature is, the less likely it is to be comprehended by others.

It is a cheery heart that is ever ready to lighten some weary way with helpful tenderness.

Anger is like the unruly beast in the dusty road, it clouds the mind and obstructs the right of way.

It is much easier to demand that others shall reach a high standard, than to compel ourselves to do the same.

Our opinions are a good deal like the time of our clocks and watches, no two just alike, yet we all follow and keep our own.

If it is hard to forgive an enemy an intentional injury, how much more difficult must it be to pardon a friend for the same offense.

He who gives in time of need, though small the gift, has done as great good as if it had been as [illegible] as the earth, and as rich as [illegible]

"It all very well to talk of writing for posterity," sighed the poet, "but posterity isn't editing any magazines."

"Have you read my last novel, my dear friend?" "Certainly." "Well, and how do you like it?" "I laid the book down with the greatest satisfaction."

"We are both in the same boat, aren't we?" said one of the two brothers who were condoling over a parental visitation. "Yes," was the reply; "we were; and it was a whale boat, too, wasn't it?"

"Why, hello, old boy, I haven't seen you since you were married. What are you doing now? Travelling for the house I suppose?" "No, not exactly. Since the baby came I have become a floor-walker."

Wife—"You don't tell me that Professor A. has been struck dumb?" Husband—"Yes, last night. And he was master of four languages." Wife—"Is it possible? And was he struck dumb in all seven?"

B.B.B. CURES DYSPEPSIA. CURES DYSPEPSIA. CURES DYSPEPSIA.

PROMOTES DIGESTION.

Mr. Neil McNeil, of Leith, Ont., writes:

DEAR SIRS,—For years and years I suffered from dyspepsia in its worst forms, and after trying all manner of my poisons to no purpose I was persuaded by friends to try B.B.B., which I did, and after using 6 bottles I was completely cured.

B.B.B. Cures CONSTIPATION. Cures CONSTIPATION. Cures CONSTIPATION.

ACTS ON THE BOWELS.

Rapid Recovery.

DEAR SIRS,—I have tried your B.B.B. with great success for constipation and pain in my head. The second dose made me over so much better. My bowels now move freely and the pain in my head has left me, and to everybody with the same disease I recommend B.B.B.

MISS F. WHELAN,
445 Bloor St., Toronto.

B.B.B. Cures BILIOUSNESS. Cures BILIOUSNESS. Cures BILIOUSNESS.

REGULATES THE LIVER.

Direct Proof.

SIRS,—I was troubled for five years with Liver Complaint. I used a great deal of medicine which did me no good, and I was getting worse all the time until I tried Burdock Blood Bitters. After taking four bottles I am now well. I can also recommend it for the cure of Dyspepsia.

MARY A. B. DRAPER,
Hawkstone, Ont.

B.B.B. Cures HEADACHE. Cures HEADACHE. Cures HEADACHE.

REGULATES THE KIDNEYS.

A Prompt Cure.

DEAR SIRS,—I was very bad with headache and pain in my back; my hands and feet swelled so I could do no work. My sister-in-law advised me to try B.B.B. With one bottle I felt so much better that I got one more. I am now well, and can work as well as ever.

ANNIE BURGESS,
Tilsonburg, Ont.

B.B.B. Cures BAD BLOOD. Cures BAD BLOOD. Cures BAD BLOOD.

PURIFIES THE BLOOD.

Bad Blood may arise from wrong action of the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Bowels. B.B.B. by regulating and toning these organs, removes the cause and makes new rich blood, removing all blood diseases from a pimple to a scrofulous sore.

About Women.

Queen Liliuokalani, who succeeds her brother, the late Kalakaua, on the Hawaiian throne, is an amiable and intelligent woman, 53 years old. She is animated and interesting in conversation, speaking in the low, musical tones peculiar to her race. She speaks English well, is versed in the current literature of the day, and is especially fond of poetry and music.

Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, in her recent lecture "In Public Society Politics" before the Ladies' Physiological Institute in Boston, said that politeness is not to be put on and off like a garment, for a company's delectation, but is truest and most luminous at home. It is the outgrowth of pure, natural, genuine, unselfish life; it is sincerity, self respect and acknowledgment of the rights of others.

Dressmakers do not allow the lack of an embroidered or an embossed pattern upon the material to deter them in the matter of producing the general effect of a pattern dress. With singular deftness they outline figures, either natural or conventional, upon the plain material, and then give them into the hands of an apprentice to be traced with narrow braiding which either exactly matches the cloth or harmonizes well with it. Thus a costly effect is produced at low price.

AT EASTER TIDE.

Lace is the prevailing trimming of the day. It is seen upon [illegible] it forms the [illegible] glove tops and [illegible] the skirts and [illegible] soft evening [illegible] often to wear thin [illegible] skirts. A [illegible] at the waist [illegible] fall over [illegible] with Valenciennes [illegible] easily tucked up at [illegible] pink silk underskirt with silk ruching.

PARTED.

Once more my hand will clasp your hand;
Your hand (who I shall hear some more)
But we shall never see the land,
The pleasant land we know of yore;
Never, on any summer day,
Hear the low music of its streams,
Or wander down the leafy way
That leadeth to the land of dreams.

Still, beneath the scented sky,
The songs of birds rise clear and sweet,
As when I gathered roses there,
And heaped their glories at your feet;
And still the golden pathway lies
At eve across the western sea,
And lovers dream beneath those skies,
Which shine no more for you and me.

No more, ah, nevermore! and yet
They seem so near, those summer days,
When hope was like a jewel set
To shine above Time's misty ways;
I sometimes dream that morning's light
Will bring them back to us once more,
And that 'tis but one long dark night
Since we too parted by the shore.

We parted with soft words and low,
And "Farewell till to-morrow" said
From sea and sky, and sunset's glow
A golden hale round you shed;
Then as you went, I heard you sing,
"Haste thee, sweet morrow!" Parting thus,
How could we dream that life would bring
Not any morrow there for us?

We parted; and that last farewell
Its shadow on our life-path cast;
And Time's relentless barriers fell
Between us and our happy past;
And now we meet when cares and tears
Have dulled the parting and the pain,
But never can the weary years
Bring back our golden dreams again.

The Story Teller.

OLIVE VARCOE

—OR—

TRUE TO THE LAST.

CHAPTER III. (CONTINUED.)

BETTER THAN A SWEETHEART.

GOVERNESSES, tutors, young curates, and respectable old vicars, had all tried their eloquence on Olive Varcoe in vain. She was always willing to acknowledge herself in the wrong, always willing to fast, or pray, or pour ashes on her head, and humble herself as a penitent; but this contrition and these penances never mended her. This Eastern twist in her character seemed in English eyes a moral blindness, whence might spring all manner of sins and cruelties. And the passion, the leaven of fire in her nature, still further startled the calmer, colder hearts around her. Anything she desired was sought for with an intensity past their comprehension, and therefore regarded with fear. A strange girl, dangerous to herself and others; vindictive, yet generous; false, yet fascinating and tender; a girl whom it was impossible to hate and perilous to love.

This was Lady Trewavas's thought as, bending over her grandson's bed, she watched the changes of his countenance as she talked.

"Olive has no moral sense, no truth in her," she said, anxiously. "I have thought that a convent or a school might do her good."

"A convent!" cried Sir Hilton. "My dear grandmother, neither school nor convent will ever make a puritan out of such stuff as Olive. And I, for one, don't want to see her changed; her tricks are only amusing; she means no harm. Trewavas would be intolerably dull without her. I won't have her sent away."

"But, my dear Hilton, there's her future to think of," remonstrated Lady Trewavas. "What man would like to marry such a girl? I must at least teach her truthfulness."

"Marry her!" exclaimed Sir Hilton, with a sudden start; who wants to marry her?"

"No one," replied Lady Trewavas.

"Of course not," said Sir Hilton, laughing. "What an elf for a wife! She'll never marry; she must always live with you and me and Eleanor at Trewavas."

Lady Trewavas had strong opinions on this subject, but she hesitated to utter them; and before she could shape a reply, Dr. Burton entered, with Eleanor leaning on his arm.

"Now my formidable business is over," he said. "I bring you a better medicine than can be found in drugs, Sir Hilton. Here is Miss Maristowe, too impatient to see you to heed any longer my prohibition."

Excitement had flushed Eleanor's cheek and heightened the lustre of her eyes, and her loveliness was still further enhanced by the rich robe she wore. She had not changed her evening dress, and as her cloak fell back over her tall figure, showing the lovely bust and arms that gleamed white beneath its scarlet folds, it was difficult to suppress the admiration which her beauty excited. Sir Hilton looked at her and sighed. To him she had always seemed a cold proud girl, whom it was his misfortune, rather than his joy, to woo. He mistook her timidity for coldness, and her maidenly reserve for want of heart. But now he was to see her under a new phase; for at sight of his fevered face and evident suffering she sprang forward and, seizing the hand he extended, she clasped and kissed him, while her tears fell fast upon his cheek. Much moved, he flung his arms around her, and pressed her to his bosom.

"My dear Eleanor!" he said, trying to speak without faltering. "I did not think to see you here. How did you know of this?"

Eleanor could not answer him for her tears.

"Dr. Burton was driving at Trewavas, and Kingsman rode thither after him," said Lady Trewavas. "Olive seems to have forgotten he was there, and but for this circumstance we might not have heard of your accident for hours. She did not stand to tell us."

"Never mind," said Dr. Burton, cheerfully. "You ladies must not make such a mighty fuss over my patient; the accident is really nothing."

"I am thankful it is no worse," said Lady Trewavas. "My dear boy, you have not told me how it happened."

"I was riding Pixy, and she threw me, that's all," he replied; "let us leave details at present.—By the bye, Eleanor," he continued, she his arm pressed her more closely, "I am right glad you treated me so shabbily this afternoon; for, had you ridden, I should have mounted you on Pixy, and Heaven knows what would have happened! The mare was downright vicious to day."

"I meant to ride with you," said Eleanor sadly, "and I was so hurt you should think me deliberately unkind. Oh Hilton, I have spent such a miserable evening!"

"I have explained it all, my dear," interrupted Lady Trewavas. "Hilton knows whose fault it is that you did not keep your promise. Really, my dear boy, Olive must not be permitted again to make mischief between you and Eleanor."

"She shall never do that," said Sir Hilton, as his eyes rested on Eleanor's beautiful face. "How can you think such a thing possible?"

He forgot how he had talked and felt only an hour ago.

"My dear Lady Trewavas," said Dr. Burton, "I have recommended quiet to my patient; so what do you say to our leaving him? Rest will be better than conversation; he has talked too much already."

"Do you want to go so soon, Eleanor?" asked Sir Hilton, wistfully.

The girl was kneeling by the bedside, with the beautiful waves of her brown hair sweeping his brow; she raised her head at this question, and looked pleadingly at Lady Trewavas.

"Appeal to me, Miss Maristowe," said the doctor, smiling. "I brought you to Sir Hilton as my best panacea; I am going to leave you here, and carry off Lady Trewavas. Will that please you, Sir Hilton? And if I leave you this physic for a quarter of an hour, will you swallow a veritable medicine when I bring it?"

"Anything short of poison, doctor, will I take, in gratitude for this your best prescription," he replied.

In spite of pain, in spite of doubt and jealousy, those were happy moments that the lovers spent thus together, forgetful of all things in the world save of each other. Above all, forgetful of Olive Varcoe, who, drenched with rain and weeping bitterly, sat out beneath the trees in darkness.

To some people it is always Winter. Dependence and poverty, sickness and sorrow, have no Summer. And among the most miserable outcasts from the sun, ranks the poor relation, the old feeble man, who shrinks nervously from the honored guests, who sits in draughts, and runs errands, and smiles vacantly at your jests, with a dismal mockery at mirth; or the woman turned fawner and flatterer, who bears all snubbings with supernatural cheerfulness, and does all the family mending. Upon her is poured out the vials of domestic wrath, and she takes the edge off the sharp tempers of family belligerents, before they come themselves to the conflict. This is her fate; and it is a sad sight to see her smiling on the cross children, or listening with intense interest to the tattle of her patroness, a sad sight, because there is a lack of sturdiness and truth in the natures that prefer to bear such things rather than work hard and fare hard with independence.

Yet Olive, though dependent, was not one of these. It was true that Lady Trewavas, without meaning it, was sometimes hard on her. If the house was full of guests it was thought a mere trifle to disturb Miss Varcoe, and make her yield her room, or share it with another. Slights, seldom put on others sometimes fell to her share, and at parties and picnics she was often thrust aside, without Lady Trewavas herself being very conscious of the fact. The household had grown into the habit of forgetting or overlooking her, and the justice or injustice of the process was never inquired into; she was a person of little importance, and there was an end of the matter. No unkindness was meant; and yet the family slipped into grooves that passed Olive Varcoe by. Then, too, she was expected to do many things that she chooses to consider drudgery. She helped to mend the family linen, she assisted to label preserves and pickles; and (horror of horrors!) Lady Trewavas sometimes gave her a dress of her own, with orders to alter it for herself.

All these things Olive bore, not like a dependent, but like an imprisoned princess raging beneath the thrall of a malignant fairy. And for these small grievances she thirsted for revenge, and nursed in her heart an eager desire to vide over the necks of her enemies. Beneath all her gaiety, all her freaks, there lurked a passionate resentment, which might one day break out in fire deeds, or (so inconsistent was her character) in some wild act of generosity. To make Sir Hilton love her, to make him marry her, was the favorite shape her dreams took. To be Lady Trewavas would be a triumph indeed. Then she would be lofty generous and forgiving, then she would show her proud aunt that the insignificant Olive could be as noble as the noblest.

Oh, would it never come, that glorious day? Was there no hope? Must she always thirst, and never drink?

It seemed so, for how her hopes were shaken to the dust; and wounded in her love, disappointed in her ambition, she turned at bay like a creature hunted and terror struck. A long gloomy future spread itself before her eyes; mortification, defeat, penury, dependence, marked her way; and, keenest sting of all, Eleanor would see her shame—Eleanor would triumph over her! Eleanor, radiant, victorious, beloved, would lean through life on Sir Hilton's protecting arm, and bestow her charity contemptuously on the poor cousin who had once been her rival.

The thought was too galling, and wringing her hands piteously, Olive wept beneath the dripping trees, regardless of the rain, regardless of the loneliness and darkness, and heedless of the shiverings that ran through her frame, as her wet garments clung around her.

No one asked for her, no one missed her; so the forlorn girl sat out in the rain, taking a vicious delight in her misery, and yet angry that no one cared enough for her to seek her. In this, as in all other things, she was a forward child, needing the kind mother's voice that she had never heard, the mother's love that she had never received; and yet some one even now was seeking her—some one who was always kind, always thoughtful for others—some one who, in the midst of his own sorrow, so carelessly ignored by all, could yet feel for hers.

"Olive! Olive!" cried John's voice, cautiously, "where are you? What are you doing out here in the rain? You will kill yourself."

"What does it matter?" said the girl bitterly. "Is there any human being that will care? My aunt suffers me, that is all; and lately she has begun to dislike me. If she could help it, she would not give me even a garret in her great house; she would thrust me out into the world to perish. I hate her, John! And I hate Eleanor, too, and every one! Shall I be grateful for the unwilling charity flung to me carelessly, as we fling bones to a dog? No! And if it were not for you, John, I would kill somebody this very night."

"Olive! Olive! you are talking most unjustly.—most wickedly!" exclaimed John, aghast at her violence. "You are mad!"

"I am not mad," she replied. "I am too sane. If my brain were not so clear, I should not see how bitter is my future, how drear and horrible my fate."

"Does no one suffer but you, Olive?" asked John. "Look out into the world and you will see real misery enough; or look at home, and you will find you are not the only one writhing beneath a sore heart."

"Oh, you, John! Who can copy you?" she said. "You have the patience of Job and the meekness of Moses. Will you set yourself up as a model to a girl like me?"

"No," replied John, gently; "but you might have sense enough in yourself to bear things more quietly."

"I cannot bear them quietly, and I won't!" she exclaimed. "John, I cannot endure this marriage; I must stop it. I shall commit murder to stop it, if nothing else will."

"You are talking wildly, and like a foolish, wicked child," said John. "You don't know what you say. And besides would murder stop it?"

"Yes," said Olive, lifting her face from her hands, and letting the fitful moonlight fall full upon her agitated features. "If I flung Eleanor into the sea, or if I shot aunt, or poisoned old Mrs. Maristowe, Hilton would not marry, at all events, not for a year; and stranger things than the breaking off of an engagement may happen in a year."

John listened to her silently; then stretching out his hand he seized both hers, and held them in a strong grasp.

"Olive," said he, "beware of what you do. If you touch a hair of Eleanor's head, I denounce you at once. The wicked deed you have done to-day is not hidden from me. I know that you went out to the stable and twice filled Pixy's manger with corn; and this you did, knowing that Eleanor was going to ride to Trewavas cliffs. A severe, a plunge, an unexposed gallop near that precipice, and her life would have been flung away like a straw. Nothing could have saved her. She would have been dashed to pieces beneath the rocks."

Struggling to free her hands, Olive burst into passionate tears.

"I have not your patience—your goodness," she cried. "Forgive me, John! I repeated; you know I did. I went to Eleanor, and told falsehoods to save her from riding Pixy. And am I not punished bitterly by seeing Hilton lying in pain and danger through my folly? I was in agony when I saw him mount that beast. You cannot tell how I begged and prayed him to let me ride her. Then, seeing the creature so unmanageable, he jumped hurriedly to tame her, and I stood by, mad and miserable, I thought I should have died when I saw him fall."

"You took care not to go to Trewavas Cliffs," resumed John, with a shudder. "If Hilton had fallen there, he would never have been picked up a living man."

Olive dragged her hands from John's grasp, and covered her face with them again.

"Don't, don't!" she cried; "it's too horrible what you say. Oh, John, if I had killed him! What a wicked, wicked girl I am!"

"Yet you would have been glad," said John, gloomily, "if Eleanor had been flung by that vicious brute over the cliff, and had lain crushed and mangled out of life on the sands."

"No, no, I should not have been glad," she replied. "If she had not believed my stories, and gone with aunt, I meant to confess what I had done. Do you believe me, John?"

She sank down on the wet grass, exhausted by her own vehemence, and clung to his knees with both arms.

"I believe you, Olive," said John, lifting her kindly. "You are wet through, my poor child; let me drive you home—no one shall see you."

"Mayn't I stay here?" she cried; "mayn't I stay and nurse him? It is my fault that he is hurt. I ought to stay."

"It is useless to ask it Olive," replied John; "Lady Trewavas stays here herself, and Eleanor with her, and Hilton returns home with them to-morrow, if well enough. You see all your mad endeavors to separate these two, only endear them the more to each other."

For the first time there was a tinge of raincoat to John's tone, but in a moment he returned to his old self.

"Come, Olive," said he, "let us go home together. They won't miss us."

Worn out and weary, Olive consented; but when she rose, she trembled violently, and John was forced to support her with one arm. Thus, with head drooping, and her heavy habit trailing over the long wet grass, the forlorn girl passed beneath the dripping trees, and so down the lonely road, where John's tilbury waited. He lifted her to the seat, and drove fast towards Trewavas.

NATIONAL PREJUDICES VANQUISHED.

The Triumphs of a Great Discovery.

The magnetic influence of gold attracts the people of every clime to our shores. Men of all nations, and speaking all the languages of civilization, are to be found congregated on our auriferous plains. Differing in all other things in their customs, habits, and religion—yet there is one point upon which their opinions coincide. Englishmen and Americans, French, Germans, Swedes, Italians, Swiss and Chinese admit, without a dissenting voice, that the great remedies introduced to the world forty years ago by Holloway are better adapted to the cure of diseases in this climate than any other preparations in existence. This appears, in fact, to be the experience of mankind in all parts of the world, and hence the universal popularity of these medicines. We consider, however, that the boundless confidence placed in their efficacy by the representatives of so many nations at the mines, is a [illegible] phenomenon in a climate [illegible] of these [illegible] at matu[illegible] of drug[illegible] several [illegible] connec[illegible] by the [illegible] have [illegible] Holloway's Pills and Ointment have been [illegible] commended [illegible] gold diggers [illegible] accustomed [illegible] the result of [illegible] experience.

The Ointment is used with wonderful success as a dressing for wounds, ulcers, and sore legs, all of which arise from diseases such as to which the adventurous gold digger is peculiarly liable; that a digger's tent can be found in every vast area of the gold fields without a stock of this healing and cooling preparation. The heat of the digger, and sometimes the tent, tend to vitiate the blood and cause running sores and purulent eruptions of the body and limbs. Bad legs, particularly, are very common at the diggings, and seriously interfere with the labours of the diggers. The worst cases of this class are cured by the Ointment with extraordinary rapidity. The best method of healing sore legs, and sores and ulcers generally, is by rubbing the Ointment into the inflamed parts around the orifice, first opening the pores and softening the flesh with warm fomentations. The part affected is then dressed with lint or linen saturated with the Ointment. Such is the external treatment, but it is also proper to give the patient a few doses of the Pills during the progress of the cure, as they serve to purify the blood and discharge morbid matter from the system, while the Ointment is doing its work on the surface.—The Scientific Witness.

We parted with soft words and love,
And Farewell! kill to-morrow" said he.
Frost on and sky, and autumn's glow
A golden halo round you shed;
Then as you went, I heard you sing,
"Smile then, sweet morrow!" Parting then,
How could we dream that life would bring
Not one morrow there for me?

We parted; and that last farewell
Its shadow on our life-path cast;
And Time's relentless barriers fell
Between us and our happy past;
And now we meet when eyes and tears
Have dulled the parting and the pain,
But never can the weary years
Bring back our golden dreams again.

The Story Teller.

OLIVE VARCOE
—OR—
TRUE TO THE LAST.

CHAPTER III. (CONTINUED.)

BETTER THAN A SWEETHEART.

GOVERNESSES, tutors, young curates, and respectable old vicars, had all tried their eloquence on Olive Varcoe in vain. She was always willing to acknowledge herself in the wrong, always willing to fast, or pray, or pour ashes on her head, and humble herself as a penitent; but this contrition and these penances never mended her. This Eastern twist in her character seemed in English eyes a moral blindness, whence might spring all manner of sins and cruelties. And the passion, the leaven of fire in her nature, still further startled the calmer, colder hearts around her. Anything she desired was sought for with an intensity past their comprehension, and therefore regarded with fear. A strange girl, dangerous to herself and others; vindictive, yet generous; false, yet fascinating and tender; a girl whom it was impossible to hate and perilous to love.

This was Lady Trewavas's thought as, bending over her grandson's bed, she watched the changes of his countenance as she talked.

"Olive has no moral sense, no truth in her," she said, anxiously. "I have thought that a convent or a school might do her good."

"A convent!" cried Sir Hilton. "My dear grandmother, neither school nor convent will ever make a puritan out of such stuff as Olive. And I, for one, don't want to see her changed; her tricks are only amusing; she means no harm. Trewavas would be intolerably dull without her. I won't have her sent away."

"But, my dear Hilton, there's her future to think of," remonstrated Lady Trewavas. "What man would like to marry such a girl? I must at least teach her truthfulness."

"Marry her!" exclaimed Sir Hilton, with a sudden start; who wants to marry her?"

"No one," replied Lady Trewavas.

"Of course not," said Sir Hilton, laughing. "What an elf for a wife! She'll never marry; she must always live with you and me and Eleanor at Trewavas."

Lady Trewavas had strong opinions on this subject, but she hesitated to utter them; and before she could shape a reply, Dr. Burton entered, with Eleanor leaning on his arm.

"Now my formidable business is over, he said. "I bring you a better medicine than can be found in drugs, Sir Hilton. Here is Miss Maristowe, too impatient to see you to heed any longer my prohibition."

Excitement had flushed Eleanor's cheek and heightened the lustre of her eyes, and her loveliness was still further enhanced by the rich robe she wore. She had not changed her evening dress, and as her cloak fell back over her tall figure, showing the lovely bust and arms that gleamed white beneath its scarlet folds, it was difficult to suppress the admiration which her beauty excited. Sir Hilton looked at her and sighed. To him she had always seemed a cold proud girl, whom it was his misfortune, rather than his joy, to woo. He mistook her timidity for coldness, and her maidenly reserve for want of heart. But now he was to see her under a new phase; for at sight of his covered face and evident suffering she sprang forward and, seizing the hand he extended, she details at present.—By the bye, Eleanor," he continued, and his arm pressed her more closely, "I am right glad you treated me so shabbily this afternoon; for, had you ridden, I should have mounted you on Pixy, and Heaven knows what would have happened! The mare was downright vicious to-day."

"I meant to ride with you," said Eleanor sadly, "and I was so hurt you should think me deliberately unkind. Oh Hilton, I have spent such a miserable morning!"

"I have explained it all, my dear," interrupted Lady Trewavas. "Hilton knows whose fault it is that you did not keep your promise. Really, my dear boy, Olive must not be permitted again to make mischief between you and Eleanor."

"She shall never do that," said Sir Hilton, as his eyes rested on Eleanor's beautiful face. "How can you think such a thing possible?"

He forgot how he had talked and felt only an hour ago.

"My dear Lady Trewavas," said Dr. Burton, "I have recommended quiet to my patient; so what do you say to our leaving him? Rest will be better than conversation; he has talked too much already."

"Do you want to go so soon, Eleanor?" asked Sir Hilton, wistfully.

The girl was kneeling by the bedside, with the beautiful waves of her brown hair sweeping his brow; she raised her head at this question, and looked pleadingly at Lady Trewavas.

"Appeal to me, Miss Maristowe," said the doctor, smiling. "I brought you to Sir Hilton as my best panacea; I am going to leave you here, and carry off Lady Trewavas. Will that please you, Sir Hilton? And if I leave you this physic for a quarter of an hour, will you swallow a veritable medicine when I bring it?"

"Anything short of poison, doctor, will I take, in gratitude for this your best prescription," he replied.

In spite of pain, in spite of doubt and jealousy, those were happy moments that the lovers spent thus together, forgetful of all things in the world save of each other. Above all, forgetful of Olive Varcoe, who, drenched with rain and weeping bitterly, sat out beneath the trees in darkness.

To some people it is always Winter. Dependence and poverty, sickness and sorrow, have no Summer. And among the most miserable outcasts from the sun, ranks the poor relation, the old feeble man, who shrinks nervously from the honored guests, who sits in draughts, and runs errands, and smiles vacantly at your jests, with a dismal mockery at mirth; or the woman turned fawner and flatterer, who bears all snubbings with supernatural cheerfulness, and does all the family mending. Upon her is poured out the vials of domestic wrath, and she takes the edge off the sharp tempers of family belligerents, before they come themselves to the conflict. This is her fate; and it is a sad sight to see her smiling on the cross children, or listening with intense interest to the tattle of her patroness, a sad sight, because there is a lack of sturdiness and truth in the natures that prefer to bear such things rather than work hard and fare hard with independence.

Yet Olive, though dependent, was not one of these. It was true that Lady Trewavas, without meaning it, was sometimes hard on her. If the house was full of guests it was thought a mere trifle to disturb Miss Varcoe, and make her yield her room, or share it with another. Slights, seldom put on others sometimes fell to her share, and at parties and picnics she was often thrust aside, without Lady Trewavas herself being very conscious of the fact. The household had grown into the habit of forgetting or overlooking her, and the justice or injustice of the process was never inquired into; she was a person of little importance, and there was an end of the matter. No unkindness was meant; and yet the family slipped into grooves that passed Olive Varcoe by. Then, too, she was expected to do many things that she chose to consider derogatory. She helped to mend the family linen, she assisted to label preserves and pickles; and (horror of horrors!) Lady Trewavas sometimes gave her a dress of her own, with orders to alter it for herself.

Struggling to free her hands, Olive turned at bay like a creature hunted and terror struck. A long gloomy future opened itself before her eyes; mortification, defiant, penury, dependence, each of her way; and, heaped atop of all, Eleanor would see her shame—Eleanor would triumph over her! Eleanor, radiant, victorious, beloved, would lean through life on Sir Hilton's protecting arm, and bestow her charity contemptuously on the poor cousin who had once been her rival.

The thought was too galling, and wringing her hands piteously, Olive wept beneath the dripping trees, regardless of the rain, regardless of the loneliness and darkness, and heedless of the shiverings that ran through her frame, as her wet garments clung around her.

No one asked for her, no one missed her; so the forlorn girl sat out in the rain, taking a vicious delight in her misery, and yet angry that no one cared enough for her to seek her. In this, as in all other things, she was a forward child, needing the kind mother's voice that she had never heard, the mother's love that she had never received; and yet some one even now was seeking her—some one who was always kind, always thoughtful for others—some one who, in the midst of his own sorrow, so carelessly ignored by all, could yet feel for hers.

"Olive! Olive!" cried John's voice, cautiously, "where are you? What are you doing out here in the rain? You will kill yourself."

"What does it matter?" said the girl bitterly. "Is there any human being that will care? My aunt suffers me, that is all; and lately she has begun to dislike me. If she could help it, she would not give me even a garret in her great house; she would thrust me out into the world to perish. I hate her, John! And I hate Eleanor, too, and every one! Shall I be grateful for the unwilling charity flung to me carelessly, as we fling bones to a dog? No! And if it were not for you, John, I would kill somebody this very night."

"Olive! Olive! you are talking most unjustly,—most wickedly!" exclaimed John, aghast at her violence. "You are mad!"

"I am not mad," she replied. "I am too sane. If my brain were not so clear, I should not see how bitter is my future, how drear and horrible my fate."

"Does no one suffer but you, Olive?" asked John. "Look out into the world and you will see real misery enough; or look at home, and you will find you are not the only one writhing beneath a sore heart."

"Oh, you, John! Who can copy you?" she said. "You have the patience of Job and the meekness of Moses. Will you set yourself up as a model to a girl like me?"

"No," replied John, gently; "but you might have sense enough in yourself to bear things more quietly."

"I cannot bear them quietly, and I won't!" she exclaimed. "John, I cannot endure this marriage; I must stop it. I shall commit murder to stop it, if nothing else will."

"You are talking wildly, and like a foolish, wicked child," said John. "You don't know what you say. And besides would murder stop it?"

"Yes," said Olive, lifting her face from her hands, and letting the fitful moonlight fall full upon her agitated features. "If I flung Eleanor into the sea, or if I shot aunt, or poisoned old Mrs. Maristowe, Hilton would not marry, at all events, not for a year; and stranger things than the breaking off of an engagement may happen in a year."

John listened to her silently; then stretching out his hand he seized both hers, and held them in a strong grasp.

"Olive," said he, "beware of what you do. If you touch a hair of Eleanor's head, I denounce you at once. The wicked deed you have done to-day is not hidden from me. I know that you went out to the stable and twice filled Pixy's manger with corn; and this you did, knowing that Eleanor was going to ride to Trewavas cliffs. A scarum, a plunge, an unexpected gallop near that precipice, and her life would have been flung away like a straw. Nothing could have saved her. She would have been dashed to pieces beneath the rocks."

Struggling to free her hands, Olive ed girl I am!"

"Yet you would have been glad," said John, gloomily. "If Eleanor had been flung by that vicious brute over the cliff, and had lain crushed and mangled out of life on the sands."

"No, no, I should not have been glad," she replied. "If she had not believed my stories, and gone with aunt, I meant to confess what I had done. Do you believe me, John?"

She sank down on the wet grass, exhausted by her own vehemence, and clung to his knees with both arms.

"I believe you, Olive," said John, lifting her kindly. "You are wet through, my poor child; let me drive you home—no one shall see you."

"May I stay here?" she cried; "may I stay and nurse him? It is my fault that he is hurt. I ought to stay."

"It is useless to ask it Olive," replied John; "Lady Trewavas stays here herself, and Eleanor with her, and Hilton returns home with them to-morrow, if well enough. You see all your mad endeavors to separate these two, only endear them the more to each other."

For the first time there was a tinge of raineur in John's tone, but in a moment he returned to his old self.

"Come, Olive," said he, "let us go home together. They won't miss us."

Worn out and weary, Olive consented; but when she rose, she trembled violently, and John was forced to support her with one arm. Thus, with head drooping, and her heavy habit trailing over the long wet grass, the forlorn girl passed beneath the dripping trees, and so down the lonely road, where John's tilbury waited. He lifted her to the seat, and drove fast towards Trewavas.

NATIONAL PREJUDICES VANQUISHED.

The Triumphs of a Great Discovery.

The magnetic influence of gold attracts the people of every clime to our shores. Men of all nations, and speaking all the languages of civilization, are to be found congregated on our auriferous plains. Differing in all other things in their customs, habits, and religion—yet there is one point upon which their opinions coincide. Englishmen and Americans, French, Germans, Swedes, Italians, Swiss and Chinese admit, without a dissenting voice, that the great remedies introduced to the world forty years ago by Holloway are better adapted to the cure of diseases in this climate than any other preparations in existence. This appears, in fact, to be the experience of mankind in all parts of the world, and hence the universal popularity of these medicines. We consider, however, that the boundless confidence placed in their efficacy by the representatives of so many nations at the mines, is a [illegible] phenomenon [illegible] of these [illegible] at matu[illegible] of drug[illegible] several [illegible] connect[illegible] tions o[illegible] by the [illegible] have [illegible] repud[illegible] Ointm[illegible] comm[illegible] guid[illegible] accep[illegible] the result [illegible] groc[illegible] experience.

The best method of healing sore legs, and sores and ulcers generally, is by rubbing the Ointment into the inflamed parts around the orifice, first opening the pores and softening the flesh with warm fomentations. The part affected is then dressed with lint or linen saturated with the Ointment. Such is the external treatment, but it is also proper to give the patient a few doses of the Pills during the progress of the cure, as they serve to purify the blood and discharge morbid matter from the system, while the Ointment is doing its work on the surface.—The Scientific Witness.

RIGHTING A WRONG.

In the Ontario Legislature on Friday, according to the Globe, Dr. Barr made an eloquent appeal to the House on behalf of the daughter of an old Waterloo hero, who, he alleged, had been unjustly deprived of property belonging to her many years ago. It came up on this motion for an "order of the House for a return of copies of all papers respecting the several applications for letters patent of lot No. 24 in the 8th concession of the township of Mono, in the county of Dufferin, East Hurontario street, and for copies of all correspondence relating thereto, and the names of the several patentees of the lot, and the price (if any) paid by the several parties respectively."

Hon. Mr. Hardy promised to produce all the papers in connection with the case. But this did not satisfy Dr. Barr, who wanted to bring before the country the wrongs that the family of the gallant old soldier, Peter Montgomery, had sustained over a quarter of a century ago. The Commissioner for Crown Lands could hold out little hope of redress, but the motion was agreed to.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE election of Mr. Featherstone, Reformer, in Peel is to be protested and it is altogether likely he will be asked to step down and out.

RUMORS of election protests galore are floating around Osgoode Hall, but so far none have been put in. By waiting to the last day petitioners hope to freeze out any cross-petitions which otherwise might be put in as an offset, and they are consequently hanging back. —Telegram.

IT would be an excellent idea for the R. & B. committee to have the mud and dirt removed from Broadway. Three years ago similar work was done and for months this great thoroughfare presented a neat and clean appearance. The cost of such work would be comparatively small to the great good which would result. Will they do it?

THE beautiful spring weather struck this part of the country several days ago, but, so far as we know, the local board of health has not held a single meeting this year. Now is the time people should begin to clean up their premises. The members of the board of health are also members of the town council, and we think it is about time they were making a move in this very important matter.

AMARANTH COUNCIL.

The Amaranth council met at the town hall, Laurel, on Saturday, April 4th, pursuant to adjournment. All the members present; the Reeve in the chair. Minutes of previous meeting read and adopted. Each member made oath as directed by law as member of Court of Revision on drainage by-law, No. 238.

The appeals against the assessment made in by law 238 were disposed of as follows:—David East, W½ lot 16, con. 10, assessment sustained; Robert Ritchie, E½ lot 12, con. 10, assessment sustained; W. B. Jelly, W½ lot 19, con. 9, assessment reduced $10, and said sum assessed to E½ lot 19, con. 9; Andrew Young, W½ lot 20, con. 9, assessment reduced $10, and said sum assessed to W½ lot 21, con. 9; John Budd, E Pt. What a picnic there would be in some of our towns and cities if many of the witnesses who testify at election trials, and on whiskey selling and division court cases, were treated in such a summary manner. There would be a pretty extensive tomtomming we fancy.

Messrs. W. G. Henderson, John Henderson and Samuel McCutcheon, of Whitfield; Wm. Barker, of Auguston; Samuel Graham, of Mansfield; and Charlie Wilson, of Shelburne, started on Tuesday for Manitoba. The Messrs. Henderson took six horses, Mr. McCutcheon nine horses, and Mr. Barker a span of horses. Messrs. Henderson and McCutcheon intend coming back in a month or two. Mr. W. R. White, of Whittington, left by the same train with 10 horses. Mr. James Noble, of Singhampton, also shipped his effects at this station.

An Old Gentleman with Whom Cupid is not Dealing Kindly.

John Moon is an old bachelor of Oshawa, but he is the centre of attraction at the Rossin House to-day. The members of the legislature sink into insignificance compared with him and it is a matter of question if the advent of the Prince of Wales would create a greater sensation. He has hired the whole first flat of the Rossin bedrooms, parlors, waiting rooms, corridors, and all for the girl who will never come.

He advertised for a wife in the Chicago and Buffalo papers and got a reply from an alleged young woman stating that she would be at the Union Station some day this week, and he was to meet her.

The most pathetic figure in the Union station is this old man with his big hands in white kid gloves and a calla lily which some wag pinned on his lapel—standing grinning at every woman who gets off the train, expecting that one of them will throw her arms around his neck.

With the quick instinct of women, although he has only been here five days, every girl from King street to the Union Station, knows him and the peeping and giggling behind half drawn curtains would fill a lake.

He meets every train wearing a six dollar overcoat, a dollar hat and white gloves, and he goes home every night hoping for the best to morrow.—Toronto Telegram.

The saw was worth about $6, but Jimmy knocked it down for $1.50. On Monday Mr. M. Lesson procured a search-warrant and placed it in Constable Hubbard's hands for execution and the cop soon had the saw in his possession. It is said that Mr. Cornelius, who believed Robertson owned the saw, will have Jimmy arrested on a charge of fraud.
